Western Maryland had a duo of heads-up players in their co-Captains Lassahn and Lathrop. Lassahn didn't go as well against Villanova as he was expected to, but Benjamin playing left end, came through with a good brand of football.

On the whole, the team satisfied me. They have played four games and came through undefeated and we are now pointing for our fifth straight against Boston University.

men and Victor Cook, hailing from Jersey City and Baltimore respectively, are two hundred pound tackles and their efforts should enable them to see action next Fall.

According to Coach "Doc" Jacobs, the Freshman Squad as a whole is shaping up to expectation and are carrying out their assignments very well. The chief duty of the Frosh is to learn plays of the opposing teams every week and then run them against the Varsity so that the Varsity will get an idea of what they will run up against when the opponents are met. The "Kittens" are a group of enthusiastic yoummen and are responding one hundred per cent to the instructions and teachings of the Villanova Coaches.

Tennis Semi-Finalists

Philip Kramer and Leonard Wienfeld battled in the semi-finals of the tennis tournament Friday. Wienfeld entered the finals after beating Kramer.

Tennis Tournament Ends Today; Wienfeld and Rice Reach Finals

This afternoon the finals of the Intra-mural tenis tournament will take place on Villanova's courts. The two contestants, Wienfeld and Rice, will battle for the supremacy of their respective groups in the first intra-mural contest this year.

The semi-finals were held last Friday. Phil Kramer of Fedigan; Wienfeld, a frosh Commerce and Finance student; and Rice, a Mendel Hall resident, were the men to reach the semi-finals. Rice drew a bye and was slated to meet the winner of the Kramer-Wienfeld match.

Kramer was the favorite; but Wienfeld surprised by taking the Fedigan boy over the net. Rice will meet Wienfeld in the finals today.

The winner of the finals automatically takes first place in this tournament ;while the loser takes second. Kramer, the loser in the semi-finals, was awarded third prize.

The advent of cold weather makes further matches impossible. Therefore, there was a drawing held to determine the final standing of the remaining halls. The drawing was held in the office of the VILLANOVAN. The sports editor and several of his staff witnessed the event.

Austin Fourth

Austin Hall drew fourth place, with Alumni and the Mendel Hall Dayhops following in that order.

The contestants were well satisfied with the condition of the courts, which were in fine shape. Despite the inclement weather, the matches were run off in fine style, with a minimum of delays due to climatic conditions.

Rice is favored to wi nthe tournament, as a hard driving game will defeat Wienfeld. The C & F man displays a brand of pat ball that is hard to figure out. His high bounding lobs have brought him this far as they caught his opponents flat-footed.

YEARLING QUINTET SCHEDULE PENDING

Frosh to Play Preliminary Games Before Varsity Home Contests

Al Severance, recently appointed coach of the varsity basketball team will be serving double duty this year by coaching the freshman squad as well as the varsity.

Coach Severance is working on a schedule for the freshmen. He has planned to have them play preliminary games to each of the varsity's home games. The frosh will not be able to play any away games outside the city because Severance will not have the time nor the opportunity to accompany them on any trips.

Most of the games are pending. The only games so far definitely scheduled are with the Temple Freshmen and the Ursinus Frosh. The home game with Temple Frosh will be played on January 29, and the away game on February ninth. The Ursinus game is scheduled for February second.

Many other schools have been contacted and games with them are pending a suitable date. Among these teams are: Bucknell Junior College, Brown Prep, George Washington Freshmen, Geneva Freshmen, Haverford Aces, U. S. Naval Reserve quint, and Albright Freshmen. Coach Severance is also making an attempt to schedule games with the University of Pennsylvania Junior Varsity and Drexel J. V.'s, but has not received any reply as yet.

FOOTBALL DINNER

Plans have been tentatively made to hold the annual Villanova football dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia. The affair will be held under the auspices of the Villanova Club of Philadelphia, and will take place on December 8, 1936.

of good material this year, but there are three classes that have him worried. There is a lack of material for the heavyweight class, the 118 pound class and the 155 pound class. Last year there were three aspirants for the 118 pound division and Joe Carrig and Dick Mulvehill took care of the 155 pound and the heavy weights respectfully. This year Mulvehill is not back and Joe Carrig will be lost, as you will see him on the basketball court. The team will be captained again this year by "Tony" Sala, who is also captain of the football team and Inter-collegiate light-heavyweight boxing champion.

Tom Kennedy is manager of the team, being assisted by Olivar Volpe. A freshman manager is wanted.

All boys who intend to try out for the team this year must start at the beginning of the season and not later; also, training will be much more strict this year, with plenty of roadwork.

The schedule this year is tougher than ever before. The team will open at Germantown Boys Club on January 11th, and will close with a trip to Wisconsin on March 19th, 1937, to box the Badgers, where Harry Stuhldreher, former head football coach at Villanova is now coaching the Wisconsin eleven.

Last year, Ray Gadsby and his leather pushers had a great season. Participating in four meets, the boxers lost only one, a questionable decision to Western Maryland. Penn, Temple and W. and J. were beaten. "Tony" Sala, the Captain, was undefeated and then went to the Intercollegiate Bouts at Penn State and successfully defended the crown which he had won the previous year.

PRE-SEASON SWIM SESSIONS HELPFUL

Squad Under Coach Mathieu in Mid-Season Form; Candidates Wanted

Although the swimming season is still several months away, the Villanova natators are rapidly rounding into shape in the gymnasium swimming pool. There are thirty-three aspirants on the squad at present, and they are displaying such ability that Coach Arthur Mathieu is having a difficult task selecting the varsity team.

The large list of candidates is headed by nine lettermen, who in turn are led by Wilmer Booth, backstroke stylist, Bill Leahy, sprint star, and Toby Greco, breast stroke artist and assistant coech. Booth and Leahy were undefeated in dual competition last year, while Greco dropped but one race.

In addition to these vets the returning letter winners are: Joe Duffy and James Cousart in the sprints, Bill Bailey and Tom Carbine in the furlong, Jack Hosey, backstroke ace, and Don Cantor, of last year's relay team. Incidentally, with the return of Carbine, Leahy, Cousart, and Cantor, last year's relay team will be intact.

Two freshmen look very promising at present and they are counted upon to give the varsity men a stern battle for top honors in their events. Charles Timmins, who last year at West Catholic High School won the National Interscholastic Catholic spring-board diving championship, is expected to win many points for the Wildcats, not only in his specialty, but also in the 220-yard dash, where he has shown marked proficiency of late. Ed Leahy, a backstroke specialist from St. Joe's Prep, is another frosh of whom great things are expected.

With these men as a nucleus and providing that the freshmen come along as is expected, Villanova's mermen should be even more successful than they were last year, when four out of five meets were won. The team is potentially powerful already, and if the freshmen are allowed to compete in varsity meets, it will be the strongest aquatic squad ever to represent the Main Liners. The large turnout of candidates this year is ample proof of the strides this sport has taken at Villanova, and if this interest continues, it would be long before swimming becomes a major sport at the college.

Coach Mathieu will have a fine opportunity to determine how his boys will fare against outside competition, when the 'Cat mermen swim the Penn A. C. for a practice meet in the near future.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

LAST Wednesday the one-fifties went up to Maivern to scrimmage the prepsters. All that we could find out about the workout was that the truck broke down on the outward journey. Incidentally, the club looks to be better than any seen here in recent years, and it may break the long string of defeats compiled by former teams. Members of the squad state that they would appreciate the students co-operation during practice, the co-operations consisting of refraining from bouncing baseballs off their heads, and of not borrowing the extra footballs.

From what those fortunates who could get to the Penn State game tell us, State College was well bedecked and in a joyous mood for the occasion of the Villanova contest. Various effigies of the "Poor Old Wildcat" were displayed at appropriate locations about the town, and the inhabitants were all set to have a glorious time at the expense of the Villanova team and rooters. History was made that afternoon, and it needs no retelling. Observers state that the gloom in State College, Pa. that night could have been cut with a knife, and not a very sharp one, either. Needless to say, Wildcat fans remedied any situation they thought needed attention.

Some of the lads at the C. & F. school are pining for a reopening of Louie's Little Pie Shop. They claim that the rigors of the day are hard to undergo without the sustenance they would be able to obtain if the place were opened, as of two years ago. Food, these lads say, is like the pep talk between the halves of the big game. It spurs them on to bigger and better things.

Last Thursday's Philly Record had a nice column, written about hockey, a sport that is a month or two away. It seems to us that the columnist could have spent his time and space to better advantage writing about the Wildcat grid team.

We have one of the outstanding squads in the East, and yet the Philadelphia papers show an amazing lack of inclination to inform their readers of this fact. Why write about a club that can't put the ball over the goal line from the half-yard line after pushing seventy yards down the field, when there's a team that gets better with each game played? Maybe we're prejudiced!

After two weeks or so of practicing in Alumni Hall gym, the varsity basketeers expect to get started in the big gym. We fear the effects of the wax put on the floor for the Soph Cotillion. Memory recalls the sliding the boys did after some of the dances last year. The footing is very uncertain and the spills are many. However, the lads survived before and will no doubt survive this year, so don't worry.

With the opening of the Roosevelt Raceway, a new type of motor racing came to the American public. It is new in that it is different from the usual automobile racing in this country. Prior to the opening of this new track, the majority of race tracks were circular, oval, oblong, or of some similar design, but this Roosevelt affair has sixteen or so tortuous turns. The reason so many foreigners finished up in the money is due to the fact that they had superior machines and were used to this type of course. We do not mean to take credit away from the men from overseas, but we want to point out the fact that it is necessary for the Americans to develop a better car and participate in more races of this type if they are to take their rightful place at the head of the world in this field.

SENIORS TO HOLD BALLOT TODAY

Representative for Student Council To Be Selected By Class of '37

Nominations for the third representative from the senior class to the Student Council will be held this afternoon at 12:45 in the Mendel Hall Amphitheater.

This notification was divulged by Mario Menocal, chairman of the Student Council, who also announced that the general election will be held on Friday at 1 o'clock in the rear of the dining hall.

This unusual procedure is attributable to the fact that the present senior class elected but two members at the end of their sophomore year instead of the customary three members. In order that this deficiency may be rectified and also to enable them to have their full share in the Council, the senior class has been compelled to ballot.

Mr. Menocal also announced that there will be a very important meeting of the student governing body this evening. Important disciplinary measures will comprise the main topic to be under discussion.

In conjunction with the aforementioned election, the Student Council also assumes the responsibility of all elections held on the campus.

Mr. Menocal also announced that a very busy season is anticipated for the Council. This year will surpass all previous years in regards to staging large football rallies and the like.

"Twelve page issue this time, stooge," he said as he bustled into my room one evening. "Dig up a feature about anything of interest, make it pretty long and have it in by tomorrow."

"Is that all?," we asked quizzically eying our editor as he made ready for his departure.

"S'all," he replied. "Make it about eight inches." He was gone.

A feature story, eh. Oh well, we shall have to sleep on it. We did said thing and arose next morning full of ideas. After partaking of a hearty breakfast we came back to our room and started to think. Result—

Some time ago back in the long ago a great and wise philosopher told a waiting world that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." Human beings need a rest from their daily lives and so they turn to things that have nothing to do with their ordinary routine work. Such escapes from reality are called hobbies.

Looking around Villanova and talking with a few of our fellow students we discovered several interesting hobbies among them.

Joe Tanzola was the first one approached, and a glimpse of his room revealed his diversion without further interrogation. Pipes by the dozen lie around his room in all sorts of holders. One special pipe he showed us was a long stemmed affair coming from a pipe shop up at Penn State. At present it is his pride and joy.

Maurice MacDonnell who lives across the hall from Joe is also a collector of pipes, while Al Fracchia also follows this habit.

Eddie Dowling, John and Joe Delaney and Big Emil Mathias are followers of the sea. Dowling has a small boat on Long Island Sound while the Delaneys and Big Emil have their boats, (good sized ones, too) at Seaside Heights down in Jersey. Dowling is also a hunter of no mean ability and Emil tinkers with machines with no little success.

John Pillion, reaches into the soul of Bethoven and Shubert for his recreation, while Bill Matt and Jack Rhodes depend upon the stage for their entertainment.

Bill Bewker, better known as "Railroad" has this particular business for his hobby, as well as that of not only saving but wearing very old and decrepid hats.

Len Connelly has the unique habit of saving postage marks from all over the world. Ray Chonko is a connosseur of Chevrolets; and Phil Cramer is the champion hiker of the college.

KNOCK - KNOCKER' IS 'PED-PUDDLER'

Mr. X. Starts Career In College Winds Up In Jail

"Knock - knocks" usually open doors or at least drag a reluctant "who's there?" from some weak-willed member of society, but they rarely close doors—insane asylum doors, especially, on confirmed "knock-knockers."

Mr. X, the victim, began his short career during an Econ. lecture by Professor M. M. Davisson of the University of California. He was obviously dissatisfied that students should study the "decadent figures of capitalism"; so he stomped down the center aisle and joined the amazed professor on the platform.

Twice he "knock-knocked" for attention on the blackboard. But no customary query. Mr. X got stage fright and ran off the platform through the side door. But he wasn't gone for long. Professor Davisson had just regained his composure and resumed his lecture when the side door opened.

The unknown quantity, in full view of the audience, began playing "handies," thumbing his nose at the lecturer, both hands interlaced.

While temporarily encarcerated at the city hall, pending investigation, he flooded his cell with water, spread his blankets in the pools, and went wading. To the policemen's demands for an explanation of his "ped-puddling," Mr. X earnestly said: "The doctor told me to keep my feet wet."

By the way, are you a confirmed "knock-knocker"?

Prolific Prof. Proves Proficient At Pastoral Poems, Pest Pouncing

All we know about him is that he is a professor of English at the University of Kentucky. But let not unfamiliarity with him prejudice us against him—against his ultra modern classroom tactics.

It would be well for all instructors and profs who possess the undesirable ability to "sandman to slumber" the most alert students to take a few suggestions from this ingenious tutor.

His subject matter may be dry. His voice may be sleepily soothing, but his method of holding the attention . . . ah.

During a recent afternoon session, he noted that his audience was annoyingly indifferent toward his comparisons of English pastoral poems with Italian pastorals. If poetry wouldn't interest them, perhaps flies would. His right hand flashed out and closed over a buzzing fly. He squashed it, then tossed it aside.

Sleepy eyes blinked with amazement. Drowsy students nudged their neighbors. What? It couldn't have happened.

But the professor was not one of these selfish individuals who acts and conceals the cause for his conduct. He explained that it was a measure to wake up his class. He proceeded to point out the defects of his "fly-system." Yes, flies were O. K. for summer and spring months, but what about winter and fall?

Cold seasons cannot even deter this prolific professor. When Dipterae are dormant, he adapts inanimate objects toward the same ends. While lecturing and walking around the room, he balances a window pole with one finger, and students, fearing that the wavering pole will deal them a lusty rap on the pate, are constantly attentive.

And even at this point his technique does not run out. He sometimes stretches a rubber band across two fingers and flexes it continuously. Scholars must be watchful; they cannot risk closing their eyes to the peril.

Our un-Demosthenic professor, with a W. C. Field's propensity plus a Houdini brain, succeeds where less talented men of learning, men who indulge solely in pastoral poetry, fail.

FLUNKS ENGLISH

William McKee, freshman at North Dakota, certainly goes in for extremes. Recently he had his poem, "Prisoners of Alcatraz," published in the current issue of "Prairie Wings," a North Dakota poetry journal. A few days later, he failed in the English placement test.

College Student to Principal of High School In 8 Weeks

Peter Spalkos' Fortune Reads Like Horatio Alger Story

Toledo, O.—(ACP)—Peter Skalkos' recent fortune sounds something on the order of the "Phil the Fiddler" type story that Horatio Alger, Jr., used to grind out.

Not everyone, in fact very few university students, can boast of changing from a college student to a high school principal in two months.

Skalkos was graduated from the University of Toledo in June and received an appointment to the government high school in Las Marias, Puerto Rico, early this summer; he assumed his duties on August 24, signed a one year contract for the position.

"Everything is grand here," he writes to a friend in Toledo, "except the bananas, which are served at every meal in a variety of disguises. Gardenias line all the walks leading to the school."

Whether or not it was "apple-polishing" Skalkos doesn't know exactly, but on his first day as principal he mentioned that he was fond of horseback riding. The next day three of his pupils brought horses to school for his use. They told him that their fathers had reminded them that they must treat "El Americano" well.

PHYSICISTS GATHER IN NEW YORK CITY

American Physical Society To Convene October 29 - 30 In Gotham

New, York, N Y.—(ACP)—What is expected to be the largest gathering of physicists in the history of the nation will be held in the special "founders meeting" of the American Physical Society, the Optical Society of America, the Acoustical Society of America, the Society of Rheology and the American Association of Physics Teachers on October 29-30. These societies organized, in 1931, the American Institute of Physics to co-ordinate their activities.

Particular emphasis was placed on linking the pure scientific research of the university laboratory with the application of such research in industry. The important applications of the science of physics to industry will be reviewed in papers by invited speakers. The wide range of the topics is shown by the list of a few of the titles.

"Vibration in Industry," by Dr. J. P. Don Hartog, Harvard University and "Physics in Air Transportation," by Dr. Clark B. Millikan, California Institute of Technology.

George Collins Selected For Council Position

Engineering Student Wins Out in Seven-Cornered Race Among Seniors for Highly Coveted Post

WINNER IS ACTIVE IN CAMPUS LIFE

In a special election of the Class of 1937, George T. Collins, student in the School of Technology, was elected to fill a vacancy in Senior Class representations of the Student Council.

Collins has been extremely active in extra - curricula activities in the course of his stay at Villanova. Only recently he received an appointment to the editorial staff of the Belle Air. In addition, he has been a staff member of the VILLANOVAN for the past three years, and also was a member of the Blazer Ball-Dance Committee, which is held in conjunctoin with Junior Week.

7 Cornered Race

The various schools on the campus presented many candidates for the coveted position. There were two students from each of the campus schools, with the exception of the Engineering School. As a consequence of running but one man for the office, the Technology Department easily obtained a majority for their representative, the aforementioned George Collins.

Others who aspired to the office include Victor Ashe and Francis Monahan, of the School of Arts and Philosophy; Philip Murray and Francis Shealey, students in the Commerce and Finance Department; Norton Paden and Harry Parkin, members of the Science School.

This election marked the first time in the history of the college that such a procedure has been undertaken. The necessity of such balloting was attributable to the fact that the senior class had but two representatives in the Student Council prior to this election. Due to some undeterminable circumstances the senior clas elected but two members instead of the customary three in their sophomore year. In order that this deficiency could be rectified and also to enable them to have their full representation in the student governing body, the senior class was compelled to ballot.

STUDENT COUNCILLOR

GEORGE T. COLLINS, who was elected by fellow members of the senior class to fill the vacancy in the Student Council. Collins, who is a member of the staff of the VILLANOVAN, is a student of high standing in the School of Technology.

Villanova Club of Gotham Sponsors Affair After Manhattan Game

At the October meeting of the Villanova Club of New York held at 120 Central Park South, New York City, presided over by Peter C. Eschmann, president, a program in connection with the Manhattan-Villanova game at Ebbets Filed, Brooklyn, and the football dance of Villanova at the Hotel Pennsylvania was thoroughly discussed.

The football dance, from past performances, should be a socially and financially successful affair. Captain Anthony Sala has been elected honorary chairman of the dance committee. William Clinton, of Orange, N. J., is chairman, assisted by Joseph F. Fenny, of New York, and John Whelchan and William Conway, both of Brooklyn. The dance will be informal and the clothes worn at Ebbets Field will be in good taste on the Pennsylvania ballroom floor. Eddy Masson's Orchestra of ten pieces has been engaged for the affair and tickets will sell for $3.00 per couple.

The meeting of the New York group was addressed by Eddie Dooley, football expert of the New York Sun and sports commentator on stations WOR and WABC. Dooley, who was All-America quar-

ROOSEVELT BESTS LANDON IN POLL

Decisive Majority Rolled Up for Executive; Leads Kansan by 4-1 Ratio

President Roosevelt was decisively proclaimed the victor for the presidency of the United States in a general student poll conducted at Villanova from last Wednesday to Friday inclusive.

Count of the ballots resulted in the following figures: Roosevelt, 195; Landon, 52, Lemke, 1; Thomas 1. The ratio of votes for President Roosevelt, therefore, to those for the Kansas' Governor was approximately 4 to 1. It is to be noted that but one vote straggled in for the National Union for Social Justice candidate, Lemke.

Landon Leads Elsewhere

Student polls conducted at other Universities throughout the East show a majority for Governor Landon.

It is yet to be seen, however, how the other Universities throughout the country will vote, in that the election is a National affair.

Such presidential polls show that the youth of America is keenly interested in a subject which, if not now, will in a few years be vital to their interests as American citizens.

SERIES OF PLAYS WILL BE STAGED BY BELLE MASQUE

Reorganized Dramatic Group Plans Number of Skits on Campus

SITE OF MAIN OFFERING CAUSES HEATED DEBATE

Publicity Committee Chosen; Enthusiastic Turnout Expected at Tomorrow's Meeting

Plans for the coming year were the chief point of discussion at a recent meeting of the Belle Masque, campus dramatic society.

It was decided to start the season with a series of short plays, to be given on the campus. This decision met with little opposition, but when the subject of the main plan of the year came up a heated discussion ensued.

Group Disputes

Anthony J. Frayne, moderator, had to call off plans until a future meeting. The chief point of dispute was whether to render the final play on the campus or in the city. The advocates for a city play argued that no matter what play they selected, the cost of presenting it and the expense of costumes would be the same, where-ever it was held. They said that in the city a hall would have to be rented at possibly from twenty to thirty per cent of receipts, and that this additional cost would be far more than offset by the larger crowds such an affair would attract in the city.

Committee Chosen

A committee of five, consisting of Hugh Ferguson, Charles Barrett, Fred Waters, Joseph Carroll and Joseph Quinn, was appointed to manage the publicity for the club, the lack of which seriously hampered the attendance at last Wednesday's meeting.

The next meeting will be held tomorrow at one o'clock in Room 214. There has been much agitation for resumption of dramatics at Villanova, ever since two years ago when the Belle Masque temporarily ceased its activities.

ANNUAL FIELD DAY PROVES CLIMAX TO 1936 ORIENTATION

Frosh-Soph Frolic Features Tug-of-War and Greased Pig Contest

EXACT DATE PENDING

Plans are being formulated for the forthcoming Freshman-Sophomore Field Day, according to an announcement today by Rev. William L. Lunney, O. S. A., class moderator.

This event, which was inaugurated in 1933, and which has become an annual affair, will be held in the very near future, the exact date having not yet been determined.

Frosh Anxious

With the institution of the Field Day, the Frosh have their long-awaited opportunity to prove conclusively, if they are able, their superiority over the sophomores. On the other side, the second-year men also have a chance to show that they are really superior to the freshmen.

Though the event is in the tentative stage, many contests are being contemplated. Among them are the greased pig contest, which proves to be the most colorful and amusing of all those staged. Others in-

CLUB PROPOSES RAFFLE

North Jersey Club to Chance Off Manhattan Game Tickets

Tickets for the proposed raffle of chances for two Villanova-Manhattan game tickets, as well as discussion of a suitable place for the annual Xmas dance were the chief topics of discussion at the last meeting of the North Jersey club last Wednesday.

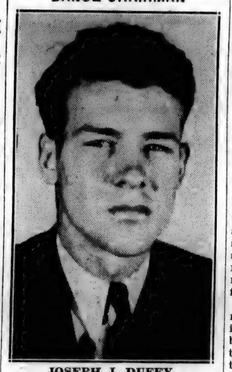
Arthur Carleton, a senior in the school of Technology, was chosen as chairman for the proposed dance.

November 6 Announced As Date of Annual Owl Hop

Villanovans Selected for 21st Annual Affair in Gymnasium; Joseph Duffy Heads Committee; Subscription, $1.50

TICKET SALE WILL BEGIN TOMORROW

DANCE CHAIRMAN



JOSEPH J. DUFFY, chairman of the annual Owl Hop, who has announced that the event which will be held this year on Friday, Nov. 6, in the college gymnasium. Always a successful social affair, this year's dance is looked forward to by the entire student body.

Following closely on the heels of its recent and unusually successful Fraternity Smoker, held last Tuesday evening in the Commerce and Finance auditorium, Phi Kappa Pi will present the Villanovans College orchestra, at their twenty-first Annual Owl Hop on Friday evening, November 6, in the College Gymnasium.

Arrangements Completed

Joseph Duffy, Chairman of the Owl Hop Committee, with the cooperation of his associates on the committee and in the fraternity, has virtually completed all arrangements for the affair. The gymnasium will be decorated with the false velvet ceiling and streamers, which gives a better sound effect in aiding the acoustics of the gymnasium. In practically the same way as last year's arrangement, refreshments will be served in the refreshment room adjoining the dance floor proper.

The dance, which will begin at nine o'clock and end at one o'clock, is the second of this season, and by all appearances will be well attended. The advance orders for tickets, which are priced at $1.50 per couple, has exceeded all expectations, proving that the Owl Hop is steadfastly becoming one of the outstanding affairs of the fall season. Mr. Duffy and his committee have announced that the tickets will be placed on sale tomorrow and may be purchased from any of the members of the fraternity, including practically all of the upper class engineers.

Smoker Is Success

Aside from all the excitement and enthusiasm created by the dance, last week's Smoker added greatly to the popularity of the fraternity.

Attendance for this affair was well over one hundred and fifty. The speakers for the occasion were Dean Carl T. Humphrey, of the School of Engineering; Maurice "Clipper" Smith, varsity football conch; Paetrus Bannniller, college registrar; and the fraternity's president, Eugene A. Barr, senior chemical engineer.

CAMPUS VISITORS

IF President Roosevelt were to come to Villanova some morning, there is no doubt but that every man in the College would turn out to greet him as his train arrived at the station; if Charles A. Lindbergh were to arrive on the campus early some morning, there is no doubt that all would arise early to greet the Colonel; if Premier Mussolini were to visit Villanova in the near future, who would not be on hand to greet him? And yet every day a Person comes to this campus and few bother to take notice of His coming; few take the trouble to make preparation for His coming; few care enough for Him to be on hand when He arrives. That Person is Jesus Christ.

Son of the Living God, this Sacred Person visits the campus every morning when the ceremony of Holy Mass is celebrated in the college chapel. What can He think of Villanova's Catholic gentlemen when He realizes that a mere dozen boys turn out to greet Him and to adore Him? What can He say when He realizes that the only reason that few receive Him is that we are too lazy, to indolent, too indifferent.?

It is an unpleasant thing to say, but from the small attendance at daily Mass it would appear that we are more interested in the things of this world than in those of the next. But such an attitude is materialistic, and we are Catholics. Let us therefore resolve to attend morning Mass religiously to daily greet our Divine Lord and Savior. He'll be there all the time; will you?

THE INSIDE STORY

ANENT the story of the old man who, having been saved from drowning by Franklin D. Roosevelt, berated him for failing to save his high-silk hat at the same time; we are told by Herbert Hoover, who confesses to have the inside story on the matter, that the old man had been deliberately thrown into the water in order that he might be rescued. Mr. Hoover, however, in his zeal for revealing the facts, fails to mention that he was the one who threw the old man into the water.

VOTER COERCION

IT HAS always been an offense against the principles of economic ethics and decency for an employer to use his position to turn the political sentiments of his employees in the direction which he believes desirable, which is usually toward his own welfare. But when the employer actually stoops to the point of discharging his men in order to influence their opinions he is little short of contemptible.

Because of this the Labor and Navy Departments cannot too speedily or too completely investigate the charges made against certain Eastern shipbuilders by John Green, president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America.

Such actions become more reprehensible when we consider that all of these shipbuilders are operating on Government contracts, which, for the most part, are many months behind time in their schedules.

Misplaced zeal of this kind, on the part of certain individuals, is most likely to redound to the discredit of the entire industry. With the result that the Government will not only, be more likely to attend the arguments of those who maintain that all naval construction should be confined to Government yards, but also, and this would economically fall on the innocent and guilty alike, be inclined to actually heed them.

PRESIDENTIAL POLLS

AS the day of election draws near feverish activity is evidenced in the ranks of both political major parties. With the threatening figure of Father Coughlin and his National Union for Social Justice Candidate, Lemke, hovering in the background, the real outcome is in doubt.

Many objective methods have been devised to sound out the trend of public opinion in an endeavor to prognosticate the result.

The Literary Digest poll, conducted by the weekly of the same name, favors Landon by an overwhelming majority. Administration adherents however, point to the fact that the Digest's sample ballots are mailed, for the most part, to telephone subscribers and automobile owners. New Dealers point out that, as a rule, these latter people are in the higher income bracket, and it has been traditionally the custom of this class to vote Republican.

On the other hand the American Institute of Public Opinion has also conducted a referendum to evaluate pre-election sentiment. Its results are directly opposed to the Digest findings. By its figures President Roosevelt is assured of victory by a comfortable margin over Governor Landon. This poll seems fairer than the Digest methods, because in its capitulations it contacts all groups, high and low income-earning categories, farmers, people on relief, and in general, seems to present the opinion of the average man.

Hence, with such conflicting opinions, each with its whole-hearted supporters, the American voter is faced with a complicated problem. The one and only poll that will prove outstandingly the best is conducted on November third. Only this is conclusive and reliable. And it cannot come too soon for the majority to lead us out of the labyrinth of the "true" predictions.

The Holy Bible, we are told, has recently been translated into the language of nearly every known civilized race. This remarkable development seems to show that the world is fast emerging from the horrible confusion of the Tower of Babel.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

CONGRATULATIONS are in order for one of our former classmates who has just been made president of the freshman class at Temple University Dental school. Joe Zibelli is the honored young man, and is the first Villanova boy to receive such an honor.

Some of the boys from the C and F school have been after us to mention the fact that they are conducting a campaign to get the Commerce building branch of the pie shop to reopen. They fail to realize the expense entailed in such an enterprise. Perhaps if they are good little boys their Uncle Louie will open a pie shop for them down there when the weather really gets bad. In the meantime it won't hurt them to come up to Mendel. The fresh air will do them good.

Now for our weekly feature. Take a look around the campus and see if you don't notice a certain frosh who looks very much like the famous comedian Charles Butterworth. We are not mentioning any names.

It may be a bit out of our line but we couldn't help noticing that six of the first seven teams leading the Eastern football rating are those belonging to Catholic colleges. Ya can't lick the Irish. (?)

Have you ever noticed when you were waiting for a hop that the great big cars that go whizzing by you all have "Landon" plastered all over them. The old rattle trap that picks you up usually has the name of our President in a prominent place.

Frosh do you know—

That one of the members of your class was caught offering insense before picture of a beautiful young lady adorning his room.

That your class, we hear, has just started becoming conscious of the existence of the student council. Only the "wise guys" will hear much of it.

That political arguments are beginning to show their ugly head here on our quiet campus.

That the L. K. D. fraternity is chancing off four tickets to the Temple game. Be a sport and help someone pay his dues.

Out at Notre Dame, (again we copy from them), a wide campaign is in existence to help pay for the massive statue of the Sacred Heart to be erected in Washington. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if all the American Catholic colleges would band together with similiar subscriptions and dedicate that statue to America as a lasting memorial to Catholic college men.

We are beginning to wonder — Just how much excursion tickets to Pasedena will cost, and how much we shall have to pay for tickets to the game.

We are also beginning to wonder who the guy was that wrote about Villanova being a pro football team. That is almost as much a laugh as the Veterans of Future Wars.

Since we are holding a Presidential vote here at Villanova, it is interesting to note some of the results from other colleges:

1. Yale—Favored Landon by a vote of 1814 to 704.
2. Brown—Favored Landon by a vote of 878 to 511.
3. N. Y. U.—Declared for Roosevelt by a vote of 418 to 128.

In law, a riot is a tumultous disturbance of the peace by an unlawful assembly of three or more persons in the execution of some private object. Most college laboratories, then, resemble a mass demonstration of riots, similar to the one in which the Fascists and Communists endeavor to express their views on the one rostrum.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

HOBBIES of radio artists are both varied and interesting. Guy Lombardo, for instance, is an avid boating fan. He owns two speedboats, by means of which he commutes every day from his Connecticut home to his work in New York City.

Chief hobby of Eddie Cantor is his camp for poor boys in upstate New York, which he has maintained for the last 10 years. Every summer Cantor visits the camp and entertains the youngsters.

Billy Jones, the bachelor, lists cooking as his ideal diversion. And Ernie Hare delights in eating dishes his wife prepares from recipes supplied by Jones.

Nelson Eddie's favorite pastime is connected with his work. He likes to make recordings of his own voice and the voices of friends who visit his Hollywood home. The latter are played for his friends' amusement—and amazement.

Between rehearsals and broadcasts Frank Munn often can be found at the roundhouse in Harmon, N. Y. taking rides in the locomotives.

George Burns likes golf, bridge, prizefights and his wife, Gracie Allen. Gracie's hobbies are shopping and her two adopted children, Ronny and Sandra.

Interests of Kate Smith, outside of radio, are cooking and outdoor sports. She spends most of her week-ends every summer at Lake Placid and owns a professional basketball team.

Flying and tennis are the things over which Andre Kostelanez gets enthusiastic. He commutes between New York and Hollywood every week-end by plane.

TOOTH FOR TOOTH: The MacFarlands, Arthur and George of Fred Waring's gang, are of that rare species of twins known as "identical." For the last five years they've tooted saxophones side by side in Waring's orchestra. During that time they've been distinguishable for exactly ten minutes! That brief interval occurred early this week when Arthur appeared at CBS rehearsal minus his left incisor. At last, thought the boys in the orchestra, they would have something to distinguish George from Arthur. Ten minutes later, in popped Arthur, grinning from ear to ear. A groan went up from the orchestra. His left incisor also had been giving him trouble and he'd just had it pulled!

ODDLY ENOUGH: Nelson Eddy, the baritone star of "Vick's Open House," once used a fountain pen to ink in studs to a dress shirt—and then discovered it was an informal party . . . Phil Baker insists he really did spot "Bottle" (Harry McNaughton) wearing a hunting jacket at the Bronx Zoo . . . Murray Hill 8-9933 is the strangest telephone number in New York. Pass In Review

By RICHARD DEVERALL

FATHER John F. O'Brien frequently advises his class: "Tell me what a man likes, show me what he reads, let me hear him talk, and I'll tell you the extent of his culture." Truer words were never spoken. Yet judging certain persons by their consumption of Street and Smith's monumental works on the men of the West, and by the sort of perverted jazz music these men listen to, an application of this dictum would not leave much to be said for such persons.

Culture is not something born in an individual, although many persons, those on top, prefer to call themselves "blue bloods" and sneer at their less fortunate fellows. Culture is the perfection of the individual, if we dare try to define the term; it does not mean that a man is perfected, but it does mean that, using every possible opportunity at his disposal, any given man has perfected himself as far as he is able. Thus, you can have highly cultured persons down on the Bowery, and you can have totally uncultured babboons living on Park Avenue. Some make use of their opportunities, other neglect the talents God has given them and fritter their lives away with the things of his world that do not count. Wise is that man who realizes his high destiny; wise is that man who desires to perfect himself; wise is that man who devotes his life to a temperate seeking of what philosophers refer to as "the good life": the summum bonum.

Holy Mother Church has given us many means to culture ourselves: she has nourished and protected education, she has inspired composers to write the finest music, she has excited men to write the most sublime poetry, and she has implanted seeds of Faith in the hearts of men that cause them to pour forth mighty works of fiction, philosophy and prose.

A diamond is prized not because it is a stone, but because it is a stone of many faces. The many scintillating facets of a diamond ever reveal new flashes un-noticed by us before. We delight to hold the diamond in the light and twist it about, catching the sparkling gleams as they flash forth from the inner part of the stone.

So is it with a man.

Give us that man who is well rounded out: the man of many shades, of many facets, of many nuances. Give us the Augustine, the St. Thomas, the Leonardo da Vinci, the Richard Wagner, the Dr. Johnson, the Francis Thompson, the G. K. Chesterton . . . and the Father Gillis.

However, enough of this. Let's on with the review of the week.

THE LABOR CONTRACT; by B. F. Shields, London, 1936. Professor Shields discusses world-wide relations existing between employers and workers. But he prefaces his study of social conditions and legislation with a discussion of the mediaeval guilds, a study that is both comprehensive and unbiassed. It is indicated clearly that, ". . . the trend of the entire capitalistic era was in accord with the spirit of revolt against the teaching of the Catholic Church."

Child labor is examined at some length. The wage problem is considered in the light of recent legislative developments; the minimum wage, the family wage, the special family allowance, and co-operative profit sharing in industry.

That chapter dealing with Industrial disputes is well done, for it is sympathetic and consistently just. Although the parties involved should settle disputes amongst themselves, it is the duty of the State to interfere in the name of justice when an impasse is reached. The New Zealand Arbitration Act of 1894 is a good example of judicious and highly successful application of this idea in the law of the land.

Be a man of many facets. Read this book, and read a book of poetry, and then read a Catholic novel. Know your world, and know it well. Be alive. Don't skim the froth: dig deep; penetrate; get to the bottom of things!

Globe Trotting by Waters

AFTER a three weeks stay, this week we move out of Spain and head for sunny Italy. The results of our visit will appear next week; meanwhile here are some odds and ends.

OLD CHINESE CUSTOM

A Chinaman will shake hands with himself upon meeting you. If you offer your hand, he'll immediately try to defend himself, if he has a knife, he will pull it out.

Americans usually have trouble in understanding many Chinese customs.

If you ask a Chinaman to go for a walk with you he will shake his head, no; and then go with you.

If you offer him a cigarette he will again shake his head, and then take one.

To a Chinaman our negative shake of the head means "yes," and vice versa.

CONCERNING SAILOR'S PANTS

There are two cities in France which very aptly describe a sailor's pants. They are Toulon (pronounced "too-long"), and Toulouse (pronounced "too-loose").

HAVE ONE ON ME

A Spanish - American pulls this one on the gullible American tourist. He very amicably escorts him to the nearest bar, and then asks in Spanish:

"Cognoce - usted Tomas?" (Do you know Thomas?)

The American, having picked up a smattering of Spanish, understands him. Knowing that "que" means "what" in Spanish, he asks:

"Que Tomas?"

"Tomas" besides meaning "Thomas" is the second person, future of the verb tomar, to take. "Que Tomas" also means "What will you take?"

"Champagne, thanks" the Spaniard replies, and summons the bartender, proceeding to have one on the American.

SEE IT 500 MILES AWAY!

The most powerful light in the United States, possibly in the world, is the Lindbergh beacon on the roof of the Palmolive building in Chicago. It has an immense two billion candle-power beam. The arclights are so powerful that a special ventilating system is necessary to keep it cool. It is possible for an airplane to see it faintly 500 miles away.

YEAR BOOK PHOTOS COMMENCE NOV. 9

Seniors and Members of Faculty Included in Three Day Schedule

Photographs of the members of the Senior Class for the Belle Air publication will be taken on November 9, 10 and 11. This announcement was made by Thomas F. Kennedy, editor-in-chief, at the initial meeting of the Belle Air staff last Tuesday.

At this first meeting of the annual publication staff the various committees, recently organized, were presented with their various tasks. Plans for the year were formulated and a general discussion of the nature of the 1937 annual was taken up.

Co-operation Stressed

Mr. Kennedy, in his opening address to the staff members emphasized the necessity of co-operation among members of the various committees, and requested them to be prompt in the execution of their respective activities.

Seniors are urged to co-operate with the Belle Air staff in regard to the photographs. A charge of $1.00 will be made for each photograph. This sum must be presented at the time the picture is taken. The photographer will be available between the hours of 10.00 A. M. and 3.00 P. M. on the days designated.

Complete co-operation of staff members and the full backing of the entire senior class will be instrumental in making a year book that will be complimentary to the class of 1937.

COUNCIL MEETS

There will be a meeting of the Student Council tonight at 5.30 o'clock in the amphitheater in Mendel Hall. Chairman Mario Menocal wishes all councilmen to attend.

As We See It . . . On Marriage

By HARRY PARKIN

MODERN MARRIAGE

"JACK, this is the first time we have breached convention to the extent of appearing in public together ,and I think it rather hazardous," said Helen Middleton.

"You're nervous, my dear, and besides stolen trysts are kind of harrowing," said John Langden. He then continued reassuringly, "No one of my acquaintance is familiar with this little restaurant in the Village, and so far as Don is concerned he does not expect me back at the office until late tomorrow afternoon; in fact I wired him to that effect."

Mrs. Middleton sat pensively turning her empty wine glass by its stem, with her eyes lowered, as though reluctant to meet the eyes of her husband's business partner. Finally raising her eyes, she said, "Jack, I think we should stop seeing each other. To go on in this manner will lead to everyone's unhappiness. For sooner or later it will become known. And what will people say of you—you who were Don's best friend."

"Nonsense, Helen," he answered somewhat sharply as though to dispel her thoughtful humor. "Is our love to be stifled by the fear of its revelation? . . . Are we to permit our present indifference to our marriage partners to change into the active hatred of enforced association?" Then more tenderly, "We can be happy together, Helen. We can leave New York and settle elsewhere if necessary. Why not venture a few days unpleasantness for the happiness to come. Don, certainly, will give you a divorce if you ask for it."

Helen leaned back against the cushions of the small booth they were occupying in the rear of the restaurant and said uncertainly, "Oh Jack, I have been thinking of all that, but don't you see, Don has trusted me,—he still loves me, and I—I can't destroy his love, even though I do not care for him any longer."

"But, Helen," Jack started to remonstrate.

Before he could continue, she interrupted him miserably. "I know that Don is more occupied with business, than with my happiness—but he has always been so kind and considerate that I hate to hurt him."

"Darling," John broke in, "I thought we had settled that." Then attempting to reason with her. "I know Don is a good business man, I see him every day at the office, but he is too occupied with it. Year by year he will become more absorbed in his work, and further away from you, so that soon you'll become as so many other American women — married but without a husband. For the man who occasionally sits across the table from you will seem as a stranger. And when finally you are no longer a part of your husband's life, you will seek love. And what will people say of you—you who were Don's best friend."

"Probably you are right," Helen murmured, "still I feel" — but her words were never finished. John saw the piteous uncertainty of her eyes give way to a stare of unbelief. Fascinated he looked at her, as the shocked expression of her eyes transmitted itself to the rest of her features, but before he could seek the cause of her amazement, half whisper and half gasp the words issued from her drawn lips. "There — there is Don with — with your wife."

SUN SHIP COMPANY IS INSPECTED BY A. S. C. E.

Marine Construction Viewed by Society; James Shelby Heads Group

Villanova College's Student Chapter of the A. S. C. E. inaugurated its seasonal inspection tours by visiting the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, on Thursday afternoon, October 22. The trip was arranged by the chairman of the Trip Committee, James Paul Skelly.

Introduce Group

The group, composed of eighteen Civil Engineering students and eight Mechanical Engineers, was introduced by Mr. Skelly, to the vice-president of the Sun Ship Company, R. L. Burke. Mr. Burke in turn introduced the group to its excellent guide, Mr. Taylor.

The visitors first inspected the dry docks where several ocean-going oil ships were raised above the water level and were undergoing painting and repair operations.

Inspect Riveting

Following the inspection of the process of riveting new steel plates on the hull of a freighter, which held the attention of the group for some time, they next inspected the machine shops.

The Society then proceeded to the shipbuilding yards where six new ships are under construction. The group also inspected the forging shop where all steel and iron is heat treated and hammered with a twenty-ton steam trip-hammer.

This trip marks the first of a series planned by the society. Mario Menocal, Chapter president has announced that the next meeting of the society will be held during the latter part of this week.

Among some of the exhibition debates scheduled by the Society for the coming season are a series of receptions to be given by nearby Holy Name Society units and also by the Knights of Columbus.

Radio Work Planned

Outstanding among Intercollegiate debates for this season will be a radio debate between members of the Fraternity and members of the Swarthmore College Debating Society.

It is expected, that with the return of the number of last year's varsity debaters for active participation this season, that the organization will experience a most successful season. It is interesting to note that those members of last year's Freshmen team who were undefeated in their schedule, have become members this year and have been selected to serve on the various debating teams of the Society.

OH FOR the life of a sports editor and a few of the the things he thinks about. Five straight wins, one of the few undefeated teams in the East, a decisive win over a team with an immaculate slate, but where is the recognition in the local papers. Not even a streamer, but Penn beat Brown in letters two inches high. So Penn beat Brown — so what. If they hadn't beaten Brown, then the headlines in that oh so dark print might have been appropriate. Take a gentle hint sports editors, Villanova is news also. In fact, Villanova is news in every community but its own backyard.

Artie Raimo, sensational back has received the nickname "Rabbitt," due to the manner in which he runs when carrying the ball. The way he scoots is certainly reminiscent of that long-eared animal.

Alex Bell his ankle encased in an autographed cast watched the B. U. game from the bench. Running down under punts has been Alex's waterloo for many years now. Previous accidents have netted him; one broken arm, one fractured ankle, and sundry bruises. Now, the same ankle snapped when it turned on him during practice last week. Through with active competition for the remainder of the season, Bell will navigate on crutches for a few weeks.

Preparations for intra-mural boxing are well under way and the ring is already up. Again, the lightweight team took it on the chin. Although not as badly beaten as in the Rutgers fray, the score of 12-0 at the hands of Princeton still looks mighty decisive. Part of the blame for the defeats could easily be laid on the fact that the lightweights are playing in outmoded equipment, much of which is improperly protected. According to reliable reports there is more comfort and as much protection in a bathing suit.

Christopher, Sala, Raimo and Buek Tally for Main Liners

By WILLIAM BOWKER

Displaying a speedy ground attack, Villanova's Wildcats trounced the undefeated Boston University Terriers by a 25-7 score Saturday at Shibe Park. Art Raimo, Harvy Buek, Bill Christopher and Captain Tony Sala acounted for the feline tallies.

During the opening minutes of the game Stopper and Dixon took part in a punting duel until, with about ten minutes of the game gone, Stopper broke loose on his own 25 and reached the 46 before being stoped by Spivack the Boston safety. Raimo then dashed 30 yards to the Terrier's 26, and the stage was set for the first score. After a line plunge by Earle, Stopper faded and tossed a long pass to the arms of Tony Sala, who took it on the fifteen and trotted the remaining distance to be the first to cross the Boston goa line this season.

A fumble by Famiglietti late in the first quarter was recovered by Olivari on the B. U. 17 yard line, and twenty seconds after the second canto had started, Buck crossed the line standing up. Wysocki failed to convert. Roy Thompson, left half took Wysoki's kick-off on the five and returned to the Villanova 48, but the 'Cats held for downs and Dixon punted. As Buek was about to kick, Raimo saw three men coming in on the kicker, and took the ball from Harvey and made a first down on the Terrier 26. A pass by Stopper was intercepted by Famiglietti on the Boston ten. Dixon kicked out to Christopher at midfield, and Chris galloped through the entire visiting team to score the third touchdown of the game. Boston threatened mildly on a pass from Famiglietti to Nechtem, but before

Villanova's 150-pound team went down to defeat in a bitterly fought contest with the Princeton Tigers last Friday afternoon by the score of 12 to 0. The Villanova lads maintained an edge on ground gained from the line of scrimmage but Princeton's 150-pound team making use of the breaks of the game came through in the pinch to score twice.

In the first period Burger, Tiger fullback, came in fast to block Biester's kicks and then fell on the pigskin which had rolled into the end zone, giving Princetown its first touchdown. A fifteen yard penalty and a kick which went out on Villanova's 20 yard line put Princeton in scoring position again early in the third period.

WILDCATS READY FOR BISON FRAY; MELLUS TO START

Game Will Mark Thirteenth Meeting Between Old Rivals

CATS SEEK FIFTH IN ROW

Bucknell will have an opportunity to see "Jack-Rabbitt" Art Raimo in action next Saturday afternoon when the Wildcats journey to the Lewisburg institution for the annual renewal of their Gridiron rivalry.

This will be the thirteenth game of the series which began in 1904. Villanova has won four of these contests, lost seven and tied one.

In five games this season Bucknell has won three and lost two. None of the teams met by the thundering herd have been on Villanova's schedule this year. Bucknell's squad is composed largely of Sophomores, five or six usually seen in every starting lineup. Co-Captains lead the Orange and Blue in this year's gridiron wars, Stuart Smith, 195 pound fullback from Montour Falls, N. Y., and Jack Filer, end and Bison punter.

Smith, a regular since his sophomore year is Bucknell's chief hope for All-American mention this season. E. E. "Hooks" Mylin, Bucknell's head-coach and former F. and M. star is now in his third season with the Bisons. His starting line-up is usually Conti and Filer, at end; Mazanek and Sturgeon, at tackle; Green and Rosati, guards; and Berk at center. The backfield usually includes Smith at fullback, Lane and Tomasetti at half, with Pfeiffer at Quarter.

Developing his reserve power has been Mylin's chief worry. Herbert Bowman, letter man from last year together with George Crouse, Joseph Valentino and Fasio, center

MURAL BASKETBALL READY FOR OPENER

Players to Find Alumni Gym Completely Renovated

The intramural tennis tournament is complete until next Spring. another intramural sport is due to swing into action. Basketball, the most popular of the intramural sports, will begin the first week in November.

All games will be played in the old Gym. There will be two games played every Tuesday and Thursday nights between resident teams. The time of the dayhops games have not been decided because the Mendel Dayhops, who are composed largely of Engineers, find it hard to play afternoon games." As soon as the dayhop schedule is worked out it will be posted, so watch the bulletin board.

The floor of the old Gym is to be renovated. Father McKee has requested that all stay out of Gym during renovation. Father also wished to call everyone's attention that anyone wearing shoes is not to play on the floor.

The race should be closer this year because the respective teams are better balanced than last season; and by the looks of things this should produce the keenest fight for championship honors in the many years of intramural play. The games in the past have always been blood thirsty affairs filled with entertainment as well as excitement. Mendel Dayhops, the defending champs, will have no easy job in retaining their title;

FOOTBALL TROPHY WILL BE AWARDED

Lions Club of Upper Darby Donate Silver Placque

It was announced today by the Rev. Charles J. Melchoir, O. S. A., that the outstanding member of this year's varsity football team will be awarded a large silver trophy at the close of the present season.

The presentation will be part of a ceremony in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of Upper Darby and is being donated by the Lions Club of Upper Darby.

The award is a large silver placque mounted on a black bakelitie background. On it is inscribed the merits for which it was received and the winner's name.

The recipient will be judged not only on his gridiron achievements, but also many other factors are involved. His scholastic standing must be high as must be his general conduct. Other factors in the judging will be his attendance at practices, strict adherence to training rules and attitude towards these, and his general teamwork. Therefore, it is open to any member of the varsity squad who is willing to work for the good of the team and keep high scholastic standing.

In addition to this valuable prize there will also be several valuable, but as yet unselected prizes, which will be presented at the banquet. These latter prizes were donated by the friends and followers of the team. The date for the banquet, as yet, has not been selected, but it probably will occur shortly after the annual football dinner December 8th.

These presentations wil mark a new era in the football history of Villanova and they will cause a higher degree of competition in athletic and academic achievements of our athletes.

Linsalata will fill the vacancy left by Stanley Klekotka, '35, who has entered the priesthood. Karson will continue the duties that were formerly attended to by Joseph Housenman, '33, who has recently changed his residence to Newark, New Jersey.

Dooley also gave his opinion of the relative merits of professional and college football, and it is his claim that one of the country's five leading college teams could beat the best professional outfit. After his talk Dooley allowed his hearers to formulate questions on football and related topics and "shoot" them at him.

Among some of the exhibition debates scheduled by the Society for the coming season are a series of receptions to be given by nearby Holy Name Society units and also by the Knights of Columbus.

Radio Work Planned

Outstanding among Intercollegiate debates for this season will be a radio debate between members of the Fraternity and members of the Swarthmore College Debating Society.

It is expected, that with the return of the number of last year's varsity debaters for active participation this season, that the organization will experience a most successful season. It is interesting to note that those members of last year's Freshmen team who were undefeated in their schedule, have become members this year and have been selected to serve on the various debating teams of the Society.

OH FOR the life of a sports editor and a few of the the things he thinks about. Five straight wins, one of the few undefeated teams in the East, a decisive win over a team with an immaculate slate, but where is the recognition in the local papers. Not even a streamer, but Penn beat Brown in letters two inches high. So Penn beat Brown — so what. If they hadn't beaten Brown, then the headlines in that oh so dark print might have been appropriate. Take a gentle hint sports editors, Villanova is news also. In fact, Villanova is news in every community but its own backyard.

Artie Raimo, sensational back has received the nickname "Rabbitt," due to the manner in which he runs when carrying the ball. The way he scoots is certainly reminiscent of that long-eared animal.

—V—

Alex Bell his ankle encased in an autographed cast watched the B. U. game from the bench. Running down under punts has been Alex's waterloo for many years now. Previous accidents have netted him; one broken arm, one fractured ankle, and sundry bruises. Now, the same ankle snapped when it turned on him during practice last week. Through with active competition for the remainder of the season, Bell will navigate on crutches for a few weeks.

Preparations for intra-mural boxing are well under way and the ring is already up. All candidates, who are willing to have their facial characteristics changed for the glory of their respective groups, should get in touch with Ray Gadsby at their earliest convenience. Active training will start the second week in November. The gala opening of the season will take place on December 14 in the new gymnasium.

Again, the lightweight team took it on the chin. Although not as badly beaten as in the Rutgers fray, the score of 12-0 at the hands of Princeton still looks mighty decisive. Part of the blame for the defeats could easily be laid on the fact that the lightweights are playing in outmoded equipment, much of which is improperly protected. According to reliable reports there is more comfort and as much protection in a bathing suit.

WILDCATS WIN FIFTH IN ROW

Perfect blocking plus power and speed accounted for the fourth and final touchdown for the 'Cats. "Jack Rabbit" Raimo, carrying the ball, scored on an end run, making the final tally 25 - 7.

Christopher, Sala, Raimo and Buek Tally for Main Liners

By WILLIAM BOWKER

Displaying a speedy ground attack, Villanova's Wildcats trounced the undefeated Boston University Terriers by a 25-7 score Saturday at Shibe Park. Art Raimo, Harvy Buek, Bill Christopher and Captain Tony Sala acounted for the feline tallies.

During the opening minutes of the game Stopper and Dixon took part in a punting duel until, with about ten minutes of the game gone, Stopper broke loose on his own 25 and reached the 46 before being stoped by Spivack the Boston safety. Raimo then dashed 30 yards to the Terrier's 26, and the stage was set for the first score. After a line plunge by Earle, Stopper faded and tossed a long pass to the arms of Tony Sala, who took it on the fifteen and trotted the remaining distance to be the first to cross the Boston goa line this season.

A fumble by Famiglietti late in the first quarter was recovered by Olivari on the B. U. 17 yard line, and twenty seconds after the second canto had started. Buck crossed the line standing up. Wysocki failed to convert. Roy Thompson, left half took Wysocki's kick-off on the five and returned to the Villanova 48, but the 'Cats held for downs and Dixon punted. As Buek was about to kick, Raimo saw three men coming in on the kicker, and took the ball from Harvey and made a first down on the Terrier 26. A pass by Stopper was intercepted by Famiglietti on the Boston ten. Dixon kicked out to Christopher at midfield, and Chris galloped through the entire visiting team to score the third touchdown of the game. Boston threatened mildly on a pass from Famiglietti to Nechiem, but before

Game Will Mark Thirteenth Meeting Between Old Rivals

CATS SEEK FIFTH IN ROW

Bucknell will have an opportunity to see "Jack Rabbit" Art Raimo in action next Saturday afternoon when the Wildcats journey to the Lewisburg institution for the annual renewal of their Gridiron rivalry.

This will be the thirteenth game of the series which began in 1904. Villanova has won four of these contests, lost seven and tied one.

In five games this season Bucknell has won three and lost two. None of the teams met by the thundering herd have been on Villanova's schedule this year. Bucknell's squad is composed largely of Sophomores, five or six usually seen in every starting lineup. Co-Captains lead the Orange and Blue in this year's gridiron wars, Stuart Smith, 195 pound fullback from Montour Falls, N. Y., and Jack Filer, end and Bison punter.

Smith, a regular since his sophomore year is Bucknell's chief hope for All-American mention this season. E. E. "Hooks" Mylin, Bucknell's head-coach and former F. and M. star is now in his third season with the Bisons. His starting line-up is usually Conti and Filer, at end; Mazanek and Sturgeon, at tackle; Green and Rosati, guards; and Berk at center. The backfield usually includes Smith at fullback, Lane and Tomasetti at half, with Pfeiffer at Quarter.

Developing his reserve power has been Mylin's chief worry. Herbert Bowman, letter man from last year together with George Crouse, Joseph Valentino and Fazio, center

Quintet Faced by Professional Squad Displays Great Form

Although the season's opener is still more than a month away, Villanova's court squad has already had a taste of competition. Harry Passon's "Phillies" furnished the opposition in a practice game last Wednesday evening in Alumni Hall Gym.

The encounter was of course of an informal nature. Nevertheless, the experience gained by the 'Cats in this meeting with last year's champions of the Eastern League will help them no end during the approaching intercollegiate campaign.

Coach Severance's minions displayed good form against the Phillies, and consequently the contest was fast and interesting. The boys showed their coach in this,

INTRA-MURAL NOTICE

MURAL BASKETBALL READY FOR OPENER

Players to Find Alumni Gym Completely Renovated

The intramural tennis tournament is complete until next Spring, another intramural sport is due to swing into action. Basketball, the most popular of the intramural sports, will begin the first week in November.

All games will be played in the old Gym. There will be two games played every Tuesday and Thursday nights between resident teams. The time of the dayhops games have not been decided because the Mendel Dayhops, who are composed largely of Engineers, find it hard to play afternoon games. As soon as the dayhop schedule is worked out it will be posted, so watch the bulletin board.

The floor of the old Gym is to be renovated. Father McKee has requested that all stay out of Gym during renovation. Father also wished to call everyone's attention that anyone wearing shoes is not to play on the floor.

The race should be closer this year because the respective teams are better balanced than last season; and by the looks of things this should produce the keenest fight for championship honors in the many years of intramural play. The games in the past have always been blood thirsty affairs filled with entertainment as well as excitement. Mendel Dayhops, the defending champs, will have no easy job in retaining their title;

FOOTBALL TROPHY WILL BE AWARDED

Lions Club of Upper Darby Donate Silver Placque

It was announced today by the Rev. Charles J. Melchoir, O. S. A., that the outstanding member of this year's varsity football team will be awarded a large silver trophy at the close of the present season.

The presentation will be part of a ceremony in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of Upper Darby and is being donated by the Lions Club of Upper Darby.

The award is a large silver placque mounted on a black bakelite background. On it is inscribed the merits for which it was received and the winner's name.

The recipient will be judged not only on his gridiron achievements, but also many other factors are involved. His scholastic standing must be high as must be his general conduct. Other factors in the judging will be his attendance at practices, strict adherence to training rules and attitude towards these, and his general teamwork. Therefore, it is open to any member of the varsity squad who is willing to work for the good of the team and keep high scholastic standing.

In addition to this valuable prize there will also be several valuable, but as yet unselected prizes, which will be presented at the banquet. These latter prizes were donated by the friends and followers of the team. The date for the banquet, as yet, has not been selected, but it probably will occur shortly after the annual football dinner December 8th.

These presentations will mark a new era in the football history of Villanova and they will cause a higher degree of competition in athletic and academic achievements of our athletes.

SOCCER CANDIDATES

A meeting of all students interested in soccer will be held in Room 106, Mendel Hall on Wednesday, October 28, at 1:00 P. M., according to an announcement made by the Rev. Charles J. Melchior, O. S. A.,

PRINCTON TOPPLES CAT LIGHTWEIGHTS

Burger and Lord Tally for Nassau Eleven

Villanova's 150-pound team went down to defeat in a bitterly fought contest with the Princeton Tigers last Friday afternoon by the score of 12 to 0. The Villanova lads maintained an edge on ground gained from the line of scrimmage but Princeton's 150-pound team making use of the breaks of the game came through in the pinch to score twice.

In the first period Burger, Tiger fullback, came in fast to block Biester's kicks and then fell on the pigskin which had rolled into the end zone, giving Princetown its first touchdown. A fifteen yard penalty and a kick which went out on Villanova's 20 yard line put Princeton in scoring position again early in the third period.

With a possible score in view the Nassau machine began to function and in three years scored their second touchdown. Frank Lord, carrying the mail on the touchdown play, ripped through tackle for three yards and crossed the goal line standing up.

Villanova was in scoring position the third period, but an attempted lateral gone astray, daunted the "Cats" a possible score. Accurate passes, which might have resulted in six-points, found their targets but were poorly handled by pass-receivers. Nevertheless a decided improvement could be seen in "Dick" Emmerling's boys and they are due to hit their stride in the three remaining games.

In the third quarter, Bedford, Princeton safety-man, broke up a touchdown play when he made a one-handed stab of Pantaleo's leg, after the latter had snared a 35 yard pass thrown by Cousart. The pass placed the ball on Princeton's 5 yard line but unable to advance the ball any further, the "Cats" lost the ball on downs.

Anxious to win a game, the 150-pound team invades Yale territory next week and is determined to come back with a victory. Showing up well on the defense, the team will devote most of this week's practice in blocking sessions and getting an offense to click.

Villanova still remains in the ranks of the undefeated Eastern elevens. Holy Cross, Fordham, Army and Yale also possess an unblemished record.

Villanova was attired in green jerseys and gold silk pants, while Boston's combination was red and gray.

The kicking of Andy Stopper was sensational. His punts averaged better than 50 yards. His best of the day was a 70-yard boot from behind his own goal line.

During the half an aeroplane circled the field with an advertisement "Calvert's for clear heads." Some spectators proved this to be a fallacy.

John Wysocki, Sophomore end, was a constant menace to Boston backfield men while he was in the fray. His block of Dixon, Boston tackle was one of the features of the encounter.

their first test, that they have the ability and aggressiveness to make the 1936-37 season a success.

Led by Don Brennan, one of the few remaining varsity men of last year, and big Jim Montgomery, ex-frosh star, the Wildcats tore into Passon's club with a lot of "pep" and fight. The pros were very sorely pressed to keep the collegians on even terms. It was the eagle eye of "Skenchy" Chesin that played the biggest role in the store team's scoring.

Frequent substitutions were made in order to give all the boys on the squad a chance to show their stuff. Only Montgomery played the entire game, and he was the outstanding man on the floor.

The team as a whole looked impressive. The game showed what a wealth of basketball material Villanova has, and the outlook for the season ahead is bright. With four veterans from last year back and the whole of the phenomenal freshman team of a season ago on hand, the Wildcats should go to town this winter.

any serious threatening was done the half ended.

Terrier's Score on Fumble

The second half opened with Fox returning Nechtem's kickoff to the 45, where he fumbled. Boston recovered, but the Wildcat line drove them back and took the ball on its own 28. Earle plunged through the line and fumbled as he was hit hard by two Terrier tacklers. Thompson took the ball in the air and tallied. After the kickoff, which Fox returned to the Wildcat 48, Boston held for downs. Stopper then got off a mighty kick which went from his own 45 over the end zone on the fly.

Villanova held for downs and Boston punted to Chris on the Blue and White 48. Stopper fumbled and B. U. recovered on the 45. The Wildcats drove the Terriers back and Sala blocked Nechtem's punt on the 34, and the stage was set for Raimo's dash. Art swept off tackle and put the game on ice. From that point on the game resulted in a kicking duel with the Terriers making their only offensive threat of the game by making two successive first downs. The game ended with the ball in Villanova's possession.

EXPLAIN PLEASE

Before each game this year Villanova, although picked to win, was warned that their respective opponents were going to be tough. As a matter of fact, each foe met was undefeated until the Wildcats licked them. Yet when the Rose Bowl, Sugar Bowl, and Orange Bowl is mentioned, Villanova is omitted as a possible candidate because its schedule has not been tough enough.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

VILLANOVA has now three representatives in the professional football leagues. Two are in the National and one in the newly formed American circuit. Bill Potts is the ex-Wildcat in the younger loop, playing with the Pittsburgh Americans, and Vince Zizak and Ed Michaels are in the National League, in case anyone needs to be told.

From reports that are going around, these one-fifties are fast approaching the engineers in eccentricity, better known as "being punchy," The story goes that during one of the one o'clock sessions Coach Dick Emmerling asked one of the centers what he did on a certain play. The center, formerly of the C & F School, now studying Education asked Dick "Which side, strong or weak."

As yet we haven't seen the trophy to be given to the most valuable basketball player, but if the picture does not flatter it, it is a very handsome one, and the player who wins it may well be proud of his achievement. Most of these trophies which are put up for athletic competition are pretty hideous, but the Villanova award hits a new high level of beauty. To our mind, the worst looking trophy is the America's Cup which the late Sir Thomas Lipton, the "Grand Old Man" of sport, so valiantly but unsuccessfully strove to take to England's shores.

Cowboy Crowley baseballer, has assumed the duties of head foreman at the Greek's. He rides the range seven days a week and twice on Sundays, so they say!

According to the boxing schedule issued last week, some large schools are to face the Feline leather pushers. We refer particularly to Army and Wisconsin. Wouldn't those names look good on a Wildcat football card: Returning to boxing, we see that a monster intermural show will be held sometime in December, the fourteenth, to be exact. Many notables are to be there, among whom will be three ring luminaries, including the present heavyweight champ. If the proceeds should become dull, practically an impossibility, the tournament officials could put the three veterans in the square-ed circle and let them beat about.

At the Western Maryland game, Graduate Manager Al Severance had a bit of trouble getting into the stadium in the second half. The gateman didn't recognize him. Incidentally, the Green Terrors didn't play their usual game of clean, hard football.

Baker's Weekly, a football newspaper, which is to football (more or less) what the Sporting News is to baseball, picked our lads to beat Boston U. by 21 points.

After having seen three games in Shibe Park, we are still of the opinion that a baseball park is no place to play a football game. The place just isn't built for the pigskin game. If one gets to the park early enough to snare a seat in front of the posts, he's lucky, and has little difficulty following the play, but woe betide the unfortunate who get back of the supports! A large portion of the time the safety man is hidden behind a pillar, and the team looks to be playing with only ten men. One good thing about the posts, though, is that one can easily tell if a gain is made, especially when the upright is directly between the ball and the observer. If, after the play has been completed, the ball is still behind the post, no gain has been made. If the fan can see the ball, a gain or loss has been made, as the case may be.

Ray Murphy tells us that he has a new fistic protegee which he has been keeping under cover for the past few weeks. The battler, whom he prefers to call "The Dancing Kid," will take on all comers. Anyone having an opponent for this new pugilistic sensation, see Mgr. Murphy at the gymnasium.

Before we forget, Moose Donovan, business agent and football manager, wants an assistant to count the number of cars on that fast freight that passes about four o'clock. He finds the job a bit more than he can handle.

have enough experience to make them outstanding substitutes.

Although Bucknell's Alumni, who have returned for Homecoming day, may not see their team emerge victorious they will surely be thrilled when they witness Villanova's famous blocking and Villanova supporters who have journeyed to Bucknell will also receive a bit of a thrill when they see Bucknell's fifty piece band led by their shapely Drum Major, who caused such a stir at Villanova last year.

This game will probably see the return of John Mellus who has been on the sick list for the past week to the Wildcat line up. Many of Villanova's men will be playing before the eyes of their home folks for the second time this season.

FRESHMAN DEBATE GROUP ELECTS TWO MEN TO POSITIONS

Robert Wilderotter Chosen President; Alfred Bongiovanni, Secretary of Forensic Society

TENTATIVE SCHEDULE SET

Robert Wilderotter of the School of Arts and Philosophy and Alfred Bongiovanni of the Science School were elected president and secretary respectively of the freshman debating club at the weekly meeting last Wednesday.

Father Mahoney Ill

The elections were held as scheduled dispite the absence of Rev. Jerome A. Mahoney, O. S. A., the club moderator. Fr. Mahoney was unable to attend the meeting as he was confined to bed with a severe cold, but Rev. Edward B. McKee, O. S. A., supervised the elections in his stead.

Even previous to the election of the officers the club had been active in preparing a debating schedule for the term. Alfred M. Bongiovanni, acting as secretary pro-tem, answered a challege of the Charles Morris Price Forum. He also sent out a challenge to St. John's University and is expecting an answer in the near future. Among the schools who will probably be matched opposite the Freshmen are Swarthmore College, Georgian Court, University of Pennsylvania and Temple.

QUESTION BOX TO ANSWER QUERIES

Students Asked to Place Requests in Dining Room; Answers Appear Later

The Press Apostolate has invited the Villanova student body to express their thoughts on religious, apologetical, dogmatical, and moral questions in a writen form.

These opinions are to be placed in a box which the Press has installed at the rear of the dining hall. Some time after the collection of these papers the question with its respective answer will be posted on the Religion bulletin board. It is also the intention of the organization to place a Religious thought on the clipping board every day.

Formed in '31

In 1931 the Press Apostolate was formed and definite purposes given over to it. However, in the last few years several of these purposes have been divided up between other sources. As to the undertaking of the distributing of weekly Catholic newspapers and periodicals, the religion teachers have charge of this in offering them in their classes. In regards to supplying the Catholic Press with news of religious activities at Villanova, that is handled by Ray McKeon, the publicity agent for the college.

Therefore, but three objects remain to the Catholic Press Apostolate: that of maintaining "clipping boards" in appropriate locations with items of Catholic interest clipped from current papers; maintaining a pamphlet rack for distribution to students of pamphlets on topics of Catholic interest; and sponsoring an "Information Bureau" on matters of Catholic interest, mainly in concerning questions of religious nature.

RELATIONS UNIT PICKS SYLLABUS

Campus Organization Selects Plan for Peace at Initial Meeting

The International Relations Club met for the first time this year on last Wednesday in room 111, Mendel Hall. Most of the members of last year's society were, in attendance, but there were no new members.

Plans were made at the meeting to follow the Syllabus on International Peace and to discuss contemporary problems as presented in the Fortnight Review of the Carnegie Institute. This program is in keeping with the main purpose of the club which is briefly to study international problems for a better understanding of them, thus paving the way for international peace. Prominent speakers will from time to time speak at the weekly meetings.

Colleges Organized for Peace

In its aims the International Relations Club of Villanova is not alone, as there is a union of clubs of this type in many Catholic colleges throughout the country. This union is working in accordance with the Allocution of Pope Pius delivered December 24, 1930. It reads paraphrased as follows:

"Catholics are called . . . to the strengthening and widening of the Kingdom of Christ, and therefore to the strengthening and widening of His peace . . ."

Rev. William L. Lunney, O. S. A., moderator of this society, stated that new members—both among freshmen and upperclassmen are welcome to join the society. They may join by attending the next meeting to be held today in room 111, Mendel Hall.

GLEE CLUB TOTAL NOW SEVENTY-SIX

Practice Held Semi-Weekly; Harmony Interpretation of Alma Mater Planned

With a greatly augmented membership totaling 76, the College Glee Club is progressing rapidly under the guidance of Mr. Paul Teel, its musical director, at semi-weekly meetings in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium.

Under the able guidance of its moderator Rev. Chas. P. Brown, O. S. A., the boys associated with the Glee Club are preparing to make this year a memorable one in the history of the club.

Good Spirit Prevails

The spirit of willingness evidenced by the showing of the freshmen members is also noticed among the members and is shown by the way in which they give their time and effort, and also by the great progress which has been made with the new songs, since the club organized this year.

Included in the songs the members are rehearsing is a four part harmony interpretation of the Alma Mater, which has been introduced by Mr. Teel.

The organization has announced that it would be pleased to accept any engagements either private or public. Anyone wishing further information regarding the club, should communicate with the moderator.

STAFF TO MEET

There will be an important meeting of the entire VILLANOVAN staff today at one o'clock. It is urgent that all members attend.

L. K. D. FRATERNITY PLANS NUMBER OF INSPECTION TOURS

Physiological Laboratories of Pennsylvania University May Be Visited by Group

DANCE COMMITTEE MEETS

Continuing in his efforts for making educational tours of scientific laboratories, Gerald Piserchia, president of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity, presented concrete examples of his labors at a meeting of the organization representing the School of Science last Thursday.

Inspection Planned

It has been the objective of the fraternity to visit the Physiological Laboratories at the University of Pennsylvania. Acting accordingly, President Piserchia has written a letter to the proper authorities in order to determine if and when a group of men representing the fraternity might be admitted to the research laboratories. Nothing definite has yet been received, but it is hoped that concrete material may be had in the next few days.

After a lengthy discussion involving the change of date of the Lambda Kappa Delta Dance from Friday, Nov. 27th to Wednesday, Nov. 25th, Mr. Piserchia presented the issue in the form of a vote. The action resulted in the change of the date. Before stating the change as authentic, however, it is necessary that the proper college officials approve of the new date.

TOTAL POINT SYSTEM TO DETERMINE CONQUERORS

Discontinuance of Regs After Manhattan Game Depends on Outcome

Final arrangements for the annual Freshmen - Sophomore Field Day, which is to be held on Saturday, November 7, have been practically completed. This announcement was revealed by Rev. William J. Lunney, O. S. A., moderator of the Class of 1939.

This event, which is gradually becoming traditional, will take place in the Stadium, with the exception of one contest, the tug-of-war.

Large Program Planned

Many events are being contemplated by the sophomore class. Among them are the tug-of-war, which is the feature of the entire program, and will be held across the pond. Other contests include the greased—pig, which proves to be the most colorful and amusing of all; greased pole, which is being staged for the first time this year; two touch football games being played simultaneously; sack race; and a huge push-ball game. Other novelty contests are in the tentative stage and are not yet ready for publication.

A point system is being formulated and the class securing the greatest number of points will automatically be declared the victor. If the freshman are successful in winning, they may discontinue wearing their "Regs" immediately after the Manhattan game, on November 21. However, if the sophomore class maintain their supremacy

XMAS DANCE DATE SET BY N. J. CLUB

Two Sites Under Consideration; Manhattan Game Tickets Raffle Prizes

After much discussion, a final date for the Christmas dance was set by the members of the North Jersey Club at a special meeting held last Tuesday.

During the discussion of a date for the dance, the Jerseyites decided upon December 22nd in order to enable three basketball players who are members of the club to attend the dance, but upon reconsidering what Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the club, had told them of his desire to attend the dance, it was unanimously decided to set the date for December 18th.

Site Undecided

The place for the dance is as yet undecided but the sites under consideration are preferably the Chanticleer in Millbourne or the Robert Treet in Newark. The Chanticleer is the most popular among the members, but a suitable financial agreement may not be reached with the management.

The Brook in Summit and the Jabberwock in West Orange are also under discussion.

Last year the Easter Dance, which was held in the Robert Treet in Newark, was considered the most successful in recent years and it is expected that this year's din-

Christian Front Head Receives Letter from President

In a letter to the Editor of THE CHRISTIAN FRONT President Franklin D. Roosevelt wrote: "It is heartening and encouraging to find the editors of The Christian Front and so many of our intelligent young people from the student bodies of the Catholic colleges approaching the most important international problem of Peace, in such forceful and direct fashion." The President referred to the recent nationwide celebration by Catholic college students of a Mass for Peace, a movement originating at Villanova a few months ago.

The Peace movement is finding lasting expression in a new Catholic youth organization now being organized.

ALUMNI FEDERATION ADDRESSED BY MSGR.

National Catholic Graduate Association Hears Talk on 'Catholic Evidence Guild'

At the regular monthly session of the Philadelphia chapter of the National Catholic Alumni Federation last Tuesday, Monsignor Edward Hawks, distinguished Catholic author, delivered a talk on the "Catholic Evidence Guild."

The meeting, which was attended by sixteen Catholic alumni of Philadelphia, was presided over by Bernard J. Kelly, president of the Philadelphia Chapter and graduate of the United States Naval Academy.

The recently established Philadelphia Chapter of the Federation has been functioning since last May and has grown to be an important division of the National Association. The reason for this success can be attributed to the solid backing and interest given by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., Ph. D., president of Villanova College, and founder of the Philadelphia Chapter, and by the Catholic Alumni members of the Federation.

Modern Ills Discussed

Some of the topics that have been subjects of discussion at the fall meetings of the Federation are: Crime, Spain, The New Deal—Communistic or Fascistic in tendency? —and The Work of the Catholic Evidence Guild, discussed at this recent meeting.

These topics have been chosen as subjects fitting for discussion because of the strained conditions of Christianity at the present time. The Catholic Alumni Federation is cognizant of the fact that accu-

With the approach of the debating season, Beta Gamma, Villanova Debating society, has arranged its collegiate schedule with teams from the foremost eastern colleges.

The eastern colleges to be met are: Manhattan College, St. John's University of Brooklyn; Albright College; Temple University, Delaware University, Rutgers, and Swarthmore College.

The series of debates will be held on a home and home basis, with the Villanova team invading opponent territory as well as defending their laurels on home grounds.

Further discussion of the schedule will be held at two important meetings of the Beta Gamma this week. A meeting of the captains of the various teams will be held on Tuesday, November 3, at 1:00 P. TIME SCHEDULE ALTERED

Holy Hour Moved For 3rd to 5:15; Rally Scheduled

Owing to a conflict in time schedule, the Holy Hour services will be held at 5:15 P. M., instead of the regular 5:30 hour. The change will allow the students time to gather in a rally for the sendoff of the football team for the South Carolina game.

The Holy Hour services will begin at 5:15 sharp and will be followed immediately by Benediction of the most Blessed Sacrament at 6:15 P. M. After Benediction the entire student body will assemble at the Pennsylvania Railroad station where the rally will be staged before the departure of the football squad at 6:47 P. M.

Students are requested to be prompt in complying with this schedule.

MONDAY DATE FOR BELLE AIR PHOTOS

Senior Photographs Start Next Week; Art School First

Senior photographs for the Belle Air will be taken starting next Monday at 9:50 A. M. and will continue until Wednesday. The School of Arts and the School of Science will have their pictures taken on Monday. The Schools of Technology and Commerce and Finance will be photographed on Tuesday, with the remaining portion of the Engineer's group completed on Wednesday.

This activity marks the beginning of actual work, beside that already done by the editorial staff, on the compiling of material for the next edition of the Belle Air.

Forms Distributed

In several weeks forms will be distributed to senior classmen which will be filled in with information regarding activities and organizations in which they have actively participated for the entire four years at Villanova. It is to be noted that the information thus received will be checked with authentic sources and that it will be necessary for each man to have actually actively participated in each organization, for such a listing to be made in his individual review.

Reports have it that drastic changes are to be made on this edition of the Belle Air which will distinguish it from all previous editions. It is the purpose of the staff to modernize this publication to some degree.

These changes will occur principally in the composition of the athletic section and also the feature

A.S.M.E GROUP MAKES INSPECTION TOUR

Sun Ship Yards Visited; Five More Prominent Trips Slated

Villanova's Student Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers recently completed its first insepction tour of the year when it accompanied the Student Chapter of the A. S. C. E. on its trip to the Sun Ship Building Company in Chester. The tour proved to be one of great practical interest to those who made the trip. They inspected the various phases of the dry docks and were fortunate in being able to inspect the several ships under construction.

Five Trips Planned

Such inspection tours go far in making college work more beneficial in enabling the student to visualize more clearly problems that arise" in mechanical engineering. Consequently, several other tours are in the offing. At the last regular meeting of the society, held on Wednesday, last, five prospecetive trips were mentioned and tentative arrangements made. These five most prominent trips are to be made to the following industrial companies: Stetson's Hat Company, Luken's Steel Company, Baldwin Locomotive Company, a coal mine company, and the Jacobs Aircraft Motor Company.

Besides the inspection tours as a means of helping the students in their classwork, the society hopes

MISS STAERCK TO SPEAK

Miss Melanie Staerck, Professor of International Relations at Rosemont College, formerly connected with the League of Nations, and Daniel Silvert, newspaperman and an authority on Fascism, make their appearance next Wednesday evening before the Villanova Study Group to lead a discussion of Hitler, Fascism and Nazism. The meeting is to be held in the recreation room, in Mendel Hall, at 7:00 P. M. All upper classmen interested are invited to attend.

At last week's meeting, the subject under discussion was: "Is Capitalism Christian." Joseph Carroll, Jr., took the affirmative, R. Deveall taking the negative. After each of the leaders of the discussion had read their paper, a heated discussion followed.

The study group has been growing for the past few week, and according to Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the new campus society, the time is not distant when two or more of these groups shall be operating on the campus.

Among those attending last week's meeting were Rev. Stephen Lanan, O. S. A., Fr. Vrana, Charles J. Cooke, Jr., John L. Simons, Robert Strong and Edward Shovlin.

James Quigley, President of Relations Club, Will Speak Friday

ATTEND JERSEY MEETING

On Friday, November 6, two members of the International Relations Club, James M. Quigley and Paul Juergens, will journey to Elizabeth, N. J., to attend a convention held by the National Students Federation for Peace.

The delegates will leave Friday night and be the guests of Seton Hall, in Newark, N. J., and then proceed to St. Elizabeth's College on Saturday where peace and peace movements will be discussed.

Sister M. Rose de Lima and the head of the International Relations Club at the College will be hosts to the Catholic College delegates.

Meetings Changed

Rev. Wiliam J. Lunney, O. S. A., has announced that there will be a change in the time of the meetings of the organization, and that starting this week the Club will meet in the future on Thursdays at 10:45 A. M. in Room 111. Since this hour

ELECTION DAY

TODAY the Amercian Nation goes to the polls to decide which political party is to govern the destiny of the American people for the next few years. Although many feel that the "principles" of the Democratic Party—if, indeed, any Party has principles — are more in harmony with Catholic social teachings than those of the Republican Party, one thing is certain: neither party is Catholic.

Through all the political legerdemain, one thing stands out clearly: both Parties have recognized that social reform is necessary if Communism or some other anti-democratic "ism" is to be obviated in America.

Typical of the American mind is the belief that this social reform is to be achieved via the passage of salutary and long-overdue social legislation. Such an opinion could hardly be more in error.

Many thousands of years ago, the Lord God Creator gave to Moses a tablet on which was inscribed the Ten Commandments, the greatest piece of social legislation in all time: from Hammurabi to Roosevelt man has shown his forensic insignificance.

Social reform springs from individuals, not only from institutions. Society today is a putrid corpse: religion is trampled under foot; the family has decayed; the State has been perverted by an un-Christian nationalism; materialism, in a word, is the order of the day. Real social reform must come through a regeneration of the religious spirit in the individual. "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Light," said the Master. Unless men listen to Him, ten thousands are as nothing.

Election day is, therefore, important; and yet is it not pathetically unimportant? Real social salvation lies not in electing a clever politician, or a semi-statesman, but rather in carrying the message of social Catholicism to the masses: a process that goes on at all times in all places and yet is un-noticed by us.

When obedient hearts and minds heed the teachings of the Papacy then, and only then, can we achieve true Social Justice in this country. Unless God and His Church guide the nation, Social Justice can be but an illusory idea incapable of translation into reality. Unless the Lord build the translation into reality. Unless the Lord build the house, how can it expect to stand?

SOCIAL SECURITY

IT IS to be expected that those individuals antagonistic to the principles of the New Deal would seek to minimize its advantages to the voter, but when propagandists in conjunction with certain reactionary employers use every possible device to convince the worker that the Social Security Act is inimical to his welfare, we believe the limit of political trickery and infamy to have been reached.

Unprincipled employers exerting themselves through the persons of political spell-binders have traded upon this weakness of the people for years, and are now using similar methods to frighten employes into renouncing one of the most beneficial pieces of social legislation that the present Administration has yet given us.

The period of the laissez faire attitude in government is over—the modern government is obligated to concern itself with the economic and social well-being of the people. And one agency through which this can be accomplished is by means of the Social Security Act, which is a co-operative act by means of which the employee, the employer, and the Government provide the first of these against the terrors of old age and unemployment.

COLLEGE ON INSTALLMENTS

AN innovation in the financing of a college education was announced recently by Bucknell University. The so-called "pay as they grow" plan embodies the best features of insurance policies while extending the cost of sending one's children to college over a period of years.

The method stipulates that as soon as a child is born, parents may begin to make financial contributions to offset the expenses of his higher learning. Any amount over a dollar may be deposited with the college bursar. The interest earned in the installments will be invested in sound businesses, and the net earned interest credited annually to the amount.

Perhaps this far-reaching venture, another step in the security of the citizens of America, will counteract the hundreds unable to carry on education after high school training.

BY ALL MEANS — NEUTRALITY

WITH the almost unparalleled massacres that have been occurring far too frequently in Spain these days, and with reference particularly to those of last Thursday and Friday, it appears to us that the rule of non-intervention is but a vicious mock issue. It is known through reliable sources that the bombers which contributed so much towards the killing off of the many women and children last Friday in Madrid were rushed into service from foreign parts, as were the fast army tanks and airplanes employed by the heretofore poorly-equipped Loyalist forces which had launched a counter-attack against the approaching Rebels on Thursday previous.

It is likewise known that these planes, tanks, and other war implements have been obtained from German, Russian, Italian and Moorish forces. The padding of the armaments on both sides is about equal at this point and the continuance of large shipments of these arms is quite evident.

We are of the opinion that the plea of Anthony Eden, British Foreign Minister, in defense of the international neutrality committee would be far more appealing were it not for the fact that this very same neutrality farce is in reality intensifying the struggle in war-torn Spain.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

IN one of our first issues this year we mentioned in this pillar the idea of a religious "bull session" so popular now out at South Bend. Villanova's Catholic Press Apostolate, not to be outdone, has given its own solution to the problem.

This solution appears in the form of a daily bulletin on each of the hall bulletin boards. Take more than a passing interest in these notices. They are nothing that is forced upon you by the college authorities, but are answers to questions which you have often discussed in your own "bull sessions." You know from your own experience that often questions of Catholic principles come up, and, after debating the subject from all angles you have arrived at no certain conclusions.

In order to get around this obstacle the Apostolate is requesting that these questions be given to the members of the society or to Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A. In their turn they will all be answered. Make the reading of these a habit. You'll not regret it. A minute a day will settle many a problem and will give you the satisfaction of knowing the right answer to many perplexing questions.

If enough interest is shown the Apostolate will produce this form as a mimeographed sheet to be given to all students. Besides this a monthly "bull session" will be held and the most important and most perplexing questions will be discussed in open forum.

It has been rumored that there is a slight resemblance between Jim Cousart and King Edward of Britain. As this resemblance is not absolutely striking we ask you to get Charlie Bruno when he needs a shave, dress him in a dark coat with the collar up, put a felt hat on his head and lean him against a wall. You'll swear that it's Paul Muni.

FROSH do you know —

That the VILLANOVAN is in receipt of a letter from a Cuban newspaper whose editor claims that we have one of the best college newspapers he has ever seen. Not bad, eh!

That those very few students who decry our team after their misfortune of last Saturday should have their necks broken. We saw the game and want to make it plain that our team NEVER QUIT FIGHTING—Wildcats never do!

That Norristown is soon going to become very Villanova conscious. The numbers that take advantage of the P and W combined theatre and transportation facilities are steadily growing, so that the Tower officials are going to be tearing their hair over the decision they recently made concerning the discontinuation of the Tower tickets.

That it is our hunch that they will soon offer these tickets again when they realize just how many of our boys made use of their former convenient plan.

We have it on the authority of Mike Rodriquez that when it gets down below thirty degrees in Puerto Rico the island is abandoned.

KINDNESS —

That kindness has its reward was illustrated when Washington and Lee University was notified of an estate valued at $1,500,000 which it will receive in the near future.

Several years before the war, a New York Stock Exchange broker, Robert P. Doremus, was inspecting several southern colleges. He was so impressed by the cordiality shown him by a Washington and Lee student that upon his death in 1913 his will specified that his estate should go to the school upon the death of his wife. She died last month.

As We See It . . . . . Reflections

By HARRY PARKIN

IT IS generally conceded that mistakes, even when justified, place the one guilty of the commission in an unenviable position. For he is not only faced with the necessity of acknowledging the fault, but also of establishing his real intentions in the minds of those who may have been mislead by his former pronouncements. This latter is almost, if not actually, impossible to attain in its entirety, because the reader, immediately he attends the words of an author, forms a concept of the writer which, being consistent or inconsistent with his own opinions, usually determines whether he shall concern himself with such works in the future. This is a conclusion which at first appearance may seem unusually severe upon the writer, but when considered with the fact that he voluntarily submits himself to the public, it is to be assumed he expects to be judged in the light of his submission.

Not unfamiliar with this, we feel obliged, to make some effort to correct the impression, false, of course, but one that could be inferred from the title of our last week's article. The column thru personal inattention was entitled "On Marriage," while the contents was a parody upon the modern attitude toward the vows of marriage, so that the reader was apt to conclude that our attitude toward the matrimonial state was as trifling as that of the characters in the story. An inference which we would be the first to pronounce unwarranted, if the facts were less obvvious.

By reason of this we are inclined to tender some explanation to those who might be disposed to judge unkindly of Catholic philosophy by seeing one of its students refer so slightingly to it.

When we reach that passage in Bacon's essay on friendship, where he makes reference to the ingratitude of Pompey, who having been raised to his high station through the efforts of Sylla, chided the latter for questioning the righteousness of cerain of his actions with the words "that more men adored the sun rising than the sun setting"; we are inclined to wonder in consideration of Essex's fate, if some such philosophy was not closer to Bacon's heart, than the noble sentiments he expresses in his esay.

Few articles that refer to Dr. Johnson are not replete with examples of his wit. In fact Johnsonians never speak of their favorite without making some reference to his redoubtable skill as a conversationalist—a qualification that will never be doubted by those who make his acquaintance thruogh the pages of Boswell. The delight which men have ever taken in recounting the spontaneity of his satire in silencing some pretender to learning has lead many to attempt an imitation of his utterances. Few of these manufactured jibes, however, even approximate the Doctor's skill in repartee. But peculiarly enough the author of the one exception to this rule is unknown. It concerns itself with Johnson's well-known anti Scotch and Presbyterian prejudice. It supposes that Boswell and Johnson were once walking in Oxford, and Boswell, endowed with the gift of prophecy, asks Johnson what he would say if told that a hundred years after his death, that his Dictionary would be re-edited by a Scotch Presbyterian. "Sir," Johnson replied, "to be facetious it is not necessary to be indecent."

A greater aptitude, ingenuity, and wit is frequently required to extricate one from a difficult position than is required for getting into it.

By RICHARD DEVERALL

BISHOP CHALLONER; by Michael Trappes-Lomax, Longmans Green and Co. 1936.

A rather interesting note seems to apply to many of the English Catholic Saints. That is, a great number of them were taken from their beloved internal recollection of soul and placed in very Christ and His Church.

Such was Bishop Challoner. Born of non-Catholic parents in England at a time when tolerence had ceased to exist. He co-operated with Divine Grace to the point of becoming a Catholic priest and finally a bishop. He was a man loving the contemplation of the Divine, a zealous and fervent student, yet he sacrificed all that the word of Our Lord might not be stamped out by a ruthless and materialistic English Government.

The struggle of the English Catholic was not ended in the generation of Bishop Challoner, but toleration was in sight. Bishop Challoner's place in this struggle is well summed by the author: "His duty had been to lead his people over the dreary desert that lay between the Red Sea of martyrdom and the Promised Land of toleration." Bishop Challoner, like St. Thomas Moore, was a true Catholic and a true Englishman.

Michael Trappes-Lomax presents a very fine biographical study of Bishop Challoner and his time. While many of us are well aware of the English rebellion against the Church of the sixteenth century, too few of us are cognisant of the harrowing life of an English Catholic in the eighteenth century —a period when all hope seemed to have been extinguished.

In this book we find a clear picture of the Catholic Church in England from 1691 to 1781. We read of the supreme sacrifice as an everyday occurrence, of discouragement upon discouragement, of the struggle to keep the English Seminary at Douai in existance, and of the valiant fight for toleration.

This book is primarily a historical work and may be read as such. However, there is a feeling, a thread, running through the book which leads the reader to realize and to marvel at the indestructable foundation of the Catholic Church —a church that saw Caesar die, that saw Napoleon dio; that will see the death of Stalin, and the church that awaits the final coming of the Master on the last day.

CHRISTIAN LIFE CALENDAR; Rev. Wm. H. Puetter, S.. J. Bruce Publishing Company, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. $0.75.

A practical Catholic is a person who is one who not only "attends" Mass, but participates in the celebration of the Holy Sacrifice with the priest. This participation is best achieved by the use of the Roman Missal. For the past few years, there has been a powerful movement in America to induce all Catholics to follow Christ through the Mass via the Missal.

In line with this general movement, comes this Christian Life Calendar, a most inexpensive and more practical calendar. This calendar lists the days by month and day, gives the proper Feast or other special day, lists the color of the priest's vestments, outlines the Mass for the day, and then gives a short quotation from the more striking portions of that particular Mass. If the day happens to be a Feast day, a short mention is made of the martyr or Saint, his life is described, and perhaps a few of his or hers words are quoted.

Here is something that every College man should have in his room. It is also an ideal Christmas gift, for nothing could hardly be more appropriate. Why not buy one to-day?

CLUB PROPOSES PLAY

Spanish Group To Offer Drama Soon; Olivari and Rizzo Speak

According to Rev. Lorenzo Luzano, O. S. A., moderator of the Spanish Club, his organization will present a Spanish play at some date in the near future. As yet there has been no selection of the script or of the cast, but club officials announced that this would be take ncare of in a few days.

Jordan Olivari and Valentine Rizzo, students in the school of Commerce and Finance, addressed the club in Spanish concerning the importance of that tongue to the American continent.

Leonard Connelly, junior student of the School of Science, resigned his position as treasurer of the organization due to pressing studies.

Money for subscriptions to modern Spanish journals was taken up by Charles Bruno, president of the society.

ITALY

A Barking Dog Never . . .

IF Mussolini had carried out half of his loudly voiced threats against certain nations, there would have been a war in Europe every year since he came into power.

He has thrown the old ideas of diplomacy into the discard, and resorted to the "you give it to me, or I'll take it" policy. He has at various times shaken his fist at all of Europe, . . . and gotten away with it.

Mussolini has added power to his threats by building up one of the most efficient armies in the world.

How Good Are We?

Until the day comes when the Italian people are fed up with this wordly defiance, and seek to test their military strength in actual conflict, we may expect this new system of "diplomacy" to continue.

A football team cannot practice forever, without one day wanting to test its skill in real combat.

Poorest in the World

Italy has one of the poorest export trades in the world. She has little or no natural resources. Besides olive oil and marble Italy exports next to nothing.

The country itself is 95 per cent agricultural, consisting mostly of truck farms. Externally Italy is a very beautiful and picturesque land. Internally it doesn't amount to much. This is probably the chief reason why she fought so desperately for possession of mineral-laden Ethiopia.

Sidelights

In Italy they give you rewards for raising large families, and medals for killing them off.

The Augustinians make the best wine in Italy.

After the World War Italy was one of the most distressed nations in the world. Inflation had practically ruined her people. Starvation had shot her morale to pieces. Mussolini's seizure of power was a god-send to the whole Italian people.

When Germany's colonies were divided among the allies after the war, Italy, who had given her utmost for their cause, was left in the cold along with the United States. The difference however is that where we did not want any of the colonies, Italy not only wanted them, but as has been already pointed out, was in actual need of colonies.

There are a hundred different dialects in Italy. A resident of one district can travel to another and not understand a word that is spoken to him.

Italians picture the United States as a virtual paradise. Many of them come over here and save a little money, and then return to their country to live like kings.

PRESS APOSTOLATE ACTIVE ONCE MORE

Question Box on Subjects of Faith and Morals Now in Use

New additions are being planned by the Catholic Press Apostolate in an endeavor to counteract lack of interest in the society. One of the secondary purposes of this organization was to make answer to any and all questions which might be raised on faith and morals. This particular function of the group has never received its just due or attention here at Villanova.

It has been noted that students have failed to ask questions, in their classes, in which they were vitally interested. Because of this a Question Box has been erected in the rear of the dining hall and students are requested to feel free at any time to place inquiries here.

Each inquiry will receive the utmost consideration of the Chaplain, and at the present time will be answered through the medium of the bulletin boards in Mendel Hall and the Commerce & Finance Building.

When interviewed on the matter the Rev. Charles P. Brown O.S.A., Chaplain of Villanova College, said: "It is to be hoped that the students will take this matter to heart because we should like to arouse enough interest in our Question Box to make it feasible for us to have a daily publication answering the questions."

DIAL-LOG

LOUIS PRIMA has now enlarged his erstwhile jam band to thirteen men and is currently playing at Chicago's famed Blackhawk with a Mutual wire. They're doing a neat job, thanks mainly to Louis' hot trumpet, which has clean licks, and the general carefree style of arranging. Louis' small job in "Rhythm on the Range" however, was wasted. He could have been spotted more advantageously.

Guy Lombardo has added an instrument! That's band news. Seldom does the royal Canadian change personnel (most of the men have been with Guy since he started, including his brothers, Leibert, Carmen and Victor) or instruments. The new instrument is a mellophone, Guy's only acknowledgement of this thing called swing. Currently the band is at New York's Hotel Roosevelt, scene of his original triumps.

I think I'll take time out to pay tribute to a man known as "Broadway's Daddy." I'm speaking of George Hall that good natured gentleman who waves a mean baton on the bandstand. George is rapidly becoming one of the most popular college dance bands in the country and with the addition of an electric guitar has added a great deal of style to his organization. George is bothered by the fact that Dolly Dawn, his vocalist, calls him affectionately, Poppy! I wouldn't get mad George!

Most band leaders hire a few men to make arrangements for the band. The men, paid a princely price, make arrangements and that is all there is to it. However, the system used by Ted Fio Rito, now heard over a Mutual network from Chicago's Hotel Morrison, is entirely edited by Ted. He takes no chances that the inimitable Fio Rito style will be submerged under a top-heavy orchestration.

One of the most distinctive touches used by Ted is the blending of human voices with the rest of the orchestra. The parts for the Three Debutantes are written into the score exactly the same as those for instruments. Singing into megaphones the girls achieve unusual ensemble effects which have received favorable comments wherever heard.

Two of the arrangers were at one time regular musicians in the Fio Rito band, but are now devoting all their time to arranging. Paul Burke, former pianist, travels with the band as chief arranger, because he knows the routines of the band best.

ALLEY UP: A new member has joined Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians. He's a tenor and so far has shown great promise as a permanent fixture. His name is Tony and he entered the Columbia Playhouse in New York by the stage door just as the Waring gang was in rehearsal the other day. Johnnie Davis, trumpet player, walked over and spoke to the newcomer. Then he went out and bought him a hamburger. Tony's an alley cat. After sniffing at all the instruments and familiarizing himself with the place, Tony disappeared.

SATURDAY, October 31, will go down in this season's football annals as the day when the greatest upsets took place. As it must come to all defeat came to some of the greatest teams in the country and Villanova was no exception. Bucknell, playing before a large homecoming crowd, landed on the outhrust Villanova chin and when the lights came on again the 6 on the Bison's side of the scoreboard was the biggest thing on the field.

There is no doubt that something happened to the team in the interim between the Boston U. game and Saturday's fracus. No matter what it was do not forget that Villanova still has a great team and we are sure that they will prove this fact in the succeeding games. For the following week this defeat will undoubtedly be the subject for many heated discussions among the Monday morning quarterbacks, but let them not forget that there are more important games to be won than the one that was lost. .

A little encouragement to each and every member of the team would not be amiss at this time. In fact, it would be far better than any unkind criticism that might be offered. Let the above mentioned mid-week field generals take this into consideration.

Enough of this chatter over our own troubles. Pop Warners cohorts also did their bit blasting another strong team off the undefeated map. Holy Cross, unbeaten in 18 contests, came to Philadelphia with the idea of going to town in the Owl's stadium but were led astray. The final tally, 3 to 0, is faintly reminiscent of a recent big league contest.

Oddities in the news. Did you know that Franny Nye has one of the shortest names in inter-collegiate football. A recent survey made by a prominent New York sports editor disclosed the fact that the shortest name in intercollegiate football ranks consisted of three letters. Nye ranked among these. On his mythical three letter name team, Franny held down the fullback position. On another team that was composed of odd names, Andy Stopper was mentioned.

Yale succeeded in rocking the lightweights to sleep and then walked over them to the tune of 25 to 0. Before the game was over, however old Eli found out that the Villanova players were not sonambulists but were full of fight.

Here's something that might be of interest to the student body of Villanova. The other day we were idly gazing over the Ukrainian Chronicle of Philadelphia when we came across a 1935 Ukrainian All-American Football Team, compiled by Alexander Yaremko, Sports Editor of the said journal.

Two local players were chosen. One was Konopka, center, from Temple University; the other was Nick Kotys, left halfback, from Villanova. Kotys graduated from this institution last June after competing three years in varsity football. In his senior year at Villanova Kotys was picked on the All-Local team, and selected by many on the All-Eastern team. Too, he was high scorer on the 1935 edition of the Wildcat squad. Nick is now head coach at Shickshinny High School, Schickshinny, Pennsylvania.

We would like to inform all those interested in bowling and billiards that alterations in the gym have been completed; and the bowling alleys and pool room will be open to students every afternoon, including Sunday, and on Friday evenings.

In November and December, tournaments will be held in bowling and billiards and all students who desire to enter are heartily invited to participate.

MAIN LINERS WILL MEET STRONG PASSING ATTACK

Southerners Advancing Steadily After Poor Start; Win Last Three

Villanova's Wildcats will be seeking revenge for last week's setback when they travel down to Columbia to meet Don McCallister's South Carolina Gamecocks in the only intersection game to be played by Villanova this season.

This game will renew relations with South Carolina after one years' lapse. In the 1934 season, the Wildcats trounced the Southerners 20-0 on the Main Liner's field.

So far this season South Carolina has won four and lost two games. After losing to V. M. I. in their opening game, they came back to wallop Erskine 38-0. The following week, they lost to the powerful Duke eleven 21-0. However, they have won their last three games from Florida, V. P. I. and Citadel respectively.

Gamecocks Stop Smith

In defeating Citadel last Saturday, they stopped the famous Chet Smith, who so far this season is high scorer in the Southern conference.

Although the Gamecocks have been hampered by injuries most of the season, they will face Villanova with practically their full manpower.

Carolina has spent its past few weeks in perfecting its forward passing attack which was a big factor in the defeat of the powerful Citadel team.

Larry Craig, tall and rangy end of the Gamecocks, has been shifted to the tackle position to strengthen an apparent weakness in that part of the line.

TRACKMEN TRAINING FOR SPRING SEASON

Lafayette, Franklin and Marshall, Penn State on Tough Schedule

Coach Jim Elliott has already begun preparations for the coming track season. Even though the campaign is a long way off, the energetic mentor is not letting "grass grow under his feet." He has contacted several institutions of reputation on the cinder path, but to date has not received definite replies from all of them.

The schedule will include meets with Temple, Franklin and Marshall, Lafayette and Penn State, with a possibility of two or three others. In addition, the young tutor is planning the formation of a medley relay team to represent Villanova in a few meets during the indoor season.

Several veterans are available for this season, and the newcomers to the varsity squad, including Moe Dimon, Charley Higgins, Joe Horn, and Tom Deiate, show promise of a fairly successful campaign.

MURAL BASKETBALL STARTS WEDNESDAY

Mendel Dayhops, Last Year's Champs, to Battle C & F

With the completion of the fall intra-mural schedule, basketball and boxing are due to make their debut this week in the Main and Alumni gymnasiums. Father McKee has about completed the basketball line-up for the coming season and this will be announced as soon as all the candidates have been assigned positions on their respective residence Hall teams.

The opening game of the season is set for Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 4, at 3:30 in the Alumni Gym when the Mendel Day-hops, the defending champs, meet the Commerce and Finance Day-hops. This promises to be a great battle, in as much as the C. & F.'s, although anchor men last year, show more strength this season.

Fedigan Looms Strong

Fedigan, however, seems to be the team that will furnish the Mendelians the greatest competition. They have shown a lot of tricky playing in their workouts and have to their advantage many of last years Mendel champs gracing their ranks. Austin, this year, seems to be a dark horse. They may or may not be strong. We can't tell until after we have seen a few of their games. A large number of anxious students have already come out for this sport but any additional aspir-

COURTMEN FACING HEAVY SCHEDULE

Tall, Fast Basketball Squad Slowly Rounding Into Shape

With a twenty-four game schedule, Villanova's Quintet has to be in first class shape, with the players practicing five afternoons and two evenings a week, to be in condition for the long siege through the winter.

The 'Cats have scrimmaged Chick Passon's basketball club as a means to toughen them up. This Passon team will represent Atlantic City in the Eastern Basketball League. Now that the freshmen are out, the scrimmages between the frosh and the varsity should help both teams to condition themselves.

Plenty of spirit has been shown by the candidates and they deserve much credit for it. They are on the floor early for practice and are late to leave.

Tall And Fast Squad

The team will be generally fast and has plenty of height with five men over six feet. The schedule for the Wildcats is one of the best in the East and provided the individuals involved can get into shape, the Mainliners should make out in fine style with the spirit that has been shown. Quoting Ray Murphy, the manager, the idea is, "We will win a majority of the ball games with a few breaks."

Fox, Rizzo, Raimo and Olivar Shine for Main Liners in Losing Cause

Villanova's chance for national recognition as one of the few teams boasting an unblemished record was removed last Saturday at Lewisburg when Bucknell rose to great defensive heights and held Villanova scoreless, while they themselves pushed across a lone touchdown in the closing minutes of the battle to make the final score 6-0.

Bucknell's previous record for the season was not so impressive that a win over Villanova cannot be regarded as an upset. In leaving the ranks of the undefeated Villanova enters the ranks of the upsets along with Minnesota, Holy Cross, Army and Yale.

Bucknell's hope for all-American mention, co-captain Stuart Smith, scored the lone tally of the game when he plunged through center from the one yard line. However, this was made possible only after Lou Tomasetti, the real star of the game, has loosed himself around end for a gain of 46 yards to bring the ball to Villanova's 4-yard line. Here a penalty caused the ball to be placed only one yard from the goal line. Smith then took it across to make the score 6-0. The try for a conversion was wide.

Blocking Ineffective

Villanova's effective blocking and ball carrying which had been so evident in the previous games this season was noticeably absent except on rare occasions.

Val Rizzo's spectacular run of 63 yards after he had intercepted a Bison pass deep in his own territory late in the first half seemed to be the spark that the Wildcats

MEETING CALLED BY GOLFERS TOMORROW

Convene to Discuss Plans for Coming Season; Candidates to Report

Villanova's varsity golf team will hold its initial meeting of the year tomorrow afternoon, according to an announcement from John B. Geraghty, Jr., Manager.

All candidates, whether freshmen or upperclassmen, are to report. The purpose of the meeting is to announce the tentative schedule as announced by Graduate Manager Al Severance, and to give the A. A. office an opportunity to see the future of the golf team.

The team has suffered losses by graduation, Dave Cragg and Jim McNerney graduated last year, and Bob Stockton, playing No. 1 man, did not return to school.

The team this year is composed of Jim Dwyer, Ed Tyrrell, Lou Dubino, Gene Barr and Johnny McManus. Ray Murphy and Jack Chappell played as alternates. The team customarily carries a squad of ten men, with a few twelve man country club matches.

SATURDAY, October 31, will go down in this season's football annals as the day when the greatest upsets took place. As it must come to all defeat came to some of the greatest teams in the country and Villanova was no exception. Bucknell, playing before a large homecoming crowd, landed on the outhrust Villanova chin and when the lights came on again the 6 on the Bison's side of the scoreboard was the biggest thing on the field.

There is no doubt that something happened to the team in the interim between the Boston U. game and Saturday's fracus. No matter what it was do not forget that Villanova still has a great team and we are sure that they will prove this fact in the succeeding games. For the following week this defeat will undoubtedly be the subject for many heated discussions among the Monday morning quarterbacks, but let them not forget that there are more important games to be won than the one that was lost...

A little encouragement to each and every member of the team would not be amiss at this time. In fact, it would be far better than any unkind criticism that might be offered. Let the above mentioned mid-week field generals take this into consideration.

Enough of this chatter over our own troubles. Pop Warners cohorts also did their bit blasting another strong team off the undefeated map. Holy Cross, unbeaten in 18 contests, came to Philadelphia with the idea of going to town in the Owl's stadium but were led astray. The final tally, 3 to 0, is faintly reminiscent of a recent big league contest.

Oddities in the news. Did you know that Franny Nye has one of the shortest names in inter-collegiate football. A recent survey made by a prominent New York sports editor disclosed the fact that the shortest name in inter-collegiate football ranks consisted of three letters. Nye ranked among these. On his mythical three letter name team, Franny held down the fullback position. On another team that was composed of odd names, Andy Stopper was mentioned.

Yale succeeded in rocking the lightweights to sleep and then walked over them to the tune of 25 to 0. Before the game was over, however old Eli found out that the Villanova players were not sonambulists but were full of fight.

Here's something that might be of interest to the student body of Villanova. The other day we were idly gazing over the Ukrainian Chronicle of Philadelphia when we came across a 1935 Ukrainian All-American Football Team, compiled by Alexander Yaremko, Sports Editor of the said journal.

Two local players were chosen. One was Konopka, center, from Temple University; the other was Nick Kotys, left halfback, from Villanova. Kotys graduated from this institution last June after competing three years in varsity football. In his senior year at Villanova Kotys was picked on the All-Local team, and selected by many on the All-Eastern team. Too, he was high scorer on the 1935 edition of the Wildcat squad. Nick is now head coach at Shickshinny High School, Schickshinny, Pennsylvania.

We would like to inform all those interested in bowling and billiards that alterations in the gym have been completed; and the bowling alleys and pool room will be open to students every afternoon, including Sunday, and on Friday evenings.

In November and December, tournaments will be held in bowling and billiards and all students who desire to enter are heartily invited to participate.

Felines Face South Carolina Smarting From Bucknell Loss

MAIN LINERS WILL MEET STRONG PASSING ATTACK

Southerners Advancing Steadily After Poor Start; Win Last Three

Villanova's Wildcats will be seeking revenge for last week's setback when they travel down to Columbia to meet Don McCallister's South Carolina Gamecocks in the only intersection game to be played by Villanova this season.

This game will renew relations with South Carolina after one years' lapse. In the 1934 season, the Wildcats trounced the Southerners 20-0 on the Main Liner's field.

So far this season South Carolina has won four and lost two games. After losing to V. M. I. in their opening game, they came back to wallop Erskine 38-0. The following week, they lost to the powerful Duke eleven 21-0. However, they have won their last three games from Florida, V. P. I. and Citadel respectively.

Gamecocks Stop Smith

In defeating Citadel last Saturday, they stopped the famous Chet Smith, who so far this season is high scorer in the Southern conference.

Although the Gamecocks have been hampered by injuries most of the season, they will face Villanova with practically their full manpower.

Carolina has spent its past few weeks in perfecting its forward passing attack which was a big factor in the defeat of the powerful Citadel team.

Larry Craig, tall and rangy end of the Gamecocks, has been shifted to the tackle position to strengthen an apparent weakness in that part of the line.

TRACKMEN TRAINING FOR SPRING SEASON

Lafayette, Franklin and Marshall, Penn State on Tough Schedule

Coach Jim Elliott has already begun preparations for the coming track season. Even though the campaign is a long way off, the energetic mentor is not letting "grass grow under his feet." He has contacted several institutions of reputation on the cinder path, but to date has not received definite replies from all of them.

The schedule will include meets with Temple, Franklin and Marshall, Lafayette and Penn State, with a possibility of two or three others. In addition, the young tutor is planning the formation of a medley relay team to represent Villanova in a few meets during the indoor season.

Several veterans are available for this season, and the newcomers to the varsity squad, including Moe Lemon, Charley Higgins, Joe Horn, and Tom Deiate, show promise of a fairly successful campaign.

MURAL BASKETBALL STARTS WEDNESDAY

Mendel Dayhops, Last Year's Champs, to Battle C & F

With the completion of the fall intra-mural schedule, basketball and boxing are due to make their debut this week in the Main and Alumni gymnasiums. Father McKee has about completed the basketball line-up for the coming season and this will be announced as soon as all the candidates have been assigned positions on their respective residence Hall teams.

The opening game of the season is set for Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 4, at 3:30 in the Alumni Gym when the Mendel Day-hops, the defending champs, meet the Commerce and Finance Day-hops. This promises to be a great battle, in as much as the C. & F.'s, although anchor men last year, show more strength this season.

Fedigan Looms Strong

Fedigan, however, seems to be the team that will furnish the Mendelians the greatest competition. They have shown a lot of tricky playing in their workouts and have to their advantage many of last years Mendel champs gracing their ranks. Austin, this year, seems to be a dark horse. They may or may not be strong. We can't tell until after we have seen a few of their games. A large number of anxious students have already come out for this sport but any additional aspir-

COURTMEN FACING HEAVY SCHEDULE

Tall, Fast Basketball Squad Slowly Rounding Into Shape

With a twenty-four game schedule, Villanova's Quintet has to be in first class shape, with the players practicing five afternoons and two evenings a week, to be in condition for the long siege through the winter.

The 'Cats have scrimmaged Chick Passon's basketball club as a means to toughen them up. This Passon team will represent Atlantic City in the Eastern Basketball League. Now that the freshmen are out, the scrimmages between the frosh and the varsity should help both teams to condition themselves.

Plenty of spirit has been shown by the candidates and they deserve much credit for it. They are on the floor early for practice and are late to leave.

Tall And Fast Squad

The team will be generally fast and has plenty of height with five men over six feet. The schedule for the Wildcats is one of the best in the East and provided the individuals involved can get into shape, the Mainliners should make out in fine style with the spirit that has been shown. Quoting Ray Murphy, the manager, the idea is, "We will win a majority of the ball games with a few breaks."

Here are some briefs on the men out for the team. Noonan, a man equipped with the ability to shoot

TAMOSETTI, SMITH STAR IN UNEXPECTED TRIUMPH

Fox, Rizzo, Raimo and Olivar Shine for Main Liners in Losing Cause

Villanova's chance for national recognition as one of the few teams boasting an unblemished record was removed last Saturday at Lewisburg when Bucknell rose to great defensive heights and held Villanova scoreless, while they themselves pushed across a lone touchdown in the closing minutes of the battle to make the final score 6-0.

Bucknell's previous record for the season was not so impressive that a win over Villanova cannot be regarded as an upset. In leaving the ranks of the undefeated Villanova enters the ranks of the upsets along with Minnesota, Holy Cross, Army and Yale.

Bucknell's hope for all-American mention, co-captain Stuart Smith, scored the lone tally of the game when he plunged through center from the one yard line. However, this was made possible only after Lou Tomasetti, the real star of the game, has loosed himself around end for a gain of 46 yards to bring the ball to Villanova's 4-yard line. Here a penalty caused the ball to be placed only one yard from the goal line. Smith then took it across to make the score 6-0. The try for a conversion was wide.

Blocking Ineffective

Villanova's effective blocking and ball carrying which had been so evident in the previous games this season was noticeably absent except on rare occasions.

Val Rizzo's spectacular run of 63 yards after he had intercepted a Bison pass deep in his own territory late in the first half seemed to be the spark that the Wildcats

MEETING CALLED BY GOLFERS TOMORROW

Convene to Discuss Plans for Coming Season; Candidates to Report

Villanova's varsity golf team will hold its initial meeting of the year tomorrow afternoon, according to an announcement from John B. Geraghty, Jr., Manager.

All candidates, whether freshmen or upperclassmen, are to report. The purpose of the meeting is to announce the tentative schedule as announced by Graduate Manager Al Severance, and to give the A. A. office an opportunity to see the future of the golf team.

The team has suffered losses by graduation. Dave Cragg and Jim McNerney graduated last year, and Bob Stockton, playing No. 1 man, did not return to school.

The team this year is composed of Jim Dwyer, Ed Tyrrell, Lou Dubino, Gene Barr and Johnny McManus. Ray Murphy and Jack Chappell played as alternates. The team customarily carries a squad of ten men, w[illegible] twelve man country club

Yale Eleven Overpowers Lightweights, 25-0

Versatile Attack of Eli's Downs Fighting Visitors

Main Liners Hold in First Period, But Victors Tally Three Times in Second; Kitten's Late Rally Stopped

KERRIGAN AGAIN STARS FOR LOSERS

Facing Yale, the most powerful foe encountered thus far, a fighting Villanova 150 pound team was defeated 25 to 0 on the winning teams home grounds last Saturday.

Starting off with a strong defense in the first quarter, the "kittens" held a heavier team scorless, only to weaken in the second quarter before a bewildering series of double and triple reverses.

Three times Yale's lightweights crossed the visitors goal line before the surprised Main Line boys heard the signal ending the first half.

Lashed to a fighting fury by the 19 to 0 score garnered by the big blue team, a wiser Villanova team took the field at the beginning of the third quarter. This quarter found the determined visitors outplaying and outfighting a hard-charging blue team and preventing them from scoring.

Beginning the fourth quarter, Yale by a long pass, and a reverse through tackle was enabled to beat their way to their final touchdown, making the final score 25 to 0.

Pacing the scoring parade of the Yale backfield was Bob Blair who scored two touchdowns to be followed in the last period by the final score of Wargot.

As the final quarter ended, the blue and white team put on a great rally which traveled by ground and air to the home team's 30 yard line, and was only stopped by the closing signal.

Kerrigan Stars

The most heroic figure on the field was that of Villanova's Paul Kerrigan as he celebrated his 21st birthday by vicious tackling and hard running. Lew Bleister and Claud LaDow were right behind Paul in a losing fight.

It must be said to the credit of the losing team that they never gave up fighting, and were beaten by a heavier, more powerful team.

MANY NEW TEAMS ON BOXERS' ROSTER

New Material Raises Gadsby's Hopes for Good Season

This year Ray Gadsby will start with a new team. It is called a new boxing team because when Ray came to Villanova, two years ago, he had very little to work with. After starting where Joe Foley left off in 1934, he produced one of the finest athletic teams that Villanova ever boasted. Although not starting with Gadsby, Tony Sala repeated his former success under Gadsby's tuteiage. Tony, as it is known, is Eastern intercollegiate light-heavyweight champion, proving the fact that Gadsby knows his hooks and jabs.

With the return of all but two of last year's ringsters things look bright, although the schedule itself is one of the hardest that any college would want to face.

Holdovers from last year, besides Sala, include Jack Jarosik, welterweight, whose three out of four victories last year were knockouts, Stan Bobrowski, lightweight, Carl Pantaleo, featherweight, and Bob Buckley, heavyweight. Abe Samra, 225 lb. sophomore, is another heavyweight, who intends to show his stuff. Among the new men there are many scrappers who know what the game is all about. Heading the list is Bill Duffy, who comes from Hartford, Conn., winner of 105 amateur bouts, and New England lightweight champion. Eddie Higgins, Eddie Kirk and Bobby O'Brien are others who have had experience at leather pushing. Neil Nugent, a welterweight from Lawrence, Mass., has won 14 straight amateur fights before coming to Villanova. Other newcomers who have shown great promise are Paul Costello and George Kamen, heavyweights, Pat Rooney and Lou McGlinchey, middleweights.

Although the prospects as a whole looks good it must be taken into consideration the stiff schedule that the boys must go through with this year. A new opponent listed on this schedule is Wisconsin, winner of the Big Ten boxing championship for the last four years.

needed. George Fox took the ball on an end around for a gain of five yards and then a pass from Buek to Fox into the end zone, labelled touchdown, was dropped after being momentarily juggled.

A touchdown seemed imminent in the third period when Bill Christopher downed Bucknell's kick from behind their goal line on his own 41. It was only a matter of inches that kept a score from being registered for Villanova because after Art Raimo took the ball on a reverse and skirted his left end to cross the goal line, observant officials noticed where Art had left a cleat mark out of bounds on the 21.

The Wildcats then carried the ball to the ten yard line twice. Once on a pass from Earle to Raimo, and a line buck by Christopher to make it a first down. However one of those persistant penalties was administered at this point to make it first and 15. The ball was again carried back to the ten yard line by Raimo but subsequent incompleted passes in the end zone put an end to this opportunity.

'Cat Tally Stopped

Villanova seemed to find itself for a while in the first half when they made three first downs in four plays, but this rally was stopped when the Bisons intercepted a pass.

Tomasetti, the sophomore who set up the Thundering Herd for their vital score, gained a total of 103 yards from scrimmage, while Smith who crossed the line with the six-pointer tore through the Wildcat line for a total of 85 yards.

Water Wings 'n' Lifebuoy; Neptune's Brethren Have No Breeze in Drills

Possibly you are one of those complacent readers, who, upon seeing news of the swimming team, sit back and think enviously of several fortunate athletes paddling about in clear, warm waters every day.

You would, admittedly, be right in one respect; the water is clear and somewhat warm. However, do not believe that the team is out just for the ride. Even a casual onlooker must be impressed by the pep and enthusiasm of the natators. As may be seen by the daily practice schedule below, the young men really work.

The squad lines up at the pool's edge, and one by one the swimmers dive in to go 500 yards, free-style, as a warm-up gesture. (Quick, Henry, a Camel!) After this mere nothing, we find our sea-going representatives grouped together according to strokes and then Queen Mary it for 150 yards, placing particular emphasis on the leg-thrash. Your fearless reporter at this point prepared to leave, only to see, from horror-stricken eyes, the painful spectacle of all the lads breezing through their respective distances at sprinting speed.

Nothing daunted, the youth on the Neptune beat watched the team run through twenty (20) turns and five (5) racing starts, then slow down their breathing with one or two leisurely laps apiece.

Sleepies 'n' Wheaties

This was a bit of an eye-opener, as our British cousins might put it, so, spying Toby Greco, assistant coach, your sight and sound demanded to know how the team trained. The answer was surprising. Condensed, it was that the rules were largely enforced by each member of the squad for himself. Good food, in large quantities, is the most important training need, along with enough sleep and that famous breakfast food which brings to you the weird adventures of the A's and Phillies every summer afternoon on WCAU.

The candidates for the team are tested in a simple, yet effective, way. As they float, their buoyancy is noted. Those who float high in the water are advised to try for the distance events. Those who are inclined to sink somewhat are sent to the sprint trials, the theory apparently being that a distance swimmer must be as nearly at home in the pool as possible, in order to come out in front, waving the bacon.

"Duck" McNally is termed as a smart floor player while Montgomery is a classy ball player who is hard to hold. McKenna is one of the most improved court men on the squad with Krutulis and Vigilanti labelled as two small packages of dynamite. Dubino is a great man to have under the backboard; Wanamaker and Hopkins will be in there fighting for jobs. Joe Carrig is looking better every day.

OVERCONFIDENCE! How many coaches have had their padded cells picked out for them by this one word, I wouldn't attempt to say. OVERCONFIDENCE and general all-around COCKINESS, plus a fighting opponent gave Villanova just an ordinary football team last week. Now that they are down off their Rose Bowl pedestal, the coaches may be able to penetrate the National Champions' thick heads and tell them that football wins games, not press clippings.

The team was leaning on the five previous games, too sure of themselves. "Nobody can beat US" Irregardless of the score, Bucknell outclassed us in all departments of the game. It should have been five or six, to show the difference in the two teams.

Bisons Ride Roughshod

Bucknell gave the best exhibition of tackling that I have ever seen. We were absolutely helpless. I never had an opponent ride roughshod over my team the way those Bisons did. We just didn't have a line. Bucknell gained over three hundred yards. 300! It was just pure luck that kept the score down.

We're just an ordinary football team now. We'll have to start all over again. Last Friday, we were on top of the heap. Today, we are jerked from the front page and landed on page six. I'm disappointed, not because we lost, but because Bucknell absolutely ran all over us, and we didn't do a thing about it. Saturday's game was a complete reversal of form from that of the previous week.

Raimo and Fox

If it hadn't been for Artie Raimo, we would have never even been in a scoring position. He shook himself loose a couple of times for nice runs, but somebody always nailed him.

George Fox played a steady game. His tackle of Tomassetti on the two yard line was as nice a piece of work as I've seen. Six fellows had a crack at him at the line, as he came through, and they all missed. Fox was the only one who stopped him.

Joe Missar and Val Rizzo played the best game in the line. Olivar picked up in the second half. Mellus was in poor shape physically, I never rhould have let him play. Going into a game like that, after a layoff on the sidelines was too much of a strain. Bill Rogers looked dead on his feet after the second play; I don't know what happened to him.

Bigheadedness and Bucknell

Bucknell was too well organized. It upsets me to think about it. We went up there, knowing that we had to meet a really inspired team. We knew that we had a battle on our hands. The most lamentable fact of the whole week-end is that knowing we were up against a powerhouse, an inspired ballclub, and we couldn't dispell our bigheadedness.

This week, the coaches may be able to talk to the boys. Last week, they were too sure of themselves; they wouldn't listen to us. I hope they have learned something. A losing team often learns more than a winner. We slipped a great opportunity. In the next three weeks, we don't know what'll happen.

The entire team was in poor shape physically. They had a terrific letdown. I understand that Villanova has one every year. If those boys don't snap out of it, they are due for three more letdowns. Certain members of the team looked as if they had just come in from winning the Olympic Marathon in two hours flat.

We are going to start all over again. We will have to rebuild a forward passing attack. Our passes last Saturday were pitiful.

If we hadn't lost, our playing would have actually been funny. Whenever we used deception, the only ones in the stadium who were fooled were ourselves. Bucknell smeared everything we threw at them. And our defense? Nothing. If a team like Bucknell can have us looking all over the field for the ball carrier, who will Temple, who are masters of deception, do to us.

Terrible Blocking and Tackling

We displayed the poorest tackling that I could imagine. There is nothing about the team to compliment, nothing to laud. The whole team was backwards. We'll just forget about it.

The blocking was disgusting. Several time we shook a man loose with three blockers running with him, and always somebody knifed through and nailed the runner. We have to get set on a definite backfield. I don't know what the four boys behind the line were doing all afternoon. They certainly weren't ball carrying.

It seems incredible that a team who showed so much stuff against previous opponents could look so typically sandlot agains a team like Bucknell.

We'll have to start all over again.

INTRA - MURAL NOTICE

All those desirous of playing intra-mural basketball should report to their counselor immediately for uniforms. The Mendel dayhop candidates should see Gene Barr, while the Commerce and Finance commuters should get in touch with Charles O'Connor for their equipment.

Gamecocks Next On Wildcat List

every opponent this season except Duke, amassing a total of 75 points to their opponents 45.

Villanova pulled through the Bucknell fracas with only one injury. Rodgers, 225 pound tackle, was taken out of the game with a wrenched knee. It is doubtful whether he will be able to play this Saturday, Johnny Mellus, who played for the first time in weeks last Saturday, will probably be in the starting line-up. Ray Stovlac, who has been suffering from a back injury since the Western Maryland game, will be in top shape for the Gamecocks.

Although the Gamecocks started slowly they have been picking up steadily and should afford the Wildcats plenty of opposition.

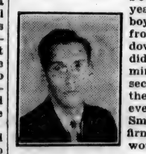
Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER



ONE of the columnists in the Record started off last Thursday's column with a remark that Pat Hanley told him the Wildcats had the best blocking he had seen in two years. If the boys can keep from letting down like they did for a few minutes in the second half of the B. U. game, even "Clipper" Smith, the confirmed pessimist, would have to see things through rose colored glasses.

With the beginning of intermural basketball this week, athletics among the general student body will start to sparkle a bit. The vacancy left by inter-dorm football will be filled up by the early inauguration of the court game. This year's initial contest is to be played a month earlier than last season's opener. The dayhops will pry open the lid with the Mendel lads, comprised mostly of engineers, and the C and F. boys mixing it up. Last year the business men were cellar occupants but this year is a different story, they claim. They point to the roster of basketeers who have reported to player-manager C. Borromeo O'Connor. It includes "Peanuts McAndrew" (the Pride of the Gap), Vince LaBrasca, the mad artist, George Morehouser, the Camden flash, and other stars whose names need no mention here.

Alex Bell says that this is the third time the same ankle has been broken. All misfortunes were met with in the same way, running down punts. Better luck next year Alex!

Dizzy Dean has given the sports writers something to talk about. When Babe Ruth was in his glory he had much color, but we are slightly inclined towards the Dizzy One as baseball's most colorful figure. A baseball isn't the only thing he can throw.

Those who were fortunate enough to procure a program at the B. U. game were no doubt much amused and amazed at some of the scores of Villanova's teams of the past. Inconsistencies marked many of the clubs. For instance, in 1913. The Wildcats beat Ursinus 10-7, lost to Army by a fifty-five nothing score, and in the next game, beat Fordham Rams by a 43-0 count.

The Fedigan All-Americans are anxious to play the Austin All-Americans. Captain Melian and Manager Cooke, of the Fedigunites, will welcome negotiations.

"Gang Buster" Mackowski, and his room mate "G-man" D'Ippolito, are out for the Gigolo Hall intermural court team. If given a chance, they say, they will form a high-scoring pair.

We were looking over the schedule of the United States Military Academy football team, and we have discovered the secret of their success in keeping in the ranks of the best teams. The hardest games the Cadets play are Notre Dame, Columbia, Colgate and Navy. The remaining teams to give battle to the Cadets are Hobart, and Muhlenburg, Washington and Lee, and Springfield are two of the clubs that have fallen under the mighty West Point attack.

WINNERS AND LOSERS

Two teams in which Villanova students possess an interest are Santa Clara and Wisconsin. Each played over the week-end, and the result was a win for one and a loss for the other.

Santa Clara took over Auburn, and Stuhlie's Badgers lost a tough contest to Chicago, one of the weaker teams in the Big Ten.

Mural Boxing Practice

In regards to boxing, an important announcement can be made at this time. The ring has been set up ready for use on the stage of the Main Gym under the supervision of Ray Gadsby, boxing instructor and two of his able freshman assistants, Bill Duffy and Ed Kirk, who are helping Ray this year in coaching the inter-mural boxers. Candidates for resident hall teams are requested to give their names to their hall Counselor and report to the Gym at their earliest opportunity, as Fr. McKee wishes to have them in shape for the tournament which is set for Dec. 14, two days before the Christmas holidays are scheduled to begin. If it is convenient for them, the varsity boxers will be available to instruct the boys in the manly art of self-defense. As in the case of basketball, Fr. McKee wishes to get things off to a flying start and urges the candidates in either sport to sign up as quickly as possible.

LKD NOMINATES ACCEPTANCE GROUP

10 Approved in Preliminary Ballot; Nov. 25 Is Date of Dance

At one of its most important and largest gatherings of the scholastic year last Thursday, Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity proceeded immediately to new business.

Nominations were held for the acceptance committee which interviews new members wishing to join the fraternity. The committee consists of two seniors, one junior, and one sopohomore. Chairman of the board is the fraternity's president, Gerald Pischercia.

Continuing the traditional efforts of making educational tours of scientific laboratories, Pischercia has contacted the Jefferson Medical College for an inspection of the entire college, the Physiological Laboratories of the University of Pennsylvania, and the laboratories of Sharpe and Dohme at Glenoiden, Pa. Dates for the inspection of these places will be announced in the near future as soon as proper authorization has been received.

DRAMATIC GROUP MAKES PROGRESS

Belle Masque Considers Three Plays For Initial Presentation

Decision upon the titles of plays to be presented will be made at the next meeting of the Belle Masque dramatic society. Among those which appear for consideration by the proper officials are the following performances: "Copy" "The Girl," and the "Monkey's Paw."

The Belle Masque Dramatic Society is under the competent leadership of Prof. Anthony J. Frayne, M. A., who is extremely desirous to revive the spirit of dramatics which was once known at Villanova.

To Chose Performers

Not only will the plays be chosen, but also the performers will be selected at the subsequent meeting of the society. The plays, incidently, are restricted to one-act performances, but it is the hope of all the students concerned to enact a drama of some note at the termination of the prescent school year.

It is important, however, that the members of the society observe the fact that rehearsals for the various performances will be held each afternoon at a place to be decided at a later date. Naturally, it is imperative that each member attend these rehearsals consistently and sincerely.

YEARLING ORATORS MEET PRICE FORUM

Debate Scheduled for Dec. 16; Many More Announced by Moderator

At the last Wednesday meeting of the freshman debating team, presided over by Robert Wilderrotter, plans were discussed for the coming year.

Rev. Jerome Mahoney, O. S. A., attended the meeting after a week's absence due to a severe cold. He announced that the debate with the Charles Morris Price Forum will be held at the Poor Richard's Club in Philadelphia on Thursday, December 16. The topic in question is: Resolved that armament should be a government monopoly. In the discussion the visitors will uphold the affirmative side with Villanova taking the negative.

Tryouts Scheduled

As yet the members of the forensic society who will participate in the contest have not been decided. Fr. Mahoney stated that at the next weekly meeting tomorrow, tryouts will be held in order to decide on the members who will represent Villanova.

At the present time the secretary of the club, Alfred M. Bongiovannia, is very busy making the arrangements for engagements the coming year. Bongiovannia announced that debates will be held with Fordham and St. John's University in the near future, and that meetings with Rosemont, Bryn Mawr, St. Joseph's, University of Pennsylvania and other local colleges are being contemplated.

HOLY NAME UNIT WILL BREAKFAST

Speaker For Occasion Will Be Appointed By Diocesan Society

This Sunday's communion breakfast of the Villanova Holy Name Society will mark the beginning of a new era in the society's history.

President Pio Goggi of the society and Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the group and chapiain of the college, expects a turnout of over a hundred members. "We expect over a hundred members to be present at our eight-thirty communion Mass and at the meeting and breakfast immediately following," said Fr. Brown. "As yet we are not sure of just who the speaker is going to be. It is certain that he will be appointed by the Diocesan Holy Name Union of Philadelphia, which is organized for just that purpose."

The enlarged membership the society has shown this year is due to a new system of cataloguing members now employed by the organization. It consists of the appointment of a committee who shall have complete charge of the membership and keeping the intereat of the Holy Name members in this society. A complete survey of every hall has been made by this committee and a list of members has been submitted to the moderator.

CHORISTERS LEARN NEW SELECTIONS

Songs From 'Naughty Marietta' Practiced by Choral Group

In preparation for future presentations of the Glee Club under the moderatorship of Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., the organization has added to their repertoire a few more selections, including the most outstanding ones from the operetta "Naughty Marietta." Most appreciable of their selections will be the new version of the "Alma Mater," as arranged by Paul V. Teel.

At the last meeting of the Glee Club last Thursday evening a large portion of the seventy-eight members appeared for practice. Usually the club arranges the practicing of their presentations on Monday and Wednesday evenings. Of the entire number participating in the activities of the Glee Club the largest number appears to be composed of freshmen.

Non-Residents Offered Inducement

Fr. Brown wishes to state that any resident or non-resident student desiring to participate in the activities of the club may come to the auditorium in the Commerce and Finance Building on either Monday or Thursday evenings. For those living off the campus doing so, a study room and their evening meal will be provided by the organization.

PURE... and of finer texture than most anything that touches your lips...

We all agree on this ... cigarette paper is important. For Chesterfield we use the best paper that we can buy. It is called Champagne Cigarette Paper. It is made from the soft, silky fibre of the flax plant. It is washed over and over in clear, sparkling water.

A lot of the pleasure you get in smoking Chesterfields is due to our using the right kind of cigarette paper. Chesterfield paper is pure, and it burns without taste or odor.

Chesterfield

They're Milder and They Satisfy

Remember this ... two things make the smoking quality of a cigarette—the tobaccos and the paper. The Champagne cigarette paper on Chesterfields is tested over and over for purity, for the right burning quality. Another reason why Chesterfield wins.

'Cats Ready For Owls

EDITORIAL

ANOTHER WILDCAT MARCH TO VICTORY

TOMORROW, Villanova's battle-worn grid warriors, you will face the toughest assignment of the year. You meet the traditional nemesis of all Villanova athletic teams, the Temple Owls. When the whistle sounds across the scarred turf of the Temple stadium tomorrow afternoon, you will be in for the fight of your lives and there will be no rest for the weary until the final whistle is heard. But remember, Wildcats, that the Temple Owls feel the same way about you. They fear your fast charging guards, your strong tackles, your fleet ends, your hard driving backs, and your quick thinking strategists, but most of all they fear YOU AS A COMBINED TEAM.

Each year it is the same story over again. The highly touted Owl gridders ride roughshod over all their victims without a semblance of doubt before game time as to the outcome when that fighting Villanova squad trots out on the field the Templars, however strong they are, always have apprehensive glances to cast at their foes. For well is it known that the Main Liners put out the greatest grid machine in the East when it comes to pluck and spirit and pulling the unexpected. And this year the reason for those glances of doubt will be far greater for under "Clipper" Smith you, the Wildcat horde, have leaped to the top of the pile and with but one unfortunate setback to mar a perfect, as well as very impressive record, your reputation as one of the best teams in the country throws more than the usual amount of fear into the hearts of the Warnermen. And that fear is justified.

They know that you have the stuff just as every loyal son of Villanova is aware of it. They know that every one of you will fight until there is no longer consciousness left in your body and they know that you WILL PLAY TO WIN.

Just as the feathered minions of "Pop" Warner have fear and respect for your prowess, just so have all the Villanova men, whether they be students or fans, alumni or faculty, confidence in your ability, faith in your strength, and a feeling of surety towards the outcome. They will be on the sidelines, many thousand strong, to cheer you on and their hearts will be with you every tense moment of the struggle.

Spirit Tops All-Time High

VILLANOVA STUDENT BODY WILL CONVENE AT 8:00 TONIGHT

Traditional Ceremonies in the Commerce and Finance Hall Mark Pre-game Spirit

FATHER O'LEARY, SMITH, "REDS" BRADLEY TO SPEAK

Captain Tony Sala Will Also Address Students; Bonfire Follows

Tradition and spirit will predominate on Villanova's campus at the annual football rally tonight in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium, where students, old grads, and Wildcat rooters will gather to cheer "Clipper" Smith and his team on to a victory over Temple.

With expectations of a most spectacular demonstration of enthusiasm, the Student Council has arranged a program that will pay honor to one of the finest teams ever to fight under the Blue and White. The entire evening has been set aside for this purpose, beginning with the Pep rally at 8:00 P. M. and climaxing with a huge bonfire in the parking space opposite the gymnasium.

Speakers at the rally will be introduced by Mario J. Menocal, Senior Engineer and Chairman of the Student Council. The guest speakers will include: "Clipper" Smith, Villanova mentor, the Rev. John O'Leary, O. S. A., "Reds" Bradley, captain of the Wildcat squad of 1931 and ardent Villanova backer, and Captain Tony Sala, stalwart

Both Elevens Evenly Matched For Yearly Struggle Saturday; 'Cats on Rebound Show Power; Temple Confident

CLIPPER'S MEN PIT SPEED VS. POWER

By NORTON C. PADEN

Temple University will again play the part of the host when Villanova's gridders journey to the Owl Stadium Saturday to battle the Warnermen in their ninth annual contest. Holding the edge in the series with five wins against two losses and a tie game, "Clipper" Smith's charges will face the Owls on equal standing for the first time in many years.

Picked as underdogs in last season's contest, Villanova upset the consensus of all concerned by coming out on the long end of a 21 to 14 tally. The odds are nearly even this year as each school will put a strong team on the field.

Smarting under the sting of a 7-7 tie at the hands of a strong Michigan State team, Pop Warner's charges retired behind the closed gates of their Oak Lane stadium to smooth their ruffled feathers and to try to figure out a way to outsmart the Main Liners.

Efficient in every phase of the game the Cherry and White places a formidable squad on the field that will cause the 'Cat supporters no end of headaches during the fracas. A determination to avenge their stalemate of last week, coupled with the fact that Villanova is their traditional rival, will doubly inspire the Templars.

Although this is Coach Smith's debut against the Temple aggregation, Clipper is no stranger to the Owl mentor, Glen S. "Pop" Warner. Friendly enemies on the west coast, Smith's charges from Santa Clara gave Warner and his Stanford team many anxious moments.

Fresh from their victory over

Student Opinions Favor 'Cats For Temple Encounter

Senior C & F—Tom Kennedy—"Temple has a lot of power, and our boys will do well to watch MacAll and Smith, who are two of the greatest passers Temple has ever produced. If we can succeed in getting around these men we are sure to win."

Senior Arts—Al Mayell— "Villanova— two touchdowns."

Senior Science — Gerry Pischchia—"Our game with Temple is always good, but with Villanova's spirit at its season's height for this game our Wildcats will come out on top."

Senior Engineering — Paul Williams — "After being beaten by Bucknell our Wilcats will be fighting mad and will rebound to take Temple for a ride."

Junior Arts—Bill Burke—"I think we have one of the best offensive and defensive teams in the East and should trip the Owls."

Junior C & F—Charlie O'Connor—"Cinch for the boys. Not very much trouble."

Junior Science—Ray Chonko — "With Cochrane and Bell out with injuries it looks bad. However, the wonderful spirit will prevail, and the fight instilled into our boys by the defeat at Bucknell will cause them to rebound and beat Temple."

THE PEOPLES CHOICE

THE overwhelming re-election of President Franklin D. Roosevelt marks a new and desirable epoch in the political development of this country. For it marks a definite step in the transition between an electorate subject to the trite expressions and sentiments of paid propagandists, and the conscientious individual who evaluates each candidate in the light of his experience, accomplishments and objectives.

To the confidence expressed in the executive ability of President Roosevelt was add the election of a Democratic majority to both houses of Congress so as to insure the unhampered execution of his intentions and plans. More than this, however, their vote is a sign of faith in his ability to adopt and apply the American form of government to the social conditions of the day, so that by taking cognizance of their existence and importance it will be less liable to the charges of inadequacy.

OLD AGE SECURITY

DESPITE the rabid rantings of the now quiet Republican orators, the old-age insurance clause of the Social Security Act will soon be ready to make its impression on the lives of millions of American workers, who will obtain forms from their local postal authorities some time this month. Contrary to the word pictures of the G. O. P. propagandists, the adherents to the code will not have to wear monstrous identification tags such are supplied to some college freshmen, but will only have to present a card for identification purposes. Instead of inquiring into the past history of the individual to find out how much money his great grandfather contributed to Poor Richard's almanac or into the height of his mother's cousin when he fought in the battle of Bull Run, the application blank asks for merely his name, place or residence, sex, occupation, and names of parents.

Each worker will have to notify the company of his salary every week up until the time when he is sixty-five years of age, but the trouble of the little clerical work involved is certainly worth the benefits which will be assured for those same workers in the fall of their lives.

ALMA MATER

By Al Dubin and Joseph Burke

When the twilight shadows gather
Out upon the Campus green,
When the blue and purple night
Comes stealing on the scene
Loyal sons of Villanova
Sing a hymn of praise
To our dear old ALMA MATER
And our College days.

Villanova, Villanova,
When we leave your shelt'ring walls,
We shall leave an echo ringing
Through your treasured halls
We will leave an echo ringing
In the silent night
While our memories are singing
Of the Blue and White.

When the last big game is over
And the last roll call is heard
When the oldest pedagogue
Has had his final word
We shall come to ALMA MATER
In our dreams again
With a prayer for Villanova
And a sweet amen.

We are out to win the day
We'll march straight through to victory
So onward let us go—Rah! Rah!

Hurrah for the White and Blue
Cheer, boys, cheer the flag that proudly waves
Glorious in our view,
Come and join in a resounding
Hurrah, Hurrah, Hurrah!

And the old White and Blue. Hurrah.

And when the game's all over

Did you hear the good one they pulled on the Community Sing-Song Hour, the other night? It seems that Canada is going to change its name. What with Quintuplets, baby marathons and whatnot, it will be called Cana-da-da.

"Everybody is crazy over me," said the inmate of the first floor of the insane asylum . . . They say a bachelor is a man who never makes the same mistake once . . . And may we complete this paragraph by repeating what Shakespeare once said, "Bow legs may not be few, but they are far between."

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

Besides having a rebirth of athletic spirit Villanova seems to have undergone a new social reclaimation. So far as we can recall at this moment there have been three new clubs formed on the campus since September and rejuvination of another.

The new organizations which have applied for recognition are the Conneticut Club, the Study Club, the Radio Club and the very recent Trenton Club. Villanova's dramatic society, the Belle Masque, has again come into its own under the leadership of Mr. Anthony Fryane, and promises to produce a play in the near future.

The Glee Club and the Jersey Club are as strong as usual to say nothing of the two fraternities of the active Engineers and Medicos.

The Sopomore Dance was the best in the history of yearling affairs, and the activities of the classes show that they, too, are really "on the ball."

This definitely shows that times are better. Not since the days of '29 and '30 have things been as good and our campus activities been so lively. Who said that "Roosevelt is ruining the country"?

We suggest that you watch Frank Cullina put on a false moustache and act like Charley Chase. You won't know the difference.

FROSH do you know—

That a certain sweet young thing has asked us if we can't find someone on our campus who resembles Robert Taylor or Robert Montgomery.

That this Saturday you are going to see the best football game in your short college career.

That you'll find yourselves cheering whether you want to or not.

That if you missed the Immaculata College Barn Dance of a week or so ago you missed one of the best times of your young lives. The male representation was about seventy percent Villanova.

That our genial editor has been asked to write an editorial for the newspaper of the same college.

That you'll meet you first college Waterloo next week if you don't watch your step. Yeah, I mean the quarterlies.

Everyone else around her is making predictions for this week's game so we'll be no exception. Of, course, we are going to win, but it is going to be a tough fight. If there is any thing that makes a Villanova Wildcat wild it is the sight of a Temple Owl.

If you want to have some fun some dreary evening when you don't feel like plugging over dry scholastic nonsense we suggest a good remedy. Get your gang together and try to name the states and capitals of this great nation of ours. If you can do that before it is time to go to bed try our chief cities, their exports and their location. You'll find that you are not as smart as you though you were.

When Charlie Bruno wants to attract the attention of any of his five "wing mates" in the furthest reaches of the third floor of Austin Hall, all he has to do is stick his head outside his door and call "Joe" and "Mac." Everyone on the hall will answer to those nicknames. Living there besides the Bruno are MacDonald, McNally, Joe Hopkins, Joe Tanzola and your columnist.

Did you get a load of the signs on the campus this week. Their number certainly strikes a new high for originality and for art. The best one that we have seen up to the time of this writing was the one on Alumni Hall which showed eleven dummies with the letter "T" on their chests and the names of Temple's grid stalwart on their feet. Pritty clever boys. If the wind hadn't blown it down someone should have called up the Philly papers and put a bug into the ear of their photo editors. To our way of thinking there should be a prize for the best artistic and novel display for this great occasion. Student Council, hint.

Frosh Victors Over Sophs In Annual Field Day

Yearlings Far Superior In Saturday's Tussle

Second Year Men Although Badly Outnumbered Fight Gamely to Maintain Dignity But Opponents Not to Be Denied

FROSH CAPTURE GREASED "PORKIE"

Demonstrating their superiority in a decisive event, the Class of 1940 emerged victorious over the second-year men in the annual Frosh-Soph Field Day held last Saturday morning.

As a consequence of their thrilling victory, the freshmen may shed their "regs" immediately, instead of after the Manhattan game, as appeared in a previous issue.

With the final outcome hinging on the result of the greased-pig contest, the frosh went into action and after many amusing incidents finally subdued the elusive animal, assuring themselves of further humiliation from the Soph.

The touch - football games commenced activities. The action occurred on Mendel Field and after one hour of torried and brilliant playing, both sides failed to push over a tally.

Following this contest, the action shifted to the pond, behind the old barn across Lancaster Pike. At this location a good old-fashioned tug of war took place, and for the second successive time in two events, the battle was declared a draw. An event occurred inadvertently in the form of a mudslinging free-for-all, which also ended in a stalemate, according to impartial judges from the sidelines.

Reverting to their first site, the two classes presented a brilliant exhibition in the aforementioned greased pig contest, which decided the Freshmen victory.

Both classes are to be commended upon the good sportsmanship and interest which they showed in this traditional affair, resumed after a lapse of one year. Inclement weather conditions forced the postponement last year.

The sophomore class is to be singually honored for the uphill fight they put up against overwhelming odds. They were outnumbered approximately three to one, but they were not outgamed.

FRATERNITY PLANS ACTIVE SCHEDULE

Annual Dance, Standards for Admission Are Determined by Group

Under the leadership of Mario Troncelliti, outstanding senior Science student, the Lambda Delta Fraternity will begin preparation for their coming dance to be held on the Friday after Thanksgiving, November 27. The annual Science Hop will feature the popular augmented Villanovan dance orchestra.

Although the entire fraternity is sponsoring the affair, the bulk and details of the preparation are being handled by a committee composed of Thomas Maye, Joseph Tanzola, Pasquale Vassalluzzo and Nicholas Tretta of the senior class; Vincent Ciacci, Edward Troncelliti, representing the juniors, and James Kutz, Lawerence Knaphle, and George White of the sophomore class. All indications point to the dance being a hugh success.

At the last meeting of the fraternity held last Friday, another committee was elected, this one to judge the eligibility of the freshmen who will be accepted into the organization shortly after the dance.

ENGINEERING FRAT HOLDS SUCCESSFUL DANCE ON FRIDAY

Phi Kappa Pi Social Attracts Many Students; Villanovans Featured

One of the most successful dances of its history was given by Villanova's Engineering Fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi, in its Twenty-first Annual Owl Hop held in the College Gymnasium on Friday evening, November 6. The Villanovans, newly reorganized college orchestra, supplied the danceable rhythms effectively and to the enjoyment of some 75 dancing couples.

The dance climaxed a week of intense preparation and activity in the fraternity. The affair was under the direction of the committee headed by Joseph J. Duffy, senior chemical engineer. Preparations for the dance were made throughout the previous week.

The ceiling of the gymnasium was beautifully decorated with the blue and white false ceiling, with the similarly colored side streamers. The latter was obtained through the courtesy of Lambda Kappa Delta, School of Science Fraternity. The stage was set with red velvet drapes and a color scheme effected upon it by varied colored footlights. The orchestra occupied the stand placed on the east side of the dance floor. The music and vocal renditions by its leader, Mr. Sheftic, were clearly amplified by the amplifying system installed by Edward J. Casey, senior electrical engineer. Refreshments were served in the especially equipped refreshment room through the arrangement of the committee in charge.

The Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice president of the college, remarked to the effect that in his experience, the 1936 edition of the Owl Hop was the best managed and best conducted that he has ever attended. This given due credit to the fraternity president, Eugene A. Barr, the dance committee, Mr. Duffy, and the fraternity members.

COLLEGE DEBATERS OPPOSE LOYOLANS ON DECEMBER 4TH

Baltimore Forensic Team One of Strongest in Eastern Collegiate Circles

Beta Gamma will definitely inaugurate its 1936-1937 debating season on Tuesday evening, December 4, when it will be host to the debaters representing Loyola Univ., Baltimore.

The Loyola society, one of the East's outstanding college argumentative units, will engage the Villanova debaters at 8:00 P. M. in the Mendel Hall Amphitheatre.

For this initial meeting, Beta Gamma will select a team determined by those who are best fitted for debate by that date, disregarding the present five teams. The subject chosen for the debate is, Resolved: That Congress shall be permitted to enact laws regulating maximum wage and minimum hours.

This debate, arranged two months earlier than previous schedules of the Beta Gamma, will be the first of a series of meets with more than twenty colleges. Seventeen institutions have already agreed to contest with the Villanova forensic group and quite a number have not as yet responded to the invitations, but are expected to in the near future, thereby completing the largest schedule ever attempted by Beta Gamma.

Preparation meetings have been arranged by the society for Tuesday and Wednesday of every week, to be held at 2:30 P. M., in Room 103. Additional meetings of the respective teams will be called at the will of the various captains during

Villanova Sends Representatives to Peace Meeting

Father Lunney, James Quigley, Paul Juergens in Attendance

Representatives from Villanova attended the first Round-Table Conference of the Catholic Students Peace Federation. The occasion took place last Saturday, November 7, at St. Elizabeth's College Convent Station, New Jersey.

Rev. William Lunney, O.S.A., James Quigley, and Paul Juergens, moderator, president, and secretary, respectively, constituted the group of representatives from the Villanova College International Relations Club.

Practically all of the Catholic institutions of the eastern section of the country enrolled in the Federation were in attendance.

President James Quigley of Villanova presented a paper before the assembly in a discussion of the attitude of the United States concerning the Sanctions questions.

The day was spent in interesting and enlightening discussions; the most important phase developed was the affirmation of the Federation's fight against Communism, a measure threatening to Catholicity and World Peace.

At the next meeting of the Relations Club, it is expected that the pending plans of sending delegates to the Internationals Relations Club Convention, to be held at the University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware, on December 4th and 5th of the present season will be discussed.

FIELD DAY WANTED

Some of the Sophomores are anxious for another tussle like last Saturday's. They wish to take on the present Junior class, as they were denied that pleasure last year.

Quickest Routes to Temple Stadium By Both Automobile and Street Car

Below are given the best routes both by automobile and street-car, to get to Temple Stadium, Vernon Rd. and City Line, Philadelphia. These routes have been compiled by the VILLANOVAN, for those who are not familiar with the streets of the Quaker City.

By machine:

For those who leave for the game from the central part of the city, two routes may be taken. The more direct route, if taken, is to proceed north on Broad St. to its end, then turn left to Cheltenham Ave., continue on Cheltenham Ave., to Vernon Rd., and the parking ground adjacent to the Stadium. Another route may be taken, which though longer can be covered in less time. Go out the Parkway to the East River Drive, in Fairmount Park, then continue on the Drive to the Wissahickon Drive (joins East River Drive at Ridge Ave. and City Line). Continue to the Lincoln Drive, to dead end and turn right to Germantown Ave., double car-tracks, bear right again, and at the first traffic light, turn left (Mt. Airy Ave.), then follow till you come to the Stadium.

The latter route is suggested as being the most desirable, for the reason that the heavy traffic encountered on Broad St., is avoided.

Those from South Philadelphia, will proceed north on Broad St. to City Hall, and then take their choice of ways marked out above.

From West Philadelphia, the route, as suggested, is over Girard Ave., across the Schuylkill River Bridge and at the first semaphore signal turn left down the hill, and at the bottom bear to the right. From that point follow the route marked out above, concerning the Wissahickon Drive, etc.

For the students and other followers of the team, use Montgomery Ave., to City Line Ave., then bear left and continue on City Line till Ridge Ave. (double car tracks) is reached. From there follow plan outlined for those who will leave from West Philadelphia, namely Wissahickon and Lincoln Drives, Allens Lane, Germantown Ave., and Mt. Airy Ave., to the scene of the fray.

By street-car:

From City Hall and South Philadelphia take the Broad St. Subway to Olney Ave., then transfer to Route 6 Trolley-car, to the game. (When paing a fare on Broad St. Subway, ask for a transfer, which is to be used on Route 6).

For West Philadelphians, take Market Stree Subway - Elevated train to 15th St. Station. Get off here, and ascend the stairs and cross to City Hall, then go through the archway and down the stairway marked North. The route to be followered from there is the same as that marked above.

From Villanova, use the Philadelphia and Western to 69th St. Terminal and then follow the way marked for the other routes.

NOTE:—When paying fare ask ticket. At time of boarding the for a Broad St. Subway exchange subway, hand cashier your exchange and ask for a transfer, to to be used on Route 6, which you will get at the northern terminal.

For the convenience of the Villanova students who live on the campus and who wish to go in to the game, buses have been arranged for transportation. Tickets may be purchased from Edward Donovan at sixty cents a round trip.

THE time has come. The game of games is in the offing and enthusiasm is running high. Temple our traditional rival will be met tomorrow at Temple Stadium, and vanquished (we hope). This annual classic is almost an institution in Philadelphia and in the opinions of Sports Writers it is the waterloo of those who make predictions. For the first time in many years Temple will be met on equal footing, the last few seasons we have always been picked as underdogs.

During the past few days campus spirit has been running high and it is our hope that it will not terminate until after the game. If a team ever needed support they will need it tomorrow. Temple is always an unknown quantity until game time but we do know that they are going to put one of the strongest Cherry and White teams on the field that Villanova ever ran up against. Villanova has declared an open season on Owls.

We mentioned the campus spirit and the VILLANOVAN had been doing its part. Members of the team and of the coaching staff have been interviewed. Though most of the fellows on the team feel that it will be Villanova's day they still maintain that it is going to be the toughest game of the season.

George "Doc" Jacobs, who directs the destinies of the Freshman football team and the Varsity baseball team is looking forward to the Temple fracas. "Doc" does all the scouting for the Wildcats and has seen the Owls in action more than once this year. When it comes to predictions or opinions, however, "Doc" just won't talk. He pulls his age old statement out, brushes off the dust and it reads "It will be a tough fight." Jacobs has made that self same prediction every year and he has never been wrong. He knows the strength and weaknesses of the Templars and admits that the Main Liners will have to battle every minute of the contest.

Vince McNally Villanova's new assistant coach, will run up against Temple for the first time Saturday. About the coming fray Vince has this to say: "The intense rivalry between the two schools makes this game a natural and I think Villanova will rise to the occasion." Coming from McNally this is almost as good as a prediction of a win.

Another bird was met last week and its feathers ruffled. The South Carolina Gamecocks met the 'Cats on their home field in Columbia and were vanquished 14 to 0. Clipper's revamped backfield including Nye, Stopper, Stoviak and Earle showed up to the expectations of the coach. Both scores were made via the airlanes a pass from Stopper to Capt. Sala accounted for one tally and a lateral, Stoviak to Rizzo accounted for the other one.

Courage under fire. While seeking Pop Warner for his all important interview two sports scribes ventured into the lair of the Owl. Journeying from the Athletic Offices in Mitten Hall to the Stadium in Oak Lane they met with little success. Learning his address from a ground keeper at the stadium—they finally caught up with the famous coach in his apartment. After obtaining the interview and after chatting awhile about this and that with the venerable warrior, the scribes left. Imagine their embarrassment when the suddenly realized that they were displaying big "Beat Temple" buttons on their coat lapels.

Wildcats Miss Two Scoring Chances; South Carolina Threatens Twice

Villanova's Wildcats made it six out of seven when they defeated the Gamecocks of South Carolina last Saturday on the loser's field in Columbia.

Captain Tony Sala again broke into the scoring column by grabbing a pass from Andy Stopper in the opening quarter for the first touchdown. Bill Christopher placekicked the extra point.

Sala's touchdown was the climax of a fifty-five yard march through the air and over the ground. In six plays the 'Cats had gone forty-five yards to South Carolina's ten yard line. Two passes were good for 23 yards while a mixture of spinners and straight running plays clicked off the remaining 22.

Bill Christopher set the stage for the second touchdown when he returned a South Carolina punt thirty-two yards to the Gamecocks' thirty-seven. From here Ray Stoviak crashed through the center on a fake spinner and after gaining about seven yards tossed a lateral pass to Val Rizzo who raced the remaining distance to the goal line.

Villanova missed the chance to score in the second quarter when a forty-yard pass from Harvey Buek to Johnny Wysocki placed the ball on the six yard line. However, the Gamecocks put up a powerful goal line stand and after four plays took the ball on downs on their own two yard line.

The Wildcats missed another scoring chance in the third quarter. Art "Rabbit" Raimo, who played a bang-up game on the defense, intercepted Jack Lyone' pass on South Carolina the Villanova squad has been practicing assiduously in preparation for the game of games.

Practice from which the general public has been barred has taken place all week, and Clipper's strategy has been utilized to the utmost in an endeavor to best his older and more experienced rival. Smith's revamped lineup clicked smoothly in the game against the Gamecocks but as yet no word has emanated from the athletic office as to the definite lineup.

In all probability, Earle will start in the fullback position with Stoviak and Stopper in the halfback posts. Bill Christopher has the edge as field general. The line will be composed of Sala and Fox, ends; Mellus and Olivar, tackles; Missar and Rizzo, guards. McKenna, who has shown much better form in practice than his confrere Bunny Galazin, may start at the snapper-back position.

In the Owl encampment, life is no bed of roses. Warner attributes his team's poor showing to a between-the-ears inflation and is determined to remove this obstacle before his team hits the field Saturday. Unconcern for the power of the Michigan State team after their surprise defeat of Holy Cross led to the Templars' downfall.

Fullback Chris Pappas, who made Temple's lone tally against Michigan State, will no doubt be in the starting lineup with Augie Macali alternating at this post. Gordon (Pete) Smith has the left halfback position in the bag, but the right half is giving Pop trouble. Cliff Seaber and Bocco Mowrey are likely to split the responsibility with Bill Davidson calling the signals.

Big Ed Walker, his injured arm permitting, will see duty at left end with Army Ippolito holding down the other end of the line. Bill Docherty, he of the educated toe, and either Hal Zastrow or Alan Sturges are the starting tackles.

Tom Miller and Joe Drulis are still fighting for the left guard post, and Stan Gurzynski will hold down right guard. Chet Messervey will straddle the oval.

How Rival Coaches View Tomorrow's Annual Fray

Maurice "Clipper" Smith, finishing his first season as head football coach at Villanova, and although renewing hostilities with "Pop" Warner, for the first time puts a team against Temple, states for the VILLANOVAN:

"I hear that courage comes from having done the thing before. After our recent humiliation at Bucknell, the team should reach another high peak for this game. We hope to sustain the sturdy traditions established by my predecessor Harry Stuhldreher."

Alexander G. Severance, varsity basketball coach at Villanova and Graduate Manager of Athletics, states for the VILLANOVAN:

"Temple has one of the best teams in the East. The Carnegie loss could be attributed to the short space of time after the Boston College game. We at Villanova can appreciate how much a Boston College squad can take out of a team. The Holy Cross contest is a barometer of Temple's strength. I look for one of the closest contests of the series, with a slight nod to Temple."

Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, nationally known coach at Temple University states for the Villanova publication, the VILLANOVAN:

"A Villanova-Temple game has always been a good game and a pretty even affair. It looks to be an even battle this year. It's anybody's game. Villanova has won every other year since I have been at Temple. This should be Temple's turn to win.

When I was head coach at Stanford on the coast "Clipper" was at Santa Clara, and we met on the gridiron several times. It was always a tough battle. I have a great respect for him. We will be in for a mighty tough afternoon."

DOCHERTY TO LEAD OWLS

"Pop" Warner has decided to appoint Bill Docherty as Captain of the Temple team for the Owl-'Cat fracas. Bill has led the Owls in the last two games and as the "Old Fox" states: "Docherty seems to be liked by the team and will be appointed Captain for this, our most important game."

Docherty led his team to a victory over Holy Cross, and personally accounted for Temple's only score, a field goal. He also led the Owls to a tie with a strong Michigan State team.

SWIMSTERS TRAIN DAILY FOR SEASON

Return of Hosey and Duffy to Squad Strengthens New Coaches Hopes

Once again Villanova will be well represented with a strong swimming team. This years contingent has predicted to capture many victories and establish new records for the Main Line institution because of the return of many veteran performers.

Under the capable tuteiage of C. F. Mathieu, newly acquired coach and instructor, the natators anticipate to compile a formidable record.

Joe Duffy captain of the Main Line aggregation is expected to lead his cohorts through a victorious campaign. Jack Hosey, former sprint and diving champion who was absent from competition last season due to injuries sustained in an accident, will gain be in the fold.

Toby Greco, Wilmer Booth, Jim Cousant and Bill Leathy will probably form the nucleus of this year's team.

How Rival Coaches View Tomorrow's Annual Fray

Maurice "Clipper" Smith, finishing his first season as head football coach at Villanova, and although renewing hostilities with "Pop" Warner, for the first time puts a team against Temple, states for the VILLANOVAN:

"I hear that courage comes from having done the thing before. After our recent humiliation at Bucknell, the team should reach another high peak for this game. We hope to sustain the sturdy traditions established by my predecessor Harry Stuhldreher."

Alexander G. Severance, varsity basketball coach at Villanova and Graduate Manager of Athletics, states for the VILLANOVAN:

"Temple has one of the best teams in the East. The Carnegie loss could be attributed to the short space of time after the Boston College game. We at Villanova can appreciate how much a Boston College squad can take out of a team. The Holy Cross contest is a barometer of Temple's strength. I look for one of the closest contests of the series, with a slight nod to Temple."

Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, nationally known coach at Temple University states for the Villanova publication, the VILLANOVAN:

"A Villanova-Temple game has always been a good game and a pretty even affair. It looks to be an even battle this year. It's anybody's game. Villanova has won every other year since I have been at Temple. This should be Temple's turn to win.

When I was head coach at Stanford on the coast "Clipper" was at Santa Clara, and we met on the gridiron several times. It was always a tough battle. I have a great respect for him. We will be in for a mighty tough afternoon."

DOCHERTY TO LEAD OWLS

"Pop" Warner has decided to appoint Bill Docherty as Captain of the Temple team for the Owl-Cat fracas. Bill has led the Owls in the last two games and as the "Old Fox" states: "Docherty seems to be liked by the team and will be appointed Captain for this, our most important game."

Docherty led his team to a victory over Holy Cross, and personally accounted for Temple's only score, a field goal. He also led the Owls to a tie with a strong Michigan State team.

SWIMSTERS TRAIN DAILY FOR SEASON

Return of Hosey and Duffy to Squad Strengthens New Coaches Hopes

Once again Villanova will be well represented with a strong swimming team. This years contingent has predicted to capture many victories and establish new records for the Main Line institution because of the return of many veteran performers.

Under the capable tuteiage of C. F. Mathieu, newly acquired coach and instructor, the natators anticipate to compile a formidable record.

Joe Duffy captain of the Main Line aggregation is expected to lead his cohorts through a victorious campaign. Jack Hosey, former sprint and diving champion who was absent from competition last season due to injuries sustained in an accident, will again be in the fold.

Toby Greco, Wilmer Booth, Jim Cousant and Bill Leathy will probably form the nucleus of this year's team.

Intra-mural Basketball Tournament Begun

Favorites Show Form To Win Opening Mural Tilts

Decisive Wins Are Scored by Austin Hall and Mendel Teams; Rice Runs Wild in Mendel Residents - Alumni Fray

FINAL NET RESULTS ARE TALLIED

By HARRY J. BURNS

Starting the Intermural Basketball season off with a decisive 22-11 win over the Commerce and Finance Day-hops, Wednesday afternoon, November 4, the Mendel Day-hops, paced by Joe Bietenmiller, the Day-hops agressive forward, threatened to retain their yesteryear prowess as Champs of the Basketball league.

Closely following Bietenmiller, who led with six points, were Capt. Barr and Joe Duffy with four points a piece. Early in the game their leadership was endangered by the C. & F.'s but the champs quickly broke into their stride and came through for their first win of the year. For the losers Harry Matsinger and Charley O'Conner scored highest, making two field goals each. Although their teammates played their best, they could not stem the flashing attack that the Champs showed them.

Al Fitzpatrick, the Mendelians manager, prophesies that his boys will come through again this year in the same fashion they did last. "We are opening this season with the same formidable array of stars as last year and I am confident the boys will give me their utmost in every game."

Mendel Residents Take Alumni

Leading the Mendel Residents in a close contest which lasted an extra period, Lloyd Rice, stellar Mendel center, tallied a total of 19 points against his opponents, the Alumni courtmen, last Thursday night, November 5, in the Alumni gym.

With his team trailing by eight points in the fourth quarter, Coach Mazzei sent in "Tiny" Malcolm, his hottest forward, whose inspiration coupled with Vic Sandor's spurt, enabled their team to tie the score, 25 all, at the regular end of the game and under Rice's supervision, together with the able assistance of Frank Melograna and Sandor, they went on to win the game with a margin of four points.

Charley Barrett, starring for the losers, took the honors by playing a hard and fast game all through. Floretti, the shooting star, sank them from all over the floor. Skelly, Wood, and Angelozzi all played good basketball but they could not withstand the inspired Mendellans.

Austinians Defeat Fedigans

The Austinites, who battled the Mendel Day-hops last year for the Championship, opened the season in a rather auspicious manner by trouncing a strong Fedigan team to the tune of 18-12, Thursday night, November 5, in Alumni gym.

It was a hotly contested game throughout. Both teams were rather unpolished in their playing but showed promise of having two of the strongest outfits in the league. Fedigan will bear watching as they are a much better club than they showed themselves to be last week and by the time Coach Garbark has ironed out the rough spots they will have a team to look out for. Jimmy Dwyer, playing for the Austinians, showed exceptional skill in placing his shots in the hoops. Carl Pantaleo, on the Fedigan team, although not scoring, played a rare game of defensive tactics.

Tennis Results Tallied

The final results of the Fall intermural tennis schedule have been determined and are ready for publication. First place honors were divided between the Mendel Residents and the Commerce and Finance Day-hops, each scoring eight and one-half points. Fedigan came in second with five points and each of the other halls received two. This system of scoring was inaugurated at the request of several participants who wished to have the third place honors divided.

STIFF OPPOSITION IN NEXT CAT FRAY WITH PENN 150'S

Quakers Impressive in 20-0 Victory Over Princeton Lightweights

RAKOW BIGGEST THREAT

Another attempt to win their first game of the season will be made by the Villanova lightweights when they take on the much improved Penn team on the latter's field, Friday, November 13.

Recovering from a bad start, the Quakers looked impressive in their victory over Princeton's 150-pounders by the one-sided score of 20 to 0. A deadly passing attack proved to be the most potent instrument in deciding the outcome of this fracas, two of the three touchdowns scored by the Red and Blue team came via the air route.

According to Eddie Massavage, coach and former Penn Quarterback luminary, the reasons for Penn's 35-0 thumping at the hands of Lafayette and the 13-0 defeat dealt out by Rutger's 150-pound team was due to the fcat that the team had only nine days practice prior to the Lafayette game. Also that the turnout for practice was anything but impressive.

However, the victory over Princeton, who was responsible for the second reverse handed to the 'Cat eleven this year, seems to indicate that the Quakers really have something on the ball. Hence, if the one - fifties wish to taste victory once this season they'll have to be on their toes and fighting all the way in this coming contest.

Forming opposition for the Villanova lads will be Nierenber and Felton at the wing positions, Willard and Fisher as tackles; Beecher and Mornington at guard positions, and Pierce at the snapper-back position. The Penn backfield, whose intentions are to run roughshod over the Villanova one-fifties, are Polishuk, heady field-general, Essick and Rakow at halfback positions, and Lutz at fullback.

Felton was responsible for one of the tallies against Princeton, making a grandstand catch of Essick's aerial in the end zone. Rakow shifty halfback, crossed the Nassau goal line twice; once on a pass from Essick and another time on a two yard slant off-tackle. These boys will need watching and might give the 150-pounders trouble if they're caught napping.

All indications point to a Quaker victory but it's up to the Villanova Wildcats to turn the tables and if they snap out of it, it is certain that the Blue and Red of Pennsylvania will wake up to the fact that they are in a ball game.

NOT VERY NEAR

South Carolina's Gamecocks came no nearer to the Villanova goal line than the 30 yard mark. It looks as though the Feline front wall has tightened up again after letting Bucknell through.

Wildcats Ready For Game With Temple Tomorrow

Tony Sala, Villanova's dynamic captain and smashing left end refused to make any prediction as to the outcome of the Temple game, Captain Sala says:

"During the season, we really haven't shown the football of which we are capable. I don't think we've opened up yet. Villanova has plenty more football under blankets that the team hasn't uncovered yet, and against Temple, we are going to let everything go.

I won't make any public prediction concerning the game. I know how I feel, and I know how the team looks at this game. It will be our last game for Villanova against Temple for several of us, and we don't intend to let either the team or ourselves down."

We are right, mentally and physically, going into this Owl fracas. The morale of the team is higher than it's been all year. The boys are in good physical condition.

All we think about is coming out on the tail end of the score board. Wish us luck."

George Fox, Senior End comments on Temple game — "While they're relying on their stars, we will work as one unit; in so doing, we should win after one of the hardest fought games of this season."

Alex Bell, injured end states—"It looks like the Cats again. They are due to click."

Bill Cochrane, sensational Sophomore end — "It's bound to be a tough game, as all Villanova-Temple games are, but we will win."

Bill Christopher, Senior varsity quarterback — "We'll have to play heads-up ball to win."

Lou Dymond, Sophomore snapperback — "We are due to repeat last year's victory."

"Ben Bernie" Dempsey, up and coming quarterback from the ranks of the second year men — "I think we will win by twelve points."

"Why" Wysocki, bone-crushing Sophomore end—"With the pep, vim and vigor the team has shown in this week's daily sessions, Villanova should beat a highly-touted Temple team this Saturday."

"Bones" Yasch, Ray Stovink's brilliant understudy at right halfback — "Temple is strong, but we are stronger; hence, we will win."

Matty Kuber, stellar guard — "Pop has a fine team, but we will go them one better."

Abe Samra, another great Sophomore in the line — "An unquestionable Villanova victory."

Jack Earle, plunging fullback on this year's edition of the Villanova Wildcats, comments on the coming conflict — "If we go into this Temple game with the same spirit that we played our former Temple games, we shall have a very good chance of coming out on top this year. So far this year, in any game, we have never clicked for 60 min., if we do, and we should in this game — Watch out, Temple."

Robert Egan, junior end in remarking on his second Temple game, says — "We've had our letdown for this year at the Bucknell game and we shall come back stronger than ever at the Temple game. We consider Temple our strongest opponent, but we're tough too."

Richard Foley, Villanova's Connecticut fullback, in commenting on the game, says — "I am sure Villanova will beat Temple. Villanova, now that they are off the list of undefeated teams, can still make the season a success by defeating Temple."

Jon Elbner, big blonde tackle, limited his remarks to a few short lines saying — "If the team plays as they are capable of playing, we will have nothing to fear from the Owls. Although Temple has a rugged outfit, we feel certain that our boys playing heads-up football can't be out-toughed by any team. It will be a great battle between two traditional rivals and may the best team win."

"Bunny" Galazin, stalwart center says — "We'll be in there fighting every minute."

Harvey Buck, flashy sophomore halfback, enthusiastically preaches — "A team that won't be beat, can't be beat."

Val Rizzo, confidently asserts, — "We have what it takes to win."

Ray Stovink, port-side flinging halfback, says, — "I haven't seen them play this year, but from reports I'll say we'll have our hands full. It will be the greatest game of the season."

Joe Missar, successor to Eddie Michaels, states — "It will be a tough fight, but I think we will win."

John Mellus, husky blond guard, chirps — "We are out to make the feathers fly."

Joe McKenna, who alternates with "Bunny" at the pivot position, eagerly states—"The team with the greatest spirit will win."

Franny Nye, the Harrisburg lad who quarterbacks with Christopher harmonizes with Mellus — "We're out to pluck the Owl's feathers."

Pat Marquette, burly tackle from Carthage, N. Y., insists — "We have to win."

Bob Buckley, sophomore backfield performer, opines — "If our boys play the heads-up football of which they are capable, we should have a good day."

Bill Rogers, powerful tackle says — "It will be a real, old-fashioned Villanova - Temple game, a tough battle from start to finish, but I know we will win."

Art Raimo, flashy fullback states — "Temple has a tough ball club, but on the other hand so have we. It will take all the fight we have in us to win, and I think we have what it takes."

Andy Stopper, triple threat man remarks — "Temple has a great team, but we lost our only game of the year when we lost to Bucknell."

Jordan Olivar, a power on the line says — "From the showing they (Temple) have made so far, they'll be as tough as ever."

LIFE SAVING LESSONS BEGIN IN FEW WEEKS

Greco to Instruct Candidates for Junior Certificates

Red Cross life saving tests, started at Villanova two years ago, will be resumed within the next few weeks.

All members of the student body who wish to perfect themselves in the art of life saving should be present at the swimming pool daily for instructions. Those who are a little bit afraid of their ability to qualify for the the test should see Toby Greco, who this year is instructing the life savers. Greco wishes to send this message to the students "These Red Cross instructions are free to each and every student. Those who as yet are not adept at swimming are invited to come to the swimming pool for daily instructions. Some of the boys do not think their swimming ability good enough to attempt these Red Cross tests, but I know that with the able assistance of the swimming team members, they will acquire sufficient knowledge to pass these tests."

Certificates entitling bearers to membership in the Junior life saving corps will be awarded to those passing the tests.

Gamecocks Beaten 14-0 in Away Tilt

Carolina's thrity-two and ran it back to the 18.

The threat was broken up on the following play by Frank Urban, South Carolina's stellar end. Raimo and Buck, attempting to work a spinner play, fumbled the ball and Urban broke through and fell on it to give possession of the pigskin to the home team.

South Carolina had only two scoring chances. One went astray when Meyers, who was out in the open field, dropped a pass from Clary. The second, which came when Clary recovered Buckley's fumble on Villanova's 41 and then tossed a pass to Meyers for 18 yards for a first down on the 31, was stopped short by the charging of the Wildcats' line, and the Gamecocks were forced to punt after losing 6 yards on three plays.

Both the second and third periods were duels between the opposing lines with Villanova appearing the stronger. The 'Cats managed to break through the Gamecocks line for several substantial gains, but the strong defensive play of the Villanova line gave the Carolina backs little chance to gain ground.

The team as a whole has pulled out of the slump which enabled them to be beaten at the hands of an inspired Bucknell eleven last week, and if they overcome that fatal disease of "fumbilitis" they should take the Owls into camp tomorrow.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday evening, December 1, in St. Joseph's Rectory.

Board of Governors Plans Alumni Week; Scheduled For June

Plans for the coming year provided the central theme at last Sunday's meeting of the Governor's Board of the Villanova College Alumni Association. The meeting was called to order at 2.30 by Mr. J. Stanley Smith, Esq., '93 president of the Board, in the latter's law offices located at 1207 Walnut St., in Philadelphia.

A complete plan of organization was adopted for the year 1936-37, which will govern all actions of the Alumni Associations. Special stress was placed on the necessity of strong individual class bodies, and to this end, representatives on the Board from the classes of '12, '17, '22, '27, '32, '36 will endeavor to contact members of their own class.

Other business taken up considered tentative plans for the celebration of the annual Alumni Week end to be held the 3rd, 4th, and 5th, of June. Special programs of entertainment were discussed, along with plans for the various athletic events, and prizes for the latter. Special prizes will also be awarded to the oldest alumnist attending, and to the one who has traveled the greatest distance.

The week-end will be climaxed by a dinner. It was decided that the toast-master at this dinner would be a member from the class 10 years out of the college ('27); and that the principal speaker would be a member out of the college 25 years ('12).

Among those attending were: J. Stanley Smith, Esq., '93 President; Matthew A. Lynch, '23, Vice-President; P. F. Banmiller, '35, Secretary-Treasurer, Rev. B. M. Albers, O.S.A., '19; Martin L. Gill, '32; Charles B. Laughlin, '23; Samuel B. Miles, Jr., '34; and John J. Sweeney, '12.

WRITE-UPS UNDERWAY

Belle Air Personalities Prepared; Section Revision Planned

Personalities of the senior class for the Belle Air are underway, according to an announcement by Thomas F. Kennedy, editor of the publication.

It was also revealed that various sections of the annual are under complete revision, especially the history of the classes which are to be revamped in its entirety. Special attention is being stressed on the opening sections, particulary that dealing with the faculty.

The photography department of the yearbook has not been idle as is evidenced by their securing various snapshots of the campus grounds and buildings.

It is hoped, by Editor Kennedy that everything pertaining to the senior class will be completed by the Mid-Years, and immediately following the examinations work may be started on write-ups of the other classes.

NEW TICKET CHANGE MADE BY RAILROAD

Company Abolishes 46 Trip Book; Makes 25 Ride Substitution

On November 30, the Philadelphia and Western Railway will discontinue sale of the 46 trip ticket. In its place a new 25 trip ticket will be sold at the same average rate per ride, making the price of the new book one-dollar-and-a-half.

The Company has made this change in the response to suggestions received from parents and students who have pointed out that the forty-six trips provided by the old type tickets were seldom all used. With the new 25 ride ticket, the student should be able to use all the rides purchased, for these tickets will be good for three months from the date purchased.

KRYZWICKI CHOSEN DANCE CHAIRMAN

Sophomore Conducts Wilkes-Barre Club Annual; Band and Site Selected

Witold Kryzwicki, a sophomore in the School of Science, was appointed chairman of the Christmas dance committee at the last meeting held by the Wilkes Barree club of Villanova, on Monday, Nov. 20.

The Mallow-Sterling hotel in Wilkes-Barre was chosen as the place for the dance to be held on Christmas night. This has been the most popular place for the past few years.

This year Jerry McHale and his orchestra will furnish the music for the occasion. McHale's band is an up-and-coming organization and is very popular among the younger set of Wilkes-Barre and vicinity.

Last year the holiday affair was held in the same place and proved to be one of the most successful social events ever conducted by the club.

The following were appointed to aid Mr. Kryzwicki as committee members: Charles Betz, and John Noll, seniors; Paul Wade, juniors; Donald Hudson and James E. Kuts, sophomores, and William Gillespi, freshmen.

A discussion prevailed at the meeting concerning the annual membership fee required from each member. A final decision was reached that the dues must be paid in full before the Thanksgiving vacation.

YEARLING ORATORS MEET-PRICE FORUM

December 2, Date For First Debate; Held At Poor Richard's Club

Final arrangements were completed for the debate with the Charles Morris Price Forum at the meeting of the freshmen debating society last Wednesday. The Rev. Jerome Mahoney, O. S. A., moderator of the club, and the Rev. R. J. McNally, O. S. A., chose the team that is to represent Villanova on that occasion.

This contest, which will probably be the first this season for the freshmen, will be held at the Poor Richard Club, 1319 Locust St., in Philadelphia, on Wednesday evening, December 2. It is scheduled to start at 8:15 o'clock. The topic is Resolved: That the munitions industry should be a government monopoly. The first year group will defend the negative side.

J. Bongiovanni of the Arts School, Frank Pimpenela and Robert O'Brien both from the school of Commerce and Finance are to take part in this first meeting. They were chosen as a result of a contest in which three students from the Arts school and three from the Commerce and Finance competed.

There is to be no decision rendered in the contest, and the whole affair is to have an air of informality.

Adding to the color and zest of the evening's entertainment will be the Villanova College band, who, arrayed in their flashy uniforms, will sound out Villanova's Alma Mater and victory marches until the skys resound with their music. Cheer and song will prevail with a whole-hearted abundance of good wishes and good will.

Immediately following the pep rally the students and rooters will file out of the auditorium and make their way to parking space opposite the gym, where a large bonfire will climax the demonstration. This bonfire has become a tradition at Villanova and is considered to be a predominant display of enthusiasm.

Although it has not as yet been definitely decided, the Villanova debaters will probably uphold the affirmative side of the argument. The Loyola encounter will be on a non-decision basis, following the tendency of the majority of college debates in this regard.

WAS HONORED BY COLLEGE IN 1933

Doctor Hugh Scott Taylor, outstanding chemist of the present generation, honored Villanova College by speaking before an enthusiastic combined group of science and engineering students at the weekly Science seminar last Thursday. Doctor Scott, predominant research man in the field of physical chemistry, was the recipient of the Mendel Medal of Villanova College in 1933, an award given to the outstanding Catholic scientist every year.

In his discourse, the speaker appealed for an increase of research men from the present college graduates and modestly refrained from discussing his own particular achievements. His prestige vividly examplified the typical Princeton gentleman and scholar.

Doctor Scott was born in St. Helens, Lancashire, England, and received the most part of his education in England. He received his A.B., M.A., and D. Sc. at Liverpool University. During his career he served on such committees as the ANNUAL LKD DANCE STARS VILLANOVANS IN GYMNASIUM FRI.

College Swing Band Supplies Rhythms; Ticket Sale Presages Success

SUBSCRIPTION IS $1.50

Plans are rapidly nearing completion for the traditional Lambda Kappa Delta dance to be held this Friday evening in the College gymnasium.

The Villanovans have been, as is already well-known, secured to furnish the melodious harmonies for the dancers. If the preceding dances at which the college orchestra has played is any criterion of their musical talents, the couples attending can rest assured that the rhythms will be first-class calibre. The band has not been idle and is practising diligently, arranging the popular numbers of the day in their own inimitable style.

The gymnasium will be appropriately decorated for the affair. The false ceiling, which has been prominently displayed in previous dances this year, will again be conspicious. With the conclusion of this function, the social season of Villanova

The game climaxes a week of festivities extending from the twenty-sixth of December to the first of the year. Goodwill between the United States and the Latin - American countries is the aim of the invitations to the American teams ,and it is this condition that caused the Athletic Association to agree to participate.

The proceeds of the Sophomore Cotillion, which proved to be a grand success, have been donated to start the fund, that is to be known as the Class of 1939 Scholarship Fund.

EUROPEAN STUDENT ADDRESSES FORUM

Fascism Topic Chosen by Miss Staerck in Talk Before Study Group

Addressing the Villanova College Study Group on Wednesday evening November 11, Miss Melanie Staerck, Instructor in International Relations at Rosemont College, outlined the theory of Fascism as she saw it, and then discussed Fascism from the practical viewpoint. Inasmuch as Miss Staerck comes from Switzerland and has been employed in the League of Nations offices at Geneva, her discussion was an informative and authoritative one.

While admitting Fascist theory and practice in the economic life of such fascistic nations as Italy and Germany, Miss Staerck held that as an idealistic philosophy, the fascist theory must opposed to the teachings of the Catholic Church. She felt, she said, that a good Catholic could not be a true fascist at the same time.

Although opposing fascism, Miss Staerck felt that as time passes the fascist philosophy will become more conservative, allowing Catholics to endorse that which we term Fascism. However, as we know it today, fascism seems to be unalterably opposed to vigorous Catholicism.

Following the talk, a discussion took place in which Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the club, and Rev. Stephen Lanen, O. S. A., took part.

BULLETIN APPEARS THANKSGIVING WEEK

Many Changes in Make-Up of Science Publication Under New Board

The initial issue of the Mendel Bulletin Quarterly publication of the Science School, will make its appearance on the campus prior to the Thanksgiving holidays. This was revealed by David Zion, presiding chairman of the editorial board.

With the distribution of the first number, the student body may observe the radical changes which have occurred in the Bulletin under the present regime.

Replacing the editor-in-chief will be an editorial board, who will have an equal voice in the rendering of final decisions. The board has been instituted primarily to eliminate the sole responsibility resting in the hands of one man, the editor.

Immediately after the first edition, plans will be underway for the preparation of the second. Relevant to the latter, the board announced that manuscripts and contributions of any nature will be accepted and appreciated by them.

Constructive criticism and suggestions on the editorial appearance of the publication will be welcomed by the editorial board.

STAFF TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the entire VILLANOVAN staff this afternoon in Room 119 Mendel Hall. All are requested to be present.

COMMUNISM

COMMUNISM, so far as we know, had its philosophic origin in the writings of the Greek Philosopher, Plato. In his mighty Republic, one reads his delineation of a Communistic State. Thanks to the leavening influence of Christianity, society cast off these perverted notions, and, throughout a course of almost two thousand years, founded society on the firm basis of justice, private property, and self-determination according to right reason and good will. Of course, Communistic sects appeared during the Catholic Middle Ages, but they were stamped out in short order.

Today, a spectre haunts Europe, as the father of scientific socialism has written. Writing in 1848, Marx proclaimed that: "It is high time that Communists should openly, in the face of the whole world, publish their views, their aims, their tendencies, and meet this nursery tale of the spectre of Communism with a Manifesto of the party itself."

Karl Marx has long since rotted to dust, but the dreadful teachings he so damnably propagated are threatening to destroy civilization itself. The enemy of the religious spirit, the destroyer of private property, enslaver of the people, the Communist State first came into being in Russia, in 1917. The poison, spilled out of a vial of hatred, green, and ir-religion, has spread over the face of the Earth. In China, in Mexico, in France, in Spain, in Austria — everywhere, it would seem — the menace of Communism is being translated from menace to collapse in the face of Communism's advance.

In this country, most of us seem to feel that Communism is no danger. The fact that Mr. Hearst has chosen to save the country from Communism has had much to do with this, for the profit-seeking Hearst made a joke of a serious problem. Let the truth be known by every man: Communism is a potent danger in the United States. From the trend of the economic conditions now prevailing in this country, many feel that another depression is due to visit this land before the end of Mr. Roosevelt's second term. And, it should be noted, the figures support this contention.

Communism is the enemy of the religious spirit; and religion is the enemy of Communism. Our own public schools, by keeping Almighty God "outside," are in fact friends of Communism. Therefore it is quite clear that only the schools and college of the Catholic Church in America are the real foes of Communism. Teachers might take "loyalty" oaths, and so forth, but such things are of no value if they do not swear loyalty to Almighty God and His Church.

Catholicism, ironically, was the despised religion at the time of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. Major Thomas Lusk, writing at the time, shuddered at the thought that "Roman Catholics, Papists and Pagans might be introduced into office, and that Popery and the Inquisition may be established in America," and one Singletary declared that under the Constitution" a Papist or an Infidel was as eligible (for office) as . . . a Christian."

Today, Communism confronts us. Catholicism is the only force that can save America. Let us organize and keep this country a place where Lincoln's dream may some day come true: "America; a land of the people, by the people, and for the people."

TUGWELL RESIGNS

THE resignation of Dr. Rexford G. Tugwell, Resettlement Administrator and Under Secretary of Agriculture, marks the departure from Washington of the last of the original group of the New Deal Brain Trust. Investigated by a Senate committee, the constant target of conservative attacks, and repeatedly denounced for his liberal views, Dr.. Tugwell leaves behind four years of thankless labor spent in the public behalf.

The adverse criticism and invective that was frequently directed toward the members of the once "touted" Brain Trust in their later days, by the reactionary press and the entrenched interests which they represent, was the penalty that ability and sincerity usually pays to mediocrity and self interest.

When the economic conditions of the country were such that only men of ideas, and a wide range of knowledge were capable of effecting their correction, the Brain Trust was hailed as a salutary innovation in government affairs. But once the work of rehabilitation had been established, and the first fright of the break-down had been dispelled, the reaction set in. Having been lead from their miasma of fear and uncertainty the professional politicians and business advisors suddenly realized the extent of the changes that had taken place in their absence—changes that were quite likely to eliminate them permanently from Federal affairs. To regain their lost prestige, they reverted to the time honored political practice of "heckling",—a procedure that proved as efficacious in this instance at it has in the past.

Dr. Tugwell's departure from Washington as the last of the Brain Trust, may symbolize the return of the old methods, but the fact cannot be disguised that he and his former confreres have proven that the so-called " theorists" are not only capable of practical performances, but ones that are far above the average.

MAMMON TRIUMPHS

We see that several of our more famous American aviators have turned soldiers of fortune and are now shooting at each other from opposite sides of the Spanish war front. It seems rather repulsive that countrymen, at home the best of friends, will hunt each other down and demand one another's blood for a few paltry dollars.

An optimist is a person who thinks he knows a place where he can borrow money. A pessimist is a person who has tried.

Massachusetts State College has limited the amount of money a fraternity can spend on rushing a freshman. They also have scheduled open house days, closed and open rushing days, during which none of the fraternities can spend money on freshmen.

A Minnesota professor recently discovered the difference between an insane asylum and a university: You have to show improvement to get out of an insane asylum.

WELL, it's all over now so let's forget it and settle down to the old grind. This isn't a sports column so we can't talk about the game. However, as a college column we are at liberty to congratulate the fightenist team Villanova has ever put on the field. It had to be a perfect team to beat our Wildcats last Saturday week and only a coach like the Old Fox with the material on hand at Temple could have done it.

The Junior Class is all agog over the new rings it expects to get before long. While speaking of rings we must call your attention to the most ambitious members of the ring committee, John Pillion. Andover John was assigned to take care of the orders of the Science resident students, but the other resident committee men have so fallen down on the job that our John has obtained more than two-thirds of the resident orders, not only in his own department but in the other three schools as well. Our great president John L. Simons, this pillar's favorite picker on, has shown this excellent choice characteristic of all his decisions in selecting Pillion for the position. Congratulations both of you.

That our genial editor developed a case of something or other and was in the infirmary for a week or so. Here's hoping someone takes him a copy of the paper so that he may read one for a change.

That the Main Line Daily Times office boasts of the oldest and most unique typewriters in the country. No two machines are alike and it takes a stranger five or ten minutes before he figures out how to use one.

That Villanova's favorite actress seem to be the lovely Simone Somon Her picture appears in over three-quarters of the rooms on the Villanova Campus. In a few weeks the Seniors will vote for their favorite actress and we are willing to bet that she wins the call.

Our suggestion of last issue still goes. The Frosh in Alumni hall certainly deserve a prize for their work in setting up displays for the Temple game. Someone should loosen up with a little money to buy these boys a plaque or banner. It wouldn't be a bad idea to have a permanent plaque placed in Mendel Hall with the name of the winning hall inscribed on it each year.

NOTHING is more ridiculous than the belief that Catholicity limits artistic expression, when in reality it tends to chasten and refine art as it has the spirit of man. By ennobling the origin and purpose of nature, it has added a world of imagery to its interpretation.

Macaulay in one of his essays, we believe it was the one on Francis Bacon, mentions the fact, as being worthy of his future consideration, that there had been less converts to the Church of England during the two hundred years that had stretched between his time and that of Elizabeth's, than there had been in two years of her Reign. He feels this particularly worthy of comment when he recalls that the advantages of education and books are no longer confined to the use of a select few. Had Macaulay mentioned, however, a few of the other circumstances in which his age differed with that of the past, his question would have answered itself. In the beginning of the nineteenth century the throne of England was not held by an illegitimate heir whose security was sustained by permitting the plunder of Church properties; nor were the powerful permitted to pray upon the defenseless in the name of religion; nor was the penalty for the profession of Catholicism death by torture. Similarly, it is worth considering that religious conversions were in Macaulay's day as they are now, largely the result of personal investigation and meditation — so, with all the necessary information at his disposal there can be little doubt as to how an individual would be moved.

The science of theology is essentially a practical science for the eradication of diseases of the mind and spirit. Its fundamentals are as firmly founded as those of any other science. In fact, we are inclined to believe that it is more-so, for where the others are apt to stumble in their interpretation of nature, the Word of God assists it.

We have often looked for the perseverance, obstinacy and resignation that is reputed to be depicted in the faces of the working men, but with little success. Their lot is generally an unenviable one. Struggling against the encroachment of poverty, faced with the constant fear of unemployment, and impotent under the knowledge of exploitation, they have, nevertheless, managed to cultivate of philosophy that not only makes them tolerant of their burdens, but also enables them to glean a few pleasures from them.

While reading Taine's "History of English Literature" we were forcefully struck by the peculiar nature of man's mental make-up — that his powers of penetration, and presentation can be developed to state akin to perfection in one respect, and in another hardly attain to the rationality of a child. He rails against religion, society, governments, in fact every institution established by God or man — he declares happiness impossible, truth unattainable, society ill-arranged — indeed man, himself, is little more than an abortive attempt toward what he should be. These are the assertions of a man who combines with them an aptitude for discernment, a loftiness of sentiment, and an ease and grace of expression that makes some of his works equal to the finest productions of genius.

Pass In Review

By RICHARD DEVERALL

THE swirl of the wind, the sudden chill of the evening, the legions of scurrying leaves: all the signs of Nature tell us that Winter is nigh. Nature is dying, as it were; yet although Nature is dying, in her death she gives us a beauty unequalled in the splendours of this sublunary sphere.

It was the American poet, Walt Whitman who said:

"What is the grass?
. . . it is the handerchief of the Lord,
A scented gift and remembrancer designedly dropt,
Bearing the owner's name someway in the corners,
That we may see and remark, and say, 'Whose?"

What a conception! To see everything in the world as a remembrance carefully placed by the Almighty to remind us of Him at all times. In a matter where we go, no matter where we go, we are always confronted with objects that suggest to us the question: "Whose!" For the man who can live with such a philosophy of life, there can be no dull moments in this life.

But not only does Almighty God give us these natural things to remind us of His majesty and His glory, but it is His Will to send amongst us persons whose lives, words, thoughts and actions are a challenge to all Christians. Such persons we call saints.

Catherine Tekakwitha, a new book by Daniel Sargent, is the story of an Indian and a Christian. The background of the story is the clash of Western civilization, European culture, with the culture of the Indian. The culture of the Indian seems to win out, for the French conquerors of Canada, for all their cultured "veneer," are painted in the light of men lower than savages. And out of this clash comes a beautiful soul: Catherine Tekakwitha. The entire story centers around Catherine, and it is painted with such superb skill that only a reading of the book can do it justification.

Catherine's unique philosophy is best expressed in one of her favorite ejaculations. She said: "God, indeed, has like chapels of wood in which to dwell, but better He likes to dwell in our souls. It is equally true that I do not deserve to enter into this chapel here, even though it is made merely of wood, for I have often chased God from my soul, and in my turn I deserve to be driven forth from it with the dogs."

And her people recognized in Catherine some sort of a mysterious holy woman. When a member of the tribe died, mourning was the normal order to follow their death. It was not so with Catherine. "There was nothing but joy at her funeral," we learn. "It was not merely that a human soul, whom they happened to know and to consider holy, had gone to Paradise, there to remember them, there to plead for them. It was that one of their flesh and blood and with their ways had very visibly gone to the Christian Paradise and made it their (the Indian's) Paradise."

Prescinding from the literary value of the book, the very subject itself is one of importance. We are now seeing the possible canonization of an Indian Saint. And, at the same time, we know that Brother Martin, a Negro brother, is, perhaps, soon to be canonized. We cannot overemphasize the significance of these great proposals for canonization. Now, as never before, the Christian world needs to be reminded of the importance that the doctrine of the Mystical Body of Christ holds within itself for culture and civilization. With racial hatred found on every side, with a violent and insolent nationalism being fed to the children of Europe from the perverted, withered breasts of the corpse of European culture, it is timely that the attention of men should be called back to the roots of true culture; to the realization that we are all one in Christ Jesus. Roman Catholics pray to an Indian and to a Negro to aid them in petitioning Heaven. How sublime!

Thus we see that God, in His Infinite Goodness, sends, as we have noted, inanimate objects — Nature and her works — to bring us to Him. Good people also does He bring to us, that we may be brought to the realization of the Truth, the Beauty, and the Goodness that it is possible to achieve in this life. Wrapped up in the mundane affairs of this life—and oh so often do we crucify Christ by our actions — it is meet that messengers should come to us to call us to Him.

PUERTO RICO

(From an interview with Jose M. Gonzalez, natice of Puetro Rico, and student at Villanova.)

We Resent Foreign Governors

WE elect our own legislative bodies in Puerto Rico, but the United States appoints a Governor, who acts in somewhat the capacity of your President.

This "foreign" Governor has veto power over all laws passed by our legislatures. For many generations this unqualified power has passed unchallenged by my countrymen, but today, in Puerto Rico, as well as through-out the rest of the world, the people are becoming more and more interested in public affairs. The former disinterest of our citizens about politics has transformed itself into intense enthusiasm.

Due to this abrupt about-face, reforms have taken place all over the world. But as yet, due to restrictions over which we ourselves have no power, Puerto Rico has not participated in this general trend. Because of obvious reasons, I cannot be more explicit.

No Burlesque Shows!

It is dangerous to go surf bathing in some sections of the coast of Puerto Rico. Sharks abound in both the Caribbean and Atlantic waters that surround the island. However numerous steel nets have been put into the ocean to provide safe bathing at certain places. It is a saying that the dangerous times for bathing are the months with "r" in their spelling.

Puerto Ricans have a great liking for every type of dramatics. Operas and theatre plays are very popular. Down there we do not have any burlesque shows.

Getting Personal

Puerto Ricans are generally a quiet, peace-loving people, but when aroused they are brave to rashness. Courtesy and politeness come to them just as naturally as breathing.

Family devotion is very great. There are no homeless. If some members of a family are less fortunate than others, they will move in on their relatives, who will in most cases welcome them with open arms.

Families are as a rule very large, averaging eight members per father and mother. Every girl is christened "Maria" in honor of the Blessed Virgin.

Only 3.5 per cent of the population is of the black race.

Cincinnatti Reds Taken Over

In San Juan, the capital of Puerto Rico, last summer over 45,000 baseball fans saw a native team take over your Cincinnati Reds. Baseball is very popular, as evidenced by the huge crowds that usually turn out to see a game.

Sidelights

Cock fighting is legal in Puerto Rico. We have the best cock-fighting house in the world.

Most new industries that come to Puerto Rico do not have to pay any taxes for ten years.

The highest temperature on record is about 74 degrees; the lowest about 60 degrees, making the living conditions ideal all year. Trees and flowers are forever in bloom.

YEARLING DEBATERS INAUGURATE SEASON

Freshmen Forensic Schedule Opens Saturday With St. John's College

Villanova's freshman debating team will inaugurate its season in a debate with the forensic yearlings of St. John's College, this Saturday at Brooklyn.

Joseph N. Bonciovanni, Frank Pimpenela, and Robert O'Brien, representing Villanova, will argue the negative side of the question, Resolved: That the munitions industry should be a government monopoly. Each will present a ten minute peech and a five minute rebuttal. The debate is scheduled to start at 8:30 P. M., and is to be followed by a dance.

On the schedule of the yearling orators is a debate with the Morris Price Forum, to be met next Wednesday, December 2, at 8:15 P. M., in the Poor Richard's Club of Philadelphia. The Villanova group will probably be represented by the same group of speakers who will argue on the same topic as the St. John's encounter. This debate, unlike that of St. John's, will be a no-decision argument.

DIAL-LOG

By FIO P. GOGGI

RUBINOFF is one of few directors to conduct with his back to the orchesra. He memorizes the musical scores to be able to face the audience and note its reactions.

By the way, Hal Kemp does the same thing only he doesn't have to watch for a reaction—he knows what it is before time!

Phil Baker's ace reporter, Bottle, finds that his new role as news hawk on the comedian's mythical "Gazette," makes printer's ink, which has always coursed in his veins run hot and fast again. It was thus like falling off a log for Bottle to change from his former role of Bager's valet. Bottle worked in a London newspaper office before he went on the stage.

Dolly Dawn, swing singer, heard with George Hall's orchestra over CBS from the Hotel Taft, has formed a loyal following of college followers with her unique style of swinging it. When George was seeking a new girl vocalist last year, a friend of his reported seeing a chubby little crooner singing in a tiny Jersey City night club. George ferried to the Jersey side of the Hudson, listened to the inexperienced little singer and signed her immediately.

The first thing he did was change her name and give her a diet. Then he called in a high priced arranger and "Doll-y Dawn" worked into the wee hours of the morning. Her debut was made at a guest appearance at the opening of a new road house. Before cynical song writers and the noisy Broadway mob, 17-year-old Dolly Dawn made her Broadway premiere. She hit the spot.

Most of her fan mail comes from Annapolis, Virginia U. and Cornell. But she has no favorite school, unless it's the one of hard knocks. Of Italian descent, she speaks only two languages — English and Yiedish. If a new hit tune is from a picture, she sees the picture several times, and then adapts her own treatment of the number. She saw Martha Raye in "Rhythm on the Range" eight times, before she attempted to sing "You'll have to Swing It."

Essential facts — she's as pretty as a picture and is unmarried!

Hallett's Debut Successful

Mal Hallett's debut in the Hotel Commodore, New York, Palm Room, was successful. May asked every couple on the floor their candid opinions. He wanted to get a check on the customers, and their preference in dance music. He's an old hand at ballroom one-night stand work, but seldom hibernates into a supper room.

Some guys have all the luck. Al Kavelin's girl vocalist, is Virginia Gilchrest. But off the bandstand she's Mrs. Al Kavelin. Al, and his orchestra, featuring the amazing pianist Carmen, are now ensconced in the Mayfair Room of Chi's Hotel Blackstone.

Starlines

Vincent Lopez is the piano-playing maestro of the CBS "Speedshow."

Has had strange training for so deft an interpreter of popular music.

Is the son of a Portuguese musician and a lady of Spain.

Father taught him mandolin, guitar and piano.

And insisted he play folk songs of Portugal.

Learned chants when training for priesthood at Dunkirk, N. Y.

Rigorous discipline of Passionist Fathers monastery irked him.

So, at 16 years of age, left to return to native Brooklyn.

After six weeks in business school, secured secretarial job.

In evenings, played piano at various cafes.

Unable to stand strain, resigned secretarial position.

That night was fired from cafe for falling asleep at piano.

After desperate interval, got another piano job at $25 a week.

Three months later took charge of orchestra there.

After vaudeville engagements, began a season at big New York hotel.

In 1935, gave first Symphony Jazz Concert at Metropolitan Opera House.

Has made and lost several fortunes.

HUGH SCOTT TAYLOR SPEAKS IN WEEKLY SEMINAR PERIOD

Physical Chemistry Expert At Princeton Addresses Science Forum

STRESSES NEED OF READY PERSONNEL FOR RESEARCH

Technician Was Recipient of College Mendel Medal in 1933

National Research Council, British Munitions Department and numerous other honorary societies.

In 1914 he came to America as a member of the faculty of Princeton University, where he is associated at the present time. He was instrumental in developing the science department there to its present preminence and for his achievements was awarded the Nichols Medal of the American Chemical Society and the Mendel Award in 1933. The name of Doctor Scott is associated to numerous books written on physical chemistry and commercial chemistry.

The address to the seminar was introduced by the quotation "Happy is he who can learn to know the cause of things." Following this introduction he delved into the possibilities of present day research. Accuracy, conscienceness of one's convictions, and a keen power of deduction are the essentials of an experimenter. The fact that there is more known on the various sciences was said to be hindrance to the gaining basic knowledge but rather an aid in understanding the present theories so that the present student may reach the "borderline" of scientific research and head into unknown fields with a better foundation. Modern research is making the theories more extensive but not more complicated.

The fact that expensive apparatus is necessary for experimentation was also disproved by the speaker. Many examples of important achievements were stated in which the apparatus only amounted to a few dollars.

The rather recent discovery of heavy hydrogen was clearly discussed and its possible importance brought out. The fact that hydrogen consisted of two forms of different masses was discovered at the same time as machine for alpha particle discharge was being constructed and it went into immediate use in this machine. The use of heavy hydrogen is as yet unlimited, and, according to Doctor Scott, may be the start of a new era in chemistry as was the formulation of the periodic table. He also used this example to show the fact that experimenters depend on each other to increase their field and the accuracy of their calculations.

Doctor Scott concluded his talk by stating that education was a sleepless enterprise and to reach a goal in studies demanded unceasing efforts and studies long after the basic four years of college. The fire of future research in the hearts of Villanova students is being stimulated by inspiring talks by such celebrated men as Doctor Hugh Scott Taylor.

Annual Dance In Gym On Friday

College for this year will come to a termination. The next dance will not take place until early April, at which time the Belle Air Ball will take place.

The proceeds of this social will go toward a fund to be known as the Lambda Kappa Delta Scholarship Fund. While such fund has been previously instituted, this is the first time that such great strides have been taken as to assure its success.

Advance sales indicate that the tickets are selling very fast and a large crowd is anticipated. Mario Troncelliti, chairman of the dance earnestly solicits the patronage of the entire student body. In addition, he asks the full co-operation of the students, particularly those in the Science School, who will be very instrumental in the success of the function. The subscription has been set at $1.50 per couple.

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., dean of the Science School, addressed the freshmen last Friday in regards to the advantages arising from being accepted to the fraternity.

vice president of the college, responded to the words of greeting by Mayors LaGuardia and Rossi in part as follows:

"Mayor LaGuardia, ladies and gentlemen: It is a pleasure to feel welcome in New York at any time, as only this great city can welcome its guests. It is, however, a special privilege for the Villanova College Band, on the steps of City Hall, where many celebrities and famous organizations have had honor paid to them, to have been officially welcomed to New York by its distinguished Mayor.

"It is an added distinction to have present Mayor Angelo Rossi, of the great Pacific Coast metropolis of San Francisco. We are grateful for the good wishes of these two gentlemen for the success of our team in the football game this afternoon with Manhattan College. I feel that it is especially opportune that the Mayor of San Francisco is also here greeting Villanova today in New York.

"This is particularly worthy of note because of the fact that "Clipper" Smith, director of athletics and head football coach at Villanova, formerly held a similar position at Santa Clara University, and coached many of his West Coast games in the city, the destinies of which Mayor Rossi now guides.

"It is, therfore, a double honor which is mine, in behalf of Villanova College, and of our New York Alumni, to thank you Mayor LaGuardia, for the distinction and welcome which you have given us, and to tell you, Mayor Rossi, that we deeply appriciate your presence and your kindly words of saultation."

The Villanova Alumni Club of New York deserves great credit for accomplishing the arrangements for the official welcome by the Mayor of New York to the College Band and followers. Peter Eschmann, president of the club, publicly thanked Mayor LaGuardia for his courtesies.

dance, it was stipulated: "In the event that the Class of 1939 would wish to exceed the amount specified in the handbook for dance expenditures at the time of the Junior Promenade, the sum of money which they would be required to deposit with the vice president to underwrite the dance would be reduced by an amount equivalent to their contribution to the Scholarship Fund."

These scholarship funds were instituted by the Class of 1928 and since then the succeeding classes have established similar funds. Such trust funds for a class scholarship may be instituted any time after the class has matriculated.

The scholarship funds has been inaugurated to perpetuate the classes upon the campus. The Class of 1928 sponsored the creation of a Class Endowment Fund through bequests by life insurance policies, which has been followed by each succeeding class.

In 1934, with the approval of the Board of Trustees of Villanova College, the plan of these endowment funds was made more definite and the opportunity of contributing to these funds was widened to include outright donations and gifts.

Through the launching of such class scholarships, it is now possible for each class upon its graduation to maintain in attendance at Villanova College an actual representative in the young man holding the Class Scholarship.

In reference to the operation of the fund for scholarship purposes, it will not function until the principal amounts to one thousand dollars.

The Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, attended the meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Association of Colleges, Thursday, in New York City.

Wildcats Accept Grid Invitation

Green Wave held them to a scoreless tie. Jack Meagher, the Southerner's coach, employs the Notre Dame system of play, and the Wildcats should have an interesting day.

This contest follows the conclusion of Clipper Smith's first season as coach on the Eastern Seaboard, in which his warriors took seven out of nine contests, losing to Bucknell and Tempie.

Strong opposition will be given to the Main Liners, as the calibre of the teams met by the Engineers is of the best. Among their victims are Detroit, Georgia, Tennessee, Georgia Tech, and Loyola of the South. The two goodwill teams have met a common foe in Detroit's Titans, whom the Wildcats defeated 13-6, while the Southerners also won by a single touchdown.

Student enthusiasm is aroused to fever pitch by the announcement of this post-season tussle, the first played by Villanova in many a year, although several offers were received at the conclusion of recent campaigns.

Proofs of the recent senior photographs will be available today in the reception room of Mendel Hall. Orders can be placed immediately to insure delivery before the Christmas holidays. Special prices are being offered for dozen and hoif-dozen lots.

A group picture of the football team will be taken in the near future. Team members are asked to be on the lookout for notices as to the exact date.

All student write-ups are due at the Belle Air office by December 1st.

RELATIONS GROUP PLANS TO ATTEND DEL. CONFERENCE

Professor Carlo Felix Mathieu Will Accompany Delegates to Gathering

It has been planned by the International Relations Club of Villanova to send delegates to the district conference to be conducted at the University of Delaware, at Newark, Delaware, on Friday and Saturday, December 4th and 5th, respectively.

Arthur Carlo-Felix Mathieu, Ph.-D., will accompany the delegates as moderator protem. The Rev. W. J. Lunney, O.S.A., morerator of the Society, will be unable to head the group of representatives because of a conflicting previous engagement.

The personnel of the delegates has not, as yet, been officially announced, bnt, in all probability, the following men will comprise the Villanova representatives: James Quigley and Paul Juergens, president and secretary of the Relations Club, respectively, and Thomas Delate, one of the most active and competent members of the organization.

Since no formal discussions are scheduled for the Conference, the delegates will be required to be prepared to take an active part in any of the various international topics that may evolve during the two-day stay.

The Conference will bring together most of the colleges in the Eastern part of the country to be climaxed by a banquet and dance.

THE curtain has fallen on the current football stage, as far as Villanova is concerned, and all and all it was a successful season. Orchids to Clipper Smith and his co-worker Vince McNally. Their endeavors to surmount almost overwhelming obstacles certainly merits our congratulations as well as those of everyone.

Old Father Time has written finis to the intercollegiate football careers of four stalwart sons of Villanova. The Manhattan game was the scene of their last struggle. Captain "Tony" Sala—who was recently named for All-America—"Bill" Christopher, George Fox, and "Bunny" Galazin are those lost to next year's eleven. Congratulations, fellows, you played swell ball and we hope you go far after graduation.

Ebbets Field was the scene of the last conflict and Manhattan met their Waterloo in a fighting Villanova team. The Wildcats with a return of their vim and vigor plowed through to win 12 to 0. The age old "end around" play with a new twist worked to perfection and a variety of spinners, reverses, and passes had the Gotham crowd on the ropes. The way Villanova worked the pighide lemon up and down the field was a sight to rest one's eyes.

Personally Val Rizzo looked more like a plunging fullback than he did a burly guard on that disputed play. He kicked up more turf in that short space of time than a dubber will in a full season.

We take our head in hand and punch out a few quips on the Temple Fray. Pop Warner certainly had a good team on the field—ask anyone. The 6 on the Temple side of the fence was as good as a 20 point lead during the last quarter. The payoff was when the Temple boys in the heat of the post-game excitement pulled down their own goal posts. It was a good game all the way but we still feel sad. At least we can take credit for softening them up for Ozzie Simmons and dear old Iowa.

Here's a plug for John Facenda. John was the boy whose vibrant voice and clear enunciation was heard over the loud speakers at Shibe Park during the home games. No garbled facts or masticated words in that locality. Facenda is a former Villanova student and was heard over Philadelphia's WHAT as a sports commentator before he left to take over new duties in New York City. Good luck, John, and take care of those pipes.

Intramural boxing is just around the corner. Yesterday an assortment of leather pushers met in the Gym for the first official workout of the season. The facial characteristics of the boys won't undergo any radical changes for a while yet. For the most part the boxer's duties are limited to shadow boxing and general limbering up exercises.

For a time, we thought that the Lightweights were definitely on the road to recovery. The score of the first game was 32 to 6 and after a series of three games the wee ones finally worked it down in the Penn game so they were only defeated 6 to 0. There must have been a let-down because the boys from Easton tied a 28 to 0 defeat on the home boys. Must have been a case of overconfidence.

Daily practice is a feature of the track team. As yet, there has been no official call to the denizens of the cinder path but many are working out. A tentative schedule of indoor meets to be run during the winter months has been arranged by Coach Jim Elliott. All those who wish to compete in any of these meets must necessarily be in shape and the practice sessions are purely voluntary.

The Villanova mermen churn the waters of the pool daily in anticipation for theh coming season. Their first meet is just around the corner, no not with Prosperity—and the team is swiftly whipping into shape. The return of Jack Hosey, has strengthened the team decidedly.

Chris Pappas, Pop Warner's ace fullback, registered the 6-pointer when he drove outside his own left tackle from the three yard stripe. Docherty, acting captain, failed to convert.

The afore mentioned Pappas, together with Smith and Mowrey, the wingbacks, stood out in the Owls' backfield. Chet Messervey, veteran center, was the defensive star for the Warnermen, roving all over the field to make tackles.

Andy Stopper, Harvey Buek, Captain Sala, George Fox, and Val Rizzo played heroic parts in a losing cause. Tony and George gave a magnificent show of end play. Temple's flashy backs were thrown back on every attempt to round the 'Cat flanks. Villanova's senior ends were down under punts so fast that the usually elusive "Petey" Smith was unable to return even one kick more than a few yards.

The 'Cats had the upper hand through most of the first half. Except for one quick thrust at the very beginning of the initial quar-

SENIOR RED CROSS TESTS GIVEN SOON

Ed Gornowsky Will Give Examinations in Villanova Pool

Senior Red Cross life saving tests will again be given at Villanova as in past years.

In a few weeks, it will be possible for any Villanova student who is seventeen years of age or over to receive free instructions in the art of life saving in order that they may win their Senior Life Saving certificate.

These instructions will be given at the swimming pool under the expert tutelage of Ed Gornowsky who is an examiner in this worth while activity. Members of the swimming team will assist Ed in giving instructions, and in this way it will not be as difficult a task as some think and anybody with a little perseverance should master this useful art.

Some of the things which are included in this activity are rescuing drowning persons, holds used in

Stopper, Buckley Lead Last Ditch Rally Which Barely Falls Short of Score

Renewing one of football's most spirited rivalries, an aroused Temple eleven punched out a 6-0 decision over a scrappy band of Wildcats from Villanova. The game, the ninth of the series, was played up at Temple Stadium Saturday, November 14, before a capacity crowd of more than 35,000 fans.

It was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way with neither team gaining a decided advantage until midway through the final quarter. Then Temple capitalized on a break in the form of a partially blocked kick. The Owls took the ball on the Villanova 28 yard line, and in six plays smashed over for a touchdown.

Chris Pappas, Pop Warner's ace fullback, registered the 6-pointer when he drove outside his own left tackle from the three yard stripe. Docherty, acting captain, failed to convert.

The afore mentioned Pappas, together with Smith and Mowrey, the wingbacks, stood out in the Owls' backfield. Chet Messervey, veteran center, was the defensive star for the Warnermen, roving all over the field to make tackles.

Villanova's senior ends were down under punts so fast that the usually elusive "Petey" Smith was unable to return even one kick more than a few yards.

The 'Cats had the upper hand through most of the first half. Except for one quick thrust at the very beginning of the initial quarter, Villanova's defensive line was impregnable. Time and time again the Owls would attempt to circle the 'Cat flanks, but the Villanova forwards would break through and toss the runner for a loss.

Last Year's Mural Champs In Basketball Limelight

Mendel Day Hops Hotly Pursued by Mendel Residents and Fediganites in Annual Inter-Dorm Tournament

LEADERS HOLD ONE-GAME EDGE

In one of the most hotly contested basketball fights since the sport was introduced into Intra-Mural competition, we find last year's champions, the Mendel Day Hops, holding the limelight at the present time although their position is being seriously threatened by the Mendel Residents and Fedigan Hall.

The race cannot be said to lie among these three, however, because Austin Hall is close behind the leaders and in the 12 remaining games they may show themselves to be serious contenders for the crown. Alumni Hall and the C & F Day Hops, the two other teams in the league, have not yet offered enough competition to be considered in the running.

Evidence of the heat and closeness of the contest yet to come was seen last Thursday evening when Austin Hall met Fedigan Hall. In a game marked by its roughness, the boys from Fedigan carried away the victory by a 30 to 29 score. This victory also saw Austin and Fedigan change places in the standings of the teams.

So far in the campaign, the Mendel Day Hops have won three games and lost one. Their lone defeat was at the hands of Alumni Hall, while their vanquished foes have been the C&F Day Hops, the Mendel Residents and Austin Hall. Thus they have met all the teams in the league except Fedigan Hall, and all indications point to a keen fight when these two teams come in contact.

After an inauspicious beginning, when they lost to Mendel Day Hops, the Mendel Residents came back and won five games, bowing only once to Fedigan Hall, which puts them in second place in the standings of the teams. They defeated Austin Hall, Fedigan Hall, C&F Day Hops, and Alumni Hall twice.

Although material is plentiful in the Commerce and Finance School, the lack of competitive spirit on the part of those students is seen by the fact that their representatives in the intra-mural race have not won a game and consequently they hold the cellar position in the league standings at the present date.

LAFAYETTE BLANKS LIGHTWEIGHTS, 26-0

150's Close Season With Decisive Loss to Leopards

Closing a dismal season, Villanova's fighting 150-pound team went down to defeat as the Leoparda of Lafayette, striking brilliantly by air and ground, swept to a 26 to 0 victory, on the "Kittens" home grounds last Saturday.

Unable all season to develop a scoring punch, the Villanova lads were forced to play defensive ball and before the first half ended two long forwards had given the visitors a 13 point lead, only to have them add a touchdown in the third quarter and a final acore on the last play of the game, making the ultimate score 26 to 0.

Opening the first quarter, an exchange of kicks forced Jim Cousart, Villanova right half, to kick from behind his own goal line. Lafayette started a drive but were held for three downs; then Jones, a redjersied back, threw a long pass over the goal line to Smith, Leopard's left end, for the first acore.

As the second quarter started, the "Kittens" were again forced on the defensive, and on a similar pass play, to their previous acore, the visitors again scored and added the extra point.

The third period found the red team opening large holes in Villanova's line, and on an intended pass play, Fusco faded and ran around Villanova's left end for a touchdown.

In the closing minutes of the game the home team gained fifty yards on three well executed pass plays and a mixture of running plays. These passes spelled disaster as Carpenter, a Lafayette man, snared a pass intended for Dinges, the Villanova end, and raced forty-five yards for the final score as the whistle sounded the ending of the game.

Height will be the main edition in the prospective team. Severance has been using Don Brennan, Lou Dubino, Jim Montgomery, Charlie Noonan and Walt McKenna, all six-footers, in one unit, in order to establish a high scoring team. Montgomery and Noonan have shown up considerably well in the front flanks, while Brennan is proving to be a veteran at his new post at guard. However, Johnny Krutulis and Art Vigilante are not to be conceded out of the picture, since they both are small compared to aforementioned players.

Manhattan Falls Prey to Villanova

Captain Tony Sala displayed some brilliant open field running to evade many would-be tacklers. He was stopped on the Jaspers 25-yard line by Savage, the safety man. After Raimo and Stopper carried the ball to the seven yard line, the former went over standing up for the first score. Johnny Mellus's try for the point was blocked.

Villanova's second touchdown followed a few minutes later. The Kellys finally felt the oval when they received the kick-off from Villanova. However, they did not hold it very long for in an attempt to gain inches for the first down on the last try, Manhattan lost the ball as the formidable Cat line held. Thus Villanova took possession of the ball on Manhattan's 45-yard line as a result of a quarterback's miscue.

Little time elapsed before the ball was placed in scoring position. Only six plays were required to put the ball over. Here Bill Christopher, who had replaced Nye, called another of the many trick plays pulled. A beautiful double lateral from Stoviak to Stopper to Raimo that was good for 21-yards caught the Jaspers napping. Stopper then faked a reverse to Stoviak and reeled through the center of the line unnoticed to score, while the still bewildered big Green team chased after the elusive Stoviak. Christopher's try for the extra point was wide.

The Wildcats missed many chances to score. In fact, the low score does not represent the true power of the winners. One of their drives nearly ended in a score for Manhattan. Within the shadow of the third Cat tally, Stoviak's pass intended for Fox was intercepted by Wheeler who travelled 63-yards before he was stopped by Ollie Olivari. Had the ball been intercepted by a faster man the Jaspers might have scored for the burly co-captain represented anything but fleetness on his way down the field.

The ball was placed in a scoring position on Villanova's 35-yard line, but the Kelly attack was throttled without a threat. Kringle and Andy Gerek gained five yards on running plays but the Cat line held on the next two plays and took the ball on downs on their own 30-yard line. The Jasper attack bogged down and the Cat's lead was never endangered throughout the remaining part of the game.

In the last quarter, Villanova put on another drive. Stopper heaved an intended lateral to Val Rizzo who ran the remaining 22 yards for what appeared to be another Villanova tally. The officials ruled the play a touchdown, but later reversed their opinion when a near riot was started. Vic Fusia, Jasper back, started the proceedings by aiming a poor right at a big Wildcat, but the latter told him to go home and learn the rules of good aportsmanship. The play was ruled a pass, and since Rizzo, a guard, was ineligible to receive, Manhattan received the ball.

Thus Villanova terminated a rather successful season of seven victories against two defeats. It was a fitting climax to the four burly seniors who played their last and, probably their greatest college game.

Just as the game served as a climax to the four seniors' college careers; so it served as a fitting close to the first year under the Smith-McNally regime. Much credit is due these men for their unbelievable success with the team. Starting off where his predecessor, Harry Stuhldreher left off, Clipper Smith has produced magnificently in the short space of three months.

In the Limelight

A gentleman, scholar and athlete, George Fox, senior arts student and star right end on the current Villanova grid edition, belongs this honorable column.

A little more than twenty-two years ago, in Chicago, Jesse and Agatha Fox received a prize package containing little "Georgie." As he bounced around, little did they realize that some day he would become a Villanova football star. When only a tot, his family took up a new abode in the province of Alberta, Canada, where they remained for five years.

After returning with his family to his birthplace, George was matriculated in The Little Flower of Theresa grammar school, from where he was graduated and entered St. Rita's High School. It was here that he gained a city-wide reputation as an athlete. Baseball and football were his delicacies. He excelled in both, but it was his football playing that attracted the attention of many. In his junior year he played tackle on the team that won the "windy" city championship. His team mates elected him captain in his senior year. The team went through another great season, and George was chosen on the mythical all-Chicago and the all-Illinois elevens.

Upon finishing his studies at St. Rita's, George came East and enrolled at Malvern Prep. His usual fine playing continued and Malvern finished a wonderful season. In the fall of 1933, George descended upon the Villanova campus where he was warmly welcomed by coach Harry Stuhldreher.

He made such an impression on Stuhly that he was soon sharing the end post with the veteran captain Bill Grimberg, who was enjoying his greatest season. With the exodus of Grimberg, George solely assumed the position of right end, which he has never relinquished to this day.

Baseball found no place in George's college schedule. His decision to devote most of his time to football and studies was a wise one, for he has achieved considerable success in both. This year, his last, finds him practically at the top of his class.

"My greatest thrill," explains George, "was the Detroit game last year at Detroit. We were beaten, but it pleased me to have some of my relatives at the game. It was the only Villanova game that I participated in that was, practically, played in 'my own backyard.'"

Incidentally, George scored two touchdowns in that fracas, which was not quite enough, for the Titans won, 19-15. As for the toughest game of his career, the Green Terrors of Western Maryland win his vote, despite the fact that they lost 20-0, last season.

At the start of the present season, George was not very much of an optimist on the outcome of the team in regards to the win and loss column; however, he did say: "As to our present campaign, personally, I think we are as well, if not better, equipped in both man power and coaching ability than any of our opponents."

His optimism has been justified, for he and the team have just completed one of the best seasons ever experiencd.

After graduation, the lure of football will, in all probability, take our limelight hero to some academic institution where he will endeavor to pound some football principles into the aspiring candidates' heads.

Mermen Shine in Season's Preamble

ret also proved to be a good sprint man.

Some upperclassmen, regarded as new material, are Scanlon and Rhoades, Jack Hosey, '35 captain, who has been out for some time is rapidly reaching top form in the sprints.

A nucleus of the squad will consist of Charlie Timines, a freshman from West Catholic, who is posted as the 'Cats stronghold in the diving events and will also swim the 220. Then there is Bill Leahy, riding the water in the 220 and 440 yard events. Booth as a backstroke, Toby Greco as an exponent of the breast stroke, and Tommy Carbine and Burt Cousart who are still attached to the 150 pound football activities. Joe Baily, Penn A. C. and former West Catholic oarsman, will cut the waters in the 220 while Captain Joe Duffy is scheduled to represent the Mainliners in the sprint events. Duffy was a good sprinter last year and great things are expected of him this season.

Under the capable management of Tom Winterbottom, meets have definitely been arranged with St. Francis College of Brooklyn, Lafayette, and Swarthmore. Tentative opposition are Temple, Lehigh, Johns Hopkins, and Manhattan. There will be no meet with Carnegie Tech.

Coach Mathieu expresses the opinion that the Wildcat squad will be potentially a strong one if the freshmen are used. He also wishes to inform all new aspirants to keep themselves in physical readiness by daily workouts for any pre-season practice meets.

Much depends upon the new material in regards to developing a strong relay team. This has been a weakness in Villanova aquatic teams in the past due to a lack of good free-stylers. Because of the increase in the number of free-stylers, there are strong hopes of overcoming this weakness.

Clipper Chats

By "Clipper" Smith

"A team that won't be beaten can't be beaten," is a statement credited to Knite Rockne, one Saturday afternoon years and years ago, when his Notre Dame team was going out to battle the Army. It still holds good. Villanova didn't want to be beaten last Saturday, and I think after the game, Manhattan was convinced of it.

The four seniors have much to look back upon, and in years to came, they all may say, "My best game was my last game." Galazin, Fox, Captain Sala and Christopher played as finished heads-up ball as I've seen them paly. Stan Galazin played sixty minutes of tough football, and played the best game of his collegiate career. He has much to look back on. Fox and Sala were as consitent as ever, playing steady, excellent football every minute. Villanova will miss those ends next year. George Fox has played coolheaded, hard football for three years, and he is a credit to any football team. Sala has always been a hard fighting leader.

Bill Christopher turned in a grand job of quarterbacking, and Frannie Nye played almost over his head. If he shows the stuff next year that he did in Saturday's game, we'll have no difficulty in filling Chris's shoes.

As in a few other games, the score did not indicate the relative merits of the two teams. The Jaspers just didn't have a chance. We outcharged their line, outran their secondary and out tackled their backs. We simply outplayed them in all departments of the game.

Jordan Olivar should be in his glory today. He was playing in his own back yard, and the local boy certainly made good. It was he who blanked Manhattan's only touchdown threat, when he overhauled Wheeler, who had intercepted Stopper's pass on Manhattan's two yard line. Wheeler had squirmed his way past the entire Villanova team, and was on the way to a big six, when Olivar torep ast the pursuing tacklers like the Burlington Zephyr, and pulled him down from the rear.

I want to thank the team most sincerely for the grand co-operation and loyalty they have shown me during the past season, and to congratulate them for the fine brand of football they have displayed. I can teach them football, but football does not win ball games. It is a thing called spirit that goes ahead, and that lies with the team itself. They had plenty, and that put them where they are today.

Temple Takes 'Cats In Annual Contest

ter Temple was unable to dent the Villanova defense.

The Blue and White launched several concerted attacks but lacked the punch inside the 30 yard marker. The closest Villanova got to payoff land was when George Fox raced to the Temple 14 after taking a long pass from Andy Stopper. Unfortunately for the Wildcats a fumble at this crucial point was recovered by a Temple man.

This was the only real threat of the half. The third quarter was a repetition of the first two, with Villanova holding a slight edge. Then came the final period and with it disaster for the charges of "Clipper" Smith. Davidson, Owl quarterback put the 'Cats in a tight spot by placing a punt out of bounds on the Villanova 1 yard line.

Andy Stopper dropped back into the end zone to kick, but his punt was partially blocked by the Owl forward wall and traveled only to the 29. A plunge through center by Pappas and a forward-lateral, Davidson to Walker to Gurzynski gained a first down on the 7. From here Pappas carried the ball over the final stripe in three rushes.

The Wildcats were really wild now, and they put on a last ditch rally that threw a scare into Temple. Starting on their own 30 yard line, the Main Liners flashed a razzle-dazzle passing attack that carried all the way to the Owls' 15. At this point Temple braced and took the ball on downs. This passing sortie was featured by the accurate pitching of Andy Stopper and Bob Buckley.

The Owls made but one substitution during the ball game; Raimo, Rizzo, and Missar were the Villanova ironmen, each playing 60 minutes of bangup football.

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

FOR those who seem to think that the Villanova spirit is dying out we are glad to report that although at the South Carolina game there were only a handful of rooters — six to be exact, the noise they made while cheering was equally as loud as that of the combined numbers of Carolina rooters. So wholehearted was their enthusiasm that the Carolinians often gave them a big hand at the conclusion of each cheer.

They say that R. Bond, the baseballer, travels the railroad tracks to Rosemont so often that he knows all the engineers on the line by their first names.

This one about the lightweight gridders is a bit late, but it will bear telling. It seems that Irv Uram was injured, and it was necessary to assist him off the field up at Yale, as his left knee was impaired. The Eli doctor rushed into the Villanova dressing room and began rubbing Irv's right knee, and after a bit asked, "Well, how does that feel?" Uram replied, in effect, "That knee feels swell doc, but the other one hurts like blazes."

At this point Temple braced and took the ball on downs. This passing sortie was featured by the accurate pitching of Andy Stopper and Bob Buckley.

Eddie Michaels picked a good team to play with in the National Pro Football League. The Bears are cleaning up on the opposition in great style, and Mike is doing his share, as anyone who heard the broadcast of the last Chicago Bears-New York Giants game knows, which the Bears took by a decisive score.

The irony of life is evidenced in this tale of the small son of an All-American tackle of a decade ago. The tackle invited his coach out to see the little nest and to talk over old times. All - America Junior drank all the stories in with wide open eyes, and when the coach asked him what he was going to be "when he grew big like his "daddy," the youngster replied with pride, "A housemaid."

There is a new sport going on among the resident students. It is familiarly referred to as the Going Without Breakfast Derby. At present Tom O'Mahoney is in the van, with Moe Dimon, Fedigan's Blind Bat, in second place. The Irishman has a three weeks lead on Dimon, who has not taken breakfast in the dining hall for the past five weeks. In case you get discouraged boys, remember the Mahatma!

During the week preceding the Temple fray, many signs appeared urging on the Wildcats to superhuman efforts, among the best of which, to our way of thinking, was the string of eleven owls in the corner of Alumni. The lads who put the big sign on the Lancaster Pike billboard also did a nice job.

Dick Emmerling's one-fifties are even getting publicity in the classroom. "Little Man" (by his own) admission) Fortunato, gave a dissertation on the virtues of the lightweight sport in Public Speaking recently.

Reports have it that the intermural court game is quite a bit rougher this year. So much so, that the officials have seen fit to warn a couple of the teams concerning this matter. Possibly the enthusiasm of the participants accounts for the seeming roughness.

Some of the students have been wondering why the student section at the Temple game was not on or near the fifty-yard line, especially as there is no difference in price for tickets between the twenty-yard lines. The student body, after all, is an essential part of the cheering, and as such should receive a bit more consideration than outsiders.

Some of the Alumni were around school recently. Among them were Art Mahan, Frank Moriarity, and "Neddie" Collins. All were associated with last year's very successful baseball club. Moriarity serving as manager, and the other two as players.

NOTED PROFESSORS DECRY MODERN ILLS

Skepticism Ballyhoo and Devastating Forces Listed As Banes By Educators

'W'e live in a noisy world. Our lives are noisy because of our discontent. One of the great problems of today is to learn how to reduce our restless lives to the quiet which will bring real happiness. Before we can escape the curse of modern, disorganized life, we must practice being alone with ourselves." Professor Lisgar R. Eckardt of DePauw University thinks we should get used to ourselves enough to be able to stand communing with ourselves.

"It is entirely conceivable that the end of life upon this planet of ours may be brought about by man himself, through the loosing by some miscreant of uncontrollable, devastating forces. Think of the havoc which can be wrought already by such forces as fire and pestilence. The only answer is to breed better humans, and in this, scientific research can unquestionably play a leading role." Professor Marston T. Bogert of Columbia University offers science a difficult problem.

"Freedom of discussion means freedom in a scholarly and courteous way, with due regards to facts. We must be skeptical believing everything we hear and read. We must be cautious, therefore, here at Barnard, about inviting educators from outside to speak to us if they come with the intention to agitate and spread propaganda." Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard College is using pounds of prevention to assure elimination of tons of cure.

DOCTOR SCORES NOISE

70 Per Cent of Population Revealed As Having Defective Learning

New York, N. Y.—(ACP) — Dr. Foster Kennedy, professor of clinical neurology at Cornell University Medical College, told the ninth annual graduate class of the Academy of Medicine that noise is a major hazard of modern existence and is an important contributing factor to excessive fatigue, which, in turn, often invites chronic ill health and premature old age.

Dr. Kennedy estimated that between 60 and 80 per cent of our population at present has ear trouble caused by mechanical noises.

COLLEGE MEN GIVEN WIDER ADVANTAGES

Civic Developments Reveal Openings for Graduates With Broad Training

Princeton, N. J.—(ACP)—Developments in both government and business are creating wider opportunities for college and university graduates with a background of broad training, Professor De Witt Clinton Poole, director of the school of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University, told the advisory board of the school in his annual report.

"The concrete need which has presented itself insistently at the present juncture is to establish for the government service a reservoir of university graduates, outside of the professional and technical fields, who can be started at a beginner's level in the various civil departments and agencies as openings occur.

"As a first step the Civil Service Commission held in 1934 an examination of general character for persons possessing an A. B. or higher degree. From the register of eligibles established by this examination more than 1200 permanent appointments have been made at beginning salaries which range from $1620 to $1800.

"As the situation is now developing, it may be said that these appointees have before them almost unlimited prospects of advancement, commensurate with the capability and character which each evinces.

"A second general examination for university graduates was held last Summer and some 26,000 papers await grading at present in the offices of the civil service commission," Professor Poole said.

Need of Personality Rather Than Intelligence Stressed By Dean

At a recent meeting of the Educational Records Bureau in New York, Mr. Percy G. Kammerer, principal of the Avon Old Farms School, stressed the necessity of developing personality rather than intelligence during the four year's course of our American colleges. He revealed that statistics prove most college men are unable to obtain positions because they are not "capable, effective well-integrated people."

"The educational process must not concern itself with the intelligence alone but with the total functioning mind," Mr. Kammerer said. "It has been our inability and our unwillingness to view the human personality as an intergrated unit which has made prediction of progress faulty and adjustment to later challenges often difficult or impossible."

Mr. Kammerer further went on to explain that grades, scores and percentages do not form a sufficient basis upon which to base the wider adjustment necessary for modern living conditions. He based failures in life not upon inadequate education, intelligence or pool health so much as lack of adaptability, purposefulness or a dynamic personality.

Professor Arthur I. Gage said, "a large percentage of failure in school work in general can be traced to inadequate reading ability."

Edwin R. Embree reminded the meeting that "the school has been one of the strong factors in the urbanizing trend. The present trend is not so much back to the country as back to a regard for humane system of living as contrasted with the exclusive trend to make a living. The rural school need no longer think of itself chiefly as a means of training for success in the city; it can concern itself with the problems of rural life and with education as a means to richer and fuller living in the country."

Several other speakers at the meeting stressed the need for improvement.

LACK OXYGEN

New York—(ACP) — Scientists have solved a problem that has long troubled physiologists as well as liquor drinkers—why does alcohol make a person drunk?

Drs. R. A. McFarland of Columbia University and A. L. Barach of the College of Physicians and Surgeons found that is deprives the body of oxygen and thus induces dizziness.

Physiologists have noticed an amazing similarity between the symptoms of the intoxicated person and those of the mountain climber who suffers from altitude sickness because of the rarity of air at great heights. The two doctors suggest treatment with combined oxygen and carboen dioxid as a result of their recent experiments.

PROFESSSIONAL STUDY

Amherst, Mass.—(ACP)—Students of Massachusetts State College, a liberal arts college, may enter on professional study at the end of their junior year as the result of a new cooperative agreement.

Dean William L. Machmer announces that transfer arrangements have been made with the Cornell, Tufts, and Dartmouth medical schools, the Yale Forestry school, the Syracuse law school, and the Dartmouth department of civil engineering, so that any M. S. C. student with a good scholarship record may, if he desires, enter one of them after his junior year.

HUGE ANNUAL FUND GIVEN COLUMBIA

Alumni Gives $1,000,000 Annually to Finance Definite University Projects

The Columbia University Alumni Fund has been enriched by almost $1,000,000 in gifts, this year, it was announced by the secretary of the Alumni Federation, Clarence E. Lovejoy. The financing of definite university projects by the alumni classes, is the factor which has attributed an increase of nearly 30 per cent over the amount given the year before. This new policy has proved very successful.

Mr. Lovejoy reports that the alumni contributes more when they know the purpose for which their donations are being used. The individual projects, such as funds for scholarships, dormitory room endowments, library funds and equipment, have increased the interest among the alumni. This year the number of donors was increased by more than 200, and the average contribution was more than doubled.

RETIREMENT PLAN FOR FACULTY IS ANNOUNCED TODAY

College Will Match Contributions of Lay Members of Staff

SALARY CUTS RESTORED AS PLAN IS ADOPTED

Committee of 3 Appointed to Study Various Features of Idea

A retirement plan, with annuity provisions, that will eventually take in all of the lay members of the faculty of Villnaova College, has recently been approved by the Board of Trustees, according to an announcement by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., President of the College.

The plan has been under consideration for some time past, and it is hoped that all arrangements may be completed so that it may be put into effect at the first of the year, simulaneously with the Federal Security Plan, from which educational institutions are exempt. All details have not been completely worked out at the present time.

A faculty committee, composed of Mr. William C. Henry, Mr. J. Stanley Morehouse, and Mr. John McClain, has been appointed by the President, to study the various features of the plan, and to explain its provisions to the members of the faculty.

Policies are to be written by the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association of America, which handles these annuities for most of the colleges having such provisions in force at the present time.

This system, compulsory for all members of the faculty after three years of service, requires a contribution amounting to five per cent (5%) of individual salaries payable monthly. The contributions by faculty members are matched by the college to provide a retirement

Amateur shows at Villanova College have existed, Minstrel shows sponsored by the student body have been attempted, and to some degree have succeeded. Never has a combined program been staged in which the students were given an opportunity to reveal their talents in the form of competitive intramural activities on the stage. .

Foflowing the nation-wide trend of theatrical and radio entertainment, Villanova College will present a gigantic program Tuesday, December 15, to celebrate the departure for the Christmas holidays.

As a farewell gesture to their fellow students, each resident hall and the two-day student groups will form separate units in the presentation of the amateur show. The intramural groups will be directed by a representative committee consisting of three students from each unit.

The Committee of Arrangements, as appointed by the Student Council, consists of: Arthur Carleton, Stanley Galazin, and Lawrence Stanwick representing Fedigan Hall; John Chapple, John Burke, and Joseph McCabe from Austin Hall; Harold Burns, Claude Van Hook, and Frederick Rappleyea, Mendel Hall; Mendel Day-Students: Aloysius Fitzpatrick, Hugh Ferguson, and Irvin Uram; Charles O'Connor, James P. Tofani, and Vincent La Brasca, Commerce and Finance Day-Students; Alumni Hall will be represented in the committee by three students chosen from John Jakuboski's "Committee on Affairs."

The time of each program will be limited to a maximum of twenty minutes. Each unit will be judged on a basis of ten points to be determined by the value of the acts. A master of ceremonies will be selected by the Committee of Arrangements to represent the individual intramural groups.

Any student of the college is eligible to take part in this theatrical endeavor, and all should be encouraged to make this affair a memorable occasion in Villanova history.

Extraordinary talent along the lines of vocalizations, ranging from hill-billys to classics, should predominate the program. Female impersonations and dramatic talents should be fully represented, judging from the enthusiasm shown during ordinary scholastic life. This affair, if fully backed by the entire student body, should prove to be one of the most jubilant, jovial, and amusing affairs ever attempted on the Villanova campus, or elsewhere. This amateur show has all signs of remaining immortal in Villanova history, and undoubtedly will become an undying tradition—a Christmas farewell.

NOTED PROFESSORS DECRY MODERN ILLS

"We live in a noisy world. Our lives are noisy because of our discontent. One of the great problems of today is to learn how to reduce our restless lives to the quiet which will bring real happiness. Before we can escape the curse of modern, disorganized life, we must practice being alone with ourselves." Professor Lisgar R. Eckardt of DePauw University thinks we should get used to ourselves enough to be able to stand communing with ourselves.

"It is entirely conceivable that the end of life upon this planet of ours may be brought about by man himself, through the loosing by some miscreant of uncontrollable, devastating forces. Think of the havoc which can be wrought already by such forces as fire and pestilence. The only answer is to breed better humans, and in this, scientific research can unquestionably play a leading role." Professor Marston T. Bogert of Columbia University offers science a difficult problem.

"Freedom of discussion means freedom in a scholarly and courteous way, with due regards to facts. We must be skeptical believing everything we hear and read. We must be cautious, therefore, here at Barnard, about inviting educators from outside to speak to us if they come with the intention to agitate and spread propaganda." Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve of Barnard College is using pounds of prevention to assure elimination of tons of cure.

DOCTOR SCORES NOISE

70 Per Cent of Population Revealed As Having Defective Learning

New York, N. Y.—(ACP) — Dr. Foster Kennedy, professor of clinical neurology at Cornell University Medical College, told the ninth annual graduate class of the Academy of Medicine that noise is a major hazard of modern existence and is an important contributing factor to excessive fatigue, which, in turn, often invites chronic ill health and premature old age.

Dr. Kennedy estimated that between 60 and 80 per cent of our population at present has ear trouble caused by mechanical noises.

COLLEGE MEN GIVEN WIDER ADVANTAGES

Princeton, N. J. —(ACP)—Developments in both government and business are creating wider opportunities for college and university graduates with a background of broad training, Professor De Witt Clinton Poole, director of the school of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University, told the advisory board of the school in his annual report.

"The concrete need which has presented itself insistently at the present juncture is to establish for the government service a reservoir of university graduates, outside of the professional and technical fields, who can be started at a beginner's level in the various civil departments and agencies as openings occur.

"As a first step the Civil Service Commission held in 1934 an examination of general character for persons possessing an A. B. or higher degree. From the register of eligibles established by this examination more than 1200 permanent appointments have been made at beginning salaries which range from $1620 to $1800.

"As the situation is now developing, it may be said that these appointees have before them almost unlimited prospects of advancement, commensurate with the capability and character which each evinces.

"A second general examination for university graduates was held last Summer and some 26,000 papers await grading at present in the offices of the civil service commission." Professor Poole said.

Need of Personality Rather Than Intelligence Stressed By Dean

At a recent meeting of the Educational Records Bureau in New York, Mr. Percy G. Kammerer, principal of the Avon Old Farms School, stressed the necessity of developing personality rather than intelligence during the four year's course of our American colleges. He revealed that statistics prove most college men are unable to obtain positions because they are not "capable, effective well-integrated people."

"The educational process must not concern itself with the intelligence alone but with the total functioning mind," Mr. Kammerer said. "It has been our inability and our unwillingness to view the human personality as an intergrated unit which has made prediction of progress faulty and adjustment to later challenges often difficult or impossible."

Mr. Kammerer further went on to explain that grades, scores and percentages do not form a sufficient basis upon which to base the wider adjustment necessary for modern living conditions. He based failures in life not upon inadequate education, intelligence or pool health so much as lack of adaptability, purposefulness or a dynamic personality.

Professor Arthur I. Gage said, "a large percentage of failure in school work in general can be traced to inadequate reading ability."

Edwin R. Embree reminded the meeting that "the school has been one of the strong factors in the urbanizing trend. The present trend is not so much back to the country as back to a regard for a humane system of living as contrasted with the exclusive trend to make a living. The rural school need no longer think of itself chiefly as a means of training for success in the city; it can concern itself with the problems of rural life and with education as a means to richer and fuller living in the country."

Several other speakers at the meeting stressed the need for improvement.

LACK OXYGEN

New York—(ACP) — Scientists have solved a problem that has long troubled physiologists as well as liquor drinkers—why does alcohol make a person drunk?

Drs. R. A. McFarland of Columbia University and A. L. Barach of the College of Physicians and Surgeons found that is deprives the body of oxygen and thus induces dizziness.

Physiologists have noticed an amazing similarity between the symptoms of the intoxicated person and those of the mountain climber who suffers from altitude sickness because of the rarity of air at great heights. The two doctors suggest treatment with combined oxygen and carbonn dioxid as a result of their recent experiments.

HUGE ANNUAL FUND GIVEN COLUMBIA

Alumni Gives $1,000,000 Annually to Finance Definite University Projects

The Columbia University Alumni Fund has been enriched by almost $1,000,000 in gifts, this year, it was announced by the secretary of the Alumni Federation, Clarence E. Lovejoy. The financing of definite university projects by the alumni classes, is the factor which has attributed an increase of nearly 30 per cent over the amount given the year before. This new policy has proved very successful.

Mr. Lovejoy reports that the alumni contributes more when they know the purpose for which their donations are being used. The individual projects, such as funds for scholarships, dormitory room endowments, library funds and equipment, have increased the interest among the alumni. This year the number of donors was increased by more than 200, and the average contribution was more than doubled.

PROFESSSIONAL STUDY

Machmer announces that transfer arrangements have been made with the Cornell, Tufts, and Dartmouth medical schools, the Yale Forestry school, the Syracuse law school, and the Dartmouth department of civil engineering, so that any M. S. C. student with a good scholarship record may, if he desires, enter one of them after his junior year.

THE TOKIO - BERLIN PACT

THE recent signing of the Tokio-Berlin Pact for the expressed purpose of promoting World peace through the establishment of an effective and co-operative agreement against the advancement of Communism is in reality a military alliance against the Moscow government that Germany as well as Japan has desired for some time.

Germany, ever since the formation of the mutual-aid agreement between France and Russia, has been seeking a means of ameliorating the hazardous position in which it placed her. For if Germany became involved in a war with either the French or Soviets, it was quite certain that the other member of the alliance would likewise have to be reckoned with.

Japan's gradual encroachments into China, her increasing economic power in the East, and ther many national differences with Russia were bound to ultimately result in war. What could be more desirable than an alliance that would limit the possibility of hostilities, and in their actual event minimize the likelihood of a Russian victory.

The present treaty has had the immediate effect of cutting Russia's military strength in half, for it confronts the Soviets with powerful and hostile armies in both the east and the west. It has likewise upset the balance of power that had formerly existed in Europe, when France and Russia, two socialist states, were lined up against Italy and Germany, two dictator ruled states.

That Germany would like to use the new alliance for intervention in Spain cannot be doubted, as it would not be to the purposes of either Hitler or Mussolini to have Spain continue as a Socialist state, inconsequential as it is in European affairs.

The new treaty, establishing as it does a preponderance of power in the autocratic states, will now permit them to make some efforts to the maintenance of the World peace which they so consistently and assiduously assert themselves to be concerned with. Both Hitler and Mussolini are now in more secure positions than they have ever been, so that the world is justified in expecting them to take the initiative in the preservation of harmony among nations and peace among men. If they fail to do this, there is little reason why either one should be further permitted to maintain his position.

CATHOLIC ACTION

EVER since the time of Pius IX, the call of the Papacy has been for Catholic Action, Catholic Action, and more Catholic Action. Facing a hostile world as it does, the Catholic Church calls upon all laymen, especially educated laymen, to devote their lives to the service of Holy Mother Church.

Villanova College has not been slow to follow the advice of the Holy Fathers in this direction, for some time there has been active on this campus a Study Group of Catholic young men who, working with their holy priests, are studying the social questions of the day.

It is with pardonable pride that we call this group to the attention of the student body, for we know that this activity should receive the careful consideration of every man on the campus. We know how Communism is sweeping over Europe, and we also believe that the time is not distant when the situation results in world-wide conflict, social misery, and a war upon the Church of Christ.

The immediate aim of Catholic Action such as we have it at Villanova is to train our men to go forth into the world carrying with them the Catholic ideal of social justice. Going into the world, they will pass onto young men around them the knowledge they derived from their stay at Villanova College. As Pope Pius X said in his Encyclical letter, Fermo Proposito, "The modern ordering of States offers equally to all the chance of influencing pulic life; and Catholics, provided they obey the obligations imposed by the Law of God and the ordinances of the Church, can with a perfectly good conscience profit by this ,and show themselves equal to others and indeed better than they, in cooperating in the material and civil well-being of the people . . . "

Therefore, we say: Let us have Catholic Action — more of it.

AMBASSADORS OF PEACE

IN striking contrast to the warlike, hating, underhand spirit characterizing the peoples of Europe are the Ambassadors of good will leaving Villanova for Cuba in a few weeks.

Before the World War, the sons of the peoples of Central and South America were sent to France or to Germany to complete their education. The World War curtailed those trips abroad, and since that time our southern neighbors have been coming to the United States to find that education and that culture formerly sought in Europe. Villanova has played an important part in this development, for the number of students coming here from Central and from South America has increased every year.

Therefore, it is now most fitting that Villanova should respond, and send some sort of an ambassador to the people of Cuba, as a gesture of friendship, peace, and brotherhood. Our football team is playing that part ,for they sail on Christmas day to bring to the people of Cuba a message of peace, mutual understanding, and co-operative interests. Our football men are going to play an important part in cementing the relations between the Cuban people and the American people.

We send our football team forth with joy. Let them rejoice with the Cuban people in their hard-won democracy; let them rejoice with the Cuban people for their splendid Catholicism; and let them rejoice with the Cuban people as brothers in the unity of Western civilization.

Cuba, we send you ambassadors of peace from Villanova. Cuba, we salute you!

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

THOUGH it may seem a bit late, the recent band exodus to New York and Brooklyn for the Manhattan game is too good to let go by the board. Being received by the Mayor himself was something very interesting but the police escort from one city to the other was even more fun.

To begin with the band and cheer leaders, after a breakfast snatched before the sun had come up, left in two busses for Gotham. Arriving about 10.30 they went directly to city hall where they immediately took possession. It was probably the first time in the history of the ancient and revered building that any college band ever blasted martial airs in its hallowed walls. More than that our own "College Days" and the "Wildcat March" were practiced by the Villanova band in the very room where the Mayor of New York sits with his council and guides the destinies of over seven million people. Bert Passanante occupied the mayor's own rostrum while swinging the baton in direction of our outfit. Oh, yes, we're quite the buttons.

When the Mayor finally did show up your musical organization paraded around the city hall and gave a concert over WNYC. Mayor La Guardia welcomed us in the name of the city and introduced us to Mayor Rossi of San Francisco. When that respected gentleman expressed the hope that some people on the coast were listening to the broadcast, your columnist couldn't help smiling. It is doubtful if the three watt station can be heard as far as Jersey City. However, we received a long enough to give a cheer for each of Hizzonors, after which we piled into the buses and followed our police escort over the Brooklyn bridge, up and down the wrong side of the street till we reached the Columbus club where we made our headquarters. The entire trip was surely an experience we shall never forget.

FROSH did you know—
That some of our most intellectual profs get a kick out of "Gang-busters."

That the L. K. D. was not responsible for the school not getting the day after Thanksgiving off. Four years ago a vote was taken by the students whereupon they decided they would rather go to school that day and get three extra days at Christmas.

That rule was decided upon by four classes, the last of which will graduate this year. Shall we do something about it next year?

Those of you who live in Philadelphia will be able to observe our look alike for this week. There are some who say that the diminutive Frank Lombardo, quarterback of the Saint Joe's Prep team looks very much like our own handsome Rabbit Raimo. Lucky boy, Frank.

They do tell me that there is going to be an amateur night immediately before the Christmas holidays. We also understand that points will be given to the contestants which will be added to their hall standings in the inter murals.

College Chatter

By Frank Bonetti

DePAUW students were asked by their psychology professor to eavesdrop on 100 informal student conversations to determine the percentage of topics discussed.

The result was: the opposite sex, 15 per cent; college studies, 13; campus affairs, 10; miscellaneous, 10; the same sex, 10; college sports, 8; organized amusement, 6; foods, 7; professors as individuals, 6; general politics, 5; other non-campus news, 5; cultural subjects (other than college subjects), 5.

Then there was the fellow who had a basketball nose . . . it dribbled all the time . . . the punchy pug told his girl he was going to fight Max Baer . . . "Oh, you can't do that," says she, "let me make you a pair of trunks." . . . Dr. Bosley, director of religious activities at Iowa State Teachers College, defines "Dating" as a social experience and one of the most important opportunities of college life . . .

And now a treatise on Men:
A-men said at the end of a prayer.
B-men: as in "her eyes were beaming"
C-men: Sailors.
D-men: Devils.
E-men: Virile, masculine men (English accent).
F-men: not good enough to be a G-man.
G-men heroes of movie thrillers.
H-men: men employed by alphabet soup makers to pick up dropped English H's.
I-men: Columnists.

College Boy Wit: "Your school is not an educational institution: it's a match factory." . . . Girl Student: "Maybe you're right. We furnish the heads and get sticks from the men's colleges."

A COLLEGE STUDENT is like a kerosene lamp,
Not very bright.
Smokes.
Often goes out at night.
And usually gets turned down.

THE SCHOOL DOCTOR was endeavoring to get the history of a communicable disease from a freshman.

"Have you ever had measles?" he asked him,

Looking blank and sinking his head the boy replied, "I don't know."

Have you ever had the mumps?"
"I don't know."
"Well," asked the exasperated doctor, "have you ever been sick?"
"Yes," replied the freshman, grinning from ear to ear.
"What did you have?"
"Pills."

Those in the know around the University claim that a successor to handles and knock-knocks is on its way in the new "business" game. It goes like this:
"I'm in the landscaping business."
"How's business?"
"I'm getting a lawn." (or some more or less bright answer).

Pass In Review

By RICHARD DEVERALL

FATHER COUGHLIN, for all the good and bad things said about him, has contributed a healthy-sized donation to the American people. If nothing else, he at least brought to the attention of the great masses of peoples the fact that the Catholic Church is vitally interested in social justice; he told the people of America of RERUM NOVARUM and QUADRAGESIMO; and he told his audiences what the great St. Tomas Aquinas, Common Doctor of the Catholic Church, had to say about the social problems of all time. Maybe Father Coughlin did go in for politics? So what? Does that alter, in any way, the fact that he awakened millions to a consciousness of the social mission of the Catholic Church?

But if Father Coughlin has failed in his mission because of his so-called "political" activities (and at this writing, no decision can be made: we do not have all of the circumstances), there is an English Father Coughlin who has been crusading successfully for social justice year in and year out. His name is Father Vaughan. Rev. Francis H. Drinkwater. In the Villanova library, we have a most interesting volume from his hand, WHY NOT END POVERTY? (London, 1935, Burns, Oates and Washburne, Ltd.).

The fundamental contention of Father Drinkwater is the money problem is the essential problem of the day. As he says in his first chapter, "The point is that Money is a stream, of which the source could be controlled for the public welfare." Money does not consist in piles of gold; rather does it exist a credit. In fact, 95 percent of the transactions carried on in America involve the use of credit, and not of money. Father Drinkwater charges that certain monopolistic financial "royalists" have secured control of credit, and by controlling credit, they have been able to lay upon the necks of the masses of Americans a yoke little better than slavery itself.

"Usury is the main cause of all . . . things; just as Usury is the main cause that the nations are rearming for war." Broad, sweeping, universal: that is a dangerous sentence. Yet we wonder whether Father Drinkwater has not but put his finger one one of the glaring financial evils of the day. Usury, as you know, was defined by the canonists of the middle ages as the taking of unlawful gain. Usury, in a word, is the use of money to gain power. It is the deadly sin of avarice in the economic world. Although the Catholic Middle Ages had a horror for the usury, we of this day, in our supercilious sophistication, know relatively nothing about it. Even our moral theologians, in many cases, use definitions and explanations that have whiskers on them! Under this system of usury, the rich are becoming richer and richer; the poor become poorer and poorer. Farms thrown in bankruptcy, loans are liquidated, men and women are financially ruined; the savings of years are lost; workingmen are robbed—all by usurious bankers and usurious industrialists.

"The one thing that should unite us all is religion, but it is the one thing that divides us in two minutes," said Lady Astor some time ago. Such men as Father Drinkwater, Father Coughlin. and Rt. Rev. Msgr. John A. Ryan attempts to put into practices recommended by the Holy Father, the preaching of social justice by ministers of the gospel. Yet far from uniting men, these crusades for social justice have too often stirred up hatred, envy, jealousy, and greed.

Read this short, interesting book. Its one hundred twenty pages of trenchant, precise, logical expressions reflect the keen mind of Father Drinkwater, who is not only a first-class moral theologian. we hear, but also a first-class economist.

It is significant of the times that more and more such priests as Father Coughlin and Father Drinkwater are taking it upon themselves to preach in season and out doctrines and ideas that are not exactly popular with those maintaining the economic status quo. As someone has said, the apology for Christianity in this age is not a doctrinal one—that was settled years ago ——but a social one. May the readers of this book be inspired to study and know what the social-economic problem is all about; may they leave Villanova, someday, with a burning zeal to carry out into the world the message of social justice and social charity deriving from Catholicism.

As We See It . . . Free Thinking

By HARRY PARKIN

SHAW in his preface to the play "Saint Joan" mentions with his accustomed air of finality that the Church having no place in its bosom for freethinking, must have no faith in the validity of its own tenets. Likewise, by failing to inculcate and encourage freethinking with the grim conviction that thought when really free must lead to the acceptance of her teachings, she implies that theology and science are two different and opposite impulses, rivals for human allegiance. This attitude and opinion of the Church is by no means peculiar to Mr. Shaw alone, but one that is held by a great many people, who, like he, are peculiarly biased in their pronouncements on the Church, because their knowledge of its teachings are such that they "have just enough learning to misquote." This idea of the Church's attitude toward freethinking arises from the failure to make the proper distinction between the acceptance of truth and the act of seeking it.

No one will gainsay the statement that truth when once learned must be embraced as learned, and admits of no freedom for alteration. As the student is constrained to learn the laws of science as they exist, aside from any personal satisfactio nor dissatisfaction he may take from their manner of operation, so likewise must there exist a similar necessity and restraint governing man's relations to the truths of theology. Separate and distinct from this, is the manner in which one arrives at the comprehension of truth; which may be by means of instruction, personal inquiry, accident, revelation or a whole host of others, each of which will prove equally effective. This fundamental difference between the acceptance of truth as it is, and the method by which it is learned must be appreciated to understand the Catholic attitude toward free thinking.

In their relation to the doctrines of the Church freethinkers may be said to occupy two divisions. Those who are members of the Church, and those who are outside it. The former she encourages and the latter disowns; sees virtue in the first and evil in the second; praises the one and anathematizes the other.

Freethinking, as it exists outside the Church, as a conscious and deliberate effort to arrive at philosophical truth has always enjoyed the whole-hearted approbation of Catholicism. Content with the admonition "Seek, and it shall be made known to you" she constantly exerts herself to the removal of the barriers to the freedom of thought . Her books, newspapers, pamphlets, and public speakers all seek to encourage men to think about the forces that are constantly operating about them, and the philosophies that presume to explain them. Recommending intellectual restlessness, discontent with ignorance ,and contempt for speciousness, she steadily prompts the mind of man to inquire into all phenomena — knowing that in her doctrines alone the inquisitive mind can really find contentment. For in the examination of truth, the intellect that is functioning freely, must inevitably come to the realization that she is "the stuff of which our life is made."

Freethinking within the Church, on doctrinal matters of course, is untenable because it refuses to acknowledge the sufficiency or soundness of clearly defined truths. Everyone must hold that freethinking is only possible in investigation or speculation; for as soon as the intellect apprehends a thing as a truth or untruth it is no longer free in respect to it, but is compelled to abide by the decision it has made concerning it. So it is within the Church the teaching being defined, an individual either accepts or rejects them. As it is impossible to reconcile unbelief with belief so it is impossible to reconcile freethinking with those who are within the Church.

Freethinking, unfortunately, outside the Church is seldomly free, because few men are willing to take the opportunity or trouble to think without bias; or to the real conclusion of the problem.

LAND OF TOMORROW

(From an interview with Jose M. Gonzales, native of Puerto Rico, and student at Villanova. This is Part II.)

Exhilarating, Palpitating "Bomba"

HOLIDAYS in Puerto Rico are frequent. All the National Holidays are included with the various Holidays, giving the natives frequent opportunities to engage in their favorite amusement and recreation — dancing.

At some sea-side rendezvous, dancing under a warm, star-lit southern sky to the soothing strains of "El Danza," or the bombastic, barbaric "Bomba," a Puerto Rican is in his Paradise.

Roosevelt's Influence

"Will Roosevelt's re-election have any effect on Puerto Rico?" Not any that I know of. Although his efforts on behalf of freedom for the Phillippines makes us hopeful, yet he has not committed himself about Puerto Rico.

"We do not necessarily want freedom however. We are agitating for a native Governor, instead of the present system of having your President appoint an American to that post. A Puerto Rican should know more about his own country, than some foreigner, who in some cases has not even set foot on the island before his appointment as Governor.

We would welcome some plan such as Great Britain follows in ruling Canada. The Viceroy of Canada is appointed by the King of England, but one of the requirements is that the selection be confined to native Canadians.

Sidelights

All over the island, except in the larger cities, the natives can be seen carrying all types of burdens on their heads. Cakes of ice and everything imaginable are carried in this manner.

Feats of balancing which seem extraordinary to Americans are part of the daily lives of these people.

NEXT WEEK: CUBA. IF YOU ARE GOING TO HAVANA, DON'T MISS IT!

FACULTY MEMBER ATTENDS CONCLAVE

Professor Bueche Represents Villanova's A. I. E. E. at Columbus Gathering

Mr. Harry S. Bueche, professor of electrical engineering and moderator of the Villanova branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, on November 14, attended a meeting of the Counselors and Chairmen of Section B, District No. 2, of the A. I. E. E., held at Columbus, Ohio.

Ohio State University acted as host to delegates from Lehigh, Lafayette, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Carnegie Tech., Cincinnati, Case, Akron, Johns Hopkins, Pennsylvania, Drexel, Ohio Northern, West Virginia, Maryland, George Washington and Villanova.

The purpose of the convention was to enable the counselors and chairmen of the student branches to exchange ideas relative to increasing the interests of students in electrical engineering for the national organization. Mr. H. A. Henline, National Secretary of the A. I. E. E., was present and delivered an address on "Interest which the National Organization has for Electrical Engineering Students." He urged all members to take a more active part in section and district meetings.

MUST ERASE SMILE

Each male student of Pennsylvanit State College who expects his picture to appear in La Vie, the student annual, will have to erase his smile before posing for the photograph.

This is not a move to create general campus gloom. The editors have issued the order because they want all pictures to be in keeping with the tenor of the subject matter.

"Broad smiles on faces of the men will be omitted so that the general tone of the senior section will conform to the formal clothes worn," the announcement read.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

THE saxaphone, musical sceptre of such radio favorites as Hal Kemp, Wayne King, and Rudy Vallee is on the downbeat, according to the experts of radio row.

Saxaphonist today, cognizant of the trend away from this jazz-age instrument, are rapidly brushing up on their clarinets, flutes and oboes. The strictly "saxophone section" is a thing of the past. Top band's sax sections are doubling in brass these days and liking it.

Blame radio for this instrument's possible extinction. The microphone reacts favorably to the legitimate woodwinds and these instruments are being used more frequently for solo work.

Horace Heidt is definitely coming East. Too many times the ex-football star's fans have been fooled by this statement, but now definite confirmation of the Californian's trek Eastward is released. Heidt will play some stage dates and college affairs in New England this Winter and wind-up at Manhattan's Hotel Biltmore.

Query of the day: Why isn't Ethel Shutta singing with George Olsen's new band in Chicago. He is now conducting the late Orville Knapp's swell unit. Dame Rumor has it that there is a clause in the contract of the Knapp band that forbids George from using the singing services of his wife with this outfit.

The recently published stories of Isham Jones' illness were not exactly true. After an absence of hardly two months, the venerable bandsman is emerging from hasty retirement to return to the dance business. He begins his "come back" at the Hotel Lincoln in New York, December 4th, replacing Dick Stabile's band. Isham will have an NBC wire. Whatever Ish's reason was for going into temporary oblivion is not known. But one thing is true; there will be fewer but newer faces behind the various instruments that have made his band a byword along Tin Pan Alley.

Mario Braggiotti is now at the Pierre, replacing Shep Fields of "rippling rhythm" fame. The former pianist - partner of Jacque Fray, tried waving a baton unsuccessfully over the Mutual network last season. His friends now predict a new Mario and a greater maestro. As for Fields, he's in the midst of a one-night stand tour.

Here's a few George Hall last minute conquests: A feature of his Yale-Harvard dance was Dolly Dawn's version of "Half of Me," specially written for the New Jersey swingster by Peter De Rose and Sammy Lewis, who collaborated on such hits as "Close to Me," "Lights Out." "When Your Hair Has Turned To Silver," and "The Last Roundup" with Billy Hill. Put "Half of Me" down as a sure-winner of the Lucky Strike Sweepstakes contest within thirty days of its first hearing on the airwaves.

"The Coronation Waltz" composed by George himself was adopted as the official coronation song for England, it was announced this week by Campbell and Connolie, British music publishers. Most U. S. publishers submitted tunes to the Coronation Committee, but the "Waltz" was finally judged the winning tune.

All is now quiet on the Lake Michigan front. Chicago is host to a carolad of the country's top tune titans. Business has been particularly good in all the town's night spots, particularly in the rooms where cover charges are taboo. The windy city folks prefer sweet music to swing, despite the propaganda issued from a thousand mimeograph machines to the contrary.

Glen Gray and his Casa Loma crew, surprisingly naked without a radio commercial are mopping up at the Hotel Congress . . . and he is wisely dishing out sweet music than heretofore . . . Ted Flo Rito at the Hotel Morrison in the Loop . . . also you find Louis Prima at the college favorite, The Blackhawk Louisiana Louie was jaming it on New York's 52nd Street with a four piece band. Now he has a crew of thirteen . . . And of course the sophisticates have Al Kavelin in the snooty Hotel Blackstone . . . Little Jack Little doing fairly at the Palmer House, while Kay Kyser and Freddie Martin hold forth at The Aragon and Trianon respectively. Both are appealing tremendously to the masses.

In case any of you higher minded music lovers are interested there are four or five hours of good symphonic programs on the air every Sunday. General Motors and Ford are two sponsors of the music sublime. And while we're on the subject of symphonies and their players, Paul Whiteman is to make another appearance with the Philadelphia Philharmonic. As before, the program will be devoted to light music, and Caspar Reardon and Roy Bargy, exponents of swing on the harp and piano, respectively, will render appropriate ,selections. The first of these programs was anoutstanding success.

Powers Gourods, the Yellow Cab night owl, had Ted Husing on his Friday evening chat, and the sports announcer stated that he would be broadcasting the Villanova-Auburn game in Cuba. That's old news now, but it was the first definite statement about it that we heard.

Turning back to jazz and its dispensers, you Jan Garber idolizers who miss his dulcet rhythms might do well to listen to Ray Pearl and his orchestra from Cleveland. He is the "spitten image" of the Idol of the airlanes.

If you like the trumpets as used by Horace Heidt, listen to Harry Roy's rendition of "Two Trumpet Toot." Triple tonguing shown in this recording is equal to, if not superior to, any of Heidt's brass arrangements.

PHI KAPPA PI SETS PLANS FOR ANNUAL DINNER, INITIATION

Affair Will Take Place in February, President Barr Announces

CASEY ON COMMITTEE

At a meeting of Phi Kappa Pi, held on Monday, November 6, Eugene A. Barr, fraternity president, announced that plans were under way for the annual initiation and banquet to take place in the early part of February, 1937.

Considerable discussion followed the suggestion that keys be awarded the seniors sometime after the banquet in February. A motion was made by Edward Casey that a vote be made on this question. This motion was followed through and the members were in favor of the keys being awarded at the banquet. Joseph J. Duffy and Gearld Kunz, both seniors, will make the arrangements and plans necessary.

In connection with initiation events, several committees that will present formal plans to the fraternity and then carry them through have been appointed. These committees, as announced at the meeting of November 6, are as follows: Membership Committee, whose duty it is to approve applications for membership: Edward Casey, chairman, John Linsley, Frederick Welty, and William Burns; Banquet Committee: Paul Williams, chairman, John Rhoads, Edward Coriss, Ferdinand Stackel, and Joseph Sanborn; Initiation Committee, Edward McHugh, chairman, Constantine B. Constantine, Robert Strong, Paul Williams, Edward Casey, John Courtain, Edward Fister, William Durkin, James Carroll, Thomas Schaedler, Robert Mattis, Richard Foote, Al Hoffmann, and Joseph Sanborn.

Anher committee was formulated as a result of the plans to get the annual fraternity basketball tournament under way in the near future. This committee is composed of chairman Joseph Beittenmiller, Joseph Duffy, Jack Dunnigan, and James McLaughlin.

committee consisting of Edward Coriss, Joseph Sanborn, and John Lindsey was appointed to make negotiations regarding certain trips which Dr. Haenish suggested. The trips mentioned were to the Kimball Glass Works at Vineland, N. J., and the Lewis Paint Products Co. in Philadelphia.

Dr. Haenish suggested that the trip to the paint works be considered first, and that members of the Society prepare a paper on the subject of paints and their manufacture, which is to be read at the next meeting. The purpose of this is to familiarize the members with the industry before making the trip and thereby they will derive greater benefit from the tour.

An interesting talk was then given by Dr. Haenish, on methods of polarizing light. He described the method of discovery, and told of the many possible uses of a new substance Polaroid, used in polarizing light.

NOTED AUTOGYRO PILOT TO SPEAK AT COLLEGE

William S. McCormick Will Relate Experiences in Antartic Region

William S. McCormick, autogyro pilot on Admiral Byrd's second expedition into the Antartic regions, will in all probability address a general assembly at Villanova College during seminar period Thursday, December 10.

Mr. McCormick will address the assembly in a discussion of his experiences in the Antartic zone, emphasizing the necessity and the advantages of an autogyro on such an occasion. It is probable that Mr. McCormick will arrive at Villanova in his autogyro, which he will land on the spacious campus. However, the exact date and the manner of his arrival at Villanova are only tentative to be made definite at a later date.

Football Banquet Honors Gridders

Dykes, Managers respectively of the Athletics and Chicago White Sox.

Martin Gill, Jr., former instructor at Villanova is chairman in charge of the dinner. Approximately 700 guests are expected to attend including several newspaper men of New York and Philadelphia. Toastmaster at the function will be Martin J. McLaughlin, '14, who is now Chief of the Department of Public Works of the City of Philadelphia.

By means of this annual dinner the graduates salute each Wildcat team. It is a token of recognition of the Villanova spirit whether its deeds have been mighty or luminous. Official here believe Mr. Smith's tenure has been a successful one as the record of the team shows.

The annual football dinner is one of the oldest functions of its kind in the country as Villanova Alumni were among the first to honor its football team at the close of each season.

The football dinner was inaugurated at the close of the 1921 season which was one of the most successful campaigns waged by the Wildcats. In that year they lost only one game out of nine, that defeat being at the hands of Army. Fordham and Catholic University were among the outstanding clubs who fell before the onslaught of the 'Cats.

In order to honor the successful team, the alumni held the first of the present series of banquets. Each year since then the same procedure has been followed and each year the affair has become more successful.

In conjunction with the dinner the club will make its annual award to the alumnus who has brought signal honor to his Alma Mater this year.

Varsity letters will be awarded to the members of the football squad and to the manager.

Tickets for the occasion are priced at $2.50 per plate.

COLLEGE DEBATERS TO FORMALLY OPEN SEASON WEDNESDAY

Radio Debate With Swarthmore December 2; First On Schedule

DISCUSS PUBLIC UTILITIES

The Villanova Debating Society will formally open its debating season next Wednesday, December 2 in a radio debate with Swarthmore College. The radio station will be WIP in Philadelphia and the time 3:05 P. M.

The question of the debate is "Resolved that public utilities should be under government control." Swarthmore will defend the negative and Villanova the affirmative. The two speakers chosen are Anthony Differ, Senior Arts, and President of the Beta Gamma Society and Joseph Carroll, also of the Senior Arts. In as much as the time will be limited there will be only two constructive speeches of ten minutes and a rebutal of five minutes. Mr. Differ will deliver the first constructive speech and the rebuttal and Mr. Carroll the second constructive speech. The decision will be rendered by the radio audience.

Discussing plans for the rest of the season Mr. Differ announced that the debate with Loyola College scheduled for December fourth has been postponed until later in the season. He also stated that Villanova was planning about twelve radio debates this year. This necessitates the preparation of a large number of resolutions for debate instead of having just one topic used by most colleges.

He concluded with a word of warning to lagging members of the society by saying that preparatory meetings for the forthcoming debates are being held every Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons at 2:30 P. M. All members who want to actively participate in any debate must be present.

Many and Scattered Are Sources Of Local Laboratories' Supplies

by JOSEPH J. TOLAND

Way down in the swamps of Mount Epherata in New Jersey live thousands and thousands of little green frogs. Once all was happy in the little colony but such is not the condition today.

Once each little mud hole was filled with a contented group of frog families, but that was before the trouble came. A great big house was built in the midst of the mire and several men equipped with large nets came out and caught hundreds of members of the colony. Little did they know that soon hundreds of their number would be under the inquisitive knives of the pre-med students out here at Villanova.

The particularly odiferous pussies which the sophisticated sophomores like to tear apart a bit at a time come from the taxadermy laboratories of one Professor Walters down near the University of Pennsylvania. Those used for open house demonstrations are the product and donation of the alleys of the neighboring communities. It is nice to have tender-hearted neighbors.

Thirty-six of our students around here will tell you that Massachusetts is the best place in the world to be dropped by the mythical stork. They will tell you that the Bay State has the most beautiful woodlands and shoreline of any of the states in our fair union.

Several thousand other inhabitants of the same region come to Villanova every year but, amazing as it may seem, they do not spend hours upon end annoying their fellow passengers to the diploma by bending their ears about Massachusetts. They will tell you that certain vicinities of the Bay State are the worst places in which to be born. Legend up there has it that only sons and daughters of those who have been malicious are unfortunate enough to have been born ner the tip of Cape Cod where the famous Marine supply laboratories of the Woods Hole institute are located. Paramecium, crayfish and starfish tribes have it in for Villanova because great havec is annually wrecked in their ranks so that the students of the college may spend a few precious afternoons in the spacious laboratories working for a bit of parchment which will entitle them to go higher in the field of education.

Possibly if Villanova students will remember the labor and sacrifice attached to obtaining the specimens for them to play with they will be more gentle in their dealings with the individuals of another world.

THE inter-collegiate football season has drawn to a close with the playing of the Turkey day games and the annual Army and Navy fracas. The only games still left on the card are the New Year's games among the nation's finest. It's about this time of year that little groups are found huddled over their charts, statistics, notes, and what have you. A few words, plenty of brain work and presto, chango you have an all-American selection.

—V—

Hiding behind a blush we submit our selections for this roll of honor. Look 'em over while we reach for a Murad. Ends: Kelley, Yale; Tinsley, L. S. U.; Tackles: Widseth, Minn.; Franco, Fordham; Guards: Lautor, N. Dame; Webb, N. Car.; Center: Fuller, Northwestern; Backs: Uram, Minn.; Meyer, Army; Haines, Wash.; Quarterback: Riley, Ala. Another selection which was voted unanimously by the sports staff of the VILLANOVAN was "All-American Monday Morning Quarterback" and bum prognosticator. This award we present to Bill Dooly of the Record.

—V—

Auburn, Villanova's opponent in the New Year's engagement at Havana, Cuba, came out victorious in a match against the University of Florida, Saturday. Auburn's two touchdowns, that won the game 13 to 0, were made in the first half. Playing cozy, in preparation for the 'Cats, Coach Meagher yanked the regulars and the second string men played the remainder of the game. Extensive training for the New Year's tilt started yesterday in the Main Line Stadium and the Villanova boys are rarin' to go. After scouting the Auburn aggregation at Montgomery, Ala., "Clipper" has a wealth of information on the Southerners that will no doubt prove advantageous.

—V—

Ray Gadsby is very enthusiastic about his boxing prospects this year. After creating a hard fighting squad last year with a handful of experienced men as a nucleus, the job this year looks easy. A wealth of material has been discovered by the members hiding shyly around the campus and from these glove men a fine squad will be formed. The schedule for the leather pushers is one of the hardest in the east and nearly all of the top flight mauling experts will be met. The annual mural contests will be held December 14 and all should be there.

—V—

A birdseye view was had by yours truly of the annual Army and Navy affair at Municipal Stadium. After every thing was over, we were in possession of a slightly used ticket and a pair or doggone cold feet. The color that marks this classio was strangely absent unless it could be found in the ears and particularly in the noses of those in our immediate vicinity. The Army mule was present, the goat arrived in a style befitting, at least, in an admiral, and a rabbit crashed the gate. It was so cold that the rabbit only ran on two legs at a time.

—V—

In a recent article, Sam Laird, of the Philadelphia Record, set forth some astonishing facts. Mr. Laird said that the big three of Philadelphia ranks way ahead of any other big city teams. Villanova, Temple and Penn were the three big teams mentioned. Among the other city teams mentioned were Fordham, Columbia, N. Y. U., and Manhattan, New York teams. Pitt, Duquesne, and Carnegie represented the Pittsburg area. Chicago U, and Marquette were the midwest teams. Leading Colleges on the coast were also named.

BASEBALL IN AGAIN

Major League baseball comes to the fore for a few short days when the big league owners get together for their annual December meeting. As usual, this convention will be the birthplace of many diamond rumors.

INTRAMURAL BOXING TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD DECEMBER 14

Captain Tony Sala Will Give Exhibition With Bob Buckley, Veteran Heavyweight

MANY VETERANS AMONG CANDIDATES FOR VARSITY

Marquette-Tamburri; Jarosik-Pete Rodgers Will Be Feature Bouts

Fists will fly furiously on December the fourteenth when the intramural boxing tournament will take place in the college gymnasium at eight P. M.

Many members of last year's varsity boxing team will fight in addition to the new prospects for the squad. Captain Tony Sala, who has held the Eastern Inter-Collegiate light-heavyweight title for the past two years will put on an exhibition bout with Bob Buckley, heavyweight who will well be remembered for his knockout victory last year at Washington and Jefferson for the deciding point. Sala and Buckley put on an exhibition last year after the regular bouts with Temple when the Owls forfeited the last two matches.

A feature bout will be between Jack Jarosik, another of last season's veterans and "All-American" Pete Rodgers, member of the freshman football squad. Carl Pantalone who fought in the 125 pound class now fought in the 125 pound class last year will be matched against Eddie Higgins, former Staunton Military Academy boy. Stan Bobrowski and Jim Butler, both veterans from last year will also meet in the ring.

"Stuhlie Says" to Scribe as Badger's Coach Watches Penn-Cornell Fracas

By JOHN B. GERAGHTY, Jr.

Thanksgiving Day! Ol' Pappy Penn and the Big Red battling it out on the frozen turf of Franklin Field. Bands. (That Cornell outfit is the smoothest outfit that graced these poor eyes in many a day.) Guys and their gals. Chrysanthemums. Coffee in pint bottles, in quart bottels. Funny how many citizens brought coffee in flasks. Cheerleaders. People. And stuff.

Somebody gave me a seat in the press box, right on the 50 yard line, way up on top of Franklin Field. Winds are verra cold on top of Franklin Field. But they gave us coffee in cups. 'N' cheese sandwiches. All on the eye, too. Press box was a mighty good place, that day.

Cornell, 6; Penn, 0.

Cornell gave Penn a jolt. Cornell scores. The North stands go mad. But nobody cares in the Press Box. They almost threw me out. I cheered. People don't cheer in press boxes. And I did. But they forgave me and told me to shut up. And I did.

I got cold. I began to shiver. They told me to walk around. They were afraid the place would shake apart. It was cold. So I walked around.

So I saw somebody's hat. I think I have seen that hat before. No. it wasn't my hat. It was some other guy's hat. But whose? I dunno, yet. I say a frozen, "Hello" to the guy. And the guy turns around and glares at me. Then the glare thaws out, the cicles crack, and he grins. A wide grin. I hoped his grin would stop before his face unhinged. But it did. And it didn't.

It was Stuhlie.

I was right. I did know that hat. It must have been Stuhlie's. 'Cause he wore it.

Stuhlie Looks Swell

And now we get down to business.

Stuhlie looked like a page from Esquire. (advt.) He was sheathed in a light camel's hair doublebreasted coat, with a wrap around belt. And brown string gloves. And a brown suit. And dark brown shoes. And the hat. He really did look quite nifty.

We had a nice little talk while the bands were dodging each other.

SANTA CLARA OFFER ARRIVES TOO LATE

Coast Game Refused; Havana Bid Already Accepted By College

One day after Villanova authorities accepted the Havana invitation they received a telegram from the Knights of Columbus in San Francisco asking them to play a charity football game with Santa Clara, only major unbeaten, untied team in the country. in the sun-drenched Kezar stadium of the Golden Gate City on December 20.

Drama and setting would have been matched to perfection, if this game had been accepted, as "Clipper" Smith would see two teams using the same system, and both coached under him, wage a fierce battle.

Having already accepted the offer to play Auburn in Havana, Villanova naturally was forced to refuse the coast invitation with thanks, and a hope that the future years would enable them to fulfill the date they missed on this occasion.

Great credit is due Coach Smith and the Villanova team, for receiving two such fine offers, and only time will enable them to return their appreciation by living up to the praise in the forthcoming game at Havana with the great Auburn team.

VILLANOVA FIVE MEETS SETON HALL IN OPENING TILT

Coach Severance Loses Trio of Stars; Two Definitely Out For Entire Season

VETERAN HALL TEAM HAS HIGH SCORING FORWARD

Wealth of Wildcat Reserve Material May Swing Battle

By JOHN E. DIMON

Wanted: One crying towel for immediate use. See or call Coach Al Severance at the college Gym.

With the strong Seton Hall quintet supplying the opposition, the hapless Villanova varsity basketball squad will officially open the present court season this Saturday night at the Gym, minus the services of three star performers.

When Coach Severance trotted out his first varsity court edition early in October for practice sessions, he had prospects of an exceptionally good season in his first attempt. The reason for his optimism was based upon the fact that he had the entire last year's undefeated Freshman team on hand to bolster the squad of candidates composed of the cream of last season's regulars.

Practice sessions were coming along fine and many improvements were noticed in the personnel of the candidates. In fact, everything was all right until the Frosh-Soph field day. The Frosh came out victorious, and the Sophs came out with a casualty that rocked the campus. Joe Carrig received a crushed shoulder in the fray, and the promising collegiate basketball

Upper Darby Association Presents Silver Plaque to Fullback

Well earned recognition for his superlative brand of play all season was received yesterday by Arty Raimo at a luncheon given for the Villanova football team by the Lions Club of Upper Darby at Pierre's.

Raimo, voted the most valuable player by the Wildcat squad, received as an award a silver plaque mounted on a walnut base. Amid an ovation that lasted for several minutes, the trophy was presented to the diminutive fullback by the president and presiding chairman of the Lions club, Winfield Biele.

Arty entered Villanova in 1934 and has played two years of Varsity ball. The lightest fullback in inter-collegiate ranks, Raimo tips the scales short of 150 pounds. His brilliant performance at both fullback and halfback posts this year earned him the right to the honor he received.

The program presented was both varied and entertaining. Selections by the Lions Glee Club, quartet, and a solo by the director of the Glee club, Martin Hess, added to the enjoyment of the affair.

The speakers were presented by Martin Gill, alumnus and former in-

BOWLERS START IN NEAR FUTURE

Annual Tournament Will Produce New Ten Pin Champion

Villanova's annual bowling tournament has not yet been played, due to the pleasant weather which has favored the Main Line campus in the past two months. Outdoor sports have been predominant in the picture, but the rattle of pins will soon be heard as the intramural bowlers take possession of the now idle alleys.

Last year's contests saw Frank Rodgers top Jordan Olivari in a hotly contested match. Florindo Troncelitti finished a close third in an exciting battle in which all schools and halls were well represented.

Advance notices of this season's games indicate a torrid time for all entrants. Rodgers graduated, and as a result a new champion will be crowned. From all appearances, Olivari must be rated as the man to beat, due to his stellar play in the finals, unless some new star is produced from the ranks of the Freshman class.

RED CROSS TEST PRACTICE BEGUN

Scanlan and Gornowski Supervise Workouts for Senior Certificates

Tests for Senior Red Cross life saving certificates will be held in the near future. The test comprises a complete knowledge of artificial respiration, saving a drowning person, and a use of the pulmotor.

Instructions for these examinations will be conducted by Ward Scanlan, varsity swimming team candidate, and all desiring to join the classes should communicate with him at Fedigan Hall or at the swimming pool.

Edward Gornowski, Junior Engineer, will examine all applicants, and award the certificates making the possessor a full fledged member of the member of the Red Cross. All persons having attained the age of seventeen and who can fulfill the requirements are eligible for this insignia.

All students who have any ability in swimming are urged to come out for the practice and tests.

Mendel Dayhops Retain Lead in Mural Race

Mendel Resident Quintet In Threatening Position

Lloyd Rice Big Gun As Penthousers Defeat Austin Club; Fedigan Shows Class in Rout of Alumni Five

DAYHOPS WIN BY FORFEIT FROM C&F

This past week's games in the intramural league saw no change in the standings of the teams. The Mendel Dayhop aggregation, the defending champs, are still in the lead, holding a very slim margin over the Mendel Hall resident quintet. Fedigan in third place is only one half a game behind the runners up.

The feature of the week's schedule was the thrilling 30-27 defeat the Mendel Residents handed Father McKee's Austin club last Tuesday night. With Lloyd Rice as the big gun of the attack the frosh stepped out at the start to get a lead they never relinquished.

By the half time they had piled up a comfortable 13-8 margin. The McKeemen staged a valiant comeback in the second half but fell just a little short. "Doc" Conte led this sortie with four field goals. Jimmy Dwyer contributed two during this rally.

Rice with five goals and a foul led the scorers; Dwyer and Conte came through with ten and eight points, respectively, to get runner-up honors.

In the other Tuesday night game the third place Fedigan team had an easy time of it in subduing Alumni. Although the Gigolos were held to an 8-7 lead at halftime, they had too much in reserve and rolled over their opponents in the final period to pound out a 27-15 victory. This was one of the most onesided contests of the season.

Norby Ford and Harold Hart, roomates in 105 Fedigan, were the sparkplugs of the Fediganites' winning rally. Norby rang up three field goals, while Hart went him a point better scoring a foul in addition to three goals.

The league leading Mendal Dayhops retained their lead without playing a game. One was scheduled with C&F day students for Monday afternoon, but the Business men forfeited.

"Stuhlie Says"

(The Big Red band made Penn's gang look anaemic.)

He told me about Wisconsin and the great co-operation he is receiving. He said he was by no means disappointed in the Badgers.

Midwestern Ball Tougher

"We just didn't have the material to get by in that Big Ten league. Football in the Midwest seems to be more, let us say, rugged. The boys out there are big, and smart football players. We won two games this year, and although losing six, the spirit is at its highest peak since 1931.

Although Wisconsin was licked in several games, they did not quit. They scored at least one touchdown in every game. The student body and alumni thrill me by their loyalty. They are behind the team every inch of the way.

Smith Fine Man

"Villanova has a great team and a great coach. "Clipper" Smith is the finest man you could have thought of. He is an excellent coach and a thorough gentleman. He is the kind of man for whom the boys will go to almost any limit. He is an inspiring, fighting clever coach, and I am mighty pleased that he has done so unusually well his first season. It is an indication of the man himself.

It was a tough break that lost that Temple game. From what I understand, the teams were perfectly matched, and Andy Stopper's injuries prevented him from geting that ball away a tenth of a second sooner. The Bucknell game is something that happened to me every year at Villanova. In one ball game in which we were outstanding favorites, the team would blow up. And there goes the ball game.

I was overjoyed to hear of the invitation to Havana. The team deserved it. I'm proud to have been associated with such a school as Villanova, and I wish Mr. Smith all the luck in the world."

'Cats vs. Badgers

I thanked this grand fellow for taking time out of his few days in Philly to talk to me, but I couldn't resist one, last crack.

"Mr. Stuhldreher, how about a Wisconsin-Villaiova game."

He grinned again and said, "I'm too much afraid of you boys now. Wait about three or four years, and we'll see.

Raimo Gets Award From Lions Club

structor of English and Varsity swimming coach at Villanova, who acted as toastmaster were: Joseph D. Freney, Esq., President of the Villanova Club of Phila., Rev. Charles J. Melchior, O.S.A., Procurator and moderator of Athletics at Villanova, and the speaker of the afternoon, Maurice "Clipper" Smith varsity football coach.

"Clipper," in his speech, stressed the fact that although Auburn is not a big name team in this locality they will furnish the 'Cats with plenty of opposition in the New Years Game at Havana. Phrasing his words in the terse, pointed, manner characteristic of his profession "Clipper" thanked the assembled Lions for their manifested support of the team and promised that they would have reason to be proud of their adopted team.

The meeting was adjourned upon the awarding of the trophy. Raimo in his acceptance speech thanked the squad for selecting him as the most valuable player and also tendered his thanks to every one concerned in the presentation of the award.

FROSH BASKETEERS FIGHT FOR BERTHS

Array of Talent Has Coach Guessing; First Call Selection Tough

Freshman basketball is now coming into its final stage. Some fifteen men are battling for first call berths.

The competition has been so keen that at the present writing it is impossible to call a first string aggregation.

The freshman squad should be strong, inasmuch as they have height, speed, and are well grounded in the fundamentals. The brand of basketball the frosh exhibited against the varsity foretells of a promising team.

This coming season Villanova will not give away height, a feature which has hurt in the past. Parker, Bill Sinnott, Ertle and a few other boys are all over the six feet marker and top the fairbanks at respectful weights. Taller and better basketball men like a few on the freshman squad will help Villanova's prestige in the basketball world in the future.

If the boys continue to show the same quality of court-work as they have in the past few days, they will undoubtedly be a great asset to the varsity quintet next year when they will be elegible to participate in major sports.

By PAT VASSALLUZZO

His full name is Stanley Bernard Galazin, but we know him as "Bunny." Very few of us know how he acquired that nickname, and very few know much about his life and athletic career prior to his matriculation at Villanova.

So we of the VILLANOVAN staff decided to find out all about "cabellero Galazin" (quoting Fr. Sparrow). It was no easy task to exact the information desired from his modest, "big-hearted Charlie"; but with the aid of Bukoski and Shedosky, two of our frosh footballers from Bunny's home town, we finally got what we wanted.

Bunny was born on Christmas Day, 1913 (we still are wondering why he wasn't called Natale), in Nanticoke, Pa. He learned (?) his fundamentals at Lincoln School, and then went on to Nanticoke Junior High School. Here he played two years of football, baseball and basketball. He also participated in track and field events, throwing the discus.

Upon graduation from Junor High School. "Bunny" went to work with his father in the coal mines. After two years of hard labor, he returned to school.

"Bunny" enrolled at Nanticoke High School. He was barred from participating in athletics for 90 days because of a ruling prohibiting one who has been away from school for over a year from participating in any form of athletic competition. Therefore, he couldn't play football in his freshman year; but he did play basketball and baseball. All in all, "Bunny" played three years of baseball 1by and basketball (forward(, and two years of football.

Incidentally, Nanticoke High won the Bloomsburg tournament in Galazin's freshman year, and Bunny was second high scorer in the conference in his sophomore year.

He played at fullback on the football team in his junior year, and end in his sophomore, and was selected on the All-Scholastic team both years at different positions.

From Nanticoke High, Stan went to Factoryville, Pa., and enrolled at Keystone Academy. He stayed here one year, playing basketball, baseball, and football, and although playing end in the latter, he was second only to his roommate, Bill Shephard, in scoring.

It may be of interest to many to know that "Bunny" has confessed that end is really the position he loves to play. Too, in his High Schol and prep school days, Galazin has played with or against five men that later became All-Americans; among which are Bill Shephard, Skaldony, and Shedonsky. The former is from Western Maryland while the other two are from Pitt. Shedosky is the brother of the aforementioned frosh football player at Villanova.

After graduation from Keystone, Academy, "Bunny" was offered scoiarships to Pitt, Michigan, Colgate and Bucknell; but chose Villanova, where he matriculated in 1933.

In his freshman year at Villanova, Stan was placed at a tackle post on the football squad, played the outfield on the Wildcat nine and was given a center berth on the basketball quintet, of which he was captain.

During Spring practice of the same year Harry Stuhldreher placed "Bunny" at center. Pleased with the way Stan bucked up the line, Stuhldreher permanently affixed Galazin to the jivot position. The following season "Bunny" was a substitute center for Charley Nowe. In his sophomore year, he also played baseball; but had no time for basketball.

In his junior year Galazin put all his time on football, dropping baseball too. Since then he has been the regular center. He reached his peak this season in the Manhattan game, when he played masterful football for the full sixty minutes.

Asked who was the best center he ever played against in Collegiate football. "Bunny" names Kiss of South Carolina. Considering the fact that Bunny played opposite Cherundolo of Penn State and Messervey of Temple, it seems to be a large statement; but Stan will soon convince you he is right.

Everyone knows that the Wildcats are going to Havana, Cuba, to engage Auburn on New Year's Day; but very few know that Bunny, together with a certain member of the Villanova faculty are offering, at a reasonable stipend, lessons in Spanish, called "Learn Spanish in Three Easy Lessons." (Shucks! Here we are carrying tales again.)

Lest we forget—When Galazin was a mere lad in Grammar school he always played with rabbits. Since then he has bee known as "Bunny." Lots of luck down there in Cuba "Bunny"!

SWIM COACH MOANS LACK OF SPRINTERS

Leahy Former Speedster Changes To Distance Events

Villanova's mermen are definitely taking a step forward this year in adding bigger and tougher teams to their schedule for the coming season.

Official sanction for the publication of the opponents' names has not yet been received but it is known that one of Villanova's natural rivals will be included.

This will be Coach Mathieu's first season as mentor of the mermen and with the former freshmen who proved their worth last season coupled with the other vetrans of the squad a successful season is anticipated.

If our future opponents allow the team to use this year's freshmen in the coming meets Coach Mathieu will be more than pleased because he has at his call Charlie Timmins, Catholic Inter - scholastic diving champion. It will be necessary to use a freshman in this important event because there is a dearth of diving material among the upperclassmen.

Sprint men are the main worry of the Coach this year. Bill Leahy who invariably made a clean sweep of the 50 and 100 yard dashes last year has turned his attention to the longer distances for the coming season since he feels that the new teams that are to be added to the schedule will have more strength in the longer events.

Coach Mathieu is of the same opinion and former experience has taught him that in one season it is easier to break in sprint men than it is to break in distance swimmers.

the heavy weight class for Ray Gadsby to choose from. Beside Buckley there is Abe Sambra, a member of the freshman football squad, Reds Camen, 212 pounds, Ruteckl, 205, and Costello who weighs about 210.

Vincent Shugrue, bantamweight from last year, is the leading contender for that position this year. Shugrue looked very good in an exhibition bout last Tuesday night with Carl Panteleo. Mike Rodriguez is another candidate in the 115 pound class.

Among the newcomers to the squad who look very promising are Ed Kirk, 135 pounder; Bill Duffey, 145 pounder; Pat Rooney, 155 pounder, and Bill O'Brien, lightweight.

One of the feature bouts of the intramurals will be the heavyweight bout between "Slugger" Pat Marquette and "Roundhouse" Emelio Tamburri. Everyone will remember this viciously fought battle last year in which Marquette came out the victory on a technical knockout.

Joe Carroll, member of the debating team and possessor of the best left jab in school, will represent the Mendel Day Hops in the 165 pound class. "Battling Joe" Tanzola is working out daily and will be another contender for the 125 pound class. Bill Christopher, and boxing season that beckoned him became a dismal afterthought. Joe was counted upon to go to town in both fields of sport.

Villanova Five Meets Seton Hall

Last week Severence received a double shock. Charlie Noonan left school and will not be back. Charlie was the mainstay of the Cat quintet last year, although only a green and lanky Sophomore. He worked in a unit with Walt McKenna, Lou Dubino, Jim Montgomery and Don Brennan. This group, all topping six feet, showed promises of a high scoring combination.

The unit is definitely split for Jim Montgomery high scoring forward of the Frosh last year was injured in a practice fray against the yearlings. The injury although not very serious will keep him out of the Seton Hall encounter. Walt McKenna will provide at least one consolation to the squad. His fine work during the past week will undoubtedly gain him a starting berth Saturday night.

The only other sure starter is Don Brennan, snappy center of last year's five. Don has been switched to guard this year. He has adapted himself so well to the backcourt position that he will probably start there in the opening game. His scoring ability has not been enhanced, for he is fast and aggressive and can figure in many scoring plays. His defense playing is superb, and opposing forwards will have a busy time trying to score on him.

Seton Hall started its season several weeks ago. Two games have been played against major opponents, and the Hallers have won both of them by comparitively high scores. Bus McNally, their ace forward has scored 14 points in each contest. A high scoring as well as tight defensive team is built around him and they are expected to give Villanova plenty if not too much trouble.

The Wildcats on the other hand have an abundance of reserve material that is very good and they should come through, when called upon. Art Vigilante, all-State guard from New Jersey is bound to go places as soon as the season is under way. Johnny Krutulis should provide much of necessary scoring power despite his deficiency in heighth. Joe Hopkins, another new comer to the varsity ranks should also see a great deal of action in the lidlifter, as well as the remaining games.

varsity quarterback, will represent Austin Hall.

There is still time to put in your entry for the intramural tournament. Candidates should either see Father McKee or Ray Gadsby, boxing coach. There is no limit to the number on any team. Notable fighters from the ring and politics will be present at the occassion.

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

NOW that the regular football season is over Villanovans and Philadelphians (we hope) are looking forward to the New Year's day tussle at Havana. It wouldn't be too surprising if the Philadelphia papers gave us some well-deserved publicity, although the slight possibility that Penn will be invited to the Rose Bowl will probably be so important in their eyes as to hide completely the fact that the Wildcats were chosen as good will ambassadors of the United States. Incidentally, while we are on the subject of write-ups, the Quaker City dailies could take a few lessons from the New York papers on how to report Villanova games. The Manhattan fray stories were the best and biggest write-ups our pigskin chasers have had all season.

There are many radio football reporters, the best of which is probably Ted Husing, but for a change from the Husing style we like Bill Mundy. He doesn't have the accuracy of Ted, but he intersperses his comments with some humorous or whimsical expressions. His slow southern drawl is a pleasant relief from the clipped speech of some of the northern commentators.

Some of the lads around here have mentioned the fact, that there should be a placque, or award for decorations on buildings during Temple week. Other institutions of learning, such as Penn State, follow this policy, and it has worked very successfully. Those lads who adorned Alumni Hall with such telling effect will have a chance to show some more of their originality in the big get-together which will be held shortly before the Christmas holidays. Auburn would be a suitable subject for their consideration.

Some of the boys say the food here is not so good, but the younger brother of one of the officers of the class of '38 said that he (the class officer) gained twenty pounds here during Freshman year. Life is like that.

Mike Garbark weakened one day and told us that his name was not Michael Nathaniel, as many believed, but Nathaniel Michael.

There is an ugly rumor going about the campus that one of the football players has acquired a book of "How to Speak Spanish in Twelve Easy Lessons." All the players accused of this indignantly deny any such action.

For those of you who don't know what to ask Santa Claus to put in your stocking this Xmas, we suggest that your request be for a boat ticket to Cuba, such ticket to be effective on or about January 1, 1937. If he can scrape that much together it shouldn't be hard to get the necessary pesos to get into the Tropical Stadium.

The fact that Burleigh Grimes has been doomed to pilot Brooklyn's dizzy Dodgers leads us to the consideration of whether or not the Dodgers are as goofy as sports writers would have us believe. After seeing the weird officiating displayed at the Manhattan tussle, we are inclined to think it is the environment of Ebbets Field that makes the Dodgers so erratic, and any inherent defects in the Brooklynites individual make-up.

Nothing much has been heard of the proposed hockey team. We saw notices about the meeting for all members wishing to participate, but very little else has been said concerning the skating enthusiasts.

Villanova's version of the Golden Gloves tournament is soon to be presented. Reference is made to the inter-mural boxing show. The box fights are most interesting, and no one should miss them. As the Xmas get-together is tentatively set for the following night, no studying will be done that week, so there is no excuse for not being present, at either affair.

JUSTICE BRANDEIS IS YOUTH BOOSTER

Despite His 80 Years Barrister Is Still Active in Guidance Circles

Friday, November 13, despite the superstition of bad luck, marked in Washington the birthday anniversary of a man who is old as reckoned in years, but who continues to be one of the most progressive forces of youth in America. Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis, of the United States Supreme Court, was 80 years old on that date, but he continues to be an inspiration for those recent, and not so recent, college men who come in contact with him or follow his writings.

Associate Justice Brandeis is the center of what is said to be the closest approach to an intellectual forum in the capitol, and fortunate is the young man who is allowed to take part in these discussions. Periodically, a group of young men meets with Justice Brandeis at his home to discuss various phases of world affairs. Thus, this 80-year-old jurist keeps his fingers on the pulse of youth and continues to serve as a guiding star for some of the nation's brightest young minds.

National Youth Administration Reveals Opportunities In Conservation Projects

"WANTED: college trained men and women to accept places in the field of conservation."

Such an ad might well make its appearance, if the facts ascertained by certain federal agencies are to be relied on. With the country becoming increasingly conscious of its natural resources, there are several fields of conservation in which there is a scarcity of trained young persons to take the places that are opening up.

The National Youth Administration has invaded the field of conservation in its effort to create employment for young men and women, and it has found a dearth of conservation courses in the curriculums of colleges and universities throughout the country.

Efforts are being made to interest educational institutions in courses on conservaion and, if this is done, college graduates of the near future may find themselves equipped to enter a field that is, to say the least, not overcrowded.

A number of conservation demonstration projects are in the process of development by the NYA and it is thought by officials of this agency that these exhibits will stimulate the interest of college men and women in what may grow to be a new profession.

Economic Changes Alter Food Habits In Past 50 Years

Deficiency of Protein Noted in Diets of American People

Cambridge, Mass. — (ACP)—The reason that the American people are not eating enough of protein foods which are essential for good nutrition lies in the tremendous economic changes — changes which have altered the people's food habits in the past half century.

Professor Chester M. Jones of the Harvard Medical School recently told the annual session of the American Dietetic Association that our pioneer ancestors obtained more than a liberal supply of proteins from the abundant fish and game which was theirs for the asking.

Later, when most of the people lived on farms, domestic animals supplied milk, cheese, and meat for home and village consumption, he said. With the increased industrialization and with the development of cities came increase in the prices of these commodities. Naturally price caused people to omit these foods from their diets.

Professor Jones explained that several diseases result from a deficiency of protein and to offset the diseases foods such as meat, especially liver, and milk should be emphasized in the diet.

Student Writer Classifies Various Types of Co-Eds Present on Campus

To categorize the different types of co-eds on the average college campus in anything but the "trite and true" fashion is a difficult task. When the job is done as well as a writer in the Springfield College Student did it, it deserves to be quoted:

"First there is the 'athletic type,' well developed in a muscular manner; shoots a good game of golf; knows the difference between a fullback and a centerfielder; knows that 'Muscle Shoals' is a sound and not a grappler. She is the girl who will beat you at tennis; so be careful whom you ask to play a couple of sets; she may be the next Helen Wills Moody.

"If you are fond of dancing, no doubt you will run across the 'little lump of sugar type.' This type looks like something out of Heaven, but, in truth just dropped out of Chicopee. She's all right for dancing, but when she opens her mouth a wad of gum as big as her fist is likely to fall out.

"Next comes the favorite 'clinging vine.' She's worse than poison ivy, mumps, and whooping cough at the same time. Just a bundle of nerves, awfully excited, scared of mice; looks at you like a half-starved, love-sick calf. She thinks the greater powers have sent a Springfield man to her — so beware of her clutches.

"Then there is the 'gimme gimme' type. She spends most of her time smoking cigarets, eating nut caramel, and reading 'Modern Romance.' Everything that her fair eye catches she wants. Nothing interests her except a worldly possession of trinkets given to her by masculine admirers with hearts as 'weak as water.' With that little itsy, bitsy, baby lingo, she is apt to acquire quite a collection.

"Of course, you probably will meet someone, somewhere, sometime, who will be the ideal girl. The girl who could be brought home to mother, observed by dad, and okayed by Junior. If you haven't much money she would just as soon walk as ride the trolley. She knows you should study five nights a week and spend the other two with her (until twelve). She is interested in your work; has a sense of humor, a keen personality; not bad on the blinkers. Put them all together and you have one swell girl."

NOTED GYRO PILOT LANDS HELICOPTER HERE TOMORROW

William S. McCormick Due To Descend on Campus Section at 10:15

ACCOMPANIED BYRD ON 2ND POLAR EXPEDITION

Student Body Convenes at 10:45 for Illustrated Lecture in C & F Auditorium

William S. McCormick, prominent autogyro pilot, will deliver an illustrated lecture on the autogyro and the second Byrd Antarctic Expedition to the entire student body tomorrow morning at 10:45 A. M. in the Commerce and Finance Building Auditorium.

This announcement was revealed by Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president of the college, who made the necessary arrangements to bring this noted speaker here.

Unusual color and interest will be added to Mr. McCormick's address tomorrow as he will make his appearance upon the campus by autogyro. The ship which he flies is a replica of the one used by the Byrd explorers in the frozen south polar regions.

Will Land On Campus

McCormick will circle the campus two or three times and then descend upon the fairway between the Commerce and Finance Building and the gymnasium. The exact arrival is undeterminable, but it is timed for approximately 10:15 A. M.

McCormick will relate the experiences of Admiral Byrd's second expedition into the Antarctic regions. By word, steriopticon slides, and moving pictures, he will demonstrate how many otherwise practically impossible feats of the expedition were accomplished by use of the autogyro.

He is especially qualified to discuss this phase of the work and discoveries of Admiral Byrd and

Keyhole Peeking, At-door Listening Reporter Tells of Wondrous Doings

By HUGH FERGUSON

We once heard a bit of wisdom with words to the effect that, "All music is noise, but all noise is not music." Keeping this in mind we decided to amble around these hallowed (?) walls, and by dint of much peeking through keyholes, knotholes and such, to see what we could see in regard to preparations for the coming Amateur Night.

Dr. Toland At Work

For no good reason other than the fact that we happened to be near it, we chose Austin Hall as our first snooping ground. Climbing to the heights, we looked in on 336 and saw JOE TOLAND rehearsing his impersonation of an appendicitis operation, or in other words, an organ recital, removal, or what have you. Continuing our ramblings, we heard strains of the current hits, "Chapel in the Moonlight," and investigation disclosed that the source of this was JACK CHAPPLE exercising his tonsils. And then who should come "stompin'" around the corner but ALEX BELL, crutches and all. Also, forsooth, we hear it whispered that JIM BUTLER is readying his Shakespearean interpretations for the gala event. Feeling pretty good because of our success as a news-gatherers, we wandered on down the corridor, and tried another keyhole. Much to our disgust, someone had hung their red flannels on the door-knob. There's

Annual Football Banquet Proves Colorful Affair

"Clipper" Smith, Captain Tony Sala Receive High Praise From Host of Speakers; McGlaughlin Is Toastmaster

'RIP' MILLER AMONG THOSE PRESENT

Honoring the 1936 edition of the Wildcat football machine, the Villanova Alumni Club of Philadelphia held its 16th successive banquet at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, last night.

High administration officials of the college and many notables of the sporting world were included among the vast audience attending the tribute to the gridiron warriors.

This testimonial dinner followed one of the most successful campaigns enjoyed by the Blue and White, which culminated in their acceptance of a post-season contest in Cuba on New Year's Day.

Coach Maurice "Clipper" Smith, who is celebrating his first year as tutor of the Wildcats, and the entire football team, headed by Captain Sala were honor guests at the function.

The Villanova squad and Coach Smith received glowing praise from the host of speakers who proved to be the greatest group of orators ever assembled to address a football banquet.

Martin J. McLaughlin, '14, Chief of the Department of Public Works of the City of Philadelphia, served in the capacity of toastmaster and capably introduced each of the speakers.

The college was represented by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College; Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice-president; Rev. Charles J. Melchior, O. S. A., director of athletics at Villanova; Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., dean of the School of Science, and Rev. Paul Healey, O. S. A., prior.

Among the notables attending the affair and who proved very capable speakers were: "Rip" Miller, assistant coach at Annapolis; Lawson Robertson, head track coach at the

L'AFFAIRE SIMPSON

THE American newspapers today are splashing headlines across their front pages regarding the development of the affair between Mrs. Simpson and King Edward, and working themselves into a romantic fervor in their editorial columns. It would be well for them to consider this case under an aspect which until now has either been disregarded or very lightly considered. That is the moral complications involved in the problem.

Mrs. Simpson may and undoubtedly does possess a charming personality, a vivacious and stimulating freshness of wit and imagination that makes her a desirable companion, but she does not possess, and this can hardly be gainsaid, an elementary idea of moral responsibility or decorum. Twice divorced, and the second one a decidely unsavory affair. For the seemingly romantic implications of a pliant subject bowing before the will of his soverign cannot disguise the fact that the whole thing was a contemptible mockery of their marriage vows, nor that the "gentlemanly thing" necessitated a certain amount of perjury in the courts.

King Edward by reason of his birth holds the highest position in the United Kingdom. He is not only the King but also the head of the English Church. Two positions which make it absolutely necessary that the occupant be the foremost in the realm in the advocacy of moral and virtuous living. By reason of the popularity that the King enjoys among the common people, it is more incumbent upon him to wield this favor as an instrument for good

It is quite possible that Stanley Baldwin, the members of the Cabinet, and the Archbishops of Canterbury and York are correct in their contention that Mrs. Simpson is not the woman for the throne of England. These men have and are spending their lives in the service of the State and Church. Their tenacity to the principles of propriety and morality are too well-known to believe them actuated by any influence other than the desire for the continued well-being of the British Monarch and people.

If King Edward, whose obstinacy in certain matters is well-known, continues adamant in his determination to marry Mrs. Simpson even though it be at the expense of abdication there can be little doubt that it will cause a number of social and economic disturbances which at the present time England can little afford to undergo. The matter lies in the hands of the King. So that we join the English people, but with a little more emphasis, in their exhortation that "God save the King."

REVIVE N. R. A.

IN a recent speech at Rochester, New York, Msgr. John Augustine Ryan, the most erudite and the most distinguished of Catholic economists and sociologists in these United States, dared to propose that a new, re-inforced National Recovery Act be re-introduced. It was the contention of Monsignor Ryan that unless certain economic features of the capitalistic system are altered or modified, the present system is rushing headlong to destruction.

The capitalist system, many liberals feel, is a mystic sort of machine that is "self-regulating." This is un-economic and unrealistic, for the recent depression, if nothing else, showed how sadly we do need regulation.

Under the New Deal, we have achieved some sort of social security legislation, inadequate as it might appear to be. Also, under the SEC, we have the machinery for the prevention of another one of those terrible financial "panics" which plunged the country, periodically, into a period of depression. Further, in the public utility field, the Roosevelt Administration has frightened the Power Trust to such an extent that it is no longer the purse-proud, arrogant monster that once dominated the American scene. T. V. A. has made the utility men listen to reason.

As we survey the major fields of our economy, we see that the government has at least attempted to solve the most pressing problems of the time. It is in the field of industrial enterprise that we find little of real worth accomplished. That which the Roosevelt Administration did attempt, the N. R. A. experiment, was killed in a short while by the Supreme Court. Things have changed since then. We are no longer unfamiliar with such terms as "7-a," collective bargaining, mutual agreement between capital and labor, co-partnership, co-operation, and so forth. If another N. R. A. is revived, the psychological defense mechanism set up by the Republican Party, and by right-wing Democrats, such as Alfred E. Smith, will no longer have much influence on public opinion. These organizers of exploitation and teachers of laissez-faire have had their day.

Industry needs regulation just as much as does the Stock Exchange, the Bankers, or the Power Trust. To perpetrate the present state of industrial anarchy is only to send a special invitation to Moscow to come in and take over our decaying industrial order. Well has courageous Monsignor Ryan called our attention to the need for another, revived N. R. A. Social Justice demands it.

MORE SPIRIT NEEDED

OLD King Football will soon be dead and his place will be taken by Basketball, the ruler of Winter sports. During the past football season the Villanova student body was behind its team to a man. Villanova spirit was high. There is no reason therefore that this spirit should pass away with the gridiron sport.

If the Seton Hall game was any indication of the spirit which will back the basketball team it is feared that our basketeers will play before a spiritless crowd. Villanova's quintet is facing a long, hard schedule, and it needs the support, both moral and vocal, of the ENTIRE student body if it is to go through the card with the least possible number of mishaps.

Villanova students this is your team. It represents your school. Get behind it all of you and show the team by cheering and singing that you are for it.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

WITH the team going off to Havana for the last game of a great campaign it is time someone mentioned the greatest of football's unsung hero's—the substitute who seldom, if ever, gets into the game. Permit us to run this little poem which was suggested to us.

The Benchwarmer

The boy who sits with cheeks so red,
And his heart as heavy as lead;
He never stirs when things aren't right,
But grips the bench and sits quite tight;
He'd like to be the hero to score,
But grits his teeth while the grandstands roar.

He's hoping that he may get in the game,
And bring his Alma Mater fame;
He yearns to be the one who's feat,
Will make the victory complete;
Someday his dreams will all come true,—
Ae regular for the white and blue.

But for today he sits at the side,
And tries to stem his rising pride;
As luck will have it he doesn't play,
So he sits and waits for another day
And keeps dreaming of deeds undone,
Or daring plays and games unwon,

Some of the profs here at Villanova may think that the juniors in the school of Science represent one of the dumbest and one of the wildest groups ever to apply for degrees at this institution. In spite of these pedagogical rumblings they must admit that we do turn out a personality man once in a while. A few issues ago we mentioned that Joe Zibelli of our class had been elected president of the Temple Dental school freshmen. We are now proud to announce, for the edification of those same profs, that our erstwhile classmate Joe McGonnell has been elected to the same position by the first year men at Penn Dental school.

Villanova's campus has always been noted for its floral and arboreal beauty, and it is with sad heart that we notice the disappearance of many of the old trees that once lined our paths, roads. The campus authorities are trying to remedy the situation, however, by planting numerous evergreens in their places. It is a shame that our campus will not be completely restored to its former beauty until these trees have fully grown.

WHY A COLUMNIST'S HAIR TURNS GRAY

If I print jokes readers said I am ridiculous,
If I don't I am too serious.
If I print columns from other papers I am lazy.
If I don't I am stuck on myself.
If I stay in the Editorial office, I should be out hunting news.
If I do go out, I should be back working.
If I make a change in a student's article, I am too critical.
If I don't, I am asleep.
If I print the article the paper is full of junk.

That our alumni are so well organized.
That our gridsters received a bid to the Rose Bowl.
That those escalators have been installed,
That we have that free taxi — service to and from the city.
That no charge is ever made for bowling.
That the cut system has been abolished.
That intramural sports are so popular.
That everybody is sure to pass in those exams,
That Landon is President (in Maine and Vermont).
That it (whatever it is) can't happen here.

Our idea of an original good-bye was used by one of our own Freshmen when he took permanent leave from his young lady. The gentleman arrived as usual to have his regular date and informed the madame that beginning immediately their affair was to take on an "hors de combat" appearance. Without any explanation he left her with that remark that she see Fred Astaire's and Ginger Roger's picture "Swing - time." (Everyone will remember that little number—"A Fine Romance.")

As We See It... Horseplay

By HARRY PARKIN

WE have noticed a lamentable tendency on the part of certain individuals, whose numbers, fortunately, are very limited, to indulge in a type of rowdyism known as horse-play. Which, as a form of behaviour, seems to be more aptly described by attributing to it the name of another species of quadruped that is principally distinguished for its unusually long ears.

Considering the numerous attempts that have been made to find an adequate explanation for the activities that fall under this head, we are acquainted with none that lends itself so plausibly to its understanding, as the one that ascribes it to an immature personality. Lacking the amiableness, wit, or gentlemanliness necessary to command another's esteem and interest, these individuals seek to attract attention to themselves by physical boisterousness, rather than by the cultivation of more delicate and desirable qualities. Desiring public notice, but too indolent to acquire it through the development and exercise of those faculties by which men are accustomed to excite the regard of others, they strive to attain it through vociferous conduct.

College students are not children; yet we find some who seem take a childish delight in the physical heckling of others. At a time when their conduct should be taking on a dignity commensurate with the knowledge they are acquiring, when they should be developing the sprightliness of mind with which men of the world usually commune, when they should be learning that "delicate regard" for others feelings and sentiments, that education and experience so strongly recommend, we find students who are constantly forcing an unfavorable opinion of themselves upon others by their persistent rudeness.

We have, too often, seen a physically superior person wrestle another about the corridors or the pie shoppe not to have noticed the desire of the victim to be rid of the aggressor. Nor have we failed to note the air of self satisfaction that marks the victor of such encounters without feeling the necessity of telling him how ridiculously such actions become a person of education. How utterly trifling is the ability to push another from your path, and what a wealth of uncouthness is necessary for the task. How more commendable is the ability to use your intelligence rather than your arms.

Equally as offensive to the requirements of rectitude are those infected with the modified form of "equus plegere" which moves them to express their exuberance by throwing food stuffs or waste papers at others who are eating in the pie shoppe. Not only does this give the place an unkempt and disorderly appearance, but it often provokes the target of their missiles to such a pitch of anger and ill-feeling that he does not readily forget it.

If we can derive any satisfaction from this article—it being rather well established that there is as little pleasure in admonishing as there is in receiving it—it is to be found in the knowledge that there are comparatively few such individuals upon the campus. In fact their actual number might be counted upon one hand, but these few have the irritating faculty of so constantly exercising themselves in it, that there seems a "deal" more of them than actually exist.

The heritage of the Villanova man is one of culture and gentlemanliness. This College was founded and is maintained upon the noblest ideals known to man: the search for and spread of truth through self-sacrifice. Nowhere in its history or traditions has it been known to be found wanting in fidelity to these principles. Constantly seeking to inculcate and foster in the student a love for learning and rectitude, its teaching to be at all effective must become an intimate and working part of our lives. Mindful of this it becomes almost impossible to reconcile impervisuness to their influences with constant exposure to them. Which inclines us to the opinion that the direction to "Know thyself" is one of the most profound philosophical admonitions that we have yet encountered.

By RICHARD DEVERALL

HAVING been quite busy this week, what with running down to Washington for a few days and so forth, the writer (?) of this column naturally did not have time to read and review a book for this week. But, most interesting, he did run across something of great interest.

Having often heard about the Villanova College Student's Handbook, the writer decided to run through it, while on the train, to see just what was contained between the covers of that tiny little book which seems to cause so much trouble (to some, at least).

The college calendar reminded him that today would be a holiday (Tuesday, that it); next the Officers of Administration popped up, and following that all sorts of general information. Reading the section of discipline called to his attention the fact that, if rigorously followed out, the College would be a much more quiet place. The writer never did like to hear that chap next door who insisted in trying his piece at grand opera every evening at twelve or twelve-thirty o'clock. But so much for that. We can't all sing.

Being an incorrigible whistler himself, the writer felt that the note on "Quiet" was dangerous, for it forbids the making of "unnecessary noises . . . at all times."

Then following the part of the book dealing with Extra Curricular activities. On page 27 a Turf and Tinsel club was mentioned. Wonder where they hide the members? Probably there is not much interest in dramatics. But the next item, that referring to our Symphony orchestra, was most amazing. Here we go to the city to hear Mr. Stokowski, when, all the time, there has been a symphony orchestra on the campus. At least the regulations books tells us that ". . . this organization is composed of students who are musically inclined. Its membership numbers about sixty." The writer, being mentally conscious part of the time (although few persons on the campus really believe this), realized at once that this symphony orchestra is just one of things that we "should" have . . . but which do not in reality have existence.

But why can't we have a symphony orchestra here at Villanova, this columnist pondered. We have eight hundred or so men on the campus; at least we have almost four hundred resident students. Knowing that there are many men on the campus who are accomplished musicians (most emphatically this does in no way refer to the Villanovans), it is a crime against Beauty that we have no such organization here at Villanova.

Of all sensible things, Beauty is something that never loses its appeal to the human being. The craving for Beauty is satisfied in many ways; the Liturgy, Art, Music, Sculpture, natural scenery, a bird, a machine . . . almost anything according to the persons standards or tastes. But of all things, music is the most universal, the most oecumenical. To appreciate most of the other arts, save the arts of Nature, one must need know something about them, for as St. Thomas has observed, "one must know before one can love." But music is something that requires no foreknowledge. It is basic. Since the time that David made the first musical instrument to the time that Wagner penned his magnificent Siegfried Idyll, men have stopped their work at the sound of a musical note in order to listen, to appreciate, to love the harmony and tone, the Beauty that music awakens in the human Soul. Poet, Peasant, King, pauper . . . all are as one when drinking in the seraphic, sonorous movements of Beethoven's Fifth, or the gay Schumann's Concerto in A Minor . . . or even Sibelius' Majestic, Catholic Finlandia.

Won't some of the musicians on the campus do something about this? Would it not be possible, this Spring, to give a series of concerts by the Villanova Symphony Orchestra (my, how that would look in the Philadelphia papers!) conducted by the distinguished conductor, Signor . . . ? You men know that it is possible. Why not let us do something about it, for its no tribute to the men of Villanova that they do not in this field, produce anything creative. Oh yes, some of us listen to the concerts on Sunday afternoons, but that is a more or less passive thing. Let us "create" something, a thing of Beauty. We are surrounded by Beauty; let us produce a bit of Beauty ourselves!

CUBA

Cuban Money

THE Cuban standard of exchange is almost identical with that of the United States. The denominations of Cuban money, except for a few differences in the coins are the same. There is a Cuban dollar. There are 1c, 2c, 5c, 10c and 20c coins. All of this money is inter-changeable with United States money, and either will be accepted in payment for all transactions.

What To Wear

It is winter down in Cuba right now. But the temperature averages about 65 degrees. No overcoats are necessary, and the ordinary suit that you would wear up here in this country at this time of year, will be suitable for Cuba. No white suits or white shoes are necessary. Your present felt-hat will be all right.

Tropical Stadium

The Tropical Stadium, where the new year's day football game will be played, was erected only two years ago. Its capacity is about 50,000, and there is every reason to believe that it will be filled when Villanova plays there.

The stadium is built in the shape of a horse shoe, with the "prongs" of the shoe being comparatively short. Ordinarily in an American stadium of this type, the goal posts would be placed at the "bowl" end and at the open end. But the Tropical Stadium is built on such a scale that more people can see the game from good seats if the goal posts are placed exactly parallel with the "prongs" of the horse-shoe, the opposite of the American horse-shoe type stadium.

Cigarettes and Movies

The standard brands of American cigarettes are sold in Cuba. The price is usually 20c, but in some places it is 25c. You can buy a package of sixteen Cuban cigarettes for five cents. This low price is due to the fact that Cuba grows a large supply of tobacco.

English - speaking talkies are shown in the Havana theaters. Pictures appear at such first run houses as the "Encanto," "National" and the "Campoamor" at the same time they first appear in America.

So that the Spanish speaking people of Cuba can understand the picture, Spanish script is transcribed onto the bottom of the scenes.

Transportation

The trolley fare in Havana is five cents. The bus fare is the same.

The taxi fares are arranged according to zones. For every zone you enter there is a 20c charge. There is no initial fare to be paid in addition to these zone charges.

Sidelights

The metric system is used exclusively in Cuba. All speedometers, etc.; are in kilometers. About one and a half kilometers equal one mile.

The black kidney bean is a favorite food on the Cubans' diet.

The American Clipper, the airplane used on the air route between Miami and Havana, covers that distance in two hours.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

TO continue where we left off last week in our discussion of the fading saxaphone. Though it is definitely on the wane, it will never become obsolete in a strictly dance band. Today the sax is less the solo instrument and more the rhythmic background.

In the old days of radio, the mike could not accept the shrill frequenices of the woodwinds. This fault has been corrected, and these instruments are back in the limelight. Musicians are clamoring for arrangements featuring flutes, clarinets and brass clarinets. The sax is back in the chorus and the woodwinds are the star performers.

The old master himself will announce a "Wildcat" victory in Havana, we hope, on New Year's day. Yes, I'm again speaking about Ted Husing, ace sports commentator and announcer for the CBS. According to Ted, the best game of that day will be played right down in Havana and we trust the Cat's will live up to expectations. By the way, if anybody is interested in buying chances for the trip with the team, yours truly is selling them. I room in 124 Fedigan Hall. Might just as well get some free advertising out of this newspaper!

John Burke, otherwise known as "Jaber" has been haunting me about Mal Hallett. Well here goes, Johnny, and I've got plenty for you . . . Mal Hallett, who is heard in New York's Hotel Commodore over the Mutual network, has in his organization a group of personalities who have contributed considerably to the success of the unit. They have stroped the highways and byways with Mal, who is known on the road as the director of one of the most rhythmic bands in the business.

Number one is Joe Carbonaro. Music experts can count on their fingers the bass and tuba players who have made lasting impressions on them during recent years. In such a count they would unquestionably include Joe's name, for he is among the select in this field. Joe also sings and entertains. He has appeared with symphony orchestras and the English Opera Company. He plays with equal facility the violin, cello, guitar and other plectruminstruments.

Number two is Buddy Welcome. Buddy directed his own band and was a well-known personality on Broadway for five years. The possibilities of his talent were noted by Hallett and he engaged him as a member of his band. Welcome is an expert on the sax, plays plenty of clarinet and to top off versatility sings solos.

Number three is Clark Yocum. Few vocalists have forged so rapidly to the fore as this young man. Just like Crosby, Jarrett, and others who have created a style of singing over the air, now comes this personable Southerner, good-looking and only twenty-four years old. Of course, he is popular with the ladies. He averages two proposals a year . . . Well John, that ought to keep you quiet for sometime now! . .

The life of a girl singer with an ace orchestra is not exactly a happy one. It's a week of work, work and work, with seldom an opportunity to go shopping or accept invitations to see football games with admiring undergraduates. Take Dolly Dawn, for instance. Her work schedule looks tougher than the training season of an All-American halfback . . . and so for our next meeting we will discuss a vocalist's week of toil.

Boake Carter embarks tomorrow on a lecture tour of the Midwest in the interests of peace and neutrality . . . Jack Oakie succeeds Rupert Hughes as master of ceremonies of the Tuesday night Caravan show, vocalist December 29.

25 MEMBERS MARVEL AT MODERN VENOM CURES

Various Methods of Combating Disease by Serum Shown to Group

Sharpe and Dome Labratories in Glenolden played host to the Lambda Delta Fraternity of Villanova College on Wednesday afternoon, November twenty-fifth.

Twenty-five members of the organization accompanied Mr. Gerald Piserchia, president of the fraternity, and Mr. J. F. Zeglin, representative of the Mulford institution about the various labratories of the biological concern.

Though the original purpose of the laboratories was to develop serum for the counteraction of rabies and diptheria, for which purpose special stables are kept for experimental and serum-producing purposes, most of the present output of the organization concerns production of anti-venom serums for the counteraction of snake bites.

Mr. Wolf, staff member of the foundation, showed the members through the snake house and demonstrated to them the various methods of obtaining serums from the many poisonous snakes and spiders kept at the laboratories.

Another lecture was given by Mr. Wolf, in the animal house where it was explained how various biological and therapeutic products were obtained from many small animals kept by the foundation.

This was the first of a number of similar trips to biological and scientific institutions planned by the Lambda Delta fraternity for dates in the near future.

New members of the organization were interviewed by the admissions committee last Monday and Wednesday.

MATHIEU SPEAKS ON INTERNATIONAL LAW

Local French Instructor Addresses Relations Group at Regular Meeting

During the last meeting of the International Relations Club held last Thursday Prof. Felix Carlo Mathieu, a native of France, student of international law, and instructor of French here at Villanova, was the guest speaker.

The subject of Prof. Mathieu's address was one of importance to all students of international law. As it exists today, he explained, international law is rather fragmentary, being gathered from many sources. Therefore the most immediate problem in the task of organization of nations is the codification of international law. That is, as he stated it, a code of international ethics.

Nations Should Adhere

Ths code of ethics must be one that is accepted by every nation. It must be a code which each nation feels is right and which its conscience would not allow it to break. For after all this is an essential of all law. In the law established by a nation to rule its citizens there are certain fundamental principles which the people feel are right and when they break these their conscience bothers them. The same must be true of international law if it is to be of any use. Prof. Mathieu pointed out that today each state or nation considers right whatever is best for their own interests.

Club Is Active

During the past term the International Relations Club has been quite active, taking part in intercollegiate conferences. This year, to date, it has attended two.

Plans are being made for the presentation of motion picture films to be shown in conjunction with the work of the club. Details have not as yet been settled but it is certain that in the near future films will be shown during meetings.

PRE-MEDS POSE FOR CAMERA IN COURSE OF INSPECTION

Villanova's pre-medical fraternity, Lambda Kappa Delta, journeyed to Glenolden, Pa., last Wednesday to inspect Sharpe & Dohme Laboratories. The Glenolden firm specializes in therapeutic research, and the local chapter spent much time studying the extensive laboratories. Above the group is shown as the VILLANOVAN'S candid cameraman snapped them.

a case of pulling the well-known wool over our eyes.

Alumni Shows Promise

Feeling somewhat annoyed at this little incident, we eased out of Austin, and on up the line toward Alumni. Greeted by a burst of song as we entered the door, we found that the possessor of the voice was none other than "RED" KAMEN, frosh footballer, and the boy soprano of Villanova. More music, radio this time, showed that world-famed dancing team, JACUBOSKI and COSTELLO, polishing up their routine. We also noted JOHNNY BROWN, the handsome lad in 231, working on his Crosby imitation.

"Fitz" At Work Again

Our next stopping place was Loule's, the International Restaurant. According to the latest reports, F. M. CARROLL, has rounded up a quarter that's going to knock 'em cold. We also hear it told that AL FITZPATRICK is going to do tricks with that trick knee of his. It's said that he can do everything but pull rabbits out of it. Oh, well, he's young yet. Popping around a corner we found PERSHING CALABRO working on his impersonation of John Barrymore. And then around another corner, where we interrupted BOB BARRETT reciting "Casey At The Bat." So, after looking over this array of talent (again the?) we feel sure that the Mendel Dayhops will fill their part of the bill.

After a few moments of contemplation of the mulitudinous steps, we eased our frame up into the dorm in Mendel. Here a bedlam of sound was issuing forth, giving us the impression that the whole of Mendel is prepping for a chance to "Kick the gong around." In 65 we heard CLEM LAVIN rendering the "Stein Song," and when we say rendering, we mean just that. In 29 HAROLD BURNS was tossing a coin to see which of his many talents he will bring to the fore. And so with the assurance that Mendel Hall will be well-represented, we continued our meanderings.

Mathias vs. Astaire

This time our wanderings ended up in Fedigan. Here again we found a smattering of good representation. For instance, we saw EMIL MATHIAS working on his Fred Astaire routine ,and his room mate, RAOUL MELIAN, rounding up his quartet. Also, we hear it rumored that NORMAN KLEIN is going to offer an impression of a man about town, while DICK WALSH will give a dissertation on brass rails. Following that BOBBY BOND is going to tell us just what happens "When a Lady Meets a Gentleman Up North."

150 Pounders Star

Continuing our endeavors, we set out to hear what we could hear about the C. & F. Dayhops. We seem to be elusive gentlemen. Howfound this pretty tough, for they ever we heard that JIMMY LYONS is going to give us his impression of the "Timid Soul", while CHARLIE TIMMINS is considering an impersonation of Eleanor Holm. Just offhand, we'd say that LEW BIESTER ought to be able to give a good impersonation of Miss America. And so, taken all in all, it's hard to say who'll "get the nod" on the 15th.

Each unit will have its own Master (or messer if you prefer) of Ceremonies, and, starting in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 7.30 P. M., we're going to present a great show for you, you, you and you. Competition is sure to be keen, for the winners will receive points, just as in any Intra-Mural contest, thus giving the boys an added incentive.

ANOTHER representative Villanova team broke into the limelight Saturday night when the basketeers hung a 23 to 21 defeat on the boys from Seton Hall. The South Orange, New Jersey crowd displayed a brand of fight that had the 'Cat team on the ropes during the better part of the evening. Although their attack was ragged, the basketeers showed the possibilities of a fine aggregation.

—V—

The Gaels were just a little too much for the Owls to handle. Playing heads up ball, the Warner men were subdued 13 to 7. The trip from Philadelphia to the coast must have sapped the strength of the supposedly powerful Temple team. We still can't see how Villanova lost to its feathered foe.

—V—

Pitt is going to the Rose Bowl and that big build up given by the local paper to dear old Pennsylvania, with the accent on the "a," went for naught. We see that they have now switched their efforts to Villanova in preparation for the New Year's c ntest at Havana. Nice going.

Lew Elverson, one of the mainsprings of the Penn attack, performs equally well behind the footlights, as all you Mask and Wig devotees will find. His rendition of "Something Has Happened To Me" in swing time, over a National Hookup during Fred Allen's program (plug), was something to appreciate.

—V—

There will not be a basketball captain elected for the entire season. This announcement from the basketball "biggies" breaks up a precedent at Villanova. A captain will be chosen each game to lead his teammates on the floor. This plan adopted for the first time at Villanova has been put into play in many colleges all over the country. Not only in basketball has this been carried out but also in many other major sports. Temple, Villanova's traditional rival adopted this plan in football this year for the first time.

—V—

The rumor that the Annual intramural boxing fiasco would not take place until after the Auburn game is erroneous. The program will be held on schedule, Monday night, December 14. The boxers are working out daily in the Gym in preparation for this annual affair. Of all intra-mural activities this contest seems to hold more interest than any other. Those attending this year will have the opportunity to see, perhaps for the first time such luminaries of the squared circle as Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, former title holders and James J. Braddock, present heavyweight title holder. If everything runs according to schedule these notables will be there.

—V—

Along with the representative leather pushers many political stars have been invited to be the guests of Villanova. Among them will be His Excellency George H. Earle, Governor of Pennsylvania, His Honor S. Davis Wilson, Mayor of Philadelphia, and many others.

—V—

Another potential powerhouse team may be found in the Kitten basketeers. A fast playing, high scoring aggregation, the Frosh took a club team to camp 44 to 10 in their opener. The game was entirely one-sided with the Frosh running circles around their opposition.

The Kittens just could not be held and the swish of the basketball going through the strings was faintly reminiscent of a fast freight on a still night.

—V—

The football team is running through their paces in swaddling clothes this cold weather. Bundled up in an endeavor to beat old man Winter out of a chill the gridders have an over stuffed appearance. Draped in many sweat shirts, their skulls protected by woolen caps and their meat hooks in workman gloves they are far from awkward in their daily drills. Of course the idea of basking in warm Cuban sunshine in the very near future may aid immeasurably in keeping them toasty.

WESTERN MARYLAND COURT FOE FRIDAY

Benjamin, Crack Footballer, Stars at Forward for Invading Team

Now that the Seton Hall game is off the schedule, the Villanova basketball team faces Western Maryland as its next opponent next Friday night in the Villanova Gym. Not much has reached this quarter concerning this year's team but from what is known it stacks up as a very strong one.

The Terrors are regarded as one of the best, if not the best five, in Maryland this year and Villanova will have their hands full to take them over this year. The Villanova court men are practicing very hard every day in expectation of this encounter, and to all intents and purposes they have the edge over the Maryland squad.

Stan Benjamin, who played such a flashy game on this year's football team, is now playing in the position of forward for the Green Terrors and is ably assisted there by Frank Lesinski. At center, they have the towering Joe Uvanni and his two substitutes, John Green and Phil Lanasa. Joe Adraince and John Formichek will start as guards and will have Joe Drugash and Bob Sherman substituting for them . The forward subs are Fred Coe and Emil Edmond.

The starting lineup for the Wildcats will probably be Don Brennan and Joe Hopkins as forwards, Jim Montgomery, center, and Harry McNally and John Krutulis, guards. Lou Dubino and Lou Wanamaker will substitute for the forwards, Walt McKenna for center, and Art Vigliante and Mike Totin for guards.

This game promises to be a thrilling contest as the Western Maryland hoopmen always produce an abundance of fancy playing. Their meetings with Villanova have been games which furnish the spectators with plenty of hot action.

SWIMMING ROSTER IN DOUBTFUL STATE

Lafayette and Swarthmore to be Met in February; Other Meets Pending

Villanova College's swimming schedule is rapidly swinging into liv as last year's opponents take up the gauntlet. New names are rumored to have been listed for the coming season, but there has been n definite acceptance yet.

At this date two meets have been definitely scheduled for the mermen. Lafayette's swimmers will journey to Villanova next February and try to repeat their victory of last year, when Villanova was their guest at Easton. However the mermen welcome their name back on the schedule, for they feel sure that they can avenge themselves.

In the meet held at Easton last season the Wildcat Freshmen were not allowed to swim, and at that time it was felt that the added support of the First-year men would have been the margin of victory. YEARLING QUINTET OF HIGH CALIBRE

Wealth of Stellar Material Presages Successful Court Campaign

Al Severance is sporting a big, broad smile these days! Have you noticed it? Al is keeping something under his hat which he intends to display this coming season. At least, your correspondent has reason to believe that Al is looking ahead a few years.

At a practice session of the freshman basketball squad, Al semed to be chuckling to himself in a gleam of satisfaction. He was watching some of the yearlings prancing around the boards showing the real stuff necessary to make a basketball team. No doubt Al was off on a tour of imagination, looking forward to the day when this one and that one would be playing varsity ball, riding through a powerhouse schedule with little difficulty.

This may seem to be exaggerated, but anyone looking into those eyes of his at that moment would have seen stars in the making, scores running up in the higher digits, in other words, successful basketball seasons.

But there's no trying to make Al admit it. "Duke" Duzminsky, who went places in high school athletics in New York is all right. The squad is big, fast and smart. The chances for a duplication of last season's record appear rather fair. Although Al won't talk, that is the meaning taken by the inquisitive reporter.

Viewing the situation from other than a coach's standpoint, there can be seen an abundance of available material.

This is exemplified in the fact that to date Severance has not been able to select a tentative five for the starting lineup. Competition for first-string berths is keen, featured by the enthusiasm of the hust-

Subduing a furious last minute offensive of the Pirates of Seton Hall, Villanova's Wildcats opened the current basketbal l campaign with a 23-21 victory over their South Orange, N. J. rivals. The game, played at the Villanova Gym Saturday evening, was a typical early season fray, with neither club exhibiting the smoothness that comes with midseason form.

Repeated fouling and carrying of the ball slowed the game considerably. It was not until the start of the second half that any real action began. At this point, Seton Hall came to life and pushed four goals through the cords inside of two minutes to take the lead 15-14.

This Pirate sortie awakened the dormant Wildcat attack, and the Villanovans fought back hard to regain the lead. The play to the end of the game was fast and furious in spite of the low score.

150 POUNDERS' JOB TOUGH ASSIGNMENT

Green Material Outclassed in Contests With Veteran Squads

Dashed to the depths of despair by five consecutive defeats, the members of Villanova's 150-pound football team ended a dismal 1936 schedule, which numbers such worthy opponents as Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Lafayette and Rutgers.

Counted in the make up of this team there are perhaps only two men who have played football in high school, and what is a team which has only three short practices a week, no grounding in fundamentals, and little if no knowledge of blocking to do with a Notre Dame System founded on speed and precision.

An alibi is not offered here, but rather a more intelligent understanding on the part of the student body of the tremendous task which confronts the future 150 pound football teams at Villanova.

The future of 150 pound football in the East is assured, but as in all things Villanova must be given a chance to learn, even if through bitter defeat. A green sophomore team which started two years ago still has many of its members in school, and before the September sun sets on the start of a new season, they expect to reap the rewards of those defeats.

GLENOLDEN PLANT FOR RESEARCH IS VISITED BY LKD

Science Fraternity Tours Sharpe and Dohme Laboratories on Inspection Trip

25 MEMBERS MARVEL AT MODERN VENOM CURES

Various Methods of Combating Disease by Serum Shown to Group

Sharpe and Dome Laboratories in Glenolden played host to the Lambda Delta Fraternity of Villanova College on Wednesday afternoon, November twenty-fifth.

Twenty-five members of the organization accompanied Mr. Gerald Petrella, president of the fraternity, and Mr. J. F. Zeglin, representative of the Mulford institution about the various laboratories of the biological concern.

Though the original purpose of the laboratories was to develop serum for the counteraction of rabies and diphtheria, for which purpose special stables are kept for experimental and serum-producing purposes, most of the present output of the organization concerns production of anti-venom serums for the counteraction of snake bites.

Mr. Wolf, staff member of the foundation, showed the members through the snake house and demonstrated to them the various methods of obtaining serums from the many poisonous snakes and spiders kept at the laboratories.

Another lecture was given by Mr. Wolf, in the animal house where it was explained how various biological and therapeutic products were obtained from many small animals kept by the foundation.

This was the first of a number of similar trips to biological and scientific institutions planned by the Lambda Delta fraternity for dates in the near future.

New members of the organization were interviewed by the admissions committee last Monday and Wednesday.

MATHIEU SPEAKS ON INTERNATIONAL LAW

During the last meeting of the International Relations Club held last Thursday Prof. Felix Carlo Mathieu, a native of France, stud out of international law and instructor of French here at Villanova, was the guest speaker.

The subject of Prof. Mathieu's address was one of importance to all student of international law. As it exists today he explained, international law is rather fragmentary, being gathered from many sources. Therefore the most immediate problem in the task of organization of nations is the codification of international law. That is to be stated in a code of international ethics.

Nations Should Adhere

The code of ethics must be one that is accepted by every nation. It must be a code which each nation feels is right and which its conscience would not allow it to break. For after all this is an essential of all law. In the law established by a nation to rule its citizens there are certain fundamental principles which the people feel are right and when they break these their conscience bothers them. The same must be true of international law if it is to be of any use, Prof. Mathieu pointed out that today each state or nation considers right whatever is best for their own interests.

Club Is Active

During the past term the International Relations Club has been quite active, taking part in intercollegiate conferences. This year, to date, it has attended two.

Plans are being made for the presentation of motion picture films to be shown in conjunction with the work of the club. Details have not as yet been settled but it is certain that in the near future films will be shown during meetings.

PRE-MEDS POSE FOR CAMERA IN COURSE OF INSPECTION

Villanova's pre-medical fraternity, Lambda Kappa Delta, journeyed to Glenolden, Pa., last Wednesday to inspect Sharpe & Dohme Laboratories. The Glenolden firm specializes in therapeutic research, and the local chapter spent much time studying the extensive laboratories. Above the group is shown as the VILLANOVAN'S candid cameraman snapped them.

a case of pulling the well-known wool over our eyes.

Alumni Shows Promise

Feeling somewhat annoyed at this little incident, we eased out of Austin, and on up the line toward Alumni. Greeted by a burst of song as we entered the door, we found that the possessor of the voice was none other than "RED" KAMEN, fresh footballer, and the low soprano of Villanova. More music, radio this time, showed that world-famed dancing team, JACUBOSKI and COSTELLO, polishing up their routine. We also noted JOHNNY BROWN, the handsome lad in 231, working on his Crosby imitation.

"Fitz" At Work Again

Our next stopping place was Louie's, the International Restaurant. According to the latest reports, F. M. CARROLL, has rounded up a quartet that's going to knock 'em cold. We also hear it told that AL FITZPATRICK is going to do tricks with that trick knee of his. It's said that he can do everything but pull rabbits out of it. Oh, well, he's young yet. Popping around a corner we found PERSHING CALABRO working on his impersonation of John Barrymore. And then around another corner, where we interrupted BOB BARRETT reciting "Casey At The Bat". So, after looking over this array of talent (again the?) we feel sure that the Mendel Daybops will till their part of the bill.

After a few moments of contemplation of the multitudinous steps, we eased our frame up into the dorm in Mendel. Here a bedlam of sound was issuing forth, giving us the impression thatt he whole of Mendel is prepping for a chance to "Kick the gong around." In 65 we heard CLEM LAVIN rendering the "Stein Song," and when we say rendering, we mean just that. In 29 HAROLD BURNS was tossing a coin to see which of the many talents he will bring to the fore. And so with the assurance that Mendel Hall will be well-represented, we continued our meanderings.

Mathias vs. Astaire

This time our wanderings ended up in Fedigan. Here again we found assurance of good representation. For instance, we saw EMIL MATHIAS working on his Fred Astaire routine ,and his room mate, RAOUL MELIAN, rounding up his quartet. Also, we hear it rumored that NORMAN KLEIN is going to offer an impression of a man about town, while DICK WALSH will give a dissertation on brass rails. Following that BOBBY BOND is going to tell us just what happens "When a Lady Meets a Gentleman Up North."

150 Founders Star

Continuing our endeavors, we set out to hear what we could hear about the C. & F. Dayhops. We seem to be elusive gentlemen. However found this pretty tough, for they ever we heard that JIMMY LYONS is going to give us his impression of the "Timid Soul", while CHARLIE TIMMINS is considering an impersonation of Eleanor Holm. Just offhand, we'd say that LEW BIESTER ought to be able to give a good impersonation of Miss America. And so, taken all in all, it's hard to say who'll "get the nod" on the 15th.

Each unit will have its own Master (or messer if you prefer) of Ceremonies, and, starting in the Commerce and Finance Auditorium at 7.30 P. M., we're going to present a great show for you, you, you and you. Competition is sure to be keen, for the winners will receive points, just as in any Intra-Mural contest, thus giving the boys an added incenitive.

YEARLING DEBATERS PERFORM CAPABLY IN TWO CONTESTS

Debates With St. John's, Price Forum Held; No Decision Reached

SCHEDULE MANY OTHERS

Villanova College freshmen debaters formally opened their season against St. John's College, in Brooklyn, on Saturday, November 28. In their second engagement, last Wednesday, the yearlings opposed the Charles Price Forum. Both were no-decision debates.

No Contest Affairs

The resolution of debate for both contests was Resolved! That the munitions industries should be a government monopoly, Joseph Bongiovanni, Frank Pimpinella and Robert O'Brien, representing Villanova, defended the negative side of the question. The debate with St. John's College was scheduled to be formal, but as one of the judges was not present it was changed to an informal affair. Those present at the contests favored the yearling debaters, although they defended the weaker side.

Other contests are in the process of being arranged. Among the possible opponents are St. Joseph, Temple University, University of Pennsylvania, Swarthmore and others.

Chance For All

It is not the policy of the freshman debating society to send the same group of debaters to every debate. In order that more of the freshmen may have a chance before every debate there will be held an elimination contest in which every member of the freshman class is free to compete. The best debaters chosen by this contest will then compromise the team for the following debate.

The freshman debating society as it is organized gives its members not only practice in debating but also experience in parlimentary law as the club is conducted according to the general principles of parlimentary practice. Robert Wilderotter, president ,presides over the meetings and Alfred Bongiovanni, secretary, carries on the communications with other colleges to arrange the meets.

Open Discussion

After the lecture has been concluded, the students will have an opportunity to observe and discuss the operations and uses of the autogyro. The students will also be afforded an opportunity to question McCormick on matters relevant to the hazardous expedition to the South Pole.

The discourse is provided for the entire body. As a consequence, the regularly scheduled Thursday third period assemblies and classes will be suspended tomorrow.

Fr. Albers has asked that the members of the student body facilitate the flyer's arrival and take-off by remaining a sufficient distance from the area which will be marked out as the landing place of the airship.

ANOTHER representative Villanova team broke into the limelight Saturday night when the basketeers hung a 23 to 21 defeat on the boys from Seton Hall. The South Orange, New Jersey crowd displayed a brand of fight that had the 'Cat team on the ropes during the better part of the evening. Although their attack was ragged, the basketeers showed the possibilities of a fine aggregation.

—V—

The Gaels were just a little too much for the Owls to handle. Playing heads up ball, the Warner men were subdued 13 to 7. The trip from Philadelphia to the coast must have sapped the strength of the supposedly powerful Temple team. We still can't see how Villanova lost to its feathered foe.

—V—

Pitt is going to the Rose Bowl and that big build up given by the local paper to dear old Pennsylvania, with the accent on the "a," went for naught. We see that they have now switched their efforts to Villanova in preparation for the New Year's contest at Havana, Nice going.

Lew Elverson, one of the mainsprings of the Penn attack, performs equally well behind the footlights, as all you Mask and Wig devotees will find. His rendition of "Something Has Happened To Me" in swing time, over a National Hookup during Fred Allen's program (plug), was something to appreciate.

—V—

There will not be a basketball captain elected for the entire season. This announcement from the basketball "biggies" breaks up a precedent at Villanova. A captain will be chosen each game to lead his teammates on the floor. This plan adopted for the first time at Villanova has been put into play in many colleges all over the country. Not only in basketball has this been carried out but also in many other major sports. Temple, Villanova's traditional rival adopted this plan in football this year for the first time.

—V—

The rumor that the Annual intramural boxing fiasco would not take place until after the Auburn game is erroneous. The program will be held on schedule, Monday night, December 14. The boxers are working out daily in the Gym in preparation for this annual affair. Of all intra-mural activities this contest seems to hold more interest than any other. Those attending this year will have the opportunity to see, perhaps for the first time such luminaries of the squared circle as Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey, former title holders and James J. Braddock, present heavyweight title holder. If everything runs according to schedule these notables will be there.

—V—

Along with the representative leather pushers many political stars have been invited to be the guests of Villanova. Among them will be His Excellency George H. Earle, Governor of Pennsylvania, His Honor S. Davis Wilson, Mayor of Philadelphia, and many others.

—V—

Another potential powerhouse team may be found in the Kitten basketeers. A fast playing, high scoring aggregation, the Frosh took a club team to camp 44 to 10 in their opener. The game was entirely one-sided with the Frosh running circles around their opposition.

The Kittens just could not be held and the swish of the basketball going through the strings was faintly reminiscent of a fast freight on a still night.

—V—

The football team is running through their paces in swaddling clothes this cold weather. Bundled up in an endeavor to beat old man Winter out of a chill the gridders have an over stuffed appearance. Draped in many sweat shirts, their skulls protected by woolen caps and their meat hooks in workman gloves they are far from awkward in their daily drills. Of course the idea of basking in warm Cuban sunshine in the very near future may aid immeasurably in keeping them toasty.

Now that the Seton Hall game is off the schedule, the Villanova basketball team faces Western Maryland as its next opponent next Friday night in the Villanova Gym. Not much has reached this quartet concerning this year's team but from what is known it stacks up as a very strong one.

The Terriers are regarded as one of the best, if not the best Five in Maryland this year and Villanova will have their hands full to take them over this year. The Villanova court men are practicing very hard every day in expectation of this encounter, and to all intents and purposes they have the edge over the Maryland squad.

Stan Benjamin, who played such a flashy game on this year's football team, is now playing in the position of forward for the Green Terrors and is ably assisted there by Frank Lesinski. At center, they have the towering Joe Uvanni and his two substitutes, John Green and Phil Lanasa. Joe Adraince and John Formichek will start as guards and will have Joe Drugash and Bob Sherman substituting for them . The forward subs are Fred Coe and Emil Edmond.

The starting lineup for the Wildcats will probably be Don Brennan and Joe Hopkins as forwards, Jim Montgomery, center, and Harry McNally and John Krutulis, guards. Lou Dubino and Lou Wanamaker will substitute for the forwards, Walt McKenna for center, and Art Vigilante and Mike Totin for guards.

This game promises to be a thrilling contest as the Western Maryland hoopmen always produce an abundance of fancy playing. Their meetings with Villanova have been games which furnish the spectators with plenty of hot action.

SWIMMING ROSTER IN DOUBTFUL STATE

Lafayette and Swarthmore to be Met in February; Other Meets Pending

Villanova College's swimming schedule is rapidly swinging into line as last year's opponents take up the gauntlet. New names are rumored to have been listed for the coming season, but there has been no definite acceptance yet.

At this date two meets have been definitely scheduled for the mermen. Lafayette's swimmers will journey to Villanova next February and try to repeat their victory of last year, when Villanova was their guest at Easton. Dayhops Best Austin Team In Two Overtime Periods

Dan O'Connor Leads Commuters to Three Wins in Four Days; Sheftic, Dwyer Star for Austin

COMMERCE TEAM DROPS OUT OF RACE

By JOHN E. DIMON

With the breaks of the schedule against them the Mendel Day Hops succeeded in besting the schedule "fixers" as well as their opponents, winning three of the four games played on successive days, enabling them to gain first place in the Intra-Mural basketball league. The leadership changed hands no less than three times during the course of as many days. The five-and-ten boys held the lead until their defeat at the hands of a powerful and aggressive Fedigan Hall five last Tuesday. However, the Day Hops came back and conquered the Gigolos on Thursday to end Fedigan's short reign at the top of the heap.

At the time of this writing, the Mendel Day Hops-Mendel Resident fray was in full swing at the Alumni Gym. The winner of the clash was crowned first half champions, and due to the fact that the results could not be gained in time at the printers, they must be omitted until the next issue. The C & F-Mendel Resident game has been awarded to the latter team and will have no bearing on the final outcome. The C & F team has forfeted its last six games and as a result has been dropped from the league.

Mendel Day Hops Beat Austin

The commuters continued their winning jamboree last Monday in the Austin fray. Austin led throughout the entire contest and only a last minute spurt by Dan O'Connor tying the score at the end of regulation time prevented the Professionals from winning. Wait Sheftic and Jimmy Dwyer paced the Austin attack in regulation time as well as in the extra period. Sheftic gained the nod for the Pros in the extra stanza by sinking a field goal. Dwyer then scored via a foul shot. O'Connor raised the Day Hop stock with a long shot, but things still looked bad for the Day Hops; however, with only ten seconds to go Joe Beittenmiller put the game on ice with a sleeper shot. The final score was 36-35.

The Mendel Day Hops' victory was stopped at six straight by a strong Fedigan Hall team. Brud O'Connell and Hook Hart paced the playboys' attack. The former scored nine points and played a brilliant floor game. The lead swing throughout the game and the outcome was never certain until Fedigan held a ten-point lead with only two minutes to go, but the ultimate losers put a scoring spree and nearly overtook their opponents. Only the strategy of Coach Art Viglante saved the game. Seeing that his varsity was tiring he sent in his wrecking crew to stop the onslaught. The game ended with Fedigan on top, 28-25.

O'Connor Paces Scorers

In the games with Alumni and Fedigan played on Wednesday and Thursday respectively, Dan O'Connor led a scoring procession that netted his team two victories. Dan tallied 13 points in the Alumni fray, and he chalked up 15 more in the Fedigan encounter. Both games were had fought, especially, the Fedigan tussle. The score at half time was 15-12 in favor of Mendel.

However, the leaders were startled when the Gigolos scored eight points before they could even get their hands on the ball. It was in the last five minutes of play that Fedigan wilted completely. The Day Hops are a great finishing team as has been evident in all of their games so far this season. They take some time to start, and once started they are invincible.

It's no easy matter to succeed a team with an undefeated season, such as compiled by last year's "Kittens," and yet put on a good showing. Expectations are high and, after all, a good record is a nice thing to hang on to.

Looking around the court, "Tiny" Lagenberg, towering All - State athlete from New Jersey, with as much talent as he has height, looks promising. Lloyd Rice and Jack Donahue, both surpassing the six foot mark, have also been recognized All - Prep caliber in Washington, D. C., and live up to the standards judging by the way they handle the ball. Bill Sinnott, Gene Ertle, and Jerry Cassidy, the Jersey City lads, swing together like a machine.

To this list we can add Pat Rooney, Bill Flood and Joe Bochetto, who hail from New York, plus John Brown, Rudy Paulkner and Mike Lezerchek all residents of our own Quaker state. Mike, although the smallest player on the squad, is a fiery little bundle of court ability.

Sixteen Bouts Feature Intramural Boxing; Expect Notables to Attend

What will be one of the greatest boxing shows ever seen at Villanova is to be presented on December fourteenth, when the annual intramural ring tourney is held. Among the notables who will attend are Connie Mack, popular manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, and Martin J. McLaughlin, Director of Public Safety of Philadelphia. There is also a possibility that Pennsylvania's Governor Earle and Philadelphia's Mayor S. Davis Wilson will put in an appearance.

Celebrities from the ring who might witness the leather pushing are Jimmy Braddock, present incumbent of the world's heavyweight throne, and former champions Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney. Activities are scheduled to begin at 8:15 P. M.

Plenty of action is promised for the spectators, as sixteen bouts comprise the card. All halls and both Day-Hop groups are well represented in the galaxy of fistcuffers who will perform in the squared circle.

Bout number one features "Doc" Daniello, and Al Hall. The doctor, residing in Austin, showed up to good advantage in last year's slugfests, and will extend the newcomer to the utmost. These lads will be followed by Claude La Dow, the sax tooter, and Eddie Carroll. Carroll, like Hall, is new to ring fans, but La Dow was seen in action in the past.

What looks to be a very interesting and exciting battle will be presented by Jerry Holland and Jack Ferron. Both these boys are out for blood, and the spectators will have plenty to watch when these two start throwing gloves. Mike Rutecky and Paul Costello are expected to keep the audience on the edge of their seats with a fast moving tussle.

Neil Nugent and Matt Phelan, two more newcomers, will put on a snappy exhibition of the manly art of self defense. Andy Chisick, stellar center of the Frosh football squad, will face Ronnie Tornwall. This will be a battle of behemoths, as both tip the scales up near the two hundred mark.

Battling Joe Tanzola, North Jersey's pride, will face Vince Schugrue, in a battle of two good little men. Weight will again be predominant in the Dan Di Filipo-Chick Kratchovil affair. Dick Gove and Bob O'Brien will follow Dan and Chuck to the field of action.

The feature bout of last year's card will be presented when "Slugger "Marquette, and "One Punch" Tamburri, Fedigan's tried and true, will mix it up to the delight of the assembled throng. In their previous meetings, both boys showed plenty of enthusiasm, and the spectators unanimously voted their tussle the outstanding one on the card.

In the battle of small men, Carl Panteleo will face Eddie Higgins in what should be a fast-moving bout. Panteleo is a hard man to beat, and Higgins will have his hands full, if he expects to gain the referee's nod. Stan Bobrowski, the Coal Region Kid, will represent Fedigan Hall, facing Eddie Kirk, the hard-punching battler.

Intercollegiate light-heavyweight champion Tony Sala and Bob Buckley, halfback, will put on a fistic exhibition that should please the eye of any expert in ring tactics. Following this will be the battle of the Irish, with Pat Rooney and Bill Duffy proving the mettle of the men from old Erin.

The thundering herd will take possession of the ring when Reds Kamen and Abe Samra take to the squared circle. Abe weighs well over two hundred, and Reds is no feather, so the action should be ponderous, if not fast. Jack Jarosik, varsity leather pusher, and Pete Rogers will conclude the evening's festivities with a battle of hard punching.

FOR several days, Bill Christopher has proven as elusive to your correspondent as he is to opponents on the gridiron, but after enlisting the aid of "Big Abe" Samra, Chris' cohort and fellow townsman, we finally cornered him and forced him to divulge the following pertinent facts.

William Joseph Christopher first saw the light of day on March 26, 1915 in Lawrence, Massachussetts, where he has lived all of his life. Christie, as he is known to the town folks, received his preliminary education at Rollins G. S. From there he went to Lawrence High School, where he participated on the football, baseball, and track teams.

While at Lawrence, Christie covered himself with glory. He won all-state honors as a left halfback and ran on the half mile relay team that still holds the Massachussets state record. Bill is considered one of the best gridders to come out of Lawrence and the townspeople place him on a par with the famous Ralph Hewitt, Lawrence's contribution to Columbia.

After leaving Lawrence, Bill continued his studies at Mt. St. Michael's prep in New York City. Here he guided the football team to the Metropolitan Catholic Prep School championship and also followed his baseball and track proclivities. As a reward for the prowess he exhibited on the gridiron, Bill was selected for the all-Metropolitan eleven at the quarterback post.

In 1933 Christopher graced Villanova with his presence and has been gracing it ever since, both on and off the gridiron. He has gained the reputation (which, incidentally, is well deserved) of being a gentleman and a sportsman, and his conduct has always been exemplary of a true Villanovan.

When Bill first came to the Main Line college, he had the intention of playing left halfback (his favorite position) on the football team. Because the Wildcats had a scarcity of quarterback material, the crafty Chris was switched to a signal-calling position by the shrewd "Doc" Jacobs. From then on Bill has been the brains of the Villanova grid machine, and Wildcat fans have thanked their lucky stars that "Doc" made the change.

Christie received his two biggest thrills in the Temple game of two years ago, and the Boston U. game this year. His thrill in the Temple game came after he tackled Dave Smukler so viciously that the big Temple fullback was forced to leave the game. This year his sensational 50-yard return of a B. U. punt gave him his biggest kick.

Bill considers Detroit to be the toughest team he faced this year, but thinks Auburn will be just as tough. The hardest game he ever took part in was the Western Maryland game of last year. He can still feel the effects of that bruising battle.

At the present time, Chris is kept very busy trying to sell Regal shoes—he even goes so far as to call selling shoes his hobby.

In the Summer, his fancy turns to horseshoe pitching, and he is one of the star horseshoe tossers of the Essex County League of Massachusetts.

Chris is a skilled tango and rhumba dancer. He views the coming trip to Havana with great glee, for he will receive ample opportunity to display his terpsichorean artistry in the Cuban capital.

His chief ambition is to be a member of the law firm of Kane, Kane, Kane, and Company, of Lawrence. This is one of the most learned law firms in New England, and Bill will consider it a great honor if he can become affiliated with it.

When the Summer rolls around Chris can usually be found in one of the parks or playgrounds of Lawrence in the capacity of athletic director. He has come to be known as the "Idol of the West Street Playgrounds" because of his skilled handling of children.

Bill has only a few months to spend on the Villanova campus, and he is sincerely sorry that this is so. However, he will not be alone in this respect because the entire student body of the college regrets his departure.

VILLANOVA IN ARENA

Al Severance's court warriors will play four opponents in Ned Irish's Arena. Duquesne, Indiana, Temple and C. C. N. Y. will be met throughout the season.

COLUMBIA ALUMNUS

Carlos Henriquez, Cuban representative responsible in part for Villanova's New Year's trip, is a graduate of Columbia University, of New York City.

RE-SIGNED

Jack Meagher, classmate of Clipper Smith, has just signed a three-year contract to coach the Auburn team, which faces the Wildcats in Cuba.

Al's Account

By Alexander G. Severance

OPENING of a basketball season always carries a certain amount of tension. Saturday night Villanova displayed this condition in no uncertain manner. Accounts from South Orange had the Seton Hall quintet loaded for "Bear" and both their spirit and consistent plugging throughout the game left no doubt in the minds of any who saw the contest that the "Hall" boys wanted Villanova's scalp.

It is well and timely to pause here and pay tribute to the marvelous display of spirit evidenced by the visitors' student body. It was, no doubt, the continuous support up to the final whistle that played a large part in the performance of the boys in blue.

There is an old adage, familar to basketball enthusiasts, "most games are won or lost at the foul line." Never was the latter more forcibly brought to mind than on Saturday night. While the local contingent was throwing 12 free throws to the winds, the visitor were reaping a harvest and not only keeping in the ball game but threatening the outcome of the game. Seton Hall made 11 out of 16. If we pause here and consider that Seton Hall was held to only one field goal in play of the first half, the story of the foul line takes its proper place in the analysis of the game.

However, there was one noticeable feature in the Blue and White's play. The present edition of the "Wildcats" will be strong defensively. Indicative of this quality is the fact that in the first half one marker was all they allowed the visitors, while the forty minutes of play saw the visitors garner only five markers. Their remaining 11 points coming from the free throw lane.

Many things went wrong, it is true, which is nothing more than can be expected when sophomore material composes for the most part the bulk of the team and the game marks the prying of the lid of the season. Lack of smoothness in their attack, except for a brief period in the early part of the first half, was largely responsible for many of the personal contacts that resulted. I do not believe that we ever hit our real stride and that the power of this team was demonstrated in Saturday's game. The team is much stronger and has all the ear marks of being able to furnish for the Villanova followers plenty of pyrotechnics in the games to come. The height which has been sadly lacking in the past was evident in our backboard play, the visitors being unable to gather any markers off the banking boards.

Befitting the position he held as leader of the Villanova team, acting Capt. Brennan steadied the way for his younger men. Between his duties in the rear court and at the pivot position, Brennan did a great job in the backboard department. His consistent following up of shots under the hoop prevented the visitors from getting possession of the ball in dangerous territory and prevented the possible scoring chances. Besides Brennan, others who figured for the locals, were Johnny Krutulis and Dubino, both of whom, can be said, kept an early lead intact and bore the brunt of a savage thruct for victory by the visitors in the waning minutes of play.

OVERCONFIDENCE

Alabama was so confident that they were going to the Rose Bowl that they refused a $35,000 guarantee to play in Cuba on New Year's day, according to Ted Husing on his Saturday night broadcast.

BOWL FOR SANTA CLARA

piece. Don Brennan, holdover from the 1935-36 team, and Jim Montgomery, another Soph, were close behind with four points each. Harry McNally and Joe Hopkins came through, each having a field goal to his credit.

The game started very slowly. For the first five minutes there wasn't a score. The players on both clubs were called several times for walking with the ball. Finally, Jim Montgomery dribbled through the whole Seton Hall team to sink the first basket, sending Villanova off to a 2-0 lead.

Harrison, burly Pirate Forward, quickly tied the count with a long pot shot. By this time, the Cat attack had begun to click, and goals by Dubino and Krutilis gave the Main Liners a 10-4 advantage. The homesters kept right on going and by half time the lead was increased to 14-6.

The pep talk Coach Danny Russell of Seton Hall gave his boys in the locker room between the halves must have hit the spot, for the lads from Jersey were an aroused band at the outset of the final half. The Pirates struck like a whirlwind, and led by Zaycek, flashy guard, they rapidly cut down the Cats' lead and went ahead by 15-14.

Zaycek was the big gun of this rally, contributing three goals to Seton's Hall's total. In addition to these goals he counted two fouls, thus making him high scorer for the evening with eight points.

With the play going strongly against them, the Wildcats wisely called time out. This enabled them to collect their scattered wits. Harry McNally pushed through an all important field goal to give Villanova once more the lead, which they held to the end of the game.

The Pirates kept on fighting and were dangerous until the final whistle. It took a stubborn defense on the part of the Cats to protect the slender margin.

Foul Shooting Weak

The game was rough as shown by the fact that three players were banished on personals. Zaycek, visitor's star, and McNally and Montgomery of the home club were the offenders. With a bit more accuracy at the foul line the Cats could have piled up quite a margin. As it was, Villanova counted but five out of seventeen tries.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

WITH the conclusion of the football season ,the annual flood of All-American teams will pour forth from the pens of inspired sports writers and from the brains of numerous committees. Personally, we don't put too much stock in most of the choices due to the fact that it is practically impossible to cover the entire nation, and many excellent football players are overlooked.

A glance at the Alma Maters of some of the better professional stars will confirm this statement. A surprising number of players come from unheard of colleges.

This year's intramural basketball race has been tighter than any in years, with the Mendel Residents and Day-Hops, and the Fedigan Gigolos waging a torrid three cornered tussle during the greater part of the first half of the schedule. The jarring note in the picture, however, is the lack of interest shown by the Commerce and Finance Day Hops. They have not won a game, due, principally, to the fact that they have forfeited a four out of eight of their contests. It was such evident lack of interest in touch football that caused the dropping of the sport from the athletic roster. Something should be done about the business men, either by themselves, or by the Committee on Intramural Athletics.

"It never rains but it pours," certainly came true at Villanova recently when the Santa Clara bid was received the day after the acceptance of the Auburn fray.

Many students have approached us with the suggestion that the intramural court games be played as prelims to the varsity contests. They claim the fight shown by the hall students will be more interesting than the impressive scores rolled up by the Frosh over their non too strong opponents. There is much to be said in favor of the plan, but on the other side of the story is the fact that the boys seem to get lost in the big gym after playing in Alumni. Last year Fedigan played Austin before one of the varsity imbroglios, and the score at the end of the half was something like 7-6, and not much more scoring was done during the second period.

The cold weather which struck this area recently prompts us to look back on the football campaign just concluded. From a spectator's point of view, the conditions were ideal. Every game was played in pleasant weather ,although the field was a bit slippery in a couple of instances. For the first time in five years the Temple game was played under decent conditions.

One of the latest college movies is "Pigskin Parade." This picture differs from most college photoplays in that there is not even one classroom scene. All the students did was go to football rallies and dances. Neither was there a long list of All-Americans padding the cast.

If you're interested in newsreel pictures of football battles, here is a bit of matter that might be worth noticing. There are about 1600 feet of film used to take action shots, and of these the best 200 are shown throughout the theatres of the country. If the game is exciting, as was the Princeton-Yale affair, 400 feet may be exhibited. So it looks like quite a few people will see the Wildcats clawing Auburn through the medium of motion pictures. Which means that fewer persons will ask "Where's that?" when you tell them you come from Villanova.

promising Freshmen now enrolled at Villanova.

An interesting aspect of the latter meet is the fact that Arthur C. Mathieu, now serving in his first year as Villanova's swimming coach, is a graduate of the Swarthmore Institution.

Serious timing of the swimmers and selection for the varior events will be postponed until after the Christmas holidays. On the return of the students, however, Coach Mathieu has planned strenuous practice sessions that will whip the mermen into top shape.

L. S. U. TWO PLACES

Should Louisiana State University go to the Rose Bowl this year, they will have sports representatives in two different fields. The L. S. U. basketball team is to engage Columbia University's quintet in Cuba.

SPORTS FIESTA

Cuba's sports festival, the big topic of conversation on the campus, will contain many forms of athletic endeavor. Everything from tennis to boxing and football will be included.

LIFE PROLONGED BY SAFEGUARDING DIET

Procedure Proved Successful In Experiments With Animals

Washington, D. C. — (ACP) — Watch your diet and prolong your life seven or more years.

That is the suggestion of Dr. Henry C. Sherman, Mitchell professor of chemistry at Columbia University and research associate of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

His nutrition studies with rats serve as the basis for the conclusion. The diet, which extended the prime of life in rats, had an increased proportion of milk, making the diet richer in vitamins A and G, calcium and protein.

Dr. Sherman declared that this food program "expedited growth and development, resulted in a higher level of adult vitality as shown by several criteria and extended the average length of adult life."

TESTS PROVE BRAIN NOT AFFECTED BY SLEEP LOSS

University Professors Conduct Experiment on College Students

If you think that your brain power is affected by loss of sleep, stop worrying right now. That is, if you want to go by the results of an experiment conducted at the University of Southern California.

Dr. Neil Warren and Dr. Brant Clark, with the help of 12 assistants, kept three students awake from 5.30 A. M. on a Friday until 10.30 P .M .on Saturday. Every ten hours the experimenters took tests in solving more than 100 mathematical problems and identifying more than 300 colors flashed before their eyes.

Yale President Stresses Need of Replanning Modern Philanthropy

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—Pointing out the social, economic and political significance of the recent election at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, President James Rowland of Yale University stressed the need of replanning the whole program of modern philanthropy.

He warned against any reactionary policy which might bring on a dictatorship in this country, declaring that if the advantages of a free democracy were to be salvaged, "we must breed a sufficiently vivid form of intelligent social altruism voluntarily to forego some of the individual prerogatives which in a simpler day we could properly and successfully claim."

Dr. Angell stated that a new situation exists which requires more serious and thoughtful study, as the result of the re-entering of the government on a large scale into the process of relief.

He said that many whose opinions demand respect foresee relatively permanent programs for public work and probably a large amount of direct government aid. Also the idea that the government can cure all economic ills through taxation has a weak basis.

Referring to government welfare work, Dr. Angell asserted that the personal touch which the private agency offers cannot and does not come from the government clerk.

"To rob our communities of the element of voluntary giving on the part of the intelligent, generous, and socially minded is to destroy one of the most precious of human values and to substitute cold, mechanical proccdure for the warm-hearted outpouring of humane impulse," he said.

"If we do not, as private citizens sensitive to the need of our neighbors and fully aware of our own selfish interest in a vigorous healthy community, support the agencies that promote all the things which go to the making of such a community, we shall quickly have suffering and misery and disease and crime in increased measure and to allow this to occur will adversely affect the safety and happiness of every home and the contents of every pocketbook."

President Walter Dill Scott has announced that salaries of all who were in the educational administration, and miscellaneous service prior to September 1, 1933, will receive a 10 per cent increase in salaries starting January 1, 1937. This will not apply to members who have already received special financial considerations durmg the past three years and a half.

STUDENTS REORGANIZE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Similar Unit Disbanded in 1930; Great Interest in Revival

Students interested in the finer arts have started a progressive movement to bring back to life a symphony orchestra at Villanova College.

The initial meeting of the group was held last Friday. Twenty-six students reported to organize a new symphony orchestra which will be actively engaged in concert work for the remainder of the school year.

The last unit of this nature to function on the campus was back in 1930. Since this time the band and Villanovans, the college dance orchestra, are the only organizations sharing musical distinction. It is desired by those in charge that the entire student body will co-operate and enable Villanova to foster the musical talents in her students and therefore enrich one and all with the cultural benefits derived.

Mr. Bert Passanante, present director of the organizatcn, has issued a call to all students with any sort of musical training to apply for membership in the orchestra. Further organization will take place immediately after the Christmas holidays.

Outstanding Affair

The Christmas holiday social is given yearly to honor the graduates of Villanova in the North Jersey sector, and is considered one of the outstanding affairs sponsored by the club. John D. Cronin, president of the club, announced in behalf of the dance committee that he expected the whole-hearted cooperation of every member of the club.

The sale of tickets will be open to the public during the Christmas holidays and bids are the most reasonable ever in the history of the group.

FR. O'DONNELL CHOSEN

Rev. John O'Donnell, O. S. A., has signified his intention of becoming moderator of the ro-organized Connecticut Club of Villa nova College, it was disclosed by J. Benedict Maloney, president, at the weekly meeting of the club on last Wednesday.

Committee Appointed

A committee has been appointed by President Maloney to represent the Connecticut Club of Villanova at the first annual dance of the New Haven Alumni Association, to be held during the Christmas holidays. The committee is as follows: Andrew Aleo, Andrew Amatrudo, Theodore Goumy, Harry Luzzie, Richard Neagle, Carl Pantalei and Edward Wolff.

Due to confliction with a previously arranged engagement, Father O'Donnell was unable to attend last week's meeting; however, he will address the club members at a meeting of the club tonight.

Wilkes - Barre Unit Expects Large Attendance At Xmas Dance

Featuring Jerry McHale and his orchestra, the annual Christmas dance of the Wilkes-Barre Club will be presented Christmas night at the Hotel Sterling in Wilkes-Barre.

Dance Is Popular

This dance orchestra, which has been chosen by Chairman Witold Kryzwicki and the dance committee has the reputation of being a most popular modern orchestra and is held in high favor by the younger set from the Wilkes-Barre area. Chairman Kryzwicki expressed his intentions of making this dance a parallel to the socials of former years.

The annual Christmas dance has been sponsored by the Wilkes-Barre Club since its organization, and has proved to be a tradition among its members. It is one of the most successful functions attempted by any of the clubs on the Villanova campus.

BETA GAMMA PLANS ACTIVE CAMPAIGN OF 28 CONTESTS

Most Intense Roster in Years Includes 14 Debates Off The Campus

SEASON OPENED LAST WED.

Release of the 1937 schedule of the Villanova College Debating Society was formally announced by Anthony Differ, president, today.

Though still in the tentative stage, the roster shatters all precedents and is the largest ever attempted by the forensic group, since the conception of the debating society as a collegiate unit.

Twenty-eight debates have been arranged up to the present time, with an even distribution of home and away contests. However, this schedule is not yet complete and the debaters have high hopes of securing additional engagements.

Radio Debates Planned

This speaks highly of President Differ, who is to be commended for the excellent roster which he arranged through his untiring and unceasing efforts.

It was also announced that a series of radio bedates is being planned over station WFIL in Philadelphia. Though these are pending, it is hoped to begin them sometime in the early part of February. They will be broadcast every Friday.

Last week, the debaters engaged Swarthmore College on the question: Resolved That the government should own and operate government utilities. The Villanova team defended the affirmative side of the question. The debate was broadcast over station WIP.

The speakers for the locals were Anthony Differ and Joseph Carroll, with Differ also presenting the rebuttal.

There was no decision rendered,

DEVERALL READS PAPER TO GROUP

Discusses New Co-operative Plan Before College Study Club

The new co-operative movement which will eventually supplement the present capitalistic method of production and distribution was the main topic of discussion at the last meeting of the Study Club last Wednesday evening.

After the reading of a paper dealing with the origin and principle of consumer's co-operation, the speaker, Richard Deverall, answered questions from the floor. Gibbons Kolb, Norbert Ford, Joseph Feehan, James Quigley and others particfpated in the discussion of capitalism and co-operation.

Also present at the meeting were Rev. Wm. Lunney, O. S. A., Rev. Stephen Lanen, O. S. A., and Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A. Dr. Harold F. Hartman, of the college History Department, attended. It was announced at the close of the meeting that when the Study Group opens up after the Christmas vacation, Dr. Hartman would present a paper dealing with the historical evolution of modern capitalism.

STAFF TO MEET

There will be an important meeting of the staff of the VILLANOVAN today at one o'clock in the office. It is imperative that all members be in attendance.

MASS. ALUMNI ENTERTAIN

Prominent among the many Xmas dances that are scheduled for this year is the annual formal dance sponsored by the Villanova alumni of Lawrence, Mass. The unit has procured the services of Mal Hallet and his orchestra for the occasion which takes place Xmas night.

The Andover Country Club will be the scene of the dance with the subscription set at $2.00. Hallet and his musicians will furnish music for the dancers from 9 to 2 o'clock. Noted for his unique swing music, Lawrence's gift to the dance world promises a splendid show which will be attended by both undergraduates as well as graduates of Villanova from the Bay State.

FRENEY SPEAKS TO GROUP

President of Philadelphia Alumni Addresses Holy Name at Monthly Meeting

Speaking before the monthly meeting of the Villanova Holy Name Society, Mr. John Freney, president of the Philadelphia Alumni, emphasized the necessity of loyalty to the church and school. The Holy Name, he claimed, is a social as well as a spiritual organization, "Most college students, upon graduation, usually have a difficult time in securing a position. However, if they join the Holy Name Society they are able to get in touch more easily with influential business men."

In closing, the speaker urged all graduates to enroll in local alumni groups so that they may be in close touch with their college.

GRIDDERS HEAR GLEE CLUB SING

Choral Group Presents Popular Selections at Annual Football Dinner

When Villanova's football gladiators were honored at a dinner held in their honor at the Bellevue-Stratford last Tuesday evening, the Glee Club was on hand to entertain the audience with some of the selections they have been rehearsing.

Four Numbers Presented

A number of selections were presented, among which was included, "The Ranger Song," from the production, "Rio Rita." Edward E. Purcell's "Passing By" was next sung by the chorus. A solo was rendered during the song by the silver-voiced tenor, John Chapple. A Victor Herbert composition, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," from the play "Naughty Marietta," was the third selection. The program was concluded with the college "Alma Mater," written by Al Dubin especially for Villanova College. Robert Whelan accompanied the choral group at the piano.

This year's Glee Club was under the direction of Paul Teel and the guidance of Rev. Charles P. Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the club.

TIRRELL IS CONFINED

The VILLANOVAN, on behalf of the student body, wishes a speedy recovery to Edward L. Tirrell, of Bound Brook, N. J., who recently underwent an appendectomy.

SCIENCE FRATERNITY UNDERGOES SEVERAL IMPORTANT CHANGES

Meetings Altered to A Bi-Monthly Basis; Convene Thursday Nights

TO COMPETE ATHLETICALLY

Deciding that it was time for a change the members of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity made several revisions in their constitution at their meeting last Thursday night.

Chief among these improvements was the selection of Thursday evening to replace Thursday noon hour as the time for meetings. It was also decided that meetings every other week would be sufficient. The reason for the change of time was that the new arrangement will allow for meetings of longer duration than was possible under the old arrangement. Officials of the fraternity are endeavoring to make some arrangements whereby meals will be provided for the day students here at the college.

Local Scientists Contacted

Another reason for the change in meeting time is to allow more time for scientific discussion at the bi-weekly gatherings. In order to further this plan certain outstanding local scientists will be asked to speak at future meetings. It is felt by the members that this entire plan will create greater interest in the fraternity than has heretofore been shown.

The recent tour to Sharpe and Dohme Laboratories in Glenolden having been such a success, plans are now under way to arrange trips to Jefferson Medical School, Wister Institute of Anatomy, Boone Institute of Anatomy, Hahnemann Hospital and many others. These trips will start immediately following the Christmas holidays.

OUR NEW NEIGHBOR

ALTHOUGH it is yet to be determined whether an ironical or ominous implication underlies the invitation of the Mexican Government to afford Leon Trotsky a haven upon the expiration of his stay in Norway, there can be little doubt that there is something anomalous in having one of the world's most prominent advocates of revolution and autocratic rule by the state housed next door to the people who are most jealous of their personal liberty.

Trotsky's greatest fault to date so far as the Moscow Government is concerned was his failure to die along with Lenin, in order that he might be similarly immortalized as the founder of modern Sovietism, for he may be said to have shared with Lenin equal responsibility for the ruthlessness that marked the success of Bolshevism in Russia. As an avowed exponent of revolution by force, Trotsky has had nothing but contempt for the changing policies of Stalin, who will doubtless regard Trotsky's entry into Mexico with no little displeasure. For after successfully preventing him from publicly speaking or writing for a number of years, Stalin now sees him preparing to depart for a country that has not been overly friendly to Russia for the past six years.

The treatment that the Soviets have accorded Trotsky calls to mind the little actual difference that exists between the manner in which both the Communistically and Dictatorially ruled states acquire and sustain their supremacy over the people. Each believes in, and practices, the savage suppression of dissent; each maintains its position through violence; each is the rule of an organized and efficiently operating minority; each grants the people little real liberty; and each seeks to substitute the ideal of nationalism for that of internationalism fostered by religion.

Trotsky's plight for the past few years has been by no means eviable. Undesired by any country because of the hostility felt for him by Soviet officials, he lives a pitiable example of the little real liberty afforded by a form of government that is constantly professing the equality of all men.

AMERICAN PEACE

PERHAPS one great step toward international security and peace was formulated within the past month by the voyage of President Roosevelt to the South American Peace Congress in Argentina.

The American executive delivered the keystone address, and while not mentioning explicitly the Monroe Doctrine he went on to say that the American republics should stand shoulder to shoulder against the aggression of nationalistically minded aggressors. He stipulated that it was the duty of every nation on the Western Hemisphere to prevent war among themselves and to remove, furthermore, all prevailing conditions that might eventually lead to war.

This united front of democracies, then, might be able to withstand the inroads that European dictatorships have made within the last decade. This hemisphere remains as the only place where some degree of freedom still remains to the individual. That this freedom may be perpetuated is the idea behind the South American gathering.

The tumultuous ovation with which our president was received only exemplifies the high esteem with which he is held in the neighboring continent. This complete confidence in an individual perhaps presages a new era of good will between this diversified aggregation of American republics. Whether or not this step will be able to prevent the next world conflagration only time will tell. A move in the right direction, however, has been taken.

NATIONS MUST FOLLOW CHRIST!

"SHE brought forth her first-born Son and wrapped Him up in swaddling clothes and laid Him in a manger," reads the Gospel read at the Holy Mass to be celebrated midnight, Christmas.

A child wrapped in swaddling clothes laid in a manger! Is it there that one would go to find a King? Is it there that one would go to find him, who is all Truth, all Beauty, all Goodness? Yet there is a mighty lesson to be derived from the simple circumstances which Jesus, Our Lord, chose to surround His formal entry into this world.

St. Augustine, in his De Vera Religione, tells us of the humble character of Christ the King: "The nations were thirsting, to their own destruction, after riches as the ministers of pleasure; He willed to be poor. They longed for honor and power; He refused to be a king. They esteemed children, after the flesh, a great good; He despised such wedlock and such offspring. In the plentitude of their pride, they abhorred insults; He suffered them in every form. They deemed injuries intolerable; what greater injury could there be than the condemnation of the Just, the Innocent? They loathed corporal suffering; He was scourged and tormented. They feared to die; He suffered death. They thought the Cross the most shameful kind of death; He was crucified."

Taking this description of Jesus, so touching and so beautiful, let us remember that Christ told us to follow Him; He told us to be Perfect. But Christ did not say this only to men, but to society as a whole. He told men to shun power and honor; He also told nations to so act. He told men to accept insults, offering them up to God as a prayer; He also told nations to so act. He told men to suffer for His sake; He also told nations to so act.

Today, in Europe, swashbuckling dictators, purse-proud financiers, international bankers, kings, presidents, and what have you are doing their best to forget the teachings of Jesus Christ as they apply to nations, which are but extensions of men.

College Chatter

By Frank Bonetti

A SMALL boy seated in a giant stadium stared as if in a trance—
"Oh," he thought, "If only some day I may get my chance.
To rip and roar and tear opposing lines asunder.
To tackle hard, and hear the crash mingled with the crowd's thunder."

Autumn passed; winter came, and summer with its golden glow.
The season looked upon a lad so strong who was now a formidable foe.
The tiny boy who had lived only on dreams.
Now was able to act, on his once fantastic schemes.

Fortune had been good to this boy, now a man.
Football and fame were his as if by the wave of some magic fan.
But what of the far-away scenes his young eyes had decreed.
Yes, even then God meant to give, a trip to Havana and world-wide esteem.

—Joe Allesandroni, '38

For aspiring college students whose knees castanet at the thought of entrance exams, Argentina and China offer tempting invitations. In Argentina, the entrant must have a knowledge of the tango. China asks that the applicant demonstrate the quality of his patience by conveying tea peas to his mouth with the aid of chopsticks.

A few examination paper boners. These are from students (oh boy!) at Marquette:

Nepotism—"a form of sixteenth century government" (this one might have been intentional).

Defender of the Faith—"one of the saints" (and this title was given to Henry VIII).

Benefice—"an order of monks founded by St. Benedictine!"

Also, "a state of mind instilled by the church."

Monasticism—"the belief in only one supreme being."

Palestrina—"a mouth wash (and this for the greatest Gregorian of them all!).

John Knox—"Republican candidate for vice-president in the last election." (Shades of the Presbyterian arbiter!).

The Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's do not appreciate the adage, "Home, Sweet Home." When they want to reach their "home" field, they must travel 20 miles by water, 30 miles by land, and pass through three large cities.

A lady purchased a Louis XIV bed and when it was delivered found that it was an inch too short for her husband, so she returned it with the following instruction: "The Louis XIV bed bought from you is an inch to short for my husband. Please send me a Louis XV."

In promulgating your esoteric cogitations or articulating your superficial sentimentalities and amicable philosophical or psychological observations, beware of platitudinous ponderosity. . . .or in other words—don't use big words.

Sam: "What's playing at the movies Saturday night?"
She: "The Oriental Barber."
Sam: "What's that?"
She: "The China Clipper."

A LITTLE BOY'S PRAYER

Wouldn't it be awful
If on Christmas eve,
Santa got caught in a chimney,
And could neither advance nor leave.
Just think of the many hearts
That would ache with the break of day,
When they found their stockings empty
As though Santa had stayed away.
And wouldn't he be embarrassed
Sitting up there 'till nine;
But if he has to stick in a chimney,
I hope he sticks in mine.

A MERRY XMAS TO ALL.

THE Christian Front," Dick Deverall's up-and-coming Christian manservice, is having its own little domestic troubles here of late. It seems that the boss was forced to cut the salary of one of the publication's lesser menials. Said menial, Norbert Ford, the fashion plate, to you, wreaked his vengeance on the above magazine by actually picketing the offices of publication while the boss sat in the window smoking a big cigar and sneering at the miscreant. Inside, work went on as usual and our Norbert, feeling the effects of old man Winster, soon decided that his sign was not warm enough and retired disconsolate to his room.

Did you hear the Tronc gang cheering at the Seton Hall game. They really got their Irish up and let loose with some real bursts of chering. The rest of you would do well to follow the example of this gang at basketball games. They really "did themselves up proud."

FROSH do you know—
That every visitor to Havana during the sport festival will be given a golden key to the city which will be good for drinks in every joint in town on New Year's eve?

That several fellows who had decided that the trip would be too expensive have changed their minds after hearing the news?

That some of the fellows are waiting to see who is going to move in to the house across the road, which was recently vacated by a little blonde?

It has been heard around Fedigan that Charlie Cook has recently taken a violent fancy to cats.

Bert Passanante, the old maestro himself, has requested that we mention the budding Villanova Symphony Orchestra in which he is particularly interested. We ourselves know very little about music but think that the re-organization of this once-active group will do much to make the intellectual people on the outside realize that not all college boys are addicted to "Sugar Blues" and like noises. In all fairness to college men they must realize that undergraduates really do appreciate some real music once in a while. The appearance of Villanova's Symphony will bring this to their minds. Good luck, Bert.

Charlie Bruno and Al Mayell, after a few practice jaunts, have again been around trying to get an inter-mural ping pong team to represent Austin Hall in the coming matches. We are also told that our pal Jake Simons is doing the same for Fedigan. There'll be hot times after Christmas.

We also want to take this opportunity to express our wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all of you. See you next year.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

WE SAID last week that it would be interesting to note the schedule of an ace vocalist with a prominent band. We have chosen Dolly Dawn who warbles for George Hall's Hotel Taft orchestra. On Monday: A tour of the music publishing houses with her boss, Hall, to find the new tunes that suit her. She has a repertoire of 300 tunes. Tuesday calls for a rough reading and then on Wednesday, Dolly and the arranger go to work. Then rehearsal from 10 P. M. to 2 A. M., with the band. Thursday she becomes a pupil and has a session with her voice coach. Friday, last minute corrections and trying them out on luncheon dancers. Saturday, on the air, shopping for dresses to be used with new engagements and then the best day in the week for Dolly — Sunday — catching up on sleep after a hectic night devoted to spedding dances. Of course to this routine is added regular luncheon and dinner engagements in the Hotel Taft and you have a busy week.

Latest tips from all around the town. Abe Lyman is now playing from the Hotel New Yorker in Manhattan with Connie Boswell as featured soloist. . . . Ray Noble may go back to England unless a sponsor comes along to help pay those high-priced musicians of his . . The French Casino management is taking the Hotel Morrison Terrace Room in Chicago this month . . . This will probably mean Ted Flo Rito's engagement at the windy city rendezvous will conclude . . . Louis Prima who organized a 14-piece unit recently to play the Blackhawk in Chi is out of that spot with Red Norvo, his xyliophone and rotund frau, Mildred Bailey replacing Louisiana Lou . . . Prima is going back to 62nd St., New York's swing-jam artery, with his original octette . . . Speaking of small swing bands, Riley and Farley, (remember "Music Goes 'Round and 'Round") have finally dissolved partnership and succeeded at the Hickory House by the three T's: Jack Teagarden, Charley Teagarden and Frank Trumbauer . . .

Arnold Johnson, a veteran maestro of radio, stage and screen, who is heard as musical director of the National Amateur Night program on the Mutual Network, featuring Benny Rubin, is organizing a 15-piece "swing" dance band, which will shortly be ensconced in an East Side hotel in New York. The orchestra's personnel includes alumnus from the bands of Hal Kemp, Casa Loma, Vincent Lopez and Benny Goodman, and promises among many innovations "sound effects" for special arrangements.

How's this for a job—getting paid most of the time for not working and having the boss hope there won't be any work for you? Impossible? Not at all. The major networks employ a number of stand-by musicians on just those terms. Their duties are limited to filling in if anything goes wrong with a regular program. And, of course, the broadcasting companies don't want anything to go awry.

On one occasion, the Marion Talley program, aired from California, was shut off east of Colorado when an airplane knocked down a telephone line in Denver. An announcer listening in from the National Broadcasting Company's studios in Radio City came to the rescue with: "Due to mechanical difficulties beyond our control, we are unable to continue the Marion Talley program. We will present instead a program of orchestral music." Hearing this cue, the members of the fill-in orchestra threw down their newspapers, grabbed their instruments and put the network back on the air.

The electrical guitar is rapidly becoming an indespensable dance ment in the 1937 streamlined dance band, if you take some of radio's bandsmen's word for it. George Hall recently added one and has been featuring it only on soft, sweet melodies. It has met with popular success and favor in the grill of the Hotel Taft the way guitarist Frank Klinger strums the instruments. Frank is Hall's regular guitarist.

CUBA

Part II of an interview with Antonio C. Olivares, native of Havana, Cuba, and student at Villanova.

Round Trip to Cuba for $65

It is possible to make a round trip to Havana, staying in that city one day, all expenses paid for a maximum total of sixty-five dollars. For each additional day in Cuba, add $5.

A round-trip on the Greyhound Bus Line to Miami, from Broad Street Station in Philadelphia, would cost $30. Buses leave for Miami nearly every day. The trip takes about two days. It will be necessary to purchase about four meals and rooms are included in dollars for meals on the way down and back from Miami, our total cost is now $34.

A ten-day excursion boat round-trip ticket between Miami and Havana can be bought for $25. This trip takes fourteen hours, and all meals and rooms are included in the fare. This boat leaves Miami at 7 P. M. on the 22nd, 24th, 26th and 29th of December and arrives in Havana the following morning at 9 A. M. Coming back the boat leaves on the 1st and 3rd of January at 7 P. M. and will arrive in Miami 8 A. M. the following morning.

It will be necessary to board in Cuba. This will cost about five dollars per day at the best hotels. You can arrange your trip to stay as long as you want to in Cuba.

Sidelights

Cuba has Eastern Standard time, the same as ours. The New Year's Day football game will be played at 2 P. M. and will be broadcasted over American stations by Ted Husing, direct from Tropical Stadium, Havana.

Popular dances in Cuba are "Sones" and "Danzons." Rhumbas are danced in night club shows and the like, but a respectable Cuban will never dance it himself.

Gentlemen who prefer blondes will be sadly disappointed in Cuban girls. They are mostly brunettes.

As We See It . . . at Random

By HARRY PARKIN

THOUGH the suggestion is by no means original it is so little regarded outside the religious life, that we feel some trifling good may be effected by mentioning it upon this occasion, even though it only be to the extent of moving someone to give some thought of it. This is the matter of acquiring the real spirit of Christmas, which consists in this or in nothing at all, that the world, Christian, of course, rejoices because it commemorates the day upon which the human race was redeemed through the birth of the second Person of the Blessed Trinity. Hence there should be an aura of religion or spirituality over all our activities during this season. Presents should be bought and exchanged not on the basis of how much can be acquired for the least that can be given, but rather the desire to give expression to our Christian love and charity toward our fellowmen. Give and receive all things in the name of Christ, in order that He who gave so immeasurably that all men might live will add His blessing to the gift.

The Christmas greeting card seems the best medium through which people may express their awareness of the real spirit of the season. They should not be selected for the novelty with which they present the customary greeting with which people are wont to take leave of each other, but for the depth and spirituality of their sentiments. The feelings given expression on the cards should reveal an understanding of the desirability of having the graces and blessings made possible for men through the birth of Christ, continue over the entire year.

The Christmas obligation is believed by many to be fulfilled when they hear Mass—the rest of the day is then given over to personal enjoyment. In addition to this we would suggest that the merriment of the day be broken by a short visit, even if it is for only five minutes, to the church in order that you may express your gratitude to the Son of Man for the sacrifices through which He made possible the everlasting happiness of men, to which this happiness is hardly noticeable.

Y is a person of many excellent and admirable qualities which he seems so seldom inclined to exert, for they are known to none other than his intimates. In conjunction with these he has a most irritating fault, which he reveals on certain occasions and which has given to his acquaintances the opinion that he is a decidedly unpleasant individual. In itself the fault may seem inconsequential, in fact it is probably unknown to Y himself, yet it is of such a nature that it immediately impresses itself upon those who have occasion to speak with him upon certain topics.

The failing to which we refer is his tendency, when speaking of the things he has recently bought or been presented with, to express the manner of their acquisition in such a way as to excite the envy, rather than the good wishes, of the one to whom he is speaking. Behind his words and manner of their delivery is a kind of personal satisfaction that his listener, not having such things, or possibly being unable to acquire them, should be jealous of him for their possession.

A. S. M. E. SOCIETY MAKES POWER TEST

Engineers Conduct Examination of Long Island State Hospital Equipment

Villanova's Student Chapter of the A.S.M.E. conducted a power plant test at the Pilgrim State Hospital, Brentwood, L. I., on Tuesday, December 8.

The power plant connected with this institution is one of most complete and efficient of recent constructions in this country embodying every new development. The test covered a period of eight hours, including readings at regular intervals of boiler data, fuel consumption, feed water flow and engine operation, as well as observation of carbon dioxide content in flue gases and electrical measurements.

The test was conducted by Joseph Delaney, Norman Cotter, Frank Sweeney, Edward Wolff, Emil Mathias, Paul Melian, Edward Van Laeys, and Marshall Ward. Due to the practical nature of this test, it was felt that it would prove to be of extraordinary value to those who participated, and to have set a new standard upon which to base future trips.

fraternity a committee of three, under the leadership of Pio Goggi and consisting of Joseph Toland and Witold Krzywicki has been appointed to arrange athletic contests with other campus organizations. Athletically the fraternity plans to put forth teams in basketball, baseball, track and tennis.

Applications of prospective Freshmen members have been received by the membership committee and several of the first year men have already been interviewed by the committee. Announcement of those accepted and the date of initiation will be made shortly after the holidays.

To further the scholastic assistance of members is one of the chief aims of the organization. In order to cope with this problem several old examinations have been procured by the fraternity and are now being catalogued prior to being placed on file in the library and at several other vantage points on the campus. Andrew Conte, vice president of the group, has been appointed to take care of these documents and is responsible for their distribution among the members.

It was also decided that a copy of the by-laws of the fraternity be given to each member. Plans for the completion of this task are already under way.

SNAPSHOTS ACCEPTED

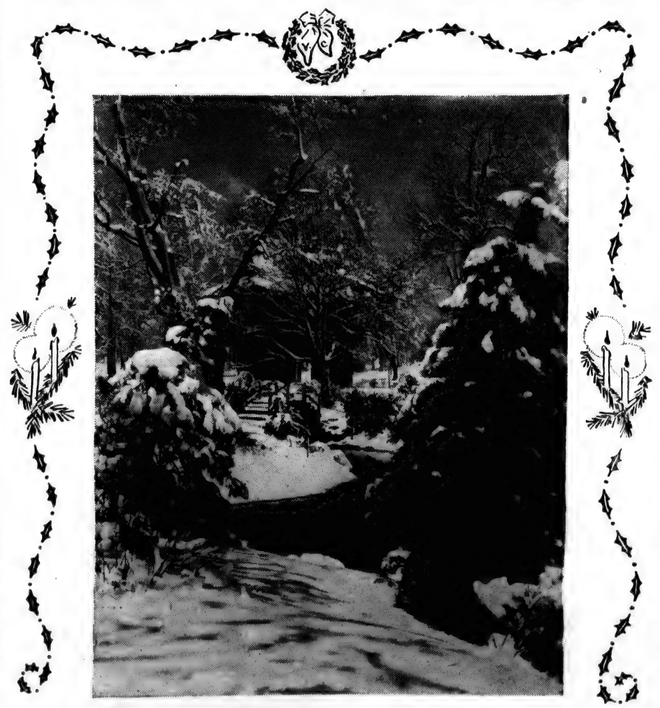
Any student having snapshots taken about the campus that they wish to have printed in the Belle Air are urged to submit them to Thomas Kennedy, editor, or to Pasquale Guarini, Photography editor.

FRAT TO GET KEYS

It was announced at the regular meeting of Phi Kappa Pi yesterday by Eugene A. Barr, president, that keys for the members would be presented at the annual dinner dance of the frat to be held in May. This fact has been contested by the members for two weeks and as a result of the vote taken at yesterday's meeting, the matter is considered to be settled.

EACH A MAJOR BOWES IN HIMSELF

When the curtain rings down tonight on the first mammoth Amateur Show sponsored and conducted entirely by the student body of Villanova College, these gentlemen pictured above will sit back and breathe a sigh of relief after having coached their respective halls and classmates through a splendid show. Working unselfishly and inexhaustively they were more than instrumental in the success of the show. From left to right they are: Hugh Ferguson, Mendel Day Student; James Tofani, Commerce and Finance Day Student; John Chapple, Austin Hall, and Stanley Galazin, Fedigan Hall.



SPANISH SOCIETY JOINS MAJOR UNIT

Campus Club Admitted to Columbia Group; Fr. Mahoney Speaks

Under the energetic leadership of the Rev. Lorenzo A. Lozano, O. S. A., the Spanish Club of Villanova has been admitted to the American Spanish Club of Columbia University.

The attending members of the club at the regular monthly gathering received this news with considerable enthusiasm as it means closer affiliation with other major colleges of the United States in forming inter-relations through education and languages.

The Rev. Jerome Mahoney, O. S. A., professor of Spanish and honorary member of the club, was introduced by Fr. Lozano, as guest speaker of the meeting. Fr. Mahoney discussed his experiences in Spain and told in brief description the strife in that country in the present period due to the existing war problems.

He enumerated the interesting and historic landmarks of the Spanish country-side, but admitted his foremost love for the United States. Well versed on his subject, because of his many travels, this popular faculty instructor held the interest of all the members throughout his speech.

Charles S. Bruno, president of the club, officiated at the meeting and outlined briefly plans for the meeting to be held after the holidays.

Another notification disclosed was to the effect that anyone wishing to be retained as a member of the society must attend all meetings and show more interest than has been prevalent heretofore. If this is not followed, drastic actions are being contemplated.

the United States," he stated, "and it actually is true that there is total darkness for six months. During this time, traveling is eliminated, and time is devoted to the repairing of planes and preparations in general are formulated awaiting favorable weather conditions. We saw about twelve feature motion pictures over and over again, chief among which was '42nd Street,' which we saw no less than seven times. Card playing also took up a great deal of our time, with poker being the most popular pastime."

Sub-zero Temperature Recorded

Continuing, he said, "the weather in the summer time was comparatively mild, the temperature ranging from 0° F. to 20° above zero. The winter was extremely cruel and the temperature dropped as low as 70° F. below zero."

Concluding his address, McCormick paid high tribute to Rear Admiral Richard Byrd, explaining the confidence placed in the great explorer and leader. "He always mixed with the men, drawing them aside so that he could become personally known with his entire party. Every morning, even in the most treacherous weather, he would take his daily walk and was very fond of his dogs. The expedition had full trust in him and obeyed his every command."

IT might be said that Al Severance's charges were imbued with the Christmas spirit Friday evening when the luckless Western Maryland five was vanquished. They no doubt realized that it was better to give than to receive and they certainly dished it out. If you don't think the Terrors took it you're very much mistaken.

Speaking of the Christmas spirit reminds us that this is the last issue until after the holidays. As it is the last issue, it behooves us to wish everyone the season's greetings while the time is ripe, so A Very Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year to you, you, and YOU from this column.

We were not surprised that the formation of the so-called Ivy League has struck a snag. It seems that neither Yale nor Harvard is overly desirous of engaging Columbia in the grand old sport of rugby, American style. This has been pretty generally known for some time, and has been shown by the fact that the Lions have been excluded from the New Englanders' schedules for alas these many years. It is also alleged that Princeton gets into quite a lather each year over having to finish her schedule with Dartmouth instead of Yale. Villanova is certainly fortunate in not belonging to any league—no hidebound rules and regulations to observe, come what may. We are also free to choose our own opponents—a very important consideration.

Orchids to "Val" Rizzo.

Valentine Rizzo, dependable guard of the Villanova eleven, was selected on the third All-American team which was picked by Charles E. Parker of the New York World-Telegram. Rizzo attained this distinction for his outstanding play in the Manhattan game. "Val" was the mainstay of the Wildcats on both defense and offense. His hard tackling and blocking being of All-American calibre. Captain Tony Sala and Andy Stopper, triple threat man, were both given honorable mention in the end and halfback positions.

Looking back over this late lamented gridiron season, we'll always remember the shock we received when we heard the Minnesota-Northwestern score . . . and the Villanova-Bucknell results . . . both 6-0 losses for the favorites. And the irrepressible Larry Kelly's feat in the Yale-Navy game, when the Eli leader accidentally kicked a loose ball toward the sailor's goal, putting the Bulldogs in a scoring position . . . To say nothing of his sensational pass grabbing in the Princeton game, which was perhaps the most exciting contest in the East all year. And the lifted eyebrows at the release from Ithaca, N. Y., which stated that the majarity of talented sophomores of the Big Red team are either sons or brothers of former Cornell men. What, no nephews?

One for the book . . .

Burleigh Grimes, new warden at Ebbets Field, has been approached by many Mungo-hungry National League managers, one of whom offered an outfielder whose only claim to fame has been that he once told Dizzy Dean where he would most probably spend his next life, and two pitchers who can't get over the habit of ducking every time they throw the ball. A newspaperman present when Grimes turned down the deal remonstrated with the Dodger manager, remarking that if he were running the Brooklyn club, he would jump at the chance to complete the transaction. Grimes snorted "Maybe that's why I'm managing the Dodgers and you're writing baseball!" We feel that this was rather a neat slap at second guessers. Personally, we've reformed.

First Half Championship Changes Hands As Mendel Residents Gain Decisive 32-23 Win Over Mendel Day-Hops

SECOND HALF OPENS IN JANUARY

By HENRY A. MAZZEI

After a month and a half of keenly contested play, the first half of the Intra-Mural basketball championship was decided last week at the Alumni Gym, when the favored Mendel Day-Hops were decisively trimmed by an inspired Mendel Resident quintet, 33-23.

The schedule makers couldn't have arranged this meeting more perfectly if they had known how the race would turn out. It was the last contest of the first half, and both teams were tied for the lead before the imbroglio. As a result both clubs "shot the works," but the "Resies," led by Tim Waad, and Lloyd Rice, had a little too much power for the big Day-Hop aggregation.

As a result of their splendid win, the Residents gained ten points in the Intra-Mural competition and boosted themselves far into the van of the race.

Day-Hops Lead

Taking the floor with a confident air, the Day-Hops, last year's champions,stepped into the lead soon after the opening whistle, when Beitenmiller tossed in a one-hander from the side. This was the only time in the contest that the heavily-favored Day-Hops held the lead, because Waad and Rice brought their big guns into play and gave the "Resies" a commanding score.

Beitenmiller scored again, and Duffy swished one through to end the scoring for the defending champions in the first half. Meanwhile,

MURAL FISTICUFFS LIFT BOXING LID

Eleven Lively Bouts Mark Induction of Boxing Season at Villanova

By NORTON C. PADEN

Presses roaring—and copy not yet ready, two minutes to make the deadline or rather the overtime. Villanova holds Intra-mural boxing bouts Monday night. VILLANOVAN gets story on Tuesday. Scoop!

Ray Gadsby put on a good exhibition last night when the cream of the Intra-Mural stars battled it out through 11 bouts. Bob Daniello (136) and Al Holl (134) started the matches, but a flurry of rights and lefts was too much for Holl and Daniello got the nod.

Pat Vassalluzzo (159) and Joe Carroll (162) stabbed their way through the second fight. Vassalluzzo won the decision on the strength of a powerful right hand. Jerry Holland (179) and Jack Ferron (176) participated in a slugging match that was built up as a grudge fight. Holland was awarded the decision after a third round rout.

Claude Le Dow (155) and Matt Phelan (157) mixed it up in a really good scrap. Phelan was declared the victor after flooring Le Wow twice. Tony Aleo (121) found Vince Shugrue (120) just too much to handle and Vince got the nod.

Dick Gove (142) and Bob O'Brien (140) met in the sixth bout and neither were able to inflict much damage on each other so the contest was called a draw. Victor Cook (215) and Jim McKnight (208) met in a slugging battle of giants and Cook was just a shade better.

Eddie Kirk (125) met Eddie Higgins (132) and displayed the form that carried him to the national amateur championships. He was in top form and carried Higgins for three rounds.

Joe Tanzola (126) fell before the determined attack of battling Carl Pantaleo (128). A knockdown in the first round was Joe's' undoing.

Billy Duffy (152) showed his superiority in his battle with Pat Rooney (162) and Jack Jarosik (176) outslugged Pete Rogers (176) to end the matches.

BROWN PREP NOSES OUT YEARLINGS IN THRILLING BATTLE

Defeat Marks First in Two Years for Frosh Basketeers

VAN HOOK, LAZORCHEK STAR

Unable to maintain a 15-10 advantage garnered by halftime, a scrappy Villanova freshman team went down to defeat by a terrific second-half onslaught administered by the Brown Prep Basketeers.

Controlling the tap-off the Villanova frosh exhibited a fine passing attack in the first half and worked as a smooth combination. Trailing by a score of 5-3, the "kittens" staged a rally which enabled them to overcome this lead and to hold the edge during the first period. The rally was featured by the splendid shooting of Duke Duzminski and the floor work of Lazorchek.

As a result of the teamwork and co-ordination demonstrated by the Yearlings, they sported a 15-10 lead at the intermission.

However, Brown Prep came back in the second half and opened up a spectacular passing attack which split the "kitten" defense wide open, and on more occasions than one Van Hook, brilliant forward of Brown Prep, was open under the 'Cat basket.

Sophomores Show Great Defensive Power as Team Clicks

Riding roughshod in the second half, a highly powerful Villanova quintet changed a slow, uninteresting and close game into a fast, one-sided scoring jamboree when they completely overwhelmed a favored Western Maryland team 51-20, last Friday night in the gym.

Fans settled back in their seats in the first half to enjoy a very tight game. Coach Al Severance sent in substitute after substitute endeavoring to find a scoring combination, but it was to no avail. While the Wildcats were playing strong defensive ball, the Terrors were equally adamant; consequently, the half ended with Villanova on the long end of a 17-13 score.

The pep talk between the halves must have furnished the desired stimulant for the 'Cats. Paced by Hank McNally and Lou Dubino, who scored 16 and 14 points respectively, the Felines came out and ran rough shod over their opponents. Villanova tallied 15 times within ten minutes before the dazed Big Green team could even get their hands on the ball. The team averaged well over a point a minute in the second half rout.

Montgomery Scores First

Immediately after the opening tap-off, Lank Montgomery received a pass from Don Brennan and proceeded to flip in a backhand shot for the first score. This play was the most spectacular of the game, and it practically took the fight right out of the Marylanders. However, they came back and tied the score on Uvanne's basket, but Dubino got away from Stan Benjamin and tallied. He raised the ante a few seconds later by sinking a pair of fouls. From there on, the Wildcats held a slim lead which was constantly being endangered by the Terrors' thrusts in the first half.

Art Vigilante and P. J. Hopkins supplied the necessary spark in the waning moments of the first canto to preserve the 'Cats' margin. Benjamin, a threat on the court as on the gridiron, sunk two long shots, and Uvanne tallied on a set shot to put their team within two points of the tiring Villanova team; however, Hopkins came through

'Cat Basketeers Meet Big Ten Co-Champions

Quintet Begins Invasion Of New England Tomorrow

FEATURED INDIANA TILT, DEC. 21

Starting tomorrow, the Villanova basketball team will take its annual trip through New England. Durihg the course of their travels the 'Cats will meet three strong court aggregations, and these will be faced on successive nights.

Tomorrow evening, December 16, Al Severance's boys will take the floor against St. Anselm's College at Manchester, New Hampshire. This St. Anselm gang is somewhat of an unknown quantity in these parts, but showed that it very definitely has something on the ball by holding a vaunted Dartmouth team to a 37-32 score.

In the second game of the trip Villanova will oppose the Providence College club, a perennially strong team.

The following day the Wildcats move down to Springfield, Mass., to meet the Springfield College team. This particular game shapes up as the toughest of the trip. The boys from the Bay State demonstrated plenty of smoothness and punch in downing the Lions of Columbia last Saturday in New York. Columbia is the defending champ in the Eastern Intercollegiate League, and that makes the Springfield victory more impressive.

On their return home the 'Cats will encounter the most highly regarded team on the schedule, Indiana University. The battle will take place at the Arena as part of the December 21 double-header. This is the Hoosiers' first trip East in two years, and they are coming with a very good reputation. Out of last year's squad of ten lettermen, who incidentally were co-champs with Purdue of the Big Ten, seven are back.

Leading the invaders are their co-captains, Vernon Huffman and Kenneth Gunning, two of the Big Ten's brightest '35-'36 stars. Huffman, a guard, was a unanimous choice for All-Conference team. He was also selected at the guard position on the All-America team. He is a marvelous ball handler and a dead shot from midcourt.

Gunning, the other co-captain, is a forward. He is the fastest man on the team and last year's high scorer. In the race for scoring honors in the Big Ten, he was third, just a few points behind Bob Kessler, of Purdue, and Haarlow, of Chicago.

Fred Fechtman, six feet seven inch center; Robert Etnire, forward, and Willis Hosler, guard, round out the starting combination. These three are all seniors and lettermen. The other two returning lettermen are Joe Platt and Willie Silberstein, a pair of juniors. Platt is the most accurate shot on the team, averaging one field goal out of every two tries. Silberstein is a product of Brooklyn and the only man on the squad who does not hail from the State of Indiana. In addition to these men, the Hoosiers carry eight sophomores and three reserves from last season.

So far this season the Indiana club has won two games, both by overwhelming scores. In the opener they rode roughshod over the University of Cincinnati, champs of the Buckeye Conference, by the top heavy count of 46-13. In the other game, Miami University was soundly slapped to the tune of 43-13.

The Hoosiers come East the early part of next week to play Manhattan, one of the top flight teams of the country, at Madison Square Garden. After that, they trek to Philadelphia to face Villanova at the Arena.

mainstays of the yearling outfit, tried vallently to stem the enemy's attack with fine shots from all angles, but the inability of the Villanova defensive men to bottle Van Hook resulted in a disastrous evening for the frosh.

Two long shots by Rosenberg, key man on Brown Prep's offense and defense, featured the tilt. Rosenberg's floor work was outstanding and quite often his quick, accurate passes resulted in twin-pointers for the Brown Prep quintet.

After the score had been tied the Brown Prepsters staged an attack which carried them to a 27-21 score. At this point the yearlings came back with Lazorchek and Duzminski getting a field goal each. However, the outburst died out and when the final whistle blew, Brown Prep was on the long end of a 30-27 score.

Brown Prep won its twenty-first consecutive game as a result of the victory and although they were outscored by a lone field goal from the floor they made eight foul goals while the Villanova frosh could only make three of their charity tosses.

The defeat marked the first in twenty-six games for the Villanova frosh; a winning streak which extended over a period of two years.

PAUL KERRIGAN

150-POUNDERS CHOOSE KERRIGAN AS CAPTAIN

Junior Commerce and Finance Student Outstanding Member of Lightweight Club

Paul Kerrigan, Junior in the School of Commerce and Finance, was elected captain of the Villanova 150-pound football team for the 1937 season. At a meeting of the squad held last Wednesday, Paul was the unanimous choice to pilot the lightweights through the next campaign.

The captain-elect has been the outstanding man on the 150's for the past two years. In every game he has shown himself to be the "fightingest," hardest-hitting player on the field. Paul played the fullback position and handled all the chores of that post in convincing fashion.

In addition to his football activities, Kerrigan participated in boxing during his freshman year. He had a very successful season, but unfortunately for the chances of the 'Cat boxing team he was forced to give up that sport by reason of the doctor's orders. Paul is a product of Valley Forge Military Academy, where he starred as a boxer.

"Clipper" Talks of New Year's Game With Customary Gloomy Outlook

By THOMAS O'MAHONEY

Practice for the day was over down on the Villanova gridiron, and we were thankfully leaving the cold, wet field for the warm dressing rooms under the gymnasium in the company of Clipper Smith, Vince McNally and Doc Jacobs. Clipper was discussing the forthcoming New Year's Day game with Auburn in Havana. We remarked that the young men were working pretty well, and that they seemed to be timing their plays nicely. Clipper, however, as all good coaches do, squelched that by replying that they'd "need everything they had, and then some."

"Do you know," he demanded, "this Auburn team is the fastest, smartest outfit we'll face this year?"

We feebly mentioned Temple, Detroit, Manhattan. And then wished we hadn't. For Clipper went on.

"They have two of the best backs in the South in Jim Hitchcock and Bill Kilgore—and their center, Gilbert, a lad of 210 pounds, standing six-two, will take plenty of moving. And look at their record—they lost only to Louisiana State and Santa Clara. Who hasn't?"

We fully admitted his point, but, trying to get away from the unpleasant subject, we asked about the travelling arrangements. Clipper wasn't prepared to give the itinerary, but did tell how he had just met, after several years, a player he had coached at Columbia University, Oregon.

"He was one of the best blocking backs I ever had—and what do you think he's doing now? He represents a prominent airline which may transport the team to Havana."

Clipper turned to Doc Jacobs, freshman coach, and said that he was well satisfied with the way the green-shirts were acting as guineapigs for the varsity. He then faced us and explained that the frosh were substituting this training in Auburn plays for part of their usual Spring practise. This prompted us to ask about the Southerners' offense.

"Well, Jack Meagher is a Notre Dame man, so their attack is some-

EVERYBODY knows about the football team, and each one of its members is pretty well known and receiving publicity and notoriety according to his talents and personality. There is one young man, however, who is an integral factor in the functioning of the football team, who looks after the team with greatest care and devotion and who attends to all the minor details and items that go to make a football team a perfectly organized unit. He is Kevin Quinn, head football manager and right hand man of Coach "Clipper" Smith. His name is rarely used in connection with the football team, and few of the spectators at the games know who he is, but among his wide circle of intimates he is held in high esteem.

As Kev is a demure and retiring indivual, it was only with the greatest reluctance that he vouchsafed a few remarks concerning his life during the past twenty-one years. In fact, if it were not for the cooperation of his room-mate, fellow-Long Islander and football manager, "Hack" Donovan, and several of his more intimate acquaintances, there would be but a short account here inscribed. Mr. Quinn, however, lent his assistance to spice their remarks with a few grains of truth.

From what can be ascertained, Joseph Kevin Quinn was born in Great Neck, Long Island, New York, on the morning of September 2,115, and attended a very profuse collection of schools before his entrance into Villanova. He received his elementary academic training in the Chaminade School at Mineola, N. Y., where he managed several of the athletic teams. From there he went to the Christian Brothers Academy in Albany, N. Y., where he gained high scholastic honors and thence to LaSalle Military Academy in Oakdale, N. Y. After thus receiving his preliminary education, Kev matriculated at Villanova in 1933, where he quickly made a place for himself in a class of close to 180.

During his freshman year he was appointed freshman manager of the football team and became one of the leading men in his class in the Commerce and Finance school. He is painstaking and systematic in whatever he does, and this trait is plainly visible in all his work. When a sophomore he received an appointment to the Vigilance Committee and won the respect and admiration of all the freshmen. Next year he was appointed to the Junior Prom Committee, and this year his unceasing care and dependability accorded him the position of senior manager on the football team.

Kev is a quiet unassuming person in all his outside actions, but to his associates he is a man to be reckoned with. He has many little idiosyncrasies, and a few special favorites. One of these is a nice peanut butter sandwich down at the Gym with Jake Nevins, the head trainer. As near as can be found out his favorite movie actress is the diminutive Jane Withers with Eleanor Powell, the danseuse, running a close second. In the ranks of the male actors Victor McLaglen rates number one place. Guy Lombardo appears to be his idea of the real thing in music, and midget autoracing the same in any man's sport world. His instincts seem to be on the mechanical side; this, coupled with a strong desire to be a successful broker on Wall St., are probably his chief reasons for the successful life he leads.

At the football banquet last week "Clipper" Smith handed him an oral bouquet, and I am sure he echoed the sentiments of every man on the squad.

Kev looks forward with the deepest regret to his coming graduation in June, but his sorrow is brightened to some extent by the prospective trip to Havana on New Year's Day.

Mendel Residents Beat Day-Hop Foes

the Residents were piling up a nine point lead and as a result they led 15-6 at the half. The Commuters seemed to go to pieces during the close of the first half, and their defense resembled a well-punctured sieve.

At the start of the second half, however, the Day-Hops, seemingly inspired by Coach Fitzpatrick, lost all signs of bewilderment and launched an attack of their own, which carried then to within three points of the Residents. The Resies immediately called time.

O'Connor, the leading scorer of the league, and the brilliant Bleienmiller led the attack. When time was resumed, Jack Donahue laid up three baskets in a row to practically "sew up the contest" for the Residents.

Donahue's splurge seemed to take the heart out of the Day-Hops, and although they scored several more baskets, these were counteracted by two baskets by Waad, a heave by Rice, Bochetto's tap-in, and another long one by Rice. This flurry came in the closing minutes of the contest, and the whistle blew soon after to end the ball game.

Briefs

Joe Bochetto, playing in the bucket for the Resies, was probably the most valuable man on the floor. Joe gave out seven assists during the contest.

"Tiny" Lagerenberg and "Andy" Chisick, the officials, were a bit lax at times, but on the whole they turned in a good performance.

For the first time this year O'Connor of the Day-Hops was completely checked in the first half. Joe Bochetto not only tied "Okie" in knots, but he outscored him six to five.

Barr, a source of trouble to the Residents in their first contest, was completely bottled by Frank Melograma and Tim Waad. Waad, incidentally, was the high scorer of the game, garnering nine points.

The spirit of the Mendel Residents was typified by Jack Donahue who fractured his thumb in three places during a ball game, yet continued to play at his forward position through the major part of the encounter.

Lloyd Rice continued his sensational marksmanship. All his scores came as the result of shots from outside the 20-ft. mark.

Beitenmiller was the whole show for the Day-Hops. His spirited play saved the Commuters from being utterly routed.

This contest marked the close of the first half's play in the league. The teams, with the exception of the ousted C. and F. outfit, will mark time until after the holidays, when they will begin play in the second half.

Comments On The Western Maryland Game

DURING the ups and downs of a collegiate basketball season, the team displays periodic flashes of super form that make the coach sit up on his hard bench and relax, just waiting to see how much of an overwhelming score his boys can pile up.

In the Western Maryland game, I did just that.

Unfortunately, in the first period, Villanova made the mistake of attempting to meet the Terrors at their own game, and the foolishness of these tactics was evidenced by the score during that portion of the game. However, we realized our mistake and we came out in the second period using an entirely different strategy. We employed a fast breaking game, weaving continually and working directly toward the basket.

Terrors Big and Slow

Western Maryland, being big and slow, could not cope with the speed and snap of the 'Cats, and in an effort to stem the tide, the Terrors encountered many penalties. Compared with last week's game with Seton Hall, it was a pleasure to watch the accuracy from the foul line. Against Seton Hall, we were negligible in the free tosses. I hope that the team recognizes the scoring possibilities and appreciates the importance of the foul line.

Cats Have Heavy Schedule

The Blue and White will bump up against a real test in its coming swing through New England. In any basketball game the home team is usually spotted from five to ten points at the start of the game. This is due to a number of factors, chief among them being the knowledge of the floor. Among other items may be included the familiarity with the style of the referee in calling plays, and the general strangeness of the visitors on alien surfaces.

Foes Have Big Name

Providence, St. Anselm's and Springfield are important teams in basketball, and have had representative teams for many seasons.

In New York, Springfield invaded the Lion of Columbia and did quite a thorough job on it last Saturday night. Providence met one of the best outfits that Nat Holman of C. C. N. Y. has turned out in a long time, and although they were defeated, Providence showed that despite their apparent slowness, they can come back and be dangerous. Although the City College team completely outplayed the New England team in the first period, the latter half of the game witnessed a return to hard basketball with Providence giving the Gotham boys plenty of opposition and forcing them to great heights to protect their early lead.

Hebard Dangerous

In Captain Hebard, Springfield has one of the best basketball players in the New England area. In all of his past contests, he has averaged ten points a game, and it will take hard and fast basketball to slow him down.

Springfield works from a modified eight formation, weaving in and out beneath the basket in an attempt to shake the inside man loose with a fast breaking man through the center lane. This mode of offense, coupled with a team that appreciates what backboard play means will give the Main Liners many anxious moments during the game.

with an arching field goal as the half ended.

Cats Show Form in Passing

With Brennan and Vigilante feeding the ball to their teammates, the 'Cats reached a peak in form that has been lacking in the Villanova camp for several years. The ball was passed in and out, and men, particularly McNally and Dubino, would cut in at an opportune time to score. At no time during the game was there any evidence of individualism shown. Even the second-stringers passed and scored with ease in the last ten minutes of play.

Western Maryland put up a great fight throughout, but it did not have the scoring punch that was so noticeable in the Wildcat attack. Benjamin and Stropp on the offense, and Adriance and Tomichek on the defense looked the best for the Terrors.

The whole winning squad excelled. Villanova's first and second teams are on par as has been shown in this game. They can work as units or as individuals, and if they show the form evidenced in this game all year, they are bound to go places in the basketball wars.

Adept at Foul Line

In a direct contrast to last week's game, the Severance-coached machine made the foul shots count. Much drilling and emphasis has been placed on this phase of the game, as these points may be decisive in the games to come. The 'Cats made seven out of their ten fouls register, while their adversaries were able to gather only six out of the same number of tries.

what like ours; and they certainly seem to be a very alert, agressive club. As for variations of the orthodox Rockne system, they throw out a flanker on certain plays, much as we do. They play a hard, tricky game and should give us all the opposition we'd ever need."

We inquired about the work to be done in preparation for the encounter. Clipper's reply was that their would be plenty of dummy scrimmage, with just enough "rough stuff" to keep the blocking right. He commented upon the sad fate of Stanford in the 1934 Rose Bowl classic.

"Their blocking was off entirely. If it had been a dry field, Columbia would have run up a score. And that is exactly what Auburn may do to us unless we keep up our Manhattan game form."

And as we pictured that ponderous, yet mobile line and those smashing backs who beat Georgia, Tech, Tennessee and tied Tulane, 0-0, we thought so, too.

thing that makes our swimmers so prolific at taking their scheduled opposition. Meets held during the off season keep the mermen on their competitive edge. Bill Leahy is a regular attendant at these meets and his excellent performances during the College Swimming season show how beneficial this diet really is.

During the summer Leahy is entered in every kind of a race from the fifty yard free style sprint to the National five-mile contest. That he has been quite successful in these contests is attested to by the numerous trophies decorating his room.

While the other members of the squad may not have collected the number of mementoes that Leahy has, they also keep themselves in shape by swimming in organized meets. Will Booth, Tony Greco and Bill Bailey do their swimming for the Penn A. C. Charlie Timmins keeps his championship form by regularly competing for the Big Brothers' Association.

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

HERE it is Christmas time, and the better part of the first half of another school year gone. The first part of the Intra-mural basketball race has passed, and the teams are resting prior to returning to the wars. This year's contests were the most spirited in many a season, and the closeness of the race had the respective team rooters arguing violently throughout the season. It looked as though the schedule were made up against the Mendel Day Hops, as they had four games carded in the closing week of the race. Other teams in the league complained upon occasion that Austin Hall seemed to have the easiest schedule, so far as the number of games played per week.

Tommy Caspar, frosh footballer, gave a speech on the stage of the Wayne Theatre recently The enthusiastic reception given him by the audience, consisting mainly of Radnor High students, amply bespeaks the great popularity of that oratorical gentleman.

After looking over some of the publicity concerning the sports fleet in Havana, we are convinced that the Cubans are out to do things right. There will be more games than on any occasion other than the Olympics. Cuba's President Gomez is a rabid sports fan, and his idea is to make Cuba sports conscious. He seems to be going about it in the right manner, having the best athletic performers on the American continent. Tennis, basketball, boxing, track, baseball, and football game will be one of the first ball game wil lbe one of the first ever glimpsed by the Cubans. There is a league in that country, the champions of which will face the University of Miami frosh, but other than that Cubans have not seen much big time football. They will see plenty, however, when the Wildcats tangle with the Alabamans.

Baseball is in again. The big boys of the National and American Leagues were in session, and much talk and chatter resulted, with trades of stars and lesser lights, all of which will be fuel for the Hot Stove League until Spring is here again, and the teams go down South.

Seton Hall certainly showed us something in the way of cheerings. The enthusiasm shown by the "Jerseyites" was a good example of what our rooting should be like. It seems to us that the Wildcat fans take too much for granted. It is true that a small band of supporters following a team into enemy territory is usually well-united and inspired, but there should be more noise from the home club supporters. Drop in at some of the high school games that will probably be played down at the gym, and take some lessons in cheering.

Last Tuesday Ted Husing picked his All-Radio team, consisting of the outstanding players in the games he has broadcast throughout the year. If he had waited until after the Auburn game, he might have had to change some of the boys around to make way for a few Wildcats. Incidentally, if some of the predictions on possible opponents for next year's football schedule are true, Villanova adherents should be well satisfied with the calibre of the opposition.

'Cat Basketeers Meet Big Ten Co-Champions

Quintet Begins Invasion Of New England Tomorrow

FEATURED INDIANA TILT, DEC. 21

Starting tomorrow, the Villanova basketball team will take its annual trip through New England. During the course of their travels the 'Cats will meet three strong court aggregations, and these will be faced on successive nights.

Tomorrow evening, December 16, Al Severance's boys will take the floor against St. Anselm's College at Manchester, New Hampshire. This St. Anselm gang is somewhat of an unknown quantity in these parts, but showed that it very definitely has something on the ball by holding a vaunted Dartmouth team to a 37-32 score.

In the second game of the trip Villanova will oppose the Providence College club, a perennially strong team.

The following day the Wildcats move down to Springfield, Mass., to meet the Springfield College team. This particular game shapes up as the toughest of the trip. The boys from the Bay State demonstrated plenty of smoothness and punch in downing the Lions of Columbia last Saturday in New York. Columbia is the defending champ in the Eastern Intercollegiate League, and that makes the Springfield victory more impressive.

On their return home the 'Cats will encounter the most highly regarded team on the schedule, Indiana University. The battle will take place at the Arena as part of the December 21 double-header. This is the Hoosiers' first trip East in two years, and they are coming with a very good reputation. Out of last year's squad of ten lettermen, who incidentally were co-champs with Purdue of the Big Ten, seven are back.

Leading the invaders are their co-captains, Vernon Huffman and Kenneth Gunning, two of the Big Ten's brightest 35-36 stars. Huffman, a guard, was a unanimous choice for All-Conference team. He was also selected at the guard position on the All-America team. He is a marvelous ball handler and a dead shot from midcourt.

Gunning, the other co-captain, is a forward. He is the fastest man on the team and last year's high scorer. In the race for scoring honors in the Big Ten, he was third. Just a few points behind Bob Kessler, of Purdue, and Haarlow, of Chicago.

Fred Fechtman, six feet seven inch center; Robert Etnire, forward, and Willis Hosler, guard, round out the starting combination. These three are all seniors and lettermen. The other two returning lettermen are Joe Platt and Willie Silberstein, a pair of juniors. Platt is the most accurate shot on the team, averaging one field goal out of every two tries. Silberstein is a product of Brooklyn and the only man on the squad who does not hail from the State of Indiana. In addition to these men, the Hoosiers carry eight sophomores and three reserves from last season.

So far this season the Indiana club has won two games, both by overwhelming scores. In the opener they rode roughshod over the University of Cincinnati, champs of the Buckeye Conference, by the top heavy count of 46-13. In the other game, Miami University was soundly slapped to the tune of 43-13.

The Hoosiers come East the early part of next week to play Manhattan, one of the top flight teams of the country, at Madison Square Garden. After that, they trek to Philadelphia to face Villanova at the Arena.

Brown Prep Noses Out Yearlings

mainstays of the yearling outfit, tried valiently to stem the enemy's attack with fine shots from all angles, but the inability of the Villanova defensive men to bottle Van Hook resulted in a disastrous evening for the frosh.

Two long shots by Rosenberg, key man on Brown Prep's offense and defense, featured the tilt. Rosenberg's floor work was outstanding and quite often his quick, accurate passes resulted in twin-pointers for the Brown Prep quintet.

After the score had been tied the Brown Prepsters staged an attack which carried them to a 27-21 score. At this point the yearlings came back with Lazorchek and Duzminskl getting a field goal each. However, the outburst died out and when the final whistle blew, Brown Prep was on the long end of a 30-27 score.

Brown Prep won its twenty-first consecutive game as a result of the victory and although they were outscored by a lone field goal from the floor they made eight foul goals while the Villanova frosh could only make three of their charity tosses.

The defeat marked the first in twenty-six games for the Villanova frosh; a winning streak which extended over a period of two years.

New 150-Lb. Leader

PAUL KERRIGAN

150-POUNDERS CHOOSE KERRIGAN AS CAPTAIN

Paul Kerrigan, Junior in the School of Commerce and Finance, was elected captain of the Villanova 150-pound football team for the 1937 season. At a meeting of the squad held last Wednesday, Paul was the unanimous choice to pilot the lightweights through the next campaign.

The captain-elect has been the outstanding man on the 150's for the past two years. In every game he has shown himself to be the "fightingest," hardest-hitting player on the field. Paul played the fullback position and handled all the chores of that post in convincing fashion.

In addition to his football activities, Kerrigan participated in boxing during his freshman year. He had a very successful season, but unfortunately for the chances of the 'Cat boxing team he was forced to give up that sport by reason of the doctor's orders. Paul is a product of Valley Forge Military Academy, where he starred as a boxer.

"Clipper" Talks of New Year's Game With Customary Gloomy Outlook

By THOMAS O'MAHONEY

Practice for the day was over down on the Villanova gridiron, and we were thankfully leaving the cold, wet field for the warm dressing rooms under the gymnasium in the company of Clipper Smith, Vince McNally and Doc Jacobs. Clipper was discussing the forthcoming New Year's Day game with Auburn in Havana. We remarked that the young men were working pretty well, and that they seemed to be timing their plays nicely. Clipper, however, as all good coaches do, squelched that by replying that they'd "need everything they had, and then some."

"Do you know," he demanded, "this Auburn team is the fastest, smartest outfit we'll face this year?"

We feebly mentioned Temple, Detroit, Manhattan. And then wished we hadn't. For Clipper went on.

"They have two of the best backs in the South in Jim Hitchcock and Bill Kilgore—and their center, Gilbert, a lad of 210 pounds, standing six-two, will take plenty of moving. And look at their record—they lost only to Louisiana State and Santa Clara. Who hasn't?"

We fully admitted his point, but, trying to get away from the unpleasant subject, we asked about the travelling arrangements. Clipper wasn't prepared to give the itinerary, but did tell how he had just met, after several years, a player he had coached at Columbia University, Oregon.

"He was one of the best blocking backs I ever had—and what do you think he's doing now? He represents a prominent airline which may transport the team to Havana."

Clipper turned to Doc Jacobs, freshman coach, and said that he was well satisfied with the way the green-shirts were acting as guinea-pigs for the varsity. He then faced us and explained that the frosh were substituting this training in Auburn places for part of their usual Spring practise. This prompted us to ask about the Southerners' offense.

"Well, Jack Meagher is a Notre Dame man, so their attack is some-

EVERYBODY knows about the football team, and each one of its members is pretty well known and receiving publicity and notoriety according to his talents and personality. There is one young man, however, who is an integral factor in the functioning of the football team, who looks after the team with greatest care and devotion and who attends to all the minor details and items that go to make a football team a perfectly organized unit. He is Kevin Quinn, head football manager and right hand man of Coach "Clipper" Smith. His name is rarely used in connection with the football team, and few of the spectators at the games know who he is, but among his wide circle of intimates he is held in high esteem.

As Kev is a demure and retiring indivual, it was only with the greatest reluctance that he ouchsafed a few remarks concerning his life during the past twenty-one years. In fact, if it were not for the cooperation of his room-mate, fellow-Long Islander and football manager, "Hack" Donovan, and several of his more intimate acquaintances, there would be but a short account here inscribed. Mr. Quinn, however, lent his assistance to spice their remarks with a few grains of truth.

From what can be ascertained, Joseph Kevin Quinn was born in Great Neck, Long Island, New York, on the morning of September 2,115, and attended a very profuse collection of schools before his entrance into Villanova. He received his elementary academic training in the Chaminade School at Mineola, N. Y., where he managed several of the athletic teams. From there he went to the Christian Brothers Academy in Albany, N. Y., where he gained high scholastic honors and thence to LaSalle Military Academy in Oakdale, N. Y. After thus receiving his preliminary education, Kev matriculated at Villanova in 1933, where he quickly made a place for himself in a class of close to 180.

During his freshman year he was appointed freshman manager of the football team and became one of the leading men in his class in the Commerce and Finance school. He is painstaking and systematic in whatever he does, and this trait is plainly visible in all his work. When a sophomore he received an appointment to the Vigilance Committee and won the respect and admiration of all of the freshmen. Next year he was appointed to the Junior Prom Committee, and this year his unceasing care and dependability accorded him the position of senior manager on the football team.

Kev is a quiet unassuming person in all his outside actions, but to his associates he is a man to be reckoned with. He has many little idiosyncrasies, and a few special favorites. One of these is a nice peanut butter sandwich down at the Gym with Jake Nevins, the head trainer. As near as can be found out his favorite movie actress is the diminutive Jane Withers with Eleanor Powell, the danseuse, running a close second. In the ranks of the male actors Victor McLaglen rates number one place. Guy Lombardo appears to be his idea of the real thing in music, and midget autoracing the same in any man's sport world. His instincts seem to be on the mechanical side; this, coupled with a strong desire to be a successful broker on Wall St., are probably his chief reasons for the successful life he leads.

At the football banquet last week "Clipper" Smith handed him an oral bouquet, and I am sure he echoed the sentiments of every man on the squad.

Kev looks forward with the deepest regret to his coming graduation in June, but his sorrow is brightened to some extent by the prospective trip to Havana on New Year's Day.

the Residents were piling up a nine point lead and as a result they led 15-6 at the half. The Commuters seemed to go to pieces during the close of the first half, and their defense resembled a well-punctured sieve.

At the start of the second half, however, the Day-Hops, seemingly inspired by Coach Fitzpatrick, lost all signs of bewilderment and launched an attack of their own, which carried then to within three points of the Residents. The Ressles immediately called time.

O'Connor, the leading scorer of the league, and the brilliant Bietenmiller led the attack. When time was resumed, Jack Donahue laid up three baskets in a row to practically "sew up the contest" for the Residents.

Donahue's splurge seemed to take the heart out of the Day-Hops, and although they scored several more baskets, these were counteracted by two baskets by Waad, a heave by Rice, Bochetto's tap-in, and another long one by Rice. This flurry came in the closing minutes of the contest, and the whistle blew soon after to end the ball game.

Joe Bochetto, playing in the bucket for the Resles, was probably the most valuable man on the floor. Joe gave out seven assists during the contest.

"Tiny" Lagerenberg and "Andy" Chisick, the officials, were a bit lax at times, but on the whole they turned in a good performance.

For the first time this year O'Connor of the Day-Hops was completely checked in the first half. Joe Bochetto not only tied "Okie" in knots, but he outscored him six to five.

Barr, a source of trouble to the Residents in their first contest, was completely bottled by Frank Melograma and Tim Waad. Waad, incidentally, was the high scorer of the game, garnering nine points.

The spirit of the Mendel Residents was typified by Jack Donahue who fractured his thumb in three places during a hot melee, yet continued to play at his forward position through the major part of the encounter.

Lloyd Rice continued his sensational marksmanship. All his scores came as the result of shots from outside the 20-ft. mark.

Beltenmiller was the whole show for the Day-Hops. His spirited play saved the Commuters from being utterly routed.

This contest marked the close of the first half's play in the league. The teams, with the exception of the ousted C. and F. outfit, will mark time until after the holidays, when they will begin play in the second half.

Even the second-stringers passed and scored with ease in the last ten minutes of play.

Western Maryland put up a great fight throughout, but it did not have the scoring punch that was so noticeable in the Wildcat attack. Benjamin and Stropp on the offense, and Adriance and Tomichek on the defense looked the best for the Terrors.

The whole winning squad excelled, Villanova's first and second teams are on par as has been shown in this game. They can work as units or as individuals, and if they show the form evidenced in this game all year, they are bound to go places in the basketball wars.

Adept at Foul Line

In a direct contrast to last week's game, Villanova's accuracy at the foul line made the foul shots count. Short dribbles and concentration is placed on this phase of the game, as these points may be decisive in the games to come. The 'Cats made seven out of their ten fouls register, while their adversaries were able to gather only six out of the same number of tries.

what like ours; and they certainly seem to be a very alert, agressive club. As for variations of the orthodox Rockne system, they throw out a flanker on certain plays, much as we do. They play a hard, tricky game and should give us all the opposition we'd ever need."

We inquired about the work to be done in preparation for the encounter. Clipper's reply was that their would be plenty of dummy scrimmage, with just enough "rough stuff" to keep the blocking right. He commented upon the sad fate of Stanford in the 1934 Rose Bowl classic.

"Their blocking was off entirely. If it had been a dry field, Columbia would have run up a score. And that is exactly what Auburn may do to us unless we keep up our Manhattan game form."

And as we pictured that ponderous, yet mobile line and those smashing backs who beat Georgia, Tech, Tennessee and tied Tulane, 0-0, we thought so, too.

thing that makes our swimmers so prolific at taking their scheduled opposition. Meets held during the off season keep the mermen on their competitive edge. Bill Leahy is a regular attendant at these meets and his excellent performances during the College Swimming season show how beneficial this diet really is.

During the summer Leahy is entered in every kind of a race from the fifty yard free style sprint to the National five-mile contest. That he has been quite successful in these contests is attested to by the numerous trophies decorating his room.

While the other members of the squad may not have collected the number of mementoes that Leahy has, they also keep themselves in shape by swimming in organized meets. Will Booth, Tony Greco and Bill Bailey do their swimming for the Penn A. C. Charlie Timmins keeps his championship form by regularly competing for the Big Brothers' Association.

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

HERE it is Christmas time, and the better part of the first half of another school year gone. The first part of the Intra-mural basketball race has passed, and the teams are resting prior to returning to the wars. This year's contests were the most spirited in many a season, and the closeness of the race had the respective team rooters arguing violently throughout the season. It looked as though the schedule were made up against the Mendel Day Hops, as they had four games carded in the closing week of the race. Other teams in the league complained upon occasion that Austin Hall seemed to have the easiest schedule, so far as the number of games played per week.

Tommy Caspar, frosh footballer, gave a speech on the stage of the Wayne Theatre recently. The enthusiastic reception given him by the audience, consisting mainly of Radnor High students, amply bespeaks the great popularity of that oratorical gentleman.

After looking over some of the publicity concerning the sports fiest in Havana, we are convinced that the Cubans are out to do things right. There will be more games than on any occasion other than the Olympics. Cuba's President Gomez is a rabid sports fan, and his idea is to make Cuba sports conscious. He seems to be going about it in the right manner, having the best athletic performers on the American continent. Tennis, basketball, boxing, track, baseball, and football game will be one of the first ball game wil lbe one of the first ever glimpsed by the Cubans. There is a league in that country, the champions of which will face the University of Miami frosh, but other than that Cubans have not seen much big time football. They will see plenty, however, when the Wildcats tangle with the Alabamans.

Baseball is in again. The big boys of the National and American Leagues were in session, and much talk and chatter resulted, with trades of stars and lesser lights, all of which will be fuel for the Hot Stove League until Spring is here again, and the teams go down South.

Seton Hall certainly showed us something in the way of cheering. The enthusiasm shown by the "Jerseyites" was a good example of what our rooting should be like. It seems to us that the Wildcat fans take too much for granted. It is true that a small band of supporters following a team into enemy territory is usually well-united and inspired, but there should be more noise from the home club supporters. Drop in at some of the high school games that will probably be played down at the gym, and take some lessons in cheering.

Last Tuesday Ted Husing picked his All-Radio team, consisting of the outstanding players in the games he has broadcast throughout the year. If he had waited until after the Auburn game, he might have had to change some of the boys around to make way for a few Wildcats. Incidentally, if some of the predictions on possible opponents for next year's football schedule are true, Villanova adherents should be well satisfied with the calibre of the opposition.

CLINIC RECEIVES AID

School of Osteopathy Turns Over Dance Proceeds to Institution

The freshman class of the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy, at forty-eighth and Spruce Sts., held its annual formal dance for the student body and faculty of the college last Friday evening at the Arcadia International Restaurant.

Proceeds from this dance will be regarded as a personal contribution of the Class of 1940 toward the establishment of a special diabetic clinic for children.

Tardiness in Students Less Evident at Breakfast Time According to Experiment Conducted at Ripon College

Breakfast is an attraction to which the average person is most often on time. To band and choir rehearsals he is late about half the time and business appointments are met punctually about three-fourths of the time, according to Science Service. These are not guesses or estimates, as they are based on stop-watch measures made secretly of students at Ripon College by Dr. George J. Dudycha and a few members of the faculty sworn to secrecy. The stop watch was hidden and notes were made in code.

A questionnaire revealed that the tardy are all too well aware of their habits. Yet all students, tardy and punctual alike, consider it desirable to be on time, especially for work, business appointments, classes and church. They usually make an effort to be punctual and are embarrassed and annoyed with themselves when they are late. A significant association was found between an individual's promptness or lack of it. There really is a general trait of punctuality or of tardiness, Dr. Dudycha concludes in his report to the Archives of Psychology. The punctual student is likely to be more intelligent than the 10 o'clock scholar. The less neurotic students are those who are more self-efficient and tend to be more punctual.

HARVARD GUIDE CHANGES

"Catalog" No Longer Exists; So "Catalogue" Replaces It At College

Cambridge, Mass.—(ACP)—When is a "catalogue" not a "catalog"? The answer is: this year.

After experimenting for a year with the latter spelling, Harvard University has gone back to the former.

Last year, for the first time, the Harvard handbook, with the names of students, faculty members' courses and general information, was a "catalog." This year it is again a "catalogue."

CORKILL, DEVERALL STRESS PEACE IN COLLEGE ADDRESS

Local Students Appear Before Mount St. Joseph's Assembly

BRUTALITIES OF WAR ARE SKETCHED BY SPEAKERS

Three Point Program Advocated for Alleviating Hostility Danger

Addressing the assembled faculty and students of Mount St. Joseph's College, Chestnut Hill, last Wednesday evening, William Corkill, a junior Arts student declared that: "We must make peace, not war, inevitable." Appealing to the Catholic young women of America, Corkill revealed that they, above all, have within their power the right and the duty to create amongst the American people what he termed the "peace mind."

Reads Millard Diary

He closed a brilliant oration by reading a few gory excerpts from the recently published diary of Shirley Millard, a nurse in the World War. The audience shuddered when he revealed to them the horrible reality of modern warfare.

Following Corkill came Richard Deverall, editor of a national Catholic magazine, THE CHRISTIAN FRONT. He told his audience that the four principles laid down by St. Thomas Aquinas for a just war are no longer fulfilled. "Moral rights are not the object of war," he said, "but rather certain sordid economic interests. We can die defending moral right, but we cannot sacrifice 20,000,000 lives to safeguard the bonds of Mr. J. P. Morgan."

Outlines Program

Outlining a three point program for Peace advocates, Deverall called for Prayer, Action and Sacrifice, "We must pray daily for Peace. We must pray publicly for peace

TRONCELLITI HEADS INITIATION BOARD

L. K. D. Induction Group Chosen at Last Meeting; January 15 Probable Date

Manrico Tronceliiti, senior member of the School of Science, was selected Chairman of the Initiation Committee by President Gerald Piserchia at the last meeting of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity held on last Thursday.

Simultaneously, the remaining members forming the committee were announced. This group included the following students: Pio Goggi, John Donovan, Edward Tronceliiti, Jose Gonzalez, Louis Centrella, William Ward, Martin Kassel, and Witold Kryswicki.

Initiate Jan. 15th

The initiation will probably be held on January 15. Following the initiation, it has been proposed that refreshments be served to those participating in the affair.

Pre-Medical School

Nineteen members of the pre-medical school, three of whom are sophomores, have been admitted into the fraternity. Those students who have not applied for admission already may have an opportunity to do so next year.

In subsequent meetings, speakers of note will be presented to the members of the fraternity. It is probable that Dr. Gregg Salisbury, a Philadelphia dentist, will speak on Russian and French literature at the first meeting in February.

Goggi Heads Athletics

FLYING CLUB INSPECTS NAVAL AIRCRAFT PLANT

Tour Made Yesterday; Attend Dinner at Convention Hall; Hear Speakers

An interesting and instructive tour of the naval aircraft plant, in Philadelphia, coupled with the observation of the manufacturing of planes, was made by the Villanova Flying Club yesterday.

The trip culminated in a dinner last night in the Convention Hall and the members of the club heard two prominent men in the aviation field speak.

Commander Rosandahl, U. S .N., and Igor Sikorsky, noted plane maker, presented the principal addresses of the evening.

Both discourses were received with much enthusiasm by those in attendance. Rosandahl and Sikorsky lectured on matters relevant to the construction of the planes and the actual flying of them. The latter, particulary, interested the audience, as was evidenced by the intense interest that was shown when this part of the speech was rendered.

O'LOUGHLIN LEADS STUDY GROUP IN COMMUNISM TALK

General Discussion Follows Interesting Address; Many Attend

PROF. HARTMAN TO SPEAK

The Villanova Study Group met last Wednesday evening in the first session of the New Year. The scheduled speaker for the evening, Dr. Harold Hartman, was unavoidably absent, and a discussion took place amongst the many men present. Opening the evening with a discussion of Communism and communistic activities amongst student organizations, Joseph O'Loughlin told of his experiences at the recent Youth Conference held in New York City. He charged that Catholic young men are too backward in social matters, predicting that Communism would grow unless Catholic Youth does something about it.

Communism is Topic

A heated discussion on Communism in general followed. Rev. William L. Lunney, O. S. A., and Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., led the discussion, pointing out that the danger of a Communist revolution is real and near. It was agreed that the club will redouble its efforts to excite interest on the campus in this most vital of problems.

At the close of the meeting, it was announced that Professor Hartman, at the next meeting tomorrow evening, at 7:30, in the day student's room, Mendel Hall, would read a paper dealing with the rise of capitalism. Professor Hartman has an important contribution to make, and all men in the college are urged to attend.

Many Are Present

Amongst those present at last Wednesday's meeting were the following: Fr. Lunney, Fr. Vrana, John Donahue, Gibbons Kolb, Thomas Delate, Robert Bond, Norbert M. Ford, Edward Shovlin, Joseph O'Loughlin, James Quigley, Henry McGlade, John Harrington, Paul Juergens and Bernard McHenry.

Scholarship Established

Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., announced today the establishment of the William Simpson Scholarship the third. This fund amounting to $5500 was donated by William Simpson of the college board of trustees. The present donation is made in memory of Mr. Simpson's late father, Joseph Simpson, of Liverpool, England.

LAVISH PLANS MADE FOR FORTHCOMING INITIATION, BANQUET

Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity Sets February 9 as Date of Social, Induction

During the past week the membership, initiation, and banquet committees of Phi Kappa Pi, engineering fraternity, convened and formulated final plans for the forthcoming initiation and banquet to be held at the college on the evening of February 9.

Edward J. Casey, chairman of the membership committee, has secured application blanks and will distribute them through his committee this week. Casey has stated that anyone wishing to become a member of the fraternity must have his application blank signed by four members in good standing.

Will Pass On Students

These applications will then be submitted to the committee for approval; the disapproval of three members of this committee are sufficient to disqualify an applicant. The forms must be submitted at the latest at the fraternity meeting to be held on Monday, February 1. However, the entrance fee of two dollars may be deferred until the evening of the initiation. The applicant must submit his application to Edward Casey, John Linsley, Fred Welty, or William Burns.

Prominent Guests Expected

Paul Williams, initiation committee chairman, has announced that his committee has succeeded in arranging an interesting program. On the banquet end of the affair, Edward McHugh, chairman, has

Yuletide Spirit Pervades Annual Christmas Dances of Campus Clubs

Featuring Jerry McHale and his orchestra, the most successful Christmas dance in the history of the Wilkes-Barre club was presented on Christmas night in the Hotel Sterling in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

In the beautiful mirror ballroom, arranged in cabaret style and decorated in holly and Christmas colors, one hundred and twenty-five couples representing club members, alumni, and friends, danced and made merry.

Merriment Aplenty

Noisemakers and novelties were distributed to the guests by the committee under the leadership of Witold Krzywicki, chairman, and William Cleary, president of the club. Both Krzywicki and Cleary were commended on the splendid manner in which they conducted this affair.

Everyone who attended the social appeared to enjoy himself and many expressed the opinion that this was the most successful holiday dance

Adding to the color and enjoyment of the Christmas holidays was the tremendous social success of the annual dance sponsored by the North Jersey Club of Villanova College. The dance was held at "The Brook," in Summit, New Jersey, on Friday evening, December 18.

Attending this Yuletide festival were a host of alumni and friends who renewed acquaintances in this form of entertainment. The ballroom of "The Brook" was conservatively decorated and afforded an exotic atmosphere, contrasting with the merriment of the occasion.

Most Successful Dance

This social was one of the most successful ever presented by the society. Arthur M. Carleton, chairman of the general committee, was very well pleased with the outcome of the affair. He expressed his appreciation of the co-operation given him and the dance committee by the members and friends of the society.

AN EQUIVOCAL MESSAGE

IT IS interesting to note the different attitudes with which the liberal and conservative newspapers regard President Roosevelt's message to Congress. One considers it the further assurance that a new offensive will be launched against the evils that still persist in our economic and social organization, while the other sees it as an indication of the return to, the often voiced but seldom defined, historic principles and traditions of American democracy. Both, unfortunately for their respective feelings, cannot be right. For one advocated "laissez faire" in government and other regulation. One recommends caution in all things and indifference to problems in national economics, while the other demands active participation, in fact leadership, in the irradication of industrial and agrarian ills.

In the eyes of the conservatives Mr. Roosevelt's speech could hardly appear as other than a desirable omen of a "turn-about" in Administration policies, but to those of the liberals, despite their tendency to regard the President's message as a broad consideration of present and past problems, it must seem to lack the energy, clarity of exposition, and fixidity of purpose that is indicative of determined intentions. His statement that the needs of the nation could be met within the framework of the Constitution if it receives . . . "liberal and not narrow interpretation," is not conducive to the belief in any immediate alterations in the powers of the Supreme Court. Even though the liberals have constantly maintained that some action be taken against the Court.

The President's recognition of the fact, that the nullification of the NRA has still left unsettled the questions of wage and hour regulations, child labor, collective bargaining, sweat shop conditions, and the vast numbers that are still unemployed, without voicing some assurance, that he will seek a method of effectively remedying them, will doubtlessly leave many in a quandry concerning his real intentions.

For ourselves, we are too well aware of the number and magnitude of the problems that are yet to be solved if our economic system is to be permanently stabilized, that we should not have preferred to receive some information regarding the measures that will be taken for their correction, rather than the mere statement of their existence.

CHINA'S HERO

THE recent capture and holding of China's Dictator General Chiang Kai-sheck by his over zealous comrade-in-arms General Chang Hseuh-Liang, together with the recent Chinese uprisings in Nanking and the other north provinces shows that a new China is arising, and that the ancient Chinese spirit of tolerance is soon to give way to a rejuvenated feeling of smoldering hate towards an oppressive foe. China's revenue has been ruined by Japanese smugglers whom the revenue cutters of the Celestial Empire dare not molest for fear of being brought into Nippon's military tribunals and charged with piracy on the high seas. China's ignorant masses have long been influenced by Japanese propagandists, who have filled them with false stories of Japan's kindness. The Chinese railroads are almost non-existant because of Japanese railroad magnates who have moved in and taken forcible control.

Sullen submission has been the role of China for the past decade, and submission would seem to be the only course left open for the future.

Beneath the surface, however, lies the waiting force of China's sleeping giant, ready and waiting for a chance to prove his worth against the oppressor. General Chiang was not kidnapped because he was a political enemy but because he wanted to wait until he was sure of the loyalty and unity of the new China. For months he has traveled about the empire speaking to tong-chieftans and kindling in them a spirit of hate for Japan and a wish to unify China.

In a few months this unity will be complete and it will be time for the sleeping giant to wake and to roar his mighty defiance to the tyrant across the sea. China has waited long enough. Chinese patriots are waiting only for the word of their new young hero Chiang Kai-sheck and they will spring to arms and free the beloved Celestial Empire from the tyranical grasp of the hated Japan.

A LOSS TO THE COMMUNITY

NEWS of the death of Justice Frederic Kernochan last week-end must have caused considerable grief to the youth of the nation, for in him they realized, or should have if they did not, a hero. He was a man of distinction, a man who gave his very best for this country of ours and his devotion to the youth of the country was such that only a man of his calibre could evidence.

But his acts of love and devotion, all voluntary in themselves, began not when he was advanced in years but rather when he was but a child. He was the recipient of two medals for bravery the occasion being the saving of a nurse's life when she was in peril of drowning. He received a silver medal from Congress and later at the hands of Mayor Gaynor he was presented a gold medal for his effort. These awards were given for his actions as they were voluntary and held no regard of self.

Continuing this heroic display of quality in manhood he fought, in the face of official peril, the Tammany organization in behalf of an "unbossed bench" as he so aptly termed it. As one of the most active officers of the National Council of Boy Scouts he became a hero and leader. The demise of such a stalwart citizen is a far greater loss to the community than it may seem from the exterior because the manner in which he so unselfishly put forth his best for the country is an example of courage that should be looked forward to zealously — especially by the youth of the nation.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

THE night before vacation set a new precedent in Villanova history when the first annual Amateur Night was held down in the gym. Of course, everyone was in the Christmas spirit and would have had a good time even if the show had been terrible. But to make things even better the boys put on a real good show that would knock your hat in the creek. Ah yes, shades of Doug Fairbanks, John Barrymore and Charlie Chaplin, the boys were really good. Even Gypsy Rose Lee and her girls were there to lend enchantment by doing a ballet dance.

Ancient history this may be, but what we are driving at is this. Our handbook calls for a show of this kind to be given each year by the once famous Turf and Tinsel club. With the material on hand Villanova students feel sure that they could put on a show that would shade even the efforts of Penn's Mask and Wig and Princeton's Triangle club. It would be a big step forward if someone would take an interest in this thing and would set the ball rolling.

Around this time each year when you start balling up dates by writing the wrong year at the end of dates on the letter head, it is time to make a few New Year's resolutions. We do not hold ourselves to be perfect, so we'll try a few ourselves.

Resolved—

That we shall not pick on Jake Simons at all this year—unless something good comes up.

That we'll stop picking on Norbert Ford—if he behaves himself.

That we shall always have this column in the hands of our editor by noon on Thursday—so he can go to Washington for the week-end.

If we live up to all these until April, "the Boss" has promised to get us a stooge!

The footballers came back from Cuba with some good ones. It seems that Art Raimo, always was at the head of his class in Spanish here at college, and considering himself a little better than several of his cohorts along those lines, decided to try his talents on some of the small natives of the metropolis. After he had gone on for some time and had exhausted most of his knowledge of the tongue he stopped and waited to see how his remarks were being accepted by his listeners who had been paying strict attention all the while. One boy looked at his companion, shrugged his shoulders, and turning back to Art with a smile replied in broken English, "No speak American."

Cornell University has constructed a machine, called the Cyclotrome, the second one of its kind in existence, whose purpose is to produce artificial radium as a substitute for the expensive genuine product, now selling for $40,000 a gram. This artificial radium, in the form of radioactive salts which hold their rays for about a day, may be produced in large quantities at low cost, thereby providing an adequate substitute for laboratory experimentation, and rendering more of the original radium available for medicinal use.—"The Tartan."

As We See It . . . Christmas Eve

By HARRY PARKIN

CHRISTMAS EVE, and a solemn stillness lay upon the world. Leaning against the casement we looked out upon the landscape bathed in the silver of the moon; that rode like a cockel upon the waves of the clouds. Now in their trough as a veil of vapour would obscure its fulgence, now upon their crest and its brilliance would shine unrestrained upon the world. The stars nestling like diamonds in the folds of the clouds burned bright and aloff, like the hopes of men—eternal beacons of their immortality. The dome of the sky was fixed like a scene upon a canvas, painted by a master, whose hand was as firm in the execution of an infinite multitude of details as in largest figures. And over all the silence—a portentuous silence—an expectant silence—an almost eager silence—the silence of ages of waiting men—awaiting the birth of their redemption. It was indeed a night for peace on earth and good will among men.

Symbol of Power

Looking at that endless expanse of solitary beauty, so distant and yet so intimate, we were moved to dwell upon the peace and harmony that ruled the mighty magnitude of the skies, and how little disposed were they who moved beneath it to fashion their own feelings and sentiments after its accord. Created an infinite symbol of power and beauty—a thing of unsurpassing size and lustre wherein the minds of men, shaking loose the dragging shackles of the earth, could wander free and alone in communion with their creator; it has become the dumb witness of their villanies. How unnatural that the cloak of his bounty should become the cover for men's evil—see beneath its protection, the murderer who raises his cursed hand against the sacred person of his brother, the hypocrite doffing his fixed expression of candour and virtue while his features slip easily into the folds of selfishness and cunning, the liar distilling from the fungus of his heart the poisons for his tongue, and the cheat sketching in privacy the pattern of his frauds. Man created for beauty and happiness, how often does he put to nought the purposes of his creator.

Tales of Sorrow

Then we moved back in fancy across the pages of time, and lingered upon those passages that were momentous in the lives of men. But what a tale of suffering and sorrow each one told. The Spanish Civil War, the most horrible of all conflicts, when men fight with passion and hatred, twin children of ferocity, against their fellow countrymen. The World War when carnage and ruin stalked across the fields of Europe, and hatred ran riot thoughout the world. Waterloo where a man of destruction was finally destroyed and Death wearied from wielding its scythe. The American Revolution, when an autocratic and stupid parent failed to discipline an unruly child. The defeat of the Armada, when the seas ran red with the cruelties of men. Harold at Senloe, where Norman blood was fused with Saxon—upon the ground. The conflagration that was Islamism, burning itself across the Mediterranean basin and into the heart of Spain with the fervour for destruction of religious fanaticism gone mad. The bulwarks of the Roman Empire trembling before the surging torrents from the north; and then crumbling before the tide of barbarism that swept across the whole of civilized Europe. The Emperors of Rome were the most August, the most powerful and the most villanous characters in history. Our mind was horrified by its thoughts, our spirit revolted against the evil and infamy with whch men have smeared the pages of their lives. Hate, envy, violence is the hydra-headed serpent that is nursed at the bosom of society, till waxing strong it rises up to destroy that which has nurtured it. Will men never learn—must they go on till the very crack of doom—

Portrait Of A Man

Midnight—and as the low and measured chimes tell the hour the picture changes and with it a sadness comes to the heart. Golgotha—before the background of a lowering mournful sky, three crosses stand stark between the heavens and earth—the final sacrifice of love. Back to a Man who walked the crowded city streets and the dusty roads of Judea. A Man whose eyes dwelt with love and sympathy upon the ills of men— a Man whose eyes looked into the hearts and minds of men and wept at what they saw—a Man whose eyes reflected the joys of Paradise to those who looked within them. Back to a youth in the temple who answered with a word or two the most profound questions of the aged doctors of the Law. Back to a night—a night like this— in Bethlehem where a Babe lay in a manger, with tiny hands outstretched to embrace the whole of humanity, and baby eyes that smiled upon the world of men, and yet a shadow lurked within their depths—the shadow of knowledge that He should die the despised of those He had come to save, and live only in the minds of many upon the jibbet of their mockery. And the angels without sang a prophecy of His doctrine—the only doctrine that will bring to the world the love, harmony, the salvation that it hungers for—"Peace on earth, good will to men."

GLOBE TROTTING

88 Degrees Is Cold!

SEVERAL times during our stay in Havana the temperature reached about ninety degrees. The natives thought it was too cold to go in bathing! I wonder what it is like down there during the Summer.

At mid-day when the heat reaches its greatest intensity, every Cuban takes his daily "siesta." This period lasts from twelve noon to two o'clock, during which nothing is done. Not even the shops are open. Walking through the city at this time you would believe that it had been suddenly deserted.

There are many other unusual customs. At nine every night a cannon is set off which acts as a curfew for all decent women. No lady is seen on the streets after that hour.

Wine, Women and Cafes

We went into a cafe one afternoon intending to order a luncheon. The waiter couldn't understand what we wanted. Finally however, he must have decided that what we were saying sounded like bread and water, so he brought us that three times, before we made him understand what we wanted.

Among the many places that we visited was the well-known Havana wine factory. Here we were given a drinking glass, and told that we could sample all the wines in the entire plant.

Every little urchin knows three English words. Whenever they spot and "Americano" they ask him "Gimme a penny?"

Cuban girls are very beautiful. Their fair and light toned skin is surprising, in view of the hot, sunny olimate year around.

Why Game Not Broadcast

Several weeks before New Year's, Tad Husing announced over his radio program that he was going to broadcast the Villanova-Auburn game in Cuba. No retraction that gained any attention was made up to the game. Up to the last minute everyone expected it to go on the radio. All necessary electrical equipment had been installed in the Tropical Stadium, or "Bacardi Bowl" as it has been called lately. On New Year's Day fans expecting to get the game on their radios were surprised that it was not to be broadcasted.

It appears that as soon as President Gomez of Cuba was put out of office, certain complications arose which necessitated cancelling the broadcast.

The Game Stopped As—

Wherever he went former-President Gomez was wildly acclaimed by the populace. When he arrived at the Columbia basketball game, the spectators nearly went crazy with enthusiasm. After bowing and acknowledging their cheers, he went up into the stands and sat with Clipper Smith.

Again at the Villanova - Auburn game, when Mr. Gomez entered, the acclamation he received was so loud that the game had to be temporarily stopped; — the players couldn't hear themselves talk, much less listen to signals. Finally after the demonstration stopped, Mr. Gomez took a seat, and the game resumed.

Polo Shirts

Shortly after we arrived we decided to take a walk around the city. Due to the heat we wore polo shirts. A policeman, one of a million that seem to infest the city, stopped us and made gestures at our shirts.

We decided to make use of our extensive knowledge of Spanish gathered during the past year or so. So we said:

"No hablo espanol."

Then the policeman told us in English that only shirts with long sleeves, or coats were permitted. If we persisted in wearing our polo shirts we would land up in jail.

Vells, Lotteries, Fords

All married women wear vells that cover half their face.

Prices of American made goods are very high. A package of only ten American-brand cigarettes cost 30c. A Ford costs $1800. All Native Cuban-made products are very inexpensive. A package of fair grade Cuban cigarettes, twenty to a pack, sells for a nickel. Regular 50c American cigars can be had for 15c, two for 25c.

Lotteries are sold everywhere in Havana. Government taxes on lotteries provide the chief source of revenue.

Over 14,000 tourists visited Cuba during the sports festival week.

15,000 persons attended the Villanova game, the largest crowd at any of the sports events put on during the festival. Prices of admission began at $1.

If we defeat Auburn in Philadelphia next October, we automatically receive a return invitation to play in Cuba next New Year's Day.

That game's as good as won.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

BACK again for another year, troubles, worries and the such. Now it's time for all good men to come to the aid of those who have to pick "the outstanding new star of the 1936 radio year."

Who will it be? Morton Bowe? Deanna Durbin? Oswald? Shep Fields?

If its left up to the wisemen of Radio Row it will be Shep Fields. But in this case it's left up to me and anybody would be better than Shep Fields! Trinity College seems to uphold him and his "rippling rhythm," yet I believe they are allowing their personal sentiments towards Shep Fields himself run away with them. He's "cute" as they say among women! But to get serious now, little Deanna Durbin is my nomination. She proved her metal by being able to capably sing both classic and modern music. Her mature voice, personality and the fact that she is but a mere 15 years old all enter into the discussion. She has been a smash success with Eddie Cantor and the movies have already placed a high value on her. So to Deanna Durbin, whose youth and charm as well as her singing have stirred many, goes my vote for "All-America" new radio star of 1936.

Kay Kyser and his orchestra, now on a personal appearance tour, will go collegiate in a big way from January 22 through February 14, when they play for the only College Dance Conference in America. Two years ago six universities worked out a schedule of dances in succession and then bought Kysers' band, to play for the whole series. So popular was the Kyser brand of music that they've booked the band for a return engagement this year and it looks like an annual assignment.

Mellow-voiced Stuart Churchhill, his friends say, is a lot like the man who, when asked if he wanted a book for Christmas said, "No, I've got a book." One of Stu's fans, a girl, sent him a pipe. "Now what did she do that for?" Stu muttered. "I've got a pipe."

Dear Pio: In the old days birds flew south for the winter. This morning I overheard a robin making reservations on the Miami plane . . . One of my "Town Hall Tonight" cast says Jimmy Durante is one of the hardest workers in show business. Well, you can't blame him for keeping his nose to the grindstone. . . Did you hear about the lady who fed all of her stale bread to the birds? A few of them flew into her kitchen one day and they got nothing . . . She thought they had too much crust . . . Business certainly must be improving. Wall Street brokers jumping out of windows now carrying parachutes . . . I met an actor last week who claims he's got so much pulling power he can lift his own options . . . Then there was the temperamental dancer who didn't need to hire a partner. He was always beside himself . . . Portland says: "I'd buy a new coat this winter if I wasn't afraid. Mr. Allen would say 'What's that fur?'"

Cordially,
Fred Allen.

The "American School of the Air," winner of the first radio award of merit offered by the American Legion Auxiliary, is in its seventh season of broadcast instruction on the CBS network. It is heard each Monday through Friday from 2:15 to 2:45 P. M., EST, presenting courses in geography, history literature, poetry, music science, vocational guidance and current events. This year courses were inaugurated on October 13. They will continue until April 30, being interrupted only by the regular holidays observed by schools throughout the country.

Only those subjects are presented which, it is believed, can be taught more effectively by radio. As one example, no attempt is made to teach mathematics. In no sense is the series to be considered other than in the light of a supplementary method of instruction—an ally of the existing teaching profession. It is interesting to note in this connection, however, that the adult audience of the school equals that of students in classrooms.

CAMPUS CLUB HEARS LECTURE ON RUBBER BY FR. HAMMOND

Discovery And Modern Development Of Substance Treated In Address

CITES NIEUWLAND'S WORK

At the regular bi-weekly meeting of the recently organized chemical engineering student group held yesterday morning, Rev. John Hammond, O.S.A., assistant professor of chemistry, delivered an interesting illustrated lecture on rubber, covering its discovery and modern development.

Originated in England

Beginning with the discovery of rubber in the latter part of the nineteenth century, Father Hammond detailed the works of the chemists of that time in their experimentation on rubber. It was stated that the popular name, rubber, was originated in England when the substance was then primarily used for erasing pencil marks. As it came from India it earned the name of India rubber.

Its first great practical use was the development effected by MacIntosh, a Scotch chemist, who used it as a waterproof material. Quite naturally, at that time the product was not perfected to degree in which it is used today. Therefore, the rubber field was an open field for research. In this respect, many chemists of that time devoted their time in rubber research. A consequent improvement was the vulcanization of the substance. This consists simply in the addition of sulphur to the rubber.

This important improvement of vulcaniaztion was patented in England, and a short time after being patented, the new material was bought by an American, Goodyear. It was Goodyear who raised the vulcanized rubber to its commercial standing.

Synthetic Rubber is Find

Another phase in the history of rubber that Father Hammond reviewed, and probably the most important to the chemical engineering students, was that of the development of the synthetic product. The first study of synthetic rubber was begun in 1860 when Williams found the empirical formula for the compound. In the synthetic product sulphur is not needed to give it the desired properties. Because of this fact, the synthetic product made leaps and bounds in importance, and its present day standing is an immense threat to the natural product.

During his lecture, Father Hammnd had occasion to cite the development effect in the process of synthesising rubber made by the late Father Julius Arthur Nieuwland, who just last year visited Villanova College and whose untimely death last May abruptly closed his research.

formulated a promising schedule for the evening. The guests will include men prominent in the affairs of Villanova College and in the engineering and sport worlds. The college dining hall, the scene of the banquet, will be appropriately decorated with artificial lighting and flowers. Another interesting sidelight of the affair will be the distribution of individual favors to the fraternity members both new and old.

Eugene A. Barr, fraternity president, has announced that plans for the annual dinner dance and awarding of fraternity keys will be deferred until the above affair has taken place.

COLLEGE GLEE CLUB TO BROADCAST SOON

First Program Scheduled for January 25; Villanovans Also Featured

Villanova's Glee Club returned from the holiday vacation to find that two radio programs had been arranged for its members. The first is scheduled for January 25th in the afternoon from 3:15 to 4:00, the second on Feb. 8th. The broadcasts have been made possible through the efforts of Joseph Carroll a senior in the Arts School.

The Villanovans are to perform at the same time, and judging from their past performances should prove a credit to the college.

Rev. Charles P. Brown, O.S.A., has requested the members of the club turn out for the rehearsals that are held every week on Mondays and Thursdays at 4:45 P. M. so that the songs may be mastered and thus assure them of a worth while program.

At the first meeting after the holidays there were thirty-five members present, but it is hoped that at least forty-five will be on hand for the broadcast.

Debate Schedule Opens Last Friday

to be present, if only out of respect for the members of the visiting colleges.

Through the efforts of Beta Gamma, a contract has been signed with station WIP for a series of nine radio programs of forty-five minutes each to be held over the same station. The time is every Monday afternoon at 3:15 P. M. Of these programs six will be given over to debates. In order that they might be made more interesting to the audience, a different topic will be presented each week. The Glee Club and the Villanovans will be heard over two other programs and on the final one the dramatic club will present a sketch.

Radio Columnist Turns Interviewer Thus Disclosing Cuban Highlights

By PIO P. GOGGI

Monday afternoon in the Villanova office finds chief Maloney going nuts. He needs more stories. Thinks of me. . . . and. . . . oh boy! now I'm nuts! "Write me a feature story on anything, preferably on Cuba." Well, personally I don't think there will be any news in this article . . . John Cronin and the football team have been the best news agencies on the campus At any rate here goes.

John won the raffle and he was sane before he left . . . I'll leave the rest to your imagination. A group of senior engineers will testify to this Of course as I recall . . they were not capable of saying anything at all! To begin with there were only eleven men sick on the plane ride . . .Cronin enjoyed it. . . Mariana Playa was the best bathing resort he has ever seen. (This is open for argumentation, but I'm in no mood for that stuff.) . . . By the way, he gained three pounds on the trip—Ho Rum! They do say its a fattening drink . . . At this point yours truly is foaming.

Author Questions Cuban Sanity

Flash, flash and more dots! . . . Cubans are all screwy . . . They like to ride on the cow catchers of trolley cars . . . go through red lights (they do that here too)— drive like maniacs (ditto) . . . never an accident (can't say that here). John spent half his time down there arguing with the cab drivers. Take a ride around the block and you'll get a bill for five pesos (5 bucks) . . . Of course they speak very little English down there. . . It is rumored that just two words were the most commonly used . . . Poor "Clipper" got stuck for thirty cents ordering an ice cream soda. They never heard of that concotion so he got an imitation. (I'll never be the same after this).

Food Is Questionable

Food and water is "lousey" . . . or "putrid" as Ted Husing would phrase it. Occasionally they run out of water. New Year's Eve found them without . . so-ooooo! John thinks that was done to stir up the rum business. By the way, you can "tie one on" free of charge in sunny Cuba. Just take a trip out to a rum factory and they'll embalm you. First you get a straight shot . . . then they mix it for you. At any rate, you're all mixed up after you've been there five minutes . . . All you garlic lovers—head for Cuba . . . the food is cooked in it. Which leads me to believe all the more that John didn't gain three pounds on Cuban food!

On the trip back, a group of ten pretty girls were nicknamed "the second team" They seemed to enjoy parading up and down the aisles. At this point the editor has informed me that I have filled the space with this unadulterated bull. Quick, John, a shot of Baccardi!

CONNECTICUT CLUB MEETS

The initial meeting of the Villanova Connecticut Club for 1937 will be held this evening after chapel in the Mendel Hall Amphitheatre. A committee will be appointed to make arangements for the coming social activity. Dues will be accepted.

FACULTY MEMBERS ATTEND MEETINGS

Educational Conferences Feature Xmas Holidays; Exercises Held for Nieuwland

During the Christmas Holidays prominent members of the faculty and administration of Villanova College and representing its various schools, attended many conferences and parleys held in various cities of the eastern sector. These conferences were attended in the interest of Villanova and as such proved to be immense successes.

On December 28 and 29 Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O.S.A., president of Villanova College, Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan, O.S.A., and Rev. John H. Crawford, O.S.A. attended the Augustinian Education Conference in Washington. On December 31, Father Stanford was present at a discussion by the Committee on Public Relations of the Association of College Presidents of Pennsylvania which was held in Harrisburg.

Memorial Exercises Held

This past Sunday Fr. Stanford attended memorial services for the late Rev. Julius Arthur Nieuwland, at which he acted as assistant. Father Nieuwland was the receipient of the Mendel Award for the year 1936. One of the speakers at exercises was Doctor Hugh Stott Taylor, (also a Mendel medalist, who spoke to the students of the School of Science in one of the Seminar last fall).

In Providence, Rhode Island, Villanova was again represented at the parleys of the Catholic Historical Association and the American Historical Association by Prof. Harold F. Hartman, Ph.D., instructor in History in the School of Arts and Sciences. Both meetings were held simultaneously on the 28th and 29th of December.

In Atlantic City, Villanova was again represented at the meeting of the Association for the Advancement of Science. Present at the discussions were Rev. John F. Hammond, O. S. A, and Professor John A McClain of the School of Science. This Conference received much publicity in the Philadelphia Newspapers as the conference was held for one week.

WHAT a feeling, staring at a blank piece of paper with so much to write about and not even the vaguest idea of where to begin. I guess the holidays were too much for yours truly. Let's see now: Got a card from Ray Gadsby in Cuba—waving palms, soft lights, sweet music. Oh me! Thanks Ray—Anybody saving Cuban stamps?

—V—

Wings over the Atlantic and the Villanova gridders with their hearts in their throats—that's, at least, a pretty good excuse for keeping their hands over their mouths. The green light shining on the faces of their companions had most of the boys guessing until they saw their own physiogonamy. It comes from a free swinging stomach.

—V—

86 in the shade and the refs looking it. They worked harder than the 22 other fellows on the field. The ball was slippery and hard to handle. Results a few fumbles—all forgiven. A tie with Auburn is a good score in any league. We have the cup for six months and then it is shipped South. The result of next year's Auburn fracas will determine the permanent ownership of the mug. —Joke—it cost about a fin to get it into the country so we ought to get it for an extra month.

—V—

Al Severance missed the most important trip of the year as his basketeers had to hang around to meet other quintets who didn't have anything to do. A swing through New England was his only compensation and then all was not to be desired, Springfield pulling a surprise out of their hats slapped the Cats continually to wind up on the long end of the score. Indiana University cochamps of the big ten also took Villanova's measure but this was more or less expected by those in the know.

—V—

While visiting the gymnasium a few days before vacation we chanced to hear a shuffling of feet and a murmur of voices emanating from behind the curtain on the stage. Our curiosity aroused, we investigated and found a few members of the boxing team going through their routine. We were struck by the cramped quarters and dismal atmosphere pervading the place. This is the setup. The stage as you all know is not very large and the ring, when it is up, fills a large portion of it. From pretty good authority we hear that whenever the ring is taken down from the stage it takes at least three weeks to a month to get it replaced.

We do not consider ourselves reformers but something should be done about this situation. The boxers after all make up a representative Villanova team. Why shouldn't they receive the same advantages offered to other squads. Boxing in its short appearance in Villanova has become one of the most popular sports ever to hit the campus and it is definitely here to stay.

Some provision must be made in the future in relation to training quarters. Why not begin now? The old gymnasium in Alumni Hall would make an excellent spot; it is clean, airy, and there is plenty of room. The ring would then be a permanent fixture and regular practice sessions would be available for all.

The intra-mural basketball games could easily be moved to the new gymn as they are played after chapel in the evening. With the stiff schedule facing the Varsity the long practice sessions held in the beginning of the season seem hardly necessary and the gym could easily be vacated for these intra-mural games.

This, of course, is only our idea of alleviating a situation that at its best is small compensation for the way the boxers work in order to make their team one of the best in this part of the country.

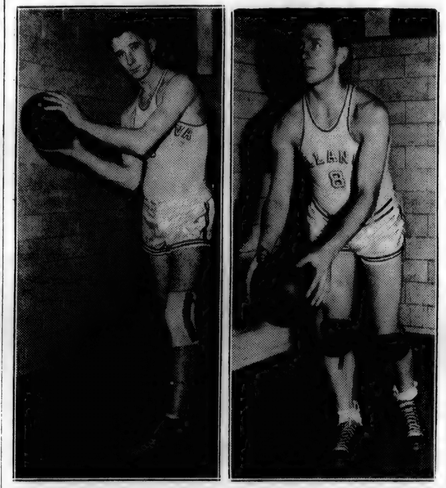
DUQUESNE QUINTET TOPPLED

Scintillating Basketeers



Don Brennan, lanky center, and Harry McNally, guard, are the sparkplugs behind the Villanova attack. McNally played one of the best games of his career in the recent Duquesne contest. Although outpointed by teammates, McNally was by far the most superior player on the floor.

MANHATTAN HONORS WILDCAT GRIDDERS

Villanova Voted Strongest Opponent; Three Main Liners Make First Team

Emerging from their final huddle of the season in which the annual all-opponent poll was held, Manhattan's football warriors rated Villanova as the strongest eleven they encountered this season, according to a recent article in a New York daily publication. The Wildcats were given the nod over such adversaries as Texas A. and M., Detroit, Holy Cross, Georgetown and Kentucky.

In addition, the all-opponent team included three Main Line stars. Captain Tony Sala at end, Jordan Olivar at tackle and versatile Andy Stopper at the quarterback post. Stopper received unanimous support from the Jaspers along with Andy Farkus, Detroit's touchdown ace and Joe Routt, Texas A .and M.'s all-American guard.

Art "Rabbit" Raimo ran a close second to Holy Cross' battering Bill Ozmanski for fullback honors.

It will be remembered that Villanova's Bacardi Bowl invitation to Havana was largely based on their showing against Manhattan in New York. Being the last game of the season, the Jasper game instilled the 'Cats with the desire to make up for their defeats earlier in the season. Led by Captain Sala, Fox, Christopher and Galazin, who were playing their last game of the schedule for Villanova, the team displayed the best brand of football taught them. Manhattan's selection together with the Havana invite are criterions of the excellent coaching done by "Clipper" Smith and his capable assistants.

The Manhattan affair has always promised to be something of an unknown quantity with Chick Meehan's boys doing their utmost to defeat Villanova and vice versa. When the big town is reached, everyone is imbued with a spirit of "win this game."

This annual affair has assumed an importance in the Metropolitan district that is difficult to estimate. For New Yorkers it is one of the big games to see and the localites feel that way too as evidenced by the annual trek to New York made by many of the Philadelphians.

Chick Meehan is considered high in the annals of Football dopesters and his word carries a great deal of authority behind it. If his team says, with his permission, of course, that Villanova is tops among the opponents played this season there is every indication that he is not the only one who thinks so in that district. In that section his word is law.

FROSH SCRIMMAGE VARSITY QUINTET

Duzminski, Lazarchak Flash Offensive Power in Practice Sessions

With only a few actual contests under their belts, the freshmen quintet has not really been tested. In daily scrimmage against the varsity they show remarkable offensive power.

It is always difficult to pass on a freshman five until they have had a year of competition, working together.

One outstanding feature of this year's squad is their ability to gain the top, a feature that Villanova quintets have had to forego in the

Strain of Pre-Christmas Road Trip Noticed in Springfield, Indiana Reversals

By JOHN E. DIMON

Fighting viciously from the outset the Villanova court squad displayed some of the finest basketball ever witnessed in these parts to overwhelm a highly-favored and an over-confident Duquesne team, 32-20, last Friday night at the Arena before a near capacity crowd of 4000.

The Dukes were completely bewildered by the man-for-man style of play employed by the Wildcats. The ball was worked in and out and at opportune times men, especially Johnny Krutulis and Art Vigilante, cut in fast to score. The losers tried to match the efforts of the 'Cats but their cause was hopeless for the winners had an "on night."

Lou Dubino started things rolling by tabbing a two-pointer after one minute of play. Vigilante followed with another field goal. The score was 9-1 in the first few minutes of play in favor of the Felines. After a brief timeout the Dukes finally scored from the field. Ten minutes had elapsed in the first half, and seven in the second canto before the Western Pennsylvanians could penetrate the strong Villanova defense for a field shot.

After a listless exhibition in the first half which the Wildcats copped, 18-9, the Duquesne team straightened up in the final canto to play the type of game for which they are famous. Since Walt Miller and Ed Kweller, the usual stars of the Duke attack were bottled up, it was left up to Joe Dresmich, a green sophomore, to lead the way. He scored two twin-pointers on spectacular shots from the side court in the waning minutes of the initial half and later tallied on a duo of free throws to bring his evening's total to six.

Krutulis was the star of the winners. He was high man for the night with 11 tallies on four field goals and three gift shots. Beside

Benjamin, Hitchcock Lead Wildcat All-Rival Team; Titans Place Three

Sparked by spirited balloting, Villanova gridiron warriors chose, as one of their last official acts of the 1936 season, an "all opponent," all star team, which in its aggregate is worthy of mention anywhere by students of modern football.

Standing out on this team which embraces players from Western Maryland, Temple, South Carolina, Auburn, Detroit, Bucknell, and Manhattan, are two players who received their positions by unanimous vote. These players are Benjamin, one of the greatest ends in Western Maryland's history, and Hitchock, speedy back from the hard-blocking Auburn team.

Receiving few less votes than these standout stars, were such colorful local heroes as Docherty, Temple's captain and place kicking expert, together with his team mate, Messervey, who was a standout center of this district.

Remembering vividly the powerful forward pass experts from Detroit, the Wildcat team honored them by giving three of their stars places on this "all opponent" team. Led by Piper, right halfback defensive ace, and supported by Cieslak, right tackle and Boglarsky, stellar end, Detroit gives us a worthy representation from the traditionally great teams of Coach Gus Dorias.

Rounding out this band of brilliant pigskin artists we find Gaffney, powerful South Carolina lineman and McKrosky, Auburn's contribution to the line, manning the guard positions. Smith of Bucknell, hero of his team's 1936 season is placed at quarterback, and Tucky, ground gaining fullback from Manhattan takes care of the line plunging.

This is strictly a player's team, chosen by our Wildcats from any well-remembered bruises, blocks, and hard tackles, not to mention heart - breaking touchdown runs. Such stars as Kiss, South Carolina; Gilbert, Auburn; Tomasetti, Bucknell; Wheeler, Manhattan and others are not forgotten for they receive honorable mention.

Benjamin	L. E. W. Maryland

COACH PATZSCH

Former Villanova Grid Star Assists At Niagara

Harry Patzsch, former grid star at Villanova, has been retained as assistant football coach at Niagara University. Patzsch, it will be remembered, scintillated at the fullback post under the able tutelage of Harry Stuhldreher. He left the Main Line institution in June of 1935, and assumed the duties of assistant grid mentor and professor at the upstate New York seat of learning shortly after. His being retained by the athletic authorities of Niagara shows that he is ably representing his Alma Mater, as he is holding his job despite recent changes in the athletic division of that college.

NEW MANAGER FOR SWIMMING SQUAD

Coach Mathieu Appoints Joe Dougherty to Succeed Winterbottom; Diver Needed

Because of the lack of co-operation of the manager appointed at the beginning of the year, Coach Mathieu has recently designated Joe Dougherty to fill this position.

So far, only two meets have been scheduled for the coming season, Swarthmore and Lafayette. However, quite a few offers have been tendered to Colleges in the surrounding districts and it is thought that, at least, four more teams will be met in competition this year.

'CAT QUINTET FACES DICKINSON, TEMPLE IN AWAY MATCHES

Red Raiders First Foe; Temple Met in Double-Header at Arena

RAIDERS START VETERANS

This Saturday evening the Villanova quintet meets the climax team of its 1936-37 schedule when it stacks up against the powerful Temple quintet at the Arena. Before this fray the 'Cats travel out to Carlisle to engage the Red Devils of Dickinson College, a strong club of central Pennsylvania.

The Villanova-Temple basketball series rivals in interest and intensity the football rivalry between the two schools. In the past, and especially last year, the games have been whirlwind affairs full of thrilling action.

Last February's battle at the Arena was just that, a battle. The Templars stepped right out to a comfortable lead. The 'Cats came back strong, and the fight was on. Things went fairly smooth until Captain Messikomer of the Owls fouled Charley Noonan, 'Cat forward. This irked Charley no little, and in a short time there was a small riot in progress.

After the heated players were calmed down and made to shake hands, play was resumed. The Owls drove on to a rather one-sided 41-27 triumph.

This season's Temple aggregation is substantially the same as the previous campaign's successful squad. Don Shields, Owls high scorer, and Lou Dubin, one of the smoothest court performers in this section, are back at the forward posts. Meyer Bloom, lanky center, and Steve Juenger, a 3-year veteran guard, are other regulars back in harness. "Howie" Black of Germantown High, and Jimmy Usilton, Jr., the Coach's son, stand out among the newcomers.

Dickinson has been a Villanova rival on the wooden way for the past few years and has always provided first class opposition. In their latest encounter the 'Cats won out by 28-21 in a game played last winter at Villanova.

The Red Devils also have a veteran combination. Four of the five starters are seniors, seasoned performers with three years of experience. Big Bill Kintzing, 6 foot 6 inch center, is the brightest star in the Dickinson array. He is the high scorer and a very valuable floor man. "Cocky" Smith and Harold Miller, diminutive forwards, make up for their lack of height with their accurate shooting and smart all around work. "Doc" Sterner and Bill Hendrickson, the guards both tower over 6 feet. Sterner, e senior, is one of the gest gasketeers ever developed at Dickinson. Hendrickson is the only sophomore on the team.

Both Temple and Dickinson have been going along pretty well this season. The big feather in the Owls' cap is a convincing win over Nebraska, Big Six champ. The Red Devils hold decisions over Roanoke and Moravian, bowing only to the Tigers of Princeton.

PANTALEO RETIRES FROM RING SQUAD

Heavy Scholastic Schedule Forces Move; Sala on Injured List

Villanova's hopes for the coming boxing season received a severe jolt when Carl Pantaleo, the 125-lb sensation, announced that he would be unable to compete this year, because of a heavy scholastic burden. This was the second blow that genial Ray Gadsby the Wildcats' boxing coach has suffered; the other coming when Joe Carrig, a bright prospect for the 155-pound class, fractured his shoulder and was forced to leave school.

Even Tony Sala, squad captain and Intercollegiate light - heavyweight champion is on the injured list as a result of football injuries. Sala's presence will be a requisite for the success of the Wildcat sluggers.

Meanwhile, Gadsby is preparing for the pending match with P. M. C. on January 18. If events work out as scheduled, the "Kaydets" will come down to the Main Liners' gym and help inaugurate the 1937 fisticuff season next Monday night.

Lack of material is a larger factor to be dealt with in regards to the outcome of the season. The Wildcat coach has yet to uncover any one of fair ability for the 155-pound spot, while there is a decided dearth of heavies.

At present Eddie Kirk (135), Billy Duffy (147), Eddie Higgins ,(125), and Vince Srugrue (115) look very promising among the lighter boys, while "Big Mike" Rutecki is coming along splendidly in the heavy division. If Ruteck can assimilate some of Gadbsy's ring lore, he may be the ace of the heavyweight division. Bob Buckley, another heavy, is rounding into shape slowly and may give Rutecki a tussle for "dreadnaught" honors.

Probably the brightest star on the squad is Jack Jarosik. Jarosik, a middleweight, had a very successful season last year, and with that experience should do even better this winter despite the sterner competition.

All in all, the outlook is very dark when one considers the heavy schedule that the Wildcats have undertaken. Among others the inexperienced 'Cats must face Army, always a strong outfit; the U. of Pennsylvania, (this meet should be a 'natural"); Western Maryland, almost perennial Southern Champions; and Wisconsin, always a Big Ten power. Coach Gadsby will certainly have his hands full, and if he wins half of his matches he will be doing something of a "Houdini."

BIG TEN NOT ON TOP

According to the Williamson ratings, the Big Ten is not the top ranking Conference in Intercollegiate Football. The Southeast and Southwest Conferences rate above the Big Ten.

Villanova Upsets Favored Duquesne

his fine scoring play, he also played a good floor game holding the flashy Krieling to two baskets. Much credit must also be given to Don Brennan and Vigilante at the guard posts, and "Lank" Montgomery and Lou Dubino at forward and center respectively. As a unit the Villanova squad looked at its best and undoubtedly will stay at the peak for the strong teams they face in the ear future.

Duquesne was shady in spots, probably, due to the fact that the unexpected Wildcat attack took the fire out of them. They did not display their fine passing and shooting at all times, but considering the circumstances they put up a great fight. Dresmich and Krieling looked the best for the losers. This upset marks the fourth defeat in as many years for the Dukes.

Win Two on Road

During the Christmas vacation the 'Cat basketeers took a jaunt up to the northeastern part of the country and played three opponents on successive nights. The trip was rather successful considering the obstacles faced by the Severancemen. They defeated St. Anselms and Providence but lost to Springfield in their last road game.

Playing St. Anselms before a capacity crowd, the Felines ran up a tremendous score at the outset, but the fighting Saints came back in the second half and nearly tied the score in the closing minutes of the fray. Only the sharpshooting of Montgomery in these waning minutes put the game on ice. The final score was 36-32, Villanova.

Hopping over to Providence, Villanova again showed its full power by runing up an early score. Paced by "Hank" McNally and Brennan, who tallied 13 and 10 points respectively, the 'Cats led the Rhode Islanders, 18-13, at half time. However, Providence picked up the scoring where the Blue and White left off and dazzled the fans as well as their adversaries with their trick shots. Villanova had enough spunk to finish out on top, 40-39.

With an unblemished record of four straight games under their belts the Wildcat team entrained for Springfield in no happy state of mood. They were a tired group suffering from lack of sleep and proper food. They took a terrific drubbing in both of their previous one night stands, and the strain was beginning to show. The game was played in the Hockey Arena, and the Villanova squad shivered as they paced up and down the collapsible floor placed on the frigid ice. The Bay Staters realized the unhappy state of their opponents and took advantage of it for they ran up an 18-4 score at half time. The Felines came back in the final canto and outplayed Springfield in every field of the game, but that was insufficient and the tussle ended with the Villanova team behind 32-22. Lou Wannemacher starred for the 'Cats with seven points, while Nuttall tallied eight for the winners.

Indiana In Second Half

The weary Villanova squad arrived home in time absorb their second successive defeat. Indiana provided the opposition in the Arena. The Big-Ten co-champions were held even in the first half by the 'Cats. The half ended with the westerners ahead, 18-16; however, Johnny Krutulis came through with a set shot to knot the score on the first play of the second stanza. This was, evidentally, the spark that Indiana needed for they proceeded to rack up baskets from all parts of the floor to win 43-28. Bob Gunning led the procession for the winners with ten points; however, the mite but mighty Art Vigilante held the great forward without a score from the field when placed on him in the second half.

In the Limelight

By PAT VASSALLUZZO.

IT has come! After weeks of patient waiting, our readers are finally being accorded their wish. The limelight has the pleasure to present Villanova's A-1 politician, salesman, and race track dopester, Mr. John Francis Donovan, Jr., assistant manager of the varsity football team.

"Hack," as John is known to his friends, claims he first saw light on August 26, 1915, in Brooklyn, N. Y. Many of his intimate associates, however, are inclined to believe he hasn't seen light yet.

John Donovan, Sr. soon realized that Brooklyn was no place for a sweet child like John, Jr., so the Donovan family packed their things and moved to Long Island. At this time, "Hack" was three years of age. Several years later Mrs. Donovan, with the help of half the Long Island police force, rushed her boy to St. Christopher's Elementary School and had "Hack" enrolled.

"Hack" didn't waste any more time than was necessary to complete what he considered an idiotic formality. After eight years, he received his diploma and rushed home with the good news. Said John, Jr., "Well folks, I guess I can now go out into the world and put the name of Donovan on a par with Washington, Lincoln, Brian Brou, and the rest." Answered John, Sr., "You're not much at guessing, Johnny, my lad. You pack your toothbrush and hustle off to Brooklyn Prep."

Yep, my dear readers, "Hack" went to Brooklyn Prep. Here, he completed his required four years of high school; but not before he had acquired quite an athletic reputation.

John played two years of varsity football as a guard, two years of baseball, and one year of ice-hockey. In his senior year Brooklyn Prep won the city championship, defeating the one other High School.

John, Sr. must have given John, Jr. a taste of work during the following Summer; for "Hack" was very enthusiastic about going to college. In September of 1933, he matriculated at Villanova.

Donovan's freshman year at Villanova was not exactly a picnic. He was picked as the goat by the vigilance committee and took one splendid hazing. He was not a bad choice, either. A good-natured, rosy-cheeked, Irish boy, he proved he could take it as well as give it. The V. C. tried for months to wipe away that characteristic Donovan smile before they realized it was impossible. Even today that Irish smile still persists regardless of trouble or worries.

In the Spring of this year "Jawn" found time to slip away from his studies, and it was no easy task for Donovan is taking a pre-medical course, to play frosh baseball. Although his duties as a catcher required the use of a chest protector and mask, it was no trouble distiguishing that rosy-cheecked face and rotund figure.

In his sophomore year here, Donovan took some sort of revenge for the terrible hazing he underwent the previous year, for he was selected as a member of the V. C. In this season too, "Hack" was appointed assistant football manager, and still holds that position to this day.

At the beginning of his junior year, the great political boss was appointed chairman of the ring committee. Because of his position he was automatically a member of every committee that year.

At the beginning of this, his senior year, "Hack" has confined his spare time to his duties as football manager, and to doping the winning "nags" at the various tracks. Although still smiling in defeat, Donovan dropped out of school politics when his candidate for the senior presidency was beaten last Spring.

John has spent his vacations working. He has been a truck driver, a liquor store attendant, and a bartender. Upon graduation in June, "Hack" will either enter medical school or work in N. Y. with Ray Murphy in preparing for the World's Fair to be held in 1939.

Well, so long "Hack," and good luck! Don't ever forget our Junior Week.

TRACK TEAM HOLDS PRIMARY MEETING

Triangular Meet With St. Joe's and F. and M. Feature Runners' Schedule

Answering the initial call of Coach Elliot's for track candidates were 20 eager young men who intend to follow the footsteps of their mentor and make new track history at Villanova College.

At the meeting, Coach Elliot told the members that although he couldn't be present at all practices, "It is essentially necessary that all aspirants take their training seriously and whip themselves into top condition." Since there are no indoor facilities for training during the Winter months at Villanova all members are welcome to train at Hutchinson Gym and Franklin Field. Those unable to go to Penn for their workouts will get into condition working out at Villanova, weather permitting.

Those forming the nucleus of this year's squad will be last season's letter men who are: Tom Cook, versatile broad-jumper; Fritz Monahan, running in the 100- and 220-yard dashes; Lou Biester, middle-distance man, and Ben Maloney, competing in the half-mile and mile runs. Other members of last year's team back this Spring are Frank Shealey, Jimmy Lyons, and Vince La Brasca.

Art Raimo, Bill Christopher and Franny Nye may also compete if time will allow their participation. Art Raimo and Bill Christopher will probably run in the sprints while Nye will again put the shot. Bill Duffy, state champion miler, of Connecticut in 1933, may also run and should help to strengthen the team tremendously.

Joe Horn, John Dimon and Charlie Higgins, experienced high school track men, should place in the pole-vault events of the coming season. Horn will also compete as a broad-jumper and Higgins will be found participating in the hurdle events.

Other sophomores who reported for the team are Tom Delate, distance man; Tom Carbine, who intends to compete in the field events, and Joe Pagano, a half-miller. Among the candidates were several freshmen, who will train with the team this year; but will not compete as varsity men until next season.

Although the track schedule has not yet been released Coach Elliot revealed that Penn State, Albright, Tempie, Ursinus and West Chester were considering meets with the

Comments On The Recent Duquesne Game

The Duquesne contest Friday evening was a brilliant reiteration of the old maxim, "A team can't be beat that won't be beat." Grim determination plus 100 percent team work played a large part in tumbling the mighty, "Dukes," for their initial setback of the present campaign. The victory was doubly sweet in view of the fact that the "Wildcats" hitherto have had to taste the bitter dregs of defeat on the several occasions they faced the invincible quintet from the smoky regions of Pittsburgh.

Duquesne's far-famed zone defense has played havoc with many styles of offense. Watching the operation of the above defense, the Villanova squad realized that a fast-moving ball plus accuracy within the fifteen foot area was the way to victory. On the latter department of play, it can be said that the Cats were practically perfect. The point which stood out in my mind most impressively, more than anything else, was the team play, every man giving his all not as an individual player but as a unit of a well-oiled and smooth working piece of machinery. Duquesne's quick breaking offense was met with an equally quick defense, and only an occasional mechanical mistake marred the effects of a matchlessly played game.

Few Replacements

One feature of our team's play which must come to the attention of the close student of the game is the difficulty of a lack of seasoned replacements. In the heavy game, lack of such reserve material makes a shifting of the players a difficult task, and as a result of this condition the brunt of our attack has necessarily been carried on the shoulders of six men, and occasionally the load has become a little too burdensome for the physical frame, but it can be said at this stage of the season that there is a healthy competitive spirit evinced by the present edition of the Wildcat basketball team, which, after all is said and done, is half the battle.

Team play, so characteristic of successful basketball aggregations, was so well shown in the recent contest at the Arena that to attempt to point out any single participant as outstanding in floor play or shot-making would only result in a distortion of the true facts of the case. Six men were sent out on the floor against the Pittsburgers, and six men sent the higly-touted "Dukes" to their initial defeat of the current campaign. They came to Philadelphia boasting an impressive record and bringing a great team, but the team play of six determined men who worked as one was responsible for one of the season's more astonishing triumphs. As I said before, six men entered the game, six men won the game.

The Havana Entanglement As Seen, In A Spirit Of Good Clean Fun, Thru The Eyes Of Villanova's Playwright

By JOHN B. GERAGHTY, JR.

HAVANA, CUBA, Jan. 1. (A.P.)—An international crisis was averted early today when the Cuban army and the Second Cuban Tank Corps were called out to subdue three Americans, tentatively identified as members of a Northern collegiate football team which will compete as a part of Cuba's Midwinter Sports Festival.

According to bystanders, the fracas started when the three Americans set upon a taxicab driver who charged them five pesos (five dollars) for a three block ride.

past, due to lack of height at the pivot post.

In Dupminski and Lazarchak, Villanova will have a powerful threat offensively. Both boys are fast and possess excellent eyes for the hoop. Paulkner has been coming along slowly and next year should show this boy in his stride.

Largenberg, Ertle and Sinnott, form a trio of fine potential materia and added to the left overs should bolster the varsity for 1937-38.

It is highly probable that the up-and-coming frosh may go through the balance of the campaign without lowering their colors.

Wildcat team. Villanova will be represented in the Penn Relays and will probably engage in a triangular meet with St. Joseph and Franklin and Marshall.

Coach Elliot made this fact known that any of the fellows showing up well in Winter practice will get the opportunity to represent Villanova College in a few indoor meets at New York.

BRADDOCK GLAD.

Jimmy Braddock, holder of the world's heavyweight title, expressed himself as being overjoyed at the possibility of not having to fight Schmeling due to the threatened boycott of the fight. He claimed that Schmeling would not draw a million dollar gate.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

Fedigan Hall is starting the New Year off in the right spirit. Sports are the order of the day, with a ping pong table in room 223, and a series of games, such as "Cops and Robbers," instituted and participated in by Sophomores. Also in the home of the gigolos is a stringed instrument, which looks like a guitar and ukelele, and combines the worst features of both. Cowboy Crowley's roommate is the proud possessor.

Many are the stories told about the Cuban trip including the one where half the squad became indisposed on the first trip across to Havana. Some of the lads took some pictures, and their development is eagerly awaited by one and all. They say "Moose" Donovan was standing at the landing stage with a group of Cuban big-shots waiting to greet the team. We Villanova lads get around. Well, one of us does, anyhow.

"Moe" Dimon, VILLANOVAN scribe, pulled a fancy one a week ago or so. It seems that the young gentleman saw himself in need of a shave, and retired to the washroom and lathered his face well. It was not until then that he noticed that he had used toothpaste to soften up the bristles.

Basketball has at last come into its own, and does not need to battle with football for first honors in sports. Two more "Bowl" games and no one will know what is happening on New Year's Day. Incidentally, we would like to know why the newspapers called the Cuban affair the "Bacardi Bowl."

The Perry-Vines pro tennis match in New York, at which some 17,000 spectators were present, shows that the people appreciate ability in sport, and are willing to pay handsomely for it. Seats sold at a top of $9.90, and standing room was $1.65 and $2.20. With the money to be made in professional athletics, it would seem that the amateur game is doomed to oblivion. So far the big guns of amateur tennis have resisted the attempts to have an open tournament, and we believe that this is one of the reasons that the pro court game has not made greater strides, although with such stars as Vines, Perry, Lott, and the veteran Bill Tilden, there is a big drawing card for tennis lovers.

Fediganites are desirous of getting pong tourney started. Since the installation of the above mentioned table, lessons have been put aside, and the table game ranks first in the minds of the boys, in spite of the impending mid-years.

Winter sports enthusiasts have been sorely disappointed by the springlike weather which has prevailed since the return to school. No snow, no ice, nothing but rain and fog. When winter does come it will rush in without any fussing around. Which reminds us of the sun-tan sported by the lads recently returned from the sunny south.

We wonder if there will be any news-reel pictures of the Auburn contest, or have they already been shown here? And what was the reason for Ted Husing's not broadcasting the tussle? He seemed certain enough that he would be sent to Cuba, but there was no broadcast, and no explanation. Maybe the good General Batista put his foot down. With all the militarism down there we wouldn't have been surprised if the gridders were drafted to fight for the Rebels or Loyalists. Every third man down there had a uniform according to the boys.

KELLY VS. MURRAY

Irrepressible Larry Kelly and Fran Murray, both players on the East team in Kezar Stadium New Year's Day, may have a chance to battle each other on the basketball court when Yale meets Penn in New Haven tonight.

STAFF MEETING

There will be a meeting of the entire staff of the VILLANOVAN this afternoon at 1 P. M. It is urgent that all members be present.

$10,000 FOR FELLER

Bob Feller, youthful pitching sensation of the Cleveland Indians, signed a 1937 contract for $10.000, according to reports. This is quite a large sum for a rookie who has seen only a half year of big league service.

PENN FEARED

Other entrants in the Eastern Intercollegiate League are beginning to fear Penn as a tough team to beat for the flag. The Quakers have been victorious in all engagements so far.

KAHLER RETAINED

Arthur D. Kahler, head football coach at Dickinson, has been retained as coach and athletic director, having just been signed to a four-year contract. At present he is head coach of the Brown University basketball team.

standing diver whose performances could equal the skill shown by the swimmers. It seemed that this state of affairs had been remedied this year when Charlie Timmins enrolled as a student. He had captured the Catholic Inter-Scholastic Diving Championship for two successive years while he was a member of West Catholic's National Championship Swimming Team.

But a serious sinus infection seems to have changed the rosy color of the picture because Timmins has received advice from his physician to give up diving. This news together with the fact that the spring board has been splintered has not made the future look any too bright for this event.

The swimmers are rapidly rounding into shape by means of their outside competition. Will Booth and Toby Greco turned in good performances against the University of Pennsylvania last week. Booth swam the backstroke and Greco competed in the breaststroke event. This outside swimming is the one thing that has made the swimmers as good as they are because of the very stiff competition offered in this section of the country.

FRENCH STUDENT SURVEYS COLLEGES

Rene Le Mee Claims American College Life 'Too Lonely'

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—Jean Pierre Le Mee, the 19-year-old French student sent to the United States by his government to make a survey of social life in American colleges, is convinced that college life would be "too lovely for French students."

Le Mee expressed amazement that American students have such a good time. If the college life in the United States were suddenly transplanted to my country, he said, the students there "wouldn't think of working." As it is at present, life for them is all "work, work, work."

Le Mee's inspection tour began on September 21. He first visited five colleges on the West coast. En route to the East, he dropped in at the University of Chicago. In the East he visited Columbia University, New York University, Temple University, the University of Pennsylvania, Bryn Mawr, Princeton, and Harvard.

In reference to the five football games he saw, Le Mee said: "At first I thought they were all crazy playing such a game. All those boys ready to kill each other and the man whistling all the time. The shouting and the singing were the only things I liked. But by the fifth time I began to see how marvelous the game was mathematically."

COLUMBIA PROFESSOR SCORES FOOD THEORIES

Kansas City, Mo.—(ACP)—Speaking to a Kansas City audience, Dr. Milton A. Bridges, diet expert of Columbia University, knocked the foundation from under oommon theories about food.

"It has never been recognized that nature or man has been able to produce anything such as a reducing food," he said.

"The efficacy of fish as a brain food, onions to cure a cold, parsley to increase fluid output, broth for strength, port wine and rusty nails for blood-building, celery to soothe the nerves, skim milk and bananas for reducing, and last but not least, an apple a day to keep the doctor away, have been proved without foundation."

Addition of New Cabinet Members Will Boost Federal Student Aid

Washington, D. C.—Post election gossip relating to impending cabinet shake-ups, departmental reorganizations, and the establishment of new departments are nine-tenths of the time, of interest only to professional politicians, their followers who hope to get jobs, and the officials to be affected by the rumored changes. This year, however, these rumors and proposals have a much broader range of interest and, if the changes come about, they may affect personally thousands and thousands of college students.

Among the major changes that are being talked of is the establishment of a new department of government which will have jurisdiction over all phases of social welfare. The head of the new department, if and when created, will be added to the cabinet of the President, bringing the total of cabinet officers to 11.

The phase of the proposed new department that is of interest to college students concerns the National Youth Administration which is now aiding approximately 140,000 young men and women who attend more than 1,600 colleges and universities.

If the department is actually established, and some smart Washington observers are convinced that it will be, the NYA will be placed in the new department of public welfare.

This would mean that Federal aid to college students and other subsidies to young people would be continued on a permanent basis. It would indicate that Uncle Sam is not going to aid farmers, workers, industrialists, home owners and other members of the population to whom have gone Federal loans and grants, and forget about the young people of the land.

The new department, according to current reports, would embrace the Social Security Board; the Civilian Conservation Corps; the Works Progress Administration; the National Youth Administration; the Children's Bureau and the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor; perhaps, the Public Health Service, and other welfare agencies that are now scattered through the Federal departments.

'HELL WEEK' ABANDONED AT ANNUAL CONFERENCE

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—That local college authorities are the proper agencies to act in abolishing the "Hell Week" of fraternity "horse play and hazing" was decided in a resolution adopted unanimously by the National Interfraternity Conference at its 28th annual session.

Although the national fraternity body now places the initiative in the hands of college officials, it pledges its cooperation in eliminating these practices.

The resolution took cognizance of an "evident trend" of students to minimize hazing and to use "less sophomore and more mature procedures" in the pre-initiatory "Hell Week." It lauded colleges which have already made efforts to do away with hazing in fraternity circles.

"The conference recognizes," the resolution said, "that the customs and traditions which prevail on any campus are determined by public opinion on that campus, and not by the national organizations of our fraternities; or is any national fraternity able to prescribe for its own chapter action which can become effective only through agreement of all chapters on that campus supported by local public opinion.

JORDAN A. OLIVAR ADDRESSES GROUP

Many Experiences of Recent Cuban Trip Narrated to Spanish Club

At the regular weekly meeting held last Thursday afternoon, the Spanish Club of Villanova was addressed by Jordan Olivar, stalwart tackle on the varsity football team. Olivar's speech was given entirely in Spanish. He opened with a summary of the journey from Villanova to Miami, Fla. via the "Orange Blossom" express, and the subsequent plane trip to Havana.

Many Points of Interest

In commenting on the beauty of Cuba, Olivar says: "Everything was very interesting as it was all new and strange to us, and besides Cuba is really a very pretty and attractive island. We saw the Capitolio, which in appearance looks like our capitol and serves the same purpose."

He then told of some of the customs of the Cubans which appeared strange to the Americans.

Olivar commented on the climate of the country by saying "The day of the game was quite warm. They tell me it was 86 degrees in the shade, but I don't remember any shade on that field. Anyway we had a hot time of it in more ways than one."

VILLANOVA'S GRID MENTOR DISCUSSES MEASURING INVENTION WITH ITS INVENTOR

STUDY CLUB HEARS LOCAL PROFESSOR DISCUSS CAPITALISM

Harold F. Hartman Delivers Interesting Paper at Last Meeting

Addressing the Villanova College Study Group last Wednesday evening, Dr. Harold Hartman delivered a scholarly paper dealing with the development of modern capitalism. Pointing out that "every civilization has certain fundamental aspects and peculiar characteristics which render it singular and distinctive," Dr. Hartman proceeded to examine the religious, the social and the economic characteristics of modern capitalism and of the ages which preceded it.

In the medieval era immediately preceding the modern era, modern national entities were not as well-defined as they are now. "For all practical purposes," Dr. Hartman declared, "the historian is convinced that the modern nationalities of England, France and Spain were conceived about the year 1500."

Religious Unity Strong

Turning to religion, Dr. Hartman observed that the Middle Ages were characterized by religious unity. There was one orthodox, Christian belief, and an ecclesiastical authority which made universal pronouncements administering that Christian Faith." And on the other hand, in the modern era, there is an "absence of any definite religious authority . . . , The modern world,

COLLEGE DEBATERS INAUGURATE ACTIVE SCHEDULE THURSDAY

Albright Team Met in Home Contest; Debate St. Joseph's Over Air

Playing host to Albright College, the college debaters engaged in a no-decision contest in the Mendel Hall Amphitheatre last Thursday night.

Give Radio Debate

Participating in a radio debate over station WIP yesterday, the Villanova debators opposed St. Joseph's College, the decision to be based on the result of the votes of the radio listeners.

In the first encounter, the locals upheld the affirmative side of the question: Resolved, That Congress Should Be Empowered to Fix Maximum Hours and Minimum Wages for Industry. John Hosey and John McManus were the speakers for Villanova with Hosey also giving the rebuttal.

Electric Utilities Topic

The Beta Gamma representatives in yesterday's debate were Joseph Carroll and Anthony Differ, with the latter also presenting the rebuttal. The question under discussion was: Resolved, That Government Should Own and Operate All Electric Utilities. In this debate, Villanova took the negative side.

President Differ said that he was very much pleased with the audience at the home contest last week. There was a considerable increase in the students attending along with

SCIENCE STUDENTS GIVEN LECTURE BY FOOTBALL OFFICIAL

Wilmer Crowell Demonstrates Device for More Accurate Line Measurement

INVENTION WILL ELIMINATE GUESSWORK BY LINESMAN

Model, Consisting of a Blackboard, Stands on Sidelines; Uses Telescopic Apparatus

Wilmer Crowell, one of the outstanding football officials of the country, demonstrated and explained to the Science Seminar last Thursday, a model which he had deveoped through his knowledge of football to make more accurate the measurement of yardage gained or lost as measured by the headlinesman.

Eliminates Guesswork

His model consisted of a blackboard mounted somewhat behind the side line on which was erected a sliding telescopic apparatus. The theory behind the machine was to eliminate the guesswork encountered by the linesman in determining the matter of first downs made.

Mr. Crowell explained that in many football games there is always encountered the difficulty of determining whether or not a team has succeeded in earning a first down when it is a matter of inches. At the same time there would be placed on this apparatus several signs to designate the period of the game, the down, and similar information, which was to be of benefit to the spectators.

Moves on Ball-Bearing

It was explained that the height of the board would be 24 inches thus not interfering with the spectator's view. The telescopic apparatus was moved on ball-bearings, and could be so manipulated that it would take no more time than it does now to insert the yardstick.

At the conclusion of the lecture Mr. Crowell asked the students for suggestions or criticisms of his machine.

In the course of the questioning

Maurice "Clipper" Smith, Wildcat football coach, is shown above talking over the potentialities of the new yardage measuring machine which is the invention of Wilmer Crowell, prominent national gridiron authority. The machine, which operates along the field on ball bearings, was established to do away with guess work on the part of line officials. Its accuracy is guaranteed by the fact that a telescopic eye is used to point out the position of the ball. In the foreground may be seen the machine, with Smith and Crowell standing directly behind it.

Addressing the Villanova College Study Group last Wednesday evening, Dr. Harold Hartman delivered a scholarly paper dealing with the development of modern capitalism. Pointing out that, "every civilization has certain fundamental aspects and peculiar characteristics which render it singular and distinctive," Dr. Hartman proceeded to examine the religious, the social and the economic characteristics of modern capitalism and of the ages which preceded it.

In the medieval era immediately preceding the modern era, modern national entities were not as well-defined as they are now. "For all practical purposes," Dr. Hartman declared, "the historian is convinced that the modern nationalities of England, France and Spain were conceived about the year 1500."

Religious Unity Strong

Turning to religion, Dr. Hartman observed that the Middle Ages were characterized by religious unity. "There was one orthodox, Christian belief, and an ecclesiastical authority which made universal pronouncements administering that Christian Faith." And on the other hand, in the modern era, there is an "absence of any definite religious authority . . . The modern world,

COLLEGE DEBATERS INAUGURATE ACTIVE SCHEDULE THURSDAY

Albright Team Met in Home Contest; Debate St. Joseph's Over Air

Playing host to Albright College, the college debaters engaged in a no-decision contest in the Mendel Hall Amphitheatre last Thursday night.

Give Radio Debate

Participating in a radio debate over station WIP yesterday, the Villanova debators opposed St. Joseph's College, the decision to be based on the result of the votes of the radio listeners.

In the first encounter, the locals upheld the affirmative side of the question: Resolved, That Congress Should Be Empowered to Fix Maximum Hours and Minimum Wages for Industry. John Hosey and John McManus were the speakers for Villanova with Hosey also giving the rebuttal.

Electric Utilities Topic

The Beta Gamma representatives in yesterday's debate were Joseph Carroll and Anthony Differ, with the latter also presenting the rebuttal. The question under discussion was: Resolved, That Government Should Own and Operate All Electric Utilities. In this debate, Villanova took the negative side.

President Differ said that he was very much pleased with the audience at the home contest last week. There was a considerable increase in the students attending along with

SCIENCE STUDENTS GIVEN LECTURE BY FOOTBALL OFFICIAL

Wilmer Crowell Demonstrates Device for More Accurate Line Measurement

Model, Consisting of a Blackboard, Stands on Sidelines; Uses Telescopic Apparatus

Wilmer Crowell, one of the outstanding football officials of the country, demonstrated and explained to the Science Seminar aist Thursday, a model which he had developed through his knowledge of football to make more accurate the measurement of yardage gained or lost as measured by the headlinesman.

Eliminates Guesswork

His model consisted of a blackboard mounted somewhat behind the side line on which was erected a sliding telescopic apparatus. The theory behind the machine was to eliminate the guesswork encountered by the linesman in determining the matter of first downs made.

Mr. Crowell explained that in many football games there is always encountered the difficulty of determining whether or not a team has succeeded in earning a first down when it is a matter of inches. At the same time there would be placed on this apparatus several signs to designate the period of the game, the down, and similar information, which was to be of benefit to the spectators.

Moves on Ball-Bearing

It was explained that the height of the board would be 24 inches thus not interfering with the spectator's view. The telescopic apparatus was moved on ball-bearings, and could be so manipulated that it would take no more time than it does now to insert the yardstick.

At the conclusion of the lecture Mr. Crowell asked the students for suggestions or criticisms of his machine.

In the course of the questioning

MR. LEWIS AND COMPANY

FOR the purpose of establishing one true labor democracy. That is the way John L. Lewis has explained, both in speech and in writing, his movements and efforts to bring together all workers into one vast organization. Once set up and of course recognized, this democracy would be in a position to demand and obtain, if not by peaceful methods then by strikes and political functionings, what it contends to be a fair amount of the wealth of its production.

However, the country has seen enough of Mr. Lewis' methods and his labor democracy which functions in a manner not at all democratic. It has been seen how a small minority has successfully coerced the majority of workers in Flint, Mich., the "sit down" party totalling only five percent of the entire group. Yet the strikers were able to throw all the rest of the automobile employes out of work . . . against their will. This situation resembles a dictatorship not a democracy while it may be noticed that Mr. Lewis has been, in a quiet fashion, assuming the attitude of an autocrat.

Of necessity, the General Motors strike took on the appearance of a strife between two rival labor factions both headed by fiery leaders. As a solution to all this, it has been said that should all the workers unite and remain thus they could dictate to their employers. But how can one expect such a group to remain in agreement constantly and above all how long would that group stand by one leader? It might sound impulsive were we to say that in this hectic world no such union could exist, but we can say in all surety that such a system would take on the aspect of a tyranny not a democracy, in spite of all Mr. Lewis' assurances and confidences.

CHURCH AND STATE

DESPITE the apparent spirit of tolerationism expressed by Hitler and his lieutenants, the conflict between the Church and the German state is inevitable and irrepressible. It has been said that Hitler himself is in favor of a complete spirit of accordance with Rome, but the ideas of his cohorts are openly against the Christian faith.

"If Christ was a Jew," thunders General Ludendorf of the German military staff, "then Christianity is not for the German." Other Nazis less extreme are willing to accept this idea if proof cannot be given that Jesus was an "Aryan." Members of the Youth Movements have tried to abolish the societies for Catholics and Protestants in favor of a complete union of all "in belief of the leader and holy mother earth."

That German Catholics have been suppressed long enough has been evidenced by the three German Bishops who have recently complained to the Holy Father against the Nazi tactics in the German State. Members of the Faith all over the nation have begun to challenge the right of Hitler's lieutenants to suppress the Catholic press and abolish the Catholic Youth Societies, so popular in pre-Nazi Germany.

In his expulsion of the Jew and his unification of the German state Hitler may succeed, but past experience of all the nations of the world will show him that the Catholic Church cannot be destroyed by any means. The Catholic Diocessan Journal in Berlin takes its very existence in its own hands by defying Hitler and reminding him that "not even by sword and whip" can the millions of Christian Germans be forced to accept the foolish pagan idealology of the Black Corps.

SAFEGUARD THE AIRWAYS

ALMOST coincident with the announcement of the death of Martin Johnson, whose demise raised the toll of the past year's air transport accidents to 69, the Federal Government issued four proposals which aviation authorities believe will add to the safety of the air-lanes. Lamentably late as these proposals were in forthcoming, it is to be hoped that the action that is now started will hastily terminate in a set of stringent precautionary regulations that every transport company will be obliged to adhere to.

Air catastrophes have been occurring within the past few years too frequently, for the fact not to have suggested itself to the officials of the Bureau of Air Commerce that some deterrent measures must be devised. Nevertheless, the Department failed to do anything more definite than to deplore the accidents and instigate futile investigations that revealed nothing except the serious need for corrective measures. The fact that passengers' lives were constantly being jeopardized — sometimes with tragic results — merely because the competition in the industry is of such a kind that one company cannot keep its planes on the ground if another's go aloft, has not until now appeared to suggest itself to the Bureau. Nor have they shown any inclination to consider the danger that necessarily attends the lives of everyone involved when airplanes are flown "blind," or through sleet and snow.

The past few years have seen many remarkable innovations to airplane travel. Increased speed, muffled motors, comfortable and roomy cabins, dinner service, hostess attendance are but a few of the factors that have added to the convenience and desirability of traveling by plane. But few reliable improvements have been made in the means by which passengers are to be assured of their safe arrival at their destination. And it is in this phase of the industry that alterations must be effected. More frequent weather reports, and forecasts, an increase in the number of beacons and radio directional beams, and the establishment of conditions under which the planes shall not be permitted to leave the ground are some of the improvements that will halt the fast waning confidence that many people are beginning to feel for airplane travel. This is completely aside from the obligation of the Government to insure the safety of those who travel in public conveyances.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

LET US begin this week's pillar with a little story the title of which is "Love or Loco?"

A certain senior from the wilds of North Jersey was fortunate enough to talk on of his companions into driving him back to school upon the demise of the recent Christmas vacation. Accompanying the two lads were two lassies whom we hear were quite comely. So pleasant did they make the journey that the time of arrival at Villanova came all too soon and the parting was far too sweet to endure. Undaunted by thoughts of uncompleted work our senior friend succumbed to his yen for more of his sweet friend's companionship and the car headed back into the flatlands of the mosquito state. Gone were the thoughts of having saved money by the auto trip; gone was the fear of unfinished lessons; sweet Evelyn had conquered.

After 85 miles had been traversed our entranced friend boarded a train and wended his way back to Villanova. What matter if the trip did cost $1.75 and the work had remained undone—love is grand. What say, Charlie?

From north, south, east and west
Smiling students have lost their zest.
Youthful foreheads are furrowed with care
Mid-year examinations darken the air.
Grumbles and growls everywhere sound
As fingers tap, and feet pound
Cramming by most, cheating by few
The professors sigh, nothing seems new.
Tired students finally stumble to bed
Hearts are heavy, like molten lead.
From Villanova, Fordham, Princeton, and Yale
Students murmur, I hope I don't fail.
Ringing in roars above the mass
We hear those, who always cut class.
The cry of the lazy seems to be
Not, "I flunked," . . . but, "He flunked me."

As We See It . . . At Random

By HARRY PARKIN

PARADOXICAL as it may seem there are people who mistake faults for virtues; nurse them as we are told to nurse our good qualities, and parade them whenever the occasion may offer. In this category we are accustomed to find the extremist who is invariably in a "bother" about some condition or other that he likes to regard as contrary to all the dictates of prudence or justice. He is found to be most militant in the refense or abnigation of certain social, economic, or moral problems about which, close attendance usually reveals him to be but slightly informed. More vociferous than thoughtful, more extravagant than rational, and more vehement than convincing,he is frequently lead by fervour to proclaim many things which on their very appearance are absurd. Yet we meet people to whom this fault is considered as a virtue—the want of restraint they regard as an active solicitude for the sufferings of men, the lack of reasonableness and, at times, coherence they consider indicative of strong emotional sympathies, and extravagance in speech they hold to be the effects of ardour. To admonish such people is useless, for they will not entertain, even for a moment, the suggestion that their actions are worthy of other than approval. We must, therefore, be content with merely reminding them that there is an old adage to the effect that "empty barrels make the most noise," and although the greater the stir that is among them the more resounding they become, they are still, withal, empty.

From the occasional attention that we have given to Socialistic literature, we were usually struck by the anomalousness of the attitude that hopes to effect a prodigious material transformation in society without giving any consideration to the moral alteration that must precede it if it is to be accomplished without violence. Men do not accustom themselves, as a mere matter of course, to social and economic changes that are contrary to those they have formerly regarded as most desirable. Nor can they be expected to forego the distinctly personal advantages of the capitalistic system in exchange for the self-sacrificing ones of socialism without being persuaded to it through ultra-mundane motives.

Learning is accounted a weariness of the flesh but in no regard is this so noticeable as in the acquisition of moral knowledge. It is so much easier to follow one's inclinations than to discipline them that many people are more inclined to take the immediate, self accruing good, and let the ultimate, social benefiting, go rather than exert themselves unduly. From this we are inclined to conclude that the only socialism that has any likelyhood of becoming a practical part of our daily lives must arise from principles that take their existence from the desire of all men to concern themselves with the welfare of others because of their moral obligations to do, rather than from government legislation.

By RICHARD DEVERALL

WITH examinations under way and the retreat following hard upon us, we now have plenty of spare time. Spare time! What a marvelous thing! For do not all of us, many times, say, "I'd like to do that, but . . . oh well, I do not just have the time to do it." Many of the things that we plan never fructify because there just never seems "to be time" for it.

Here is a golden opportunity to do a few of the things you've always wanted to do. Here is a chance to read some of those books listed on your "must-be-read" list.

Better to Know Evil

At the risk of my life, I'm going to repeat something written by that great man, Saint Thomas of Aquin. He wrote, in his Summa Theologica, "It is better for us not to know low and vile things, because by them we are impeded in our knowledge of what is better and higher; for we cannot understand many things simultaneously; and because the thought of evil sometimes perverts the will towards evil."

We don't mean to insinuate that some of us are going to waste the next two weeks wholly in an evil manner. But we realize full well that many throw away an opportunity to think over the past few months, examine their lives, re-order that life if it has been led in a poor manner, and perhaps read a few good, solid books. We mean good books, too, not the usual street and Smith stuff . . . or do you all read Esquire now?

Man Follows Folly

It has always appeared to be a tragic state of affairs when a man, to keep "in" with the crowd, blindly follows them in their folly. For a while, he secures the good will of his fellows, but he overlooks the fact that within a few years his present associates, like drops of rain from the sky, dry up and disappear. The man is left to his own destiny. If he has wasted his youth, he has no one to blame but himself. Oh, I know that it is easy to flow downstream with the other boys, but don't be deluded. Someone is being fooled. You, brother, you are going to have to butter your own bread some day. No one else is going to do it for you. And you, too, must save your own soul. No one else is going to do it.

The Intelligentia Stand Out

But, of course, there are always some who think they know a bit more than the rest. They are different. (They'll admit it themselves.) They can cram for exams, waste time, never crack a book, and end up the year by drawing a long list of imposingly high marks in all of their subjects. So what! That does not necessarily mean anything. In a recent study made by some psychologists, working at Columbia University, it was determined that five years after a man leaves college, ninety-seven per cent of the matter learned so laboriously (?) is forgotten. It is that three per cent retained that marks off the trained college man from the untrained man. The chap who merely slides through school, cramming and wasting his time, is merely brushing over his mind a thin veneer that evaporates in short order. Five years after such a fellow has left college, all he can remembers, usually, is the college football songs. That and no more.

Utilise Your Hours

Waste not time. Nothing new in that. It is an adage as old as man. Yet during the next week, you'll all have a splendid opportunity to either utilize many hours to your advantage thinking of the things that are "better and higher"; or you can waste your time playing cards, reading cheap books, or bulling about inane subjects.

Now mind you, there is nothing wrong with any of these things. The only thing wrong is that a Catholic college man should prefer higher things to lower things. Any day laborer can play cards. Only a trained mind can wrestle with Infinity.

CONNECTICUT CLUB WILL CHOOSE DANCE COMMITTEE

Meets Tonight in Amphitheatre to Select Easter Dance Program

Meeting tonight at 7 o'clock in the amphitheatre in Mendel Hall, the Connecticut Club of Villanova will select a committee for the annual Easter dance, it was announced today by J. Benedict Maloney, president.

This social event, one of the features of the Easter recess, promises to be one of the outstanding social affairs of the current school year due to the fact that the particularly large number of alumni interested in the club have signified their intentions of being present. Graduates from all over the state of Connecticut registered disappointment when the club did not hold such a function during the Christmas holidays but assured president Maloney and other members of the club of their cooperation in the carrying out of the plans for the spring social.

THERE are many ancient remains of past days to be found in Europe, especially in Spain and Italy.

Old wrought-iron sword-rests are still to be seen in some of Spain's oldest churches.

Deep, narrow holes were dug into the ground to serve as telescopes for the earliest astronomers of Italy. Even in the daytime, looking up thru these "telescopes" stars can be seen. Today, looking up thru a mine shaft, we experience the same sight.

A Thousand Explanations

Down in Havana, Cuba, a cannon is set off every night at nine o'clock, probably for no further purpose than giving the correct time.

As a result every tourist that visits the city, unsatisfied with the correct time excuse, makes up some explanation of his own, and carries it back home with him as another one of those "things they do down in Cuba."

Even the time explanation is but one of a thousand explanations, for in reality there is no explanation. It's just an old Spanish custom, whose origin and original intent are lost forever among the pages of time.

Precious Yardstick

Centuries ago there were many rough and ready ways of measurment. The girth of the chieftain of a tribe used to determine the length of a yard. Later the length of the King's arm was used.

Today in Washington, at the Bureau of Standards, where the modern yard is determined, a yardstick of metal alloy is kept in a specially constructed glass case, in a room of constant temperature. It is observed thru a telescope from a distance, lest the approach of a person near to it, due to the warmth of the body, should cause the temperature to vary!

EDWYNN had to pay Don Vorhees' musicians overtime last Saturday. Usually, the moment the curtain comes down at the theatre studio the bandmen scamper away while the comic steps out in front to entertain the audience informally. Last week the curtain stuck half-way and the musicmakers had to stick around at Ed's expense.

Transitions: George Burns and Gracie Allen have completed plans for their first musical show, which will make its debut next fall. Max Gordon and Sam Harris will be the producers, Hazzard Short will direct and Cole Porter will write the songs. The book is being written by Russel Crouse and Howard Lindsey. The arrangements were made by the comedy couple on their recent visit to New York. They are now in Hollywood where their new picture is being filmed and plan to return to New York in the fall for their first Broadway appearance.

Jack Benny is considering making Andy Devine, gravel-voiced screen comic, a permanent member of his cast. The former West Coast football star made three guest appearances with Jack in December . . . Stuart Churchill is an expert on skis. The tenor's idea of heaven is snow in the Adirondracks . . . Irene Wicker has broadcast her Singing Lady program more than 3000 times . . . Barney Rapp, popular maestro, recently heard over the Mutual network from W L W, Cincinatti, and Ruby Wright, vocalist, were married in New York this week and left on a honey-moon cruise to the West Indies . . .

Practically all musical stars have their pet superstitions and Paul Whiteman is no exception to the rule. So when the King of Jazz appears on the platforms of America during his concert tours, the slightly worn shoes he wears are not a matter of his valet's carelessness. Since his first big success, the popular maestro has opened each new engagement wearing the same shoes he wore on that momentous occasion.

After the first performance at any place, he changes to new shoes (on every tour he carries boxes full that would last most men a lifetime). The lucky pair are then put away carefully until Paul and his famous organization start a new series, when they are brought out again and are made as presentable as the years and long list of auspicious premieres will allow.

Johnny Green who organized a boys' band at the age of fourteen, believes in giving youth a chance. Following the Fred Astaire broadcast Tuesday night Johnny was introduced to Anne Chandler, 12, who is known as California's youngest poet. After reading some of her poems, Johnny selected one and is now engaged in putting it to music . . . Earl Hines— the colored king of the ivories—and his orchestra, currently heard over NBC network from the Grand Terrace in Chicago, will begin a one night stand tour for Consolidated Radio Artists on January 25th.

Vincent Lopez, CBS "Speedshow" maestro, has added "How Do You Doodle?" to his growing list of song novelties. Now, to "doddle" is to ascribe surrealist nothings on telephone scratch pads while listening to a long-winded caller, on table cloths while absorbed in thoughts of the steak dinner momentarily to arrive, on magazine cover margins in abstract moods, and on a variety of other scarcely apt places. The word was popularized in the film, "Mr. Deeds Goes To Town." Lopez himself tells the story of doodling in his film song. He's an inverate one himself.

Helen Ward, Benny Goodman's star vocalist has left him to go out on her own. She has organized a band of her own and will soon be featured over one of the networks. In her place, Francis Hunt warbles for the "swing" artist and does a good job at it. She is a near perfect imitation of Helen herself excepting that her voice is a bit more mellow and lower pitched.

If you ever get a chance to visit New York some week-end, write to Hal Kemp a bit in advance, and you will be forwarded two tickets for his CBS program on Friday night free of charge. Chesterfield officials are doing it to drum up interest in the program, not that Hal needs any.

ENGINEERING FRAT WORKING ON FINAL PLANS FOR BANQUET

P. K. P. Induction, Social Scheduled for Feb. 9; Juniors Take Title

With the annual initiation and banquet ceremonies of the engineering school fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi, drawing near, the fraternity is making final plans for the affair.

In regard to the schedule of events for the evening, Eugene A. Barr, president, has announced that each procedure for the evening of the affair, February 9, has a definite time set. The initiation will begin at 7:30 o'clock sharp and continue until all the neophytes are taken care of and introduced into the fraternity. This procedure is scheduled to be finished at 10 o'clock, whereupon the banquet will begin.

Expect Guest Speakers

It is definitely arranged that several guests speakers will address the group. Among the speakers for the evening will be Carl T. Humphrey, dean of the School of Technology, Reverend John S. O'Leary, O. S. A., Moderator, and a few other guests who are actively interested in Villanova.

At the next meeting of the fraternity, to be held on February 1, in the amphitheatre of Mendel Hall, membership cards will be distributed to all members in good standing. It has been announced that also at this meeting volunteers will be requested to aid the Initiation committee in their work. No others may aid this committee save those who volunteer at this meeting.

Juniors Win Laurels

In the fraternity's basketball league, inaugurated three years ago, the junior class won the first-half laurels by defeating the sophomores in Alumni Hall last Saturday. A humorous aspect of the basketball league is the fact that the senior team won a game at last by defeating the freshman aggregation. The victorious junior team is composed chiefly of the same players who are outstanding on the Mendel Day Hop team. Considered by many to be the most valuable player on the team, Miller J. Sullivan, of the seniors, played a sensational game and was an important factor in the seniors' one victory.

it was brought out that the machine, according to Mr. Crowell's description, would be not 24 inches but 32 inches high. It was suggested that the board be removed and in its place a similar feature placed parallel to the ground. Another question brought forth the fact that the machine was defeating its own purpose in that the original mistake in measuring of distance gained or lost was not in the matter of the headlinesman but in that of the referee when he placed down the ball. It was stated that errors resulted varying from inches to two feet when the ball was placed in position for the next play. This would of course result in a drastic error when it came time to measure the distance on a close first down.

Eliminates Field Lining

In the result of the discussion Mr. Crowell stated that the apparatus would do away with all field lining except for the goal lines. It's greatest deficiency, however, lay in the matter of its costing approximately $5,000 to install.

Mr. Crowell's idea even though it may be impractical is characteristic of his desire to improve the game of football as played today not only from the player's viewpoint but from that of the spectator. Mr. Crowell is quite competent in such a matter in that he has officiated in over 600 football games including among them the Rose Bowl game, several Army and Navy games, and others of national fame.

Inquiring Reporter Unearths Facts Concerning Pie Shop Attendants

By JAMES P. TOFANI

Adhering to that old and famous axiom that "the best source of news is in one's own backyard," your correspondent ventured to the pie shop and sought to extract information from the boys who toil in there day after day.

Tom is Quite Modest

Entering the famous meeting-place, where bull-sessions dominate the scene, we noticed a crop of black, wavy hair and immediately knew it belonged to Tom, famous sandwich-maker of the force. Modest and unassuming, this young man proved very elusive, indeed, in matters relevant to his personal life. Attending Radnor High School, he was conspicuous at all school dances.. Tom is reputed to be one of the best dancers ever to attend Radnor, and he admits being fond of "tripping the light fantastic."

Tom jokingly asserted "I turned down a $75 a week job, because there wasn't any possibility of securing additional compensation." This brings out the humorous characteristic in him.

Andy is a Traveler

Turning an about-face, we encountered Andy, a recent addition to the pie-shop ensemble. Commonly called 'Speed" because of his lackadaisical movements, this neophyte of Louie's emporium, is rapidly acquiring the traits of the college students. After attending West Catholic for a year, he set sail for the wide open spaces and became a renowned traveler. His adventures finally culminated in his acceptance of a post under Italian regime.

The Irish countenance of Pat was the next object of our scientific research. It is rumored that this red-headed youth has emigrated here from foreign shores. Prying into his doings, it was learned that Pat is a star soccer performer. To prove that Pat has inculcated in him the do or die spirit, it was disclosed that he suffered a broken leg in a soccer contest but expressed his desire to continue playing. This spirit has not left him, as is evidenced by his performance of "jack of of all trades" in the pie shop. He handles everything very efficiently.

Glancing in the direction of the soda-fountain, we came face to face with George, ever-smiling soda-jerker. This curly-headed youth is the athlete of Louie's 'stab and grab,' In the course of his stay at Radnor High, George proved to be one of the greatest athletes to matriculate at that high school. He plays football and baseball and also indulges in the 'grunt and groan art" known as wrestling. However, his love is football.

Heading for Villanova

George is not idling his time. He is intending entering Haverford School and then to follow at Villanova in a blaze of glory. We might have another Ed Michaels in our midst and are not even aware of it. Perhaps in a few years we'll be reading all about George.

Knowing of one more employe, we immediately set out to find him. Presently, we remembered that today Cliff was back of the cash register and that is just where we found him. He was finishing a little work and we asked if he would give a little information to which he assented.

An Astaire in Reality

Cliff is the "dean" of the pie shop force. His greatest achievement is his tap-dancing, which he seriously contemplated following for a time. We feel sure that if Cliff were given an opportunity, he would prove keen competition to Fred Astaire and Bill Robinson.

His activities aren't confined to dancing, as he is a very good baseball player, and was one of the stars of the Lower Merion nine

Cliff vs. Cantor

Like all fathers, Cliff takes most pride in his three little girls. Here, indeed, is a serious rival to big-eyed Eddie Cantor, comedian, who is always bragging about his five girls. Maybe someday Cliff may surpass him.

And this, my dear readers, concludes the brief history of five of the most popular fellows on the campus—Tom, Andy, Pat, George and Cliff.

fundamentally speaking, is inclined to be more tolerant toward religious beliefs, and this tolerance has permitted any modern free thinker to be the absolute dictator of his religious beliefs."

Finally, Dr. Hartman pointed out that the goods produced during the medieval period were produced only for consumption. Profit, as an end in itself, was frowned upon by the medieval mind. The manorial system and the guild system was a co-operative, and not a capitalistic arrangement. The speaker was careful to point out that capitalistic tendencies can be found in medieval civilization, but that it was not until about the year 1500 that capitalism, in its true sense, emerged as a full-blown system.

Discussion Follows

A discussion followed the talk. Intense interest was manifested by all those present. It was decided that the study group would now, with the background given it by Dr. Hartman, proceed to study Quadragesimo Anno, section by section. At each meeting, it was decided, three short papers will be read, all giving different aspects of the same topic.

The next meeting of the Study Group has been set for tomorrow evening, 7:30 P. M., in the Day Hop's Room, on the 3rd of February. All are invited.

Religious information and a retreat schedule has been afforded each student by the college chaplain, Rev. Charles P. Brown wishes each student "to give particular attention to your frame of mind" and to "enter into the spirit of the retreat wholeheartedly."

Religious Articles For Sale

Servers for the Sacrifice of the Mass and Benediction will be selected from the Sanctuary Society. Religious articles and reading material will be on sale in the rear of the chapel before and after each service. Breakfast cards have been issued to the day students to be used on Friday morning after the closing services of the retreat.

Classes will be suspended during the retreat exercises in order to give the students ample time for serious reflection. Attendance cards are to be clearly written and submitted before each exercise upon entrance into the chapel. Each student is asked to be punctual in his attendance in order that complete benefit may be derived by everyone.

beautiful marble walk in the center of Havana's main street. Trees grow on both sides of this walk making it a nice cool spot in the day-time. Many Cuban dandies come here at night with their senoritas for stroll and, by the way, many senoritas come alone."

The University of Havana was visited by the team and most of the boys were impressed by their finely equipped laboratories.

Swimming was enjoyed at Marianao Beach and Olivar says of this: 'The water is as clear as a crystal and as you swim you can see numerous little fish all around you."

"Among the many other sights we saw were the University of Havana's many commemorative statues, Morro Castle, The White House ,the Bacardi Rum plant and "Sloppy Joe's."

Homeward Bound

Olivar told of the church which is three hundred years old where they heard Mass. He closed his speech with: 'We took leave of Cuba with many fond and fine remembrances, but nevertheless anxious to see the United States again."

Following Olivar's speech Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O.S.A., moderator of the club, discussed President Roosevelt's 'good will" tour to South America in which he emphasized the fact that by bringing the nations together there will be a closer linkage of the Spanish speaking countries to the United States.

Editor's Note—The guest columnist for this issue is William J. Bowker.

Bill Dwyer, on a recent radio broadcast, discussed the football tuation in intercollegiate athletic life, and acted in defense of the so-called "athletic scholarships," by which an athlete is enabled to obtain a college education through working his way to a degree by waiting on tables, fixing furnaces, and doing other jobs about the campus. His dissertation was prompted by some of the righteous-minded authorities who frown most severely o.. the commercialization of football. He also brought up the subject of the great number of "Bowl" games which are played on New Year's Day, and put to shame those who would deny the hard working athletes a well deserved reward for a successful campaign by banishing post season frays. The point in referring to this talk by Dwyer is that we are heartily in accord with the majority of his views, although the increasing number of Bowl games is characteristic of the American spirit of overdoing a thing. If the big guns in football don't tighten up a bit, the Bowl idea will eventually go the way of the midget golf courses. There is no sense in killing a good thing.

In glancing at the Philadelphia Record lately, there came to our attention the fact that "Red" Smith reporter who travelled with the Wildcats to Havana, is now writing a column. Good luck, Red. It's no small job turing out ten or twelve inches of high class copy daily. Once a week is hard enough.

Intramural basketball has begun its second half, and a glance at the standings for all sports shows the two Freshmen Halls to have matters well in hand. With four events completed, including Amateur Night, Mendel Residents are three points ahead of the Alumni Haliers. Mendel's Train and Trolley boys are a good third, leading Austin by the narrow margin of half a point. Fedigan follows, and the C and F Day Hops end the procession. Of the eleven and a half points garnered by the tallenders, three were absoluate gifts from the Intramural Committee. A tie for first in Tennis is the only thing the lads have to show for their first half efforts. No Commerce man has class after two-thirty on any day, and there is not so much work to be done that a little time cannot be spent on a sport such as basketball. If memory serves, a large portion of the 160-pound football squad was comprised of businessmen, and there is no excuse for not having a revival of spirit down on that end of the campus.

—V—

The Arena at 46th St and Market has seen the last of the Villanova court squad for a month. Seven consecutive games are to be played on the Main Line gym floor, the reconditioning of which has been recently completed. If the floor is as slippery as it looks, the boys will have a hard time changing direction quickly. However, competent advisers assure us that we need have no fear on that score.

With the announcement of the policy of appointing game captains for each contest during the 1937 ga.id season, Coach "Clipper" Smith applies a system in effect in many of the country's institutions of higher learning, and brought to Villanova at the beginning of the basketball season. It is readily apparent to everyone that the wealth of Seniors on next year's squad would dictate such a policy. "Clipper" shows us other bit of his unusual sagacity in this move.

WOMEN WRESTLER

Bill Dwyer's sports edition on WCAU recently noted the arrival in Canada of the English women's wrestling champ, who has recently became a professional. She tips the scales at 220 lbs., and can lift two average men simultaneously.

TEMPLE TRIUMPHS OVER 'CATS

CAPTAINS WILL BE CHOSEN AT START OF EACH CONTEST

Wealth of Leaders Causes Smith to Adopt New Policy

Following the precedent laid down by some of the foremost universities and colleges in this country, "Clipper" Smith, head football coach, announced that there would be no permanent football captain appointed for the season of 1937.

"Clipper" arrived at this conclusion after considering the eligibilities of several men on the squad, including Stoviak, Stopper, Raimo, Olivar, and Rizzo, who have all demonstrated equally in the past season the qualities of leadership, sportsmanship, and football ability which are requisite for the election to the post of football captain.

Choice Made By Players

The choice of captains will be judged by a player's showing during spring practice; the captain for the first game, however, will not be picked until just before the game. The permanent captain for the remainder of the year will be picked just before the final game of the season by the voting of the entire squad, not just by the letter men as has been the custom heretofore.

"Clipper" states that he has been considering this step for the past two months and his decision was motivated by his inability to pick the best men out of so many seniors on the squad. He complimented Sala on his good work this year by saying that the boys were indeed fortunate to have such a leader as their captain.

Innovation at Villanova

This method o fhaving individual captains for each game was instituted quite a few years ago in some

FROSH COURTMEN WIN SECOND GAME

Conshohocken High Club Falls Before Raging Kittens

By disposing of a highly touted Conshohocken High club basketball team, 49-42, last Monday afternoon on the losers' court, the Frosh basketeers hung up their second victory in three starts.

It was an acid test for the Kittens, for the High Club was a powerful aggregation of dribblers composed of former scholastic luminaries. Many of whom won all-suburban honors last year. In their game against the Frosh they clearly showed that they knew their way around the court.

They played rings around the Frosh in the first half and it surely looked like a sad day for our Kittens. Playing their first game on a foreign court the Frosh appeared to be unsteady both on defense and offense. When the half ended, the score read 27-17 with the Frosh in second position. It looked as if the Conshohocken boys would win in a walk.

However, the Frosh came back with determination and before the second half was eight minutes old they had tied the score at 33-33. From then on it was all Villanova. Led by Paulkner, elongated forward, who turned in a fine exhibition of sharpshooting, hitting the nets for

MENDEL DAY-HOPS VANQUISH ALUMNI

Mendel Residents, Fedigan, Win in Week's Play; Austin Drops Two

After a month's layoff, play in the Intramural Basketball League began last week with four hotly contested games.

Last Thursday the Mendel Day-Hops, defending champions, handed the Alumni Hall quintet a sound 35-23 lacing. This was something of a surprise because of the Frosh's terrific display of power in their first start of the second half, when they licked Austin's twice-beaten club 34-30.

The Day-Hops gained a commanding lead soon after the contest started and were never once headed. Joe Beitenmiller was the shining light of the encounter, swishing six field goals and three fouls through the loop for a total of 15 points. "Hawk-eye" Connors, who scored 10 points on five "heaves," was the leading Alumni performer.

The Day-Hops flashed their old time power in this encounter and served notice on the other clubs in the circuit that they would be the team to beat for the second half title.

Fedigan Takes Austin

In the nightcap last Thursday the Fedigan "Gigolos" swamped the Austin representatives 41-22. Harold Hart and "Okie" O'Connell scored nine points each and led the Fedigannites to a crushing win. Adams, with six points, was the best bet for the Austins, but he re-

Encounter Lost To Owls After Beating Dickinson

Fouls Play Important Part in 28-23 Loss to Birds; Dubino and Montgomery Shine in Feline Triumph Over Red Devils

BLACK STARS FOR MITTEN HALLERS

Last Saturday night at the Arena Temple's dribblers gave the Villanova quintet a lesson in the art of foul shooting and won their way to a 28-23 decision over the Wildcats. Earlier in the week the Main Liners traveled out to Carlisle, Penna., and defeated the Dickinson College aggregation with plenty to spare, the count being 44-28.

In the Temple-Villanova encounter the Owls grabbed a 2-0 lead at the outset when Hal Black, sensational sophomore guard, slipped away to tally a field goal. From this point the Broad Street boys were never headed. The Blue and White fought back gamely and managed to pull up to a tie score but couldn't get the lead.

Black was easily the outstanding player on the court. He was the nucleus of the Temple attack and was usually on the scoring end of the Owl plays. The 16-point total he amassed with five goals from the floor and six fouls is evidence that his shooting eye was on.

Fouls Important

A glance at the box score shows the big reason for Temple's triumph. Villanova outscored the Owls in field goals 9 to 7, but inaccuracy from the foul line spelled the Wildcats' doom. In the meantime the Temple squad made the most of its opportunities and converted 14 out of 18 free throws, including a remarkable streak of 13 in a row.

Johnny Krutulis was the standout performer for the losing cause. He led the Villanova scorers in

INTENSE PRACTICE PUTS RINGMEN IN SHAPE FOR MEETS

Boxers Prepare for Strenuous Season; Sala in Good Condition

Villanova's boxing outlook seemed much brighter this week as Captain Tony Sala reported for training. Jack Jarosik and Bob Buckley, other members of the football team, also started training during the past week.

Sala, who will be defending his light-heavyweight title for the last time this year, is rounding into fine shape for so early in the season. Any injuries which he received in football seem to have disappeared.

Jarosik, who had highly successful season last year in the 165 pound class, has been much slower getting into shape. Jack is still overweight for his class and has plenty of training to do before the opening match with the Cadets of P. M. C.

Rutecky Shows Promise

Bob Buckley, another veteran from last season, is fighting it out for the heavyweight position with Mike Rutecky. This is Mike's first year on the boxing team, but what he lacks in experience he makes up in strength and his ability to take it. Rutecky seems to have a very promising future in the squared cir le.

Mike Rodriguez, who fought bantamweight last season has also reported for practice during the past week. Mike has had several amateur bouts in Cuba, and his experience and speed should prove advantageous to him. Vince Shugrue, junior engineer who also fought last season, is the other leading candidate for the 118 pound class. Shugrue, although not so fast as Rodriguez, has much more punching power.

Bill Duffy, the sensational 145 pounder, and Eddie Higgins, who fight in the 125 pound class, have been coming along steadily and each of them should be good for several points this season.

Kirk Out With Flu

Ray Gadsby received a setback, however, when his star 135 pound boxer, Eddie Kirk, was taken down with an attack of the flu Kirk was taken ill the middle of last week and has not yet reported for practice. Gadsby has another problem yet unsolved in the big opening in the 155 pound division.

The boxers' opening bout with P. M. C. has been temporarily post-

Diamond Squad Meets Under Coach Jacobs Early Next Month

Having completed his work as freshman coach and varsity scout during the past football season, George "Doc" Jacobs is looking forward to the coming baseball season. "Doc" plans early preparations this season to get the outlook on new material to replace the regulars graduated last June. The cap and gown beckoned Capt. Art Hahan, Tom Collins, Ed Vaughn, Joe McGovern, Mike O'Meara and Johnny Higgins to draw the curtain on their college careers. Collins, McGovern and Vaughn, mainstays of last year's pitching squad, will be hard to replace. The loss of Mahan, O'Meara and Higgins provides open competition for the first base, right field and left field positions, respectively.

Wealth of Material

Among the newcomers available to this year's squad are Joe Desmond, John Krutulis and Lou Wannemacher, last year's freshman flingers, and the snappy infield combination of Bob Bond, Lenny Merullo, "Cowboy" Crowley and Charley Deliuomo. These stalwarts should fit in with Coach Jacob's plans, since he can also boast of several veterans. Ray Stoviak and Walt McKenna are horsehide en-

EIGHT FIRSTS TALLIED BY VICTORS

By THOMAS CARBINE

Villanova's supple-muscled swimmers splashed to a smashing victory over St. Joseph's College by a 59-24 score in their home tank last Thursday afternoon.

Bill Leahy showed that he was not just a flash in the pan last year when he took first place in the 220-yard free-style race in the good time of 2:36.1 and then came back five minutes later to win the 440 from his teammate, Bill Bailey.

Lou Neff, former Overbrook High School star was the only winner for St. Joseph's. He outpointed Charlie Timmins with a beautiful exhibition, climaxed with a full twisting one and a half somersault, in the diving event. Neff also overcame a commanding lead to touch out Jack Hosey in the 50-yard free-style in 26.1 seconds.

Win Relay

Ed Leahy showed that he also contained championship blood when he led his teammate Will Booth to the wire in the 150-yard backstroke. Leahy also swam on the winning 220-yard free-style relay with Gaston, Rhoads, and Duffy, while Booth swam the first leg of the 150-yard medley relay with Lyme Hughes and Jack Hosey.

Hosey is remembered as the lad who was captain-elect last year but whose unfortunate injuries required him to drop out of competition for a season. His good showing in this meet shows that he has fully recovered, and his return will bolster the squad.

Another find of the day, was Lyne Hughes whose victory in the 200-yard breaststroke was a surprise to all. With Greco and Hughes in this event the Wildcats will be able to count on some valuable points in the coming meets.

Divers Promising

"Wee Willie" Durkins third place in the diving event, while it did not display much diving skill, showed that his frame is not too small to contain all the intestinal fortitude he exhibited to the audience in performing dives that he had no more than a very slight acquaintance with before the meet.

In the 100-yard free-style Charlie Barrett competing in his first race for Villanova showed that he had been keeping his light under a bushel for the past two years when he swam a magnificent race in this event to touch out the veteran Jim Cousart.

The results of this meet tell of a greatness for the coming season which will be a decided step forward in Villanova's march into big time swimming.

VINES AND PERRY

Ellsworth Vines and Fred Perry, spotlighters in the recent East and Mid-West tennis shows, both were physically indisposed. During the matches. Perry had a sore throat and cold, and Vines had a fever and the flu.

spite of some exceedingly tough luck on his shots. The veteran Harry McNally contributed six points on three beautiful pivot shots. After a field goal by Black and fouls by Black and Juenger had gained temple a 4-1 lead, the 'Cats rallied to knot the count on the first of McNally's goals. For the remainder of the first half the game was nip and tuck. Defense predominated, and neither team was able to hit the hoop with any sort of regularity. The halftime score was 9-8 in Temple's favor.

The Owls opened the second half with a bang, piling up an 8-point lead in the first two minutes. But Krutulis and McNally countered with three goals to reduce the margin to 2 points. Still the Owls were not to be denied and pulled away again to copt he game 28-23.

Sophomores Star

Last Tuesday's contest with Dickinson was another story entirely. The 'Cats were really hot. Lou Dubino and Jim Montgomery, two of Villanova's stellar sophs, went to town, garnering 14 and 13 points respectively.

The home team threw a scare into the Villanova visitors by setting up three goals for a 6-0 lead. This didn't faze the Wildcats at all, and in a short time they held a 12-8 margin over Dickinson. This advantage was increased to 27-14 as the half ended.

The remainder of the fray was all Villanova. Mainly because of a spectacular one man scoring spree by Jim Montgomery Villanova increased its lead to 41-21. Montgomery scored three field goals in less than two minutes during this attack.

As was expected Lew Sterner, ace guard, was Dickinson's big gun. His five goals and a foul kept the Red Devils in the game almost to the end. But he had little help from his mates, and the Wildcats won hands down.

DAVIS CUP BID

Merion Cricket Club has put in its bid for the United States-Australia Davis Cup matches in the summer. Last Saturday the bid was made.

ST. JOE'S-N. C.

Had not Mat Goukas, St. Joseph's star canter, been forced from the North Carolina game, the Hawks might have won, for the winners sewed up the game after he left.

ceived little help from his team mates.

This was Fedigan's first win in the second half, as they had previously been beaten by the Mendel "Resies." Because of this defeat, the second in two starts, the Austinites have practically been eliminated from the second half title chase.

Meanwhile in the opening second half games played last Tuesday night, the Alumni Hall "quint" showed tremendous power as they rolled the ill-fated Austins under to the tune of 34-30.

"Whitey" Bradshaw, "Hawk-eye" Connors, and "Cookie" Cusky scintillated for the Frosh outfit as they garnered eight, eight, and eleven points respectively. Walt Sheftic scored eleven points for the Austinities and was their outstanding performer.

Coach Gene Ertle's boys took a commanding lead at the end of the first half, mainly thru the fine work of the aforementioned Bradshaw and Cusky, who incidentally, were making their debut in the intramural ranks. This lead was increased during the third period, but shortly after the fourth quarter opened the Austins put on a terrific burst of basket-swishing to actually hold the lead. Sheftic, Dwyer, and Conte led this splurge, which was not enough to gain them the victory. With but a few minutes of play remaining, Connors threw up two baskets from midcourt to end the scoring and give Alumni a win in its opening game.

In the second game of the evening the Mendel Residents, first-half champions, successfully started their quest for the second half title by edging out the Fedigans, 20-19. The winning score came when Frank Melograma arched in a sensational one-handed shot from the corner with but 15 seconds of play remaining.

Just prior to the start of the contest the "Resies" were handed a terrific blow when Lloyd Rice, who was easily the oustanding player in the league during the first half, was declared ineligible because of his participation with the college freshmen. This news came as a distinct shock to both Rice and Coach Mazzei, who had counted heavily on the Frederick boy's presence in the line-up.

However, the "Resies," with Rice and Donahue, who sustained a broken finger in the last game of the first half, on the bench, displayed a tenacious brand of play and succeeded in submerging the "Gigolos" by a one-point margin.

Employing a zone defense with great effectiveness, the Residents held the Fedigans to but one field goal during the first half. At the beginning of the third period, however, Norbert Ford peppered the net for eight points and put the "Feda" into a lead which they did not relinquish until the fading seconds of the contest when Melograma contributed his spectacular basket.

Ford, with ten points, was the ace of the Fedigan attack, while the diminutive Tim Waad, with eight points was high man for the first-half champions. Joe Bochetto, besides scoring four points, was a pillar of strength on the defense for the Residents.

No contests are scheduled until after the exams, when the Austins will play the Mendel Day Hops, and the Alumni and Mendel Residents will clash.

Frosh Courtmen Win Second Game

a grand total of 18 points, the Frosh passed the floundering home team and went on to win rather handily.

Lazorchak and Rice both contributed nine points to the Frosh's total, while Wood was high man for Conshohocken with a collection of four field goals and three free throws.

WASHINGTON SQUAD NEXT WILDCAT FOE

Undefeated Quintet Faces Villanova in Gymnasium Friday

Riding on the crest of a seven-game winning streak, the basketeers of George Washington University will endeavor to make it eight straight when they encounter Villanova's varsity five at the Wildcats' gym on Friday, January 22.

Boasting victories over Nebraska, St. Johns (N. Y.), John Hopkins, Marshall College, Mount St. Mary's, Elon College and Wake Forrest, the pupils of Coach Bill Reinhart, great Oregon star, intend to better their 1935-36 record in which they won sixteen out of nineteen games to compile the best record in George Washington's history.

Under the leadership of Hal Kiesel, captain who plays forward or center and has averaged 8.7 points per game in 39 contests his first two years and paced by Tommy O'Brien, deadly effective forward who has averaged 10.16 points per game this team presents a great scoring machine which has amassed 310 points in the seven contests played this season.

Another great guard of this crack squad, named Ben Goldfaden, is considered deadly in close to the basket, and has more assists than any other member of the squad.

Only one small man makes the first five of this towering team, and although only 5 feet five inches and 140 pounds he makes up for his lack in height by being the fastest member of the squad. Villanova must snap back to winning ways by hard basketball if they except to win next Friday.

AUBURN AGAIN

Jack Meagher, Auburn coach, was around recently and told "Clipper" Smith that the one ambition of the Engineers was to trounce the Wildcats on Oct. 9.

BILL ANDERSON

Despite the gloomy pre-season estimates of Coach Bill Anderson, Lower Merion High School mentor, the Maroon five is still tied for first place in Section One.

N. Y. GIANTS SIGN "BUNNY" GALAZIN

Wildcat Center Receives One-Year Contract With Pro Club

For the second successive year, Villanova has sent a star to the National Professional Football League. Stanley 'Bunny" Galazin, stellar center for the Wildcats, has signed a contract to play for the New York Giants.

Galazin follows the footsteps of Eddie Michaels, last year's All-American guard, who is now playing with the Chicago Bears.

The signing of the big center was confirmed by him Sunday night. He will understudy Mel Hein, one of the best centers in the game. Tim Mara's scouts were told to watch 'Bunny" throughout the season, and they had ample opportunity to do so, especially during the Manhattan game, in which Galazin was at his best, playing the entire sixty minutes of action.

This contract with the Giants climaxes three seasons of varsity competition for the former Nanticoke, Pa. star. His specialty is backing up the line and diagnosing the plays of the opposition. His three-year record as a Wildcat is evidence of the truth of this statement. Galazin is one of four seniors to be graduated next June.

Galazin is a member of the School of Education, and no doubt will find himself a teaching job in the offseason. His ability as a grid player will stand him in good stead for coaching positions should he not care to continue in the pro game.

poned and a definite date has not yet been settled Following the P. M. C. match, the boys will travel up to West Point to meet the Army Cadets; then they fight Temple and Penn away on February 13 and 20 respectively. The next bout is with Bucknell on February 26, followed by Western Maryland on March 6. Both these bouts will be held at home. After fighting in the Intercollegiates, on March 12-13, the boys will wind up the season with Wisconsin March 19.

Here and There

By JOHN E. DIMON

WITH the usual observer of this column on the editorial end of this week's sheet, it was left to a green reporter like myself to carry on with the news, views and what have you that occur on and off this glorious campus of ours.

For the first time in weeks peace and quiet reign in the various wards. The Bryn Mawr merchants as well as the students, are in agony, because the exams started today and before they end many an aspirin tablet will be taken . . . It may be that the man who invented these awful things was a stockholder in Bayer's . . . The only fellows that worry are those that never study, and those that are too dumb to worry . . . Most of us are well taken care of then . . . However, a certain young basketballer is reported to have booked passage on a banana boat when the marks appear. It looks like you will have company, Bill, in the five doomed Sophomore Arts students.

When Tony Manero, Horton Smith and the rest of the golf-inclined boys come north this Spring, they will be joined by Charlie Cooke, generalissimo of the Fedigan nite owls . . . P. S. He practices with lampshades and other forms of glassware. His caddy is none other than his beloved roommate . . . My contemporary hustlers also advise me that the Freshmen play a good game of golf-African . . .

It seems that every time a fad appears it strikes heavily at Villanova. The current rage is mustachios. Joe McCabe and Mac McDonnell lead the races while Jack Hosey is an also ran; however, the cake goes to Walt Burlington, varsity heaver, who goes them one better with a goatee . . . It's the real McCoy and not a part of Hughie McL's toupee, as has been reported.

With ousting of Dr. Frank at Wisconsin the prophecy of Abe Collins, former Here and Therer, has been fully justified . However, Dr. Frank may be reinstated by public opinion . What a mad scramble . . . If we loan them Senator Tom O'Brien, the situation may clear up . . . With your line Tommy you could pacify anyone . even Tom Delate

Diverting to a bit of Cecil Pennyfeather . . . Look alikes: Cliff Choquette, Frosh elbower, and Buster Keaton of the cinema . . . Pathos: Twice each P M. Jack Dunnigan hurries down to the station to meet the incoming 5:30 and 5:45 trains, but each time he comes back with his head in his hands, and in no happy state of mood . . . Do you want me to fix it up by giving you the necessary knock-down, Jack? . . . You know me . . .

And now for Veenchil . . . Joe Calendriello has shifted his modeling interests from a sure-fit organization to a more dependable two-way stretch firm . . . The friends of Hart, Ford and Feron, Sr., Society clowns, are not at home to them lately . . . The personality boys were not so particular a few days ago when the accepted a ride in a cow transport . . . Francis Izzi is now "Mickey" Mozzi . . . Jon Tibner, varsity tackle, corresponds with a certain party in England . . . He answered a request letter in "Ranch Romance" . . . Leo Golden does the same . . .

And now that his girl friend is due to entrain for the balmy climate of the Miami shore, I wonder where Carl Coogan is going to spend three odd weeks . . . The Senior most likely to succeed is Ned Wolff . . . One of life's greatest disappointments occurs when someone cuts in on Bill Slaughter drawling away on a popular story . . . Ted Goumy is always caught holding theb ag in Austin . . . Kare Crossmire has not been seen around lately . . . Reason . . . He is down at the P. O. waiting for a long overdue letter from M . . .

Shorts: Al Panepinto, '32, is in the big city making good with his pen and ink sketches . . . John DiJoseph, last year's Ed-in-chief of the VILLANOVAN, dropped in last week to see the boss and the boys . . . Can it be another interest besides business, Di? . . . Wildcat fight enthusiasts will have to wait until after the retreat to see Ray Gadsby's current edition in action . . . The boys are having exam trouble, and P. M. C is having a fine carnival on the night scheduled; so a postponement has resulted . . .

Congrats: to the genial swimming coach, Arthur Mathieu for developing a well-rounded team . . Charlie Barrett, his protege, knocked off a win in first attempt in the 100-yard free style event, while the brothers Leahy, placed with a trio of first places in the St. Joseph's meet . . Billy Durkin supplied the most excitement with his fine diving . . . Keep it up Bill, you do all right by yourself . . . More congrats to Pete Banmiller. He and Miss Mary C. O'Brien said "I Do" Saturday in the college chapel.

Baseball is in the air and it won't be long before the boys will be going South . . . Villanova fans will have their eyes glued on the doings of Artie Mahan, Ben Geraghty and Frank Skaff . . . Well, I'm at the end of my rope . . . So I wish all of you the best of luck in the exams and I'll see all the select at the TKE affair next week . . .

HARTNETT CAPTAIN

Baseball rears its head again, with the news that "Gabby" Hartnett, catcher and spark-plug of the Chicago Cubs' attack, has been named captain of the National Leaguers for the coming chase.

DAILY TRACK WORKOUTS

Squad Drills at Franklin Field and Villanova

Despite the fact the inauguration of the formal outdoor track season does not begin in three months, a majority of the Villanova track squad is diligently going through a daily routine either at Penn or at Villanova.

Many valuable and useful pointers are being gathered by the members who are working, out at Hutchinson Gym and Franklin Field from the famed Lawson Robertson, the All-American coach; and from the experienced track-men of the Red and Blue squad.

Several upper-classmen have responded to the call for track candidates. It is Coach Elliot's sincere desire that more students report and take their training seriously and conscientiously. Only through these precautions will Villanova be able to present a formidable group of young men on the cinder-path this season.

To Choose Game Captains in Fall of the largest colleges in the country, Temple for the past two years has done this and Penn has just instituted this system during the past season. "Clipper" himself founded this custom at Santa Clara where it has been in effect for the past five years and was eventually imitated by Stanford and California where it worked out very well.

The choice of manager is still to be made. The only two men eligible for this position, however, are Henry Guckenberger and William Burke. Both have done good work for the football team and both have an equal chance of appointment. The announcement will be made in this near future.

DIZZY DEAN, PROF

Dizzy Dean, the mad pitcher is no the faculty of Ray Doan's baseball school. One wonders if he will teach the youngsters how to hold out. If so, he is well able to speak authoritatively on the subject.

PENN UNBEATEN

Penn, member of the Eastern Intercollegiate League, is as yet unbeaten either in league play or extra-league contests. They are making a strong bid for the conference crown with four wins.

FROSH DOMINATE INTRAMURAL RACE

Mendel Residents and Alumni Pace Pack at Halfway Mark

Mid-years have arrived, and it is time to take a look at the standings of the intramural contestants. At present the leading places are occupied by two Freshman Halls, with the Mendel residents safely in the van with a three point margin over the Alumni Hall inmates. The skytoppers have amassed their total of twenty-six and one-half counters by virtue of a first, a tie for first, a third and a fourth.

First half basketball honors accounted for ten markers, and tying the Commerce and Finance Dayhops in the fall tennis tournament. Fr. Ludwig's boys and Austin's Terrors nosed out the leaders in the Dramatic skits before Christmas, so the Mendelites had to be satisfied with a mere five points in this event. A fourth in boxing accounted for the remainder of the Penthouers' count.

Second place Alumni Hall also had one first, a tie for first, a fourth, and a fifth. Drama, as mentioned before, was the forte of the Academists, and a draw with Mendel's Train and Trolley boys in the fistic encounters brought eight counters to the total. Fall tennis and the initial half of the basketball race put five points on to tally twenty-three and one-half, leaving them within striking distance of the leaders.

A split for first in boxing, a tie for second with Fedigan's Gigolos in the court game, and a fourth in the amateur night festivities, and a fifth in the fall net tourney put the Mendel Dayhoppers in third notch with four tallies less than Alumni's twenty-three and one-half counters.

BIG TRADE

Baseball's biggest winter trade was affected recently when the Cleveland Indians and the St. Louis Browns participated in a six player deal.

Practice For Ball Club Begins Soon

thusiasts who carry themselves well on the diamond. Leo Schoppmeyer, Walt Sheftic, Mike Garbark and Harry McNally are other holdovers. The remaining flingers include Bill McLaughlin, Paul Kane and Frank Escott.

Coach Jacobs will call a meeting of the candidates the beginning of February when the season's plans will be discussed and a definite date set for the opening day of practice.

As has occurred in the past, the flingers and receivers will inaugurate the season with indoor practice sessions in the gymnasium, when it seems advisable the team will engage in actual practice sessions on the practice field behind the stadium.

This year the team will have a new diamond on which to entertain the visiting clubs. In the past, one hurdled plowed ground, hillocks and grass clumps in chasing fly balls out in the pastures. A hardhit ball invariably wound up in the wilds beneath the stadium, and the cement wall of the aforementioned was always a hazard for the unwary fly chaser.

However, all this has been changed with the grading and leveling of a new diamond directly behind the gymnasium.

ARMY AND NAVY TO MARCH AT CEREMONY

Service Academies Will Represent U. S. Colleges at Inauguration

Washington, D. C.—When the bugles blow and the bands strike up their marching songs at the beginning of the Inaugural Parade January 20, the college youth of the land will be represented in all of the pomp and pageantry of the occasion. Uncle Sam's own colleges, the Military Academy at West Point and the Naval Academy at Annapolis, will have brightly uniformed young men in the procession.

In other years, bearded veterans of long past wars shared the parade honors with gay young cadets from many corps, but this year with the Inauguration taking place on January 20 instead of March 4, the old order has changed in many ways. From the time George Washington took the oath as Chief executive of the infant United States of America up to this year, March 4 has been the date when the President was sworn in, but the 21st Amendment has changed the date of the President's term of office and the mid-winter weather is changing the traditional Inaugural Parade.

The color and enthusiasm of Inauguration day will contrast sharply with the drab preparations that are now being made for that gala quadrennial event. The streets where cheering thousands will applaud the Inaugural procession are now cluttered with planks and boards and scaffolds. Pedestrians warily walk in the streets, forced from the sidewalks where carpenters are constructing the grandstands. The stands on January 20 will be filled with shouting throngs, but now with the cold rains of the new year beating down on the Capitol, the gaunt frame work of the grandstands stretches out like a giant skeleton along the tree lined streets.

Governor Loses Autographed Shorts; Women Say Career and Marriage Mix

Ohio's Governor, Martin L. Davey, was not called upon to give the shirt off his back, but he was requested to give up a pair of shorts. This is the story in brief:

As an initiation stunt, Charles A. Fernald , Ohio State University senior, was ordered, by his Delta Kappa Epsilon brothers, to obtain an autographed pair of Governor Davey's shorts.

Fernald telephoned to find out the governor's size; then he bought a pair, called at the executive's offices, and proposed a swap.

Governor Davey consented, went into a side office, and, a few minutes later, presented Fernald with the autographed shorts.

Senior women students at Pennsylvania State College have agreed that marriage and a career cannot be combined successfully.

An overwhelming majority of the 190 girls that took part in the poll declared that a career after marriage is not fair to the husband nor to needy single girls who are out of work.

The "Mail-Order Ghost" has talked at last—after a million words of his themes and term topics have been graded under the names of a score of paying student clients.

John Galvin, graduate student in history at Columbia University, began his "ghosting-career" in high school when lazy lads paid him a quarter to write each of their 300-word themes.

When he came to Columbia in 1932 and his many clients enrolled at Yale, Harvard, Fordham, and Randolph-Macon, he had to extend his tailor-made theme service. The old patrons recommended him to others, and soon he had a prosperous mail-order business.

After more than four years of hard "ghosting" under others' names, Galvin has released himself from his careful anonymity and has become himself once again.

Phil Dessauer, a columnist at Oklahoma City University, recently called attention o the need of new typewriters for student use by classifying the old machines in the following manner:

"The common type is known as the 'Hawaiian' or 'Hula model.' It shimmies. Number two is the 'Love Bird type.' Every part is stuck on some other part, and the keys are stuck on themselves.

"The 'Hop-skip-and jump' variety is the Jesse Owens of its regiment. It always goes twice as fast as the typist.

"Number four is the 'Journalist's Special.' It is nature's great boon to the lead pencil industry. A sort of aviator-type machine. The keys always look over the field before they land.

"The last model is known as the 'Secretary.' It slips into your lap at the slightest provocation."

GOVERNMENT OFFERS AID TO COLLEGE STUDENTS

New Course to Help Prospective Pupils Continue Studies

The Federal government is now conducting a novel college course. The course is given in "Freshman College Centers" which have been established to give employment to needy teachers and to provide freshman college work for young men and women who could not otherwise continue their schooling. Up through October, 67 such Centers had been established in nine states. These Centers offer regular first year college courses for which full credit is given.

Some 7,900 students are enrolled in the Freshman classes which are taught by more than 450 teachers. The WPA pays the salaries of the instructors.

Uncle Sam is also offering correspondence courses in 15 states in which more than 14,900 students are enrolled. The correspondence courses and the "Freshman College Centers" are two of the many phases of the WPA educational program which has provided instruction for more than 1,300,000 individuals and given jobs to about 34,000 teachers who could not find employment elsewhere.

STUDENT PAPER RAPS EXERCISE

Arkansas 'Traveler' Publishes Editorial Condemning Graduation Ceremonies

Fayetteville, Ark.—In a move to do away with traditional Commencement exercises, The Traveler, University of Arkansas student newspaper, published an editorial proposing to "abolish in one sweep the expense, nuisance, and nonsense of Graduation week."

"Of all the claptrap and useless fixtures of college life, Commencement is one of the principal absurdities," said Editor John Hutchison.

Declaring that Commencement serves no other purpose than to burden the student with several extra days of tiresome program, cap-and-gown discomfort, and board bills, the editorial goes on to say that "some students look forward to the day they will stalk in solemn procession to accept their sections of sheepskin, but most look forward in sighing resignation to an unnecessary and irksome period of frippery."

"How many seniors want to sit through a baccalaureate sermon comprising little else but hollow platitudes and faulty philosophy?" the editorial asks. "How many seniors have any desire to endure a funeral exercise featuring boresome introductions, political bombast and mediocre music?"

ADVISES STUDENTS

"The problem which confronts the modern college woman graduate when hunting a job is one of creating a new position, not one of applying for some previously planned position in an overcrowded field as most young women do." Mrs. Cornelia Stratton Parker, noted writer and lecturer in economics at the University of California, urges students to go beyond the "any-job" attitude.

PRINCETON LEADS SCHOLARS

Princeton University is represented by four scholars, nominated from Connecticut, Ohio, Texas and Missouri; Harvard by two, from North Carolina and Florida; and Swarthmore college by two, from Virginia and Maryland. Twenty-four other colleges and universities supplied the other scholars.

NEW COFFEE CLUB FORMED BY COLLEGE

Presbyterian Institution Organizes Group for Literary Discussion

Clinton, S. C.—Conceived in the diverse but uniformly curious minds of six people, born in the steam rising from cups of hot coffee, and nurtured in the aromatic odor of black java, a touch of Eighteenth Century England has come to life on the Presbyterian College campus.

Around the tables of London's Coffee Houses in the Eighteenth Century there gathered a group of men who mixed philosophy with travel, stirred in a great deal of literature and a pinch of criticism, spiced the whole with sarcasm, and having sprinkled well with mathematics, brought the mess to a brew in their inquisitive minds and drank deeply thereof.

Every night, between eight and eleven, they gather in the Science Hall of the college, and then fare forth into their night life, which consists of walking up town to a cafe were they always sit down at the same table, order coffee, light cigarettes and withdraw themselves into another world.

Conversation is no lost art with them. They run the gamut of the sciences, solve great problems in the fields of arts, quote voluminously from the poets, delve into the mysteries of metaphysics and theology, discuss politics and Aristotle in the same breath and even take a stab at Einstein whom one of them knows personally.

Widely varied are they in tastes—in literature they range from extreme classicism to the deepest of deep-died Romanticism—but even more widely varied are they in origin. There is in their group a professor of biology from Harvard who is busily writing a history of that science. The University of Wisconsin has yielded up a professor of physics who was born in Missouri and raised in Kansas and somewhere along the line picked up a barbed wit

President Of Junior Class Chooses J. W. Stahmann

John L. Simons Makes Announcement to VILLANOVAN Today Declaring Arts Student Head of Entire Junior Week

PLANS OUTSTANDING SOCIAL EVENT

The eagerly-awaited announcement concerning the Chairman of Junior Week was officially made today by John L. Simons, president of the Class of 1938.

J. Walter Stahmann, student in the School of Arts and Philosophy, was appointed to the coveted position, and as a result of his selection will direct the affair in its entirety.

In an interview with the writer, Stahmann stated, "With the earnest co-operation of the chairmen and their respective committees, we shall have the finest junior week that Villanova has ever known. This junior week will set a mark for the coming classes to shoot at. I also want it known that I expect the full concurrence of the entire junior class."

Name Remainder Later

Due to unforeseen circumstances, it was impossible to secure the other appointments, but President Simons asserted they would appear in the VILLANOVAN next week.

Stahmann has been actively engaged in extra-curricular activities during his stay on the campus. Besides being an important member of the debating society, he has been on the cheer-leading squad for the past three years, and was captain the past season.

The Junior Promenade, which every student entering college looks forward to, will take place on Friday evening, May 7, and will provide a climax for the gala event.

Mothers' Day will open the occasion on Monday, May 3, and Open House will take place that same afternoon and continue throughout the next day.

CHEMICAL GROUP PROPOSES TOURS

Will Inspect Kimble Glass Works in the Near Future

Villanova College's recently founded Chemical Society has announced through its Moderator, Dr. E. L. Haenisch, that it will make a series of inspection tours during the second semester.

The first of this proposed series of tours will be one to be made in the near future to the Kimble Glass Works in New Jersey. Previous to the actual trip, there will be a motion picture shown before a meeting of the group on next Monday. The picture concerns a regular tour of the plant and is purported as a means of familiarizing the students beforehand with the plant itself. This will tend to give a more educational effect when the different processes are viewed at first hand.

The society hopes to continue its first semester practice of having students in groups of three address the meeting on subject matter that is akin to that material that will be seen in the process of plant production.

Daniel J. O'Connor, Jr., '38, secretary of the club, has requested that students submit suggestions regarding plant trips and guest speakers. He plans to have such guest speakers address the group in order to effect the ultimate end of the organizations in presenting talks that will supplement the students' classwork.

FORENSIC SOCIETY MEETS OLD RIVALS

Debates With Temple, St. Joseph's Scheduled for Next Week

Beta Gamma, Villanova debating chapter, will engage two traditional rivals next week when it contests the forensic groups of Temple University and St. Joseph's College on February 8 and 9.

The proposed debates with St. Vincent's College and St. Thomas' College, previously scheduled for this Friday and Saturday, have been postponed because of unforeseen complications. The debates entailed trips to Latrobe and Loretta, Pennsylvania, and could not be successfully arranged by the Villanova group. In all probability the contests will be scheduled for some time next month.

Beta Gamma will be represented at the Temple debate, which will be broadcast through the facilities of radio station WIP at 3:15 Monday afternoon, by Frederic Waters and William Corkill. The Villanova arguers will uphold the affirmative on the topic. Resolved: That the United States should agree with the nations of Europe to prohibit international shipment of arms.

On Tuesday evening the Villanova debaters will engage the forensic group of St. Joseph's to decide the question, Resolved: That Congress should have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry. Anthony L. Differ, Beta Gamma president, and Joseph P. Carroll, manager, will be

UNIFIED ATTENDANCE AT MASS CONCLUDES COLLEGE RETREAT

Students Receive Sacrament of Holy Eucharist at Close of Services On Friday

FRS. KEEGAN AND CARNEY COMMEND STUDENT BODY

Retreat Masters Well Pleased With Attention and Cooperation Displayed

Drawing to a close the ninety-fourth annual retreat on Friday morning, January 29, the students of Villanova College were in unified attendance at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, at Holy Communion, and at the reception of the Papal Blessing. Breakfast was served for the entire student body in the college dining hall after the concluding exercise of the retreat.

Retreat Masters Pleased

The retreat masters, Rev. Edward J. Carney, O.S.A., and Rev. John B. Keegan, O.S.A., veteran members of the Augustinian Missionary Band and former rectors at Villanova College, were very well pleased with the outcome of the retreat. Father Keegan, expressing his and Father Carney's feelings, remarked, "The retreat was wholly enjoyable because of the attention, good will, and the spirit of co-operation displayed by the student body as a whole. Both Father Carney and myself are greatly appreciative of the support and courtesies extended us."

The general reaction of the retreat upon the students was one of enthusiasm. The success of the retreat was plainly evident on Friday morning, when the entire student body received the Sacrament of the Eucharist. The main factor and purpose behind the retreat exercises was to enable the students to enter into a spirit of introspection, so that they might know themselves better and thereby re-establish themselves in the sight of God. From all evidence this end was realized.

Conferences Are Instructive

The series of conferences throughout the days of the retreat were marked by spiritual instruction on the eternal verities and the Christian Front Editors Reply to Louis J. Mercier

Charge Harvard Professor as "Economically Naive" in Answering His Charges

Charging that Professor Louis J. Mercier, of Harvard University, behaved in an "economically naive and unrealistic manner," the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN FRONT, monthly magazine of social reconstruction, having offices on the Villanova Campus, answer the attack of Professor Mercier on "young Catholic denunciators" of the capitalist system.

An article in the January 8th issue of THE COMMONWEAL provoked the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN FRONT to refute the charges of Professor Mercier. The Editors of THE CHRISTIAN FRONT, young, Catholic, denunciators of the abuses of capitalism, declare in the February issue of the magazine that although Professor Mercier's charges were directed against them, "the cap hardly warms our ears."

Professor Mercier's article, "Capitalism and the Facts," state the Editors of THE CHRISTIAN FRONT, should be called "Capitalism Without the Facts," for "it appears that capitalism for its own self-preservation should keep the facts quiet."

EVENING LEDGER RAPS COMMUNISM

Warns of Influx of Communistic Powers Into Western Europe

The Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger editorializing recently declared that "Great Britain and France seem more or less willing to face the very real risks of having a Communist Power at the western gate of the Mediterranean." The paper went on to say that Communism had now gained such a foothold that it would severely affect Western Europe.

The editorial in part, which should be of interest to Villanova students because of the necessity of studying such conditions as these for the purpose of profiting by them and keeping the peace of Christ on earth, stated: " . . . apparently the Madrid Government now is — and if it has a future will be—a Communist regime . . . Spanish Communism is hardly spontaneous. Russian influence has, for a long time, been rather powerful in Spain. Third Internationale agents knew the Spanish situation better than did the agents of Fascism. Apparently they were there first."

Speaking of the American correspondents who were in Madrid, the Ledger declared, "They are under no illusions. They watched the puppets dance when far-off Moscow pulled the strings. The Soviet tech-

THE CATHOLIC PRESS

FEBRUARY is Catholic Press Month. In a day when the press plays so prominent a part in the formation of public opinion, it is imperative that Catholics, above all others, see to it that there is a vigorous Catholic Press.

As Cardinal Pacelli wrote to Signor Lamberto Dignoli a few weeks ago, "In times of fierce fights and anxious social crises, the faithful, so desirous of helping in material suffering, must not forget that there is also a spiritual charity not less noble or necessary, the charity which touches the intelligences and hearts. To help a Catholic paper, to encourage it and defend it, means carrying the light of the Faith to those who doubt, reorientating wandering consciences, straightening intellects troubled by false doctrines, defending the morality of individuals and families . . ."

Many Catholic Colleges throughout the land are holding Catholic Press month exhibits. Villanova College, for many reasons, should be proud to hold such a Press Exhibit, for its many publications, girdling the globe with their messages, are a tribute to the Catholicity of Villanova College. Therefore through the Villanovan we are advocating such a movement.

WELCOME BACK

THE return of Father Charles E. Coughlin to the radio will be received with a great deal of pleasure by some, displeasure by others, and by the vast majority of his whilom listeners with interest. This will be especially so of those who followed his course, from his beginning as an obscure radio priest decrying the want of justice in our social and economic system up to the pinnacle of his success as a nationally famous character of rhetorical extravagance.

Whether we approve or disapprove of many of Father Coughlin's utterances, we cannot deny that his message was needed and his purpose in delivering it laudable. Nor can it be doubted that the innumerable attacks to which he was subjected were, in large measure, instrumental in directing his criticism of the system, to one of personalities. If vituperation and maledictions were occasionally upon his tongue, it is well to remember that they were provoked by the insidious efforts to slander his character and intentions, that were made by those who opposed his views.

In his earlier days upon the radio, there was no other individual factor so instrumental in informing and educating the people of this country on the political, social, and economic conditions that prevailed in it. To his efforts may be ascribed the first awakening of the public mind to a personal interest in the system under which they were living, and which, heretofore, they had considered so little. His was a voice crying in the wilderness — a convincing, a passionate, a reasonable, a sympathetic voice — that besought the people of this country to investigate the causes of their economic woes—for they were man made and as such capable of alteration.

Father Coughlin is a man of intelligence, principles, and exceptional ability. He has the character and qualities of a man that belongs in public life; and his refusal to permit the personal discomfort caused him by the last election to keep him out of it shows a wholesome appreciation of the public need for the advice which he is peculiarly equipped to give. His first address of this series on the social conditions in America, was of such a nature that we take pleasure in welcoming him back.

FOUR YEARS WITH HITLER

ADOLPH HITLER, dictator of the German people, recently ended his four year reign over the destinies of the Nazi regime by speaking before the Reichstag and pointing out the highlights of the past four years of his command. His reference to this time as "a most beautiful and perfect democracy" brought loud acclaim from his Reichstag minons who think that the Hitler regime is the establishment of justice on a "new Nazi basis." The same cheering Reichstag failed to see the incongruity of Hitler's address, and failed to see the true mockery of justice in a system which does not allow any freedom of political and religious belief. The thunderous applause did not show the intelligence of the German senate but was rather significant of the extent to which the German people like to be led.

In his speech Hitler dashed the hopes of peace loving nations upon the rocks of inevitable despair. He absolutely ignored the offer of England's Foreign Secretary Eden to supply economic support in exchange for a promise to secure the peace of Europe not only on a Western but a continental basis. He increased the fears of Lithuania and Czechoslovakia by warning "the smaller neighbors" not to interfere with the national feelings of Germany's smaller minorities in those lands, and laid a broad hint that the German armies may be forced to step in and uphold the rights of her nationals in the neighboring nations. Above all other declarations Hitler reverted to his favorite theme and denounced the Versailles theory.

If Hitler's speech is any indication of his success or his promises for the coming four more years under his command we wonder why it is that the German Reichstag arose from its seats and cheered in loud acclaim. Was it from a feeling of German national pride or from an inward feeling of fear of a dreadful ruler who has complete control over a "free and democratic people."

As We See It . . . . Pre-Meds

By HARRY PARKIN

THE subject of this article is one with which we have been inclined to occupy ourselves for some time. Our failure, however, to make it public prior to this is not because we felt any other more worthy of precedence in your attention, but rather because until now it has failed to have any definite existence in our mind aside from the occasional reflections that we have given to various parts of it. Likewise, one feels some hesitancy in recommending for public approbation a thing that he does not believe himself qualified by experience and observation to propose. It is not unusual to encounter among pretenders to public attention the tendency to propose panaceas for the alleviation of conditions of which they hardly realize the full import much less are able to improve.

"Many Reasons for Choice

The average student who enters upon a course of pre-medical studies is usually actuated by any one of a number of reasons which are for the most part of only trifling consequence in proportion to the real motives that should move one. He may be prompted to emulate some physician in his community who enjoys the good-will and esteem of his neighbours; he may be disposed toward the practice of medicine because he would like to partake of the dignity and honour that is associated with the members of the profession; he may feel that the medical field affords a greater opportunity for personal initiative and gain than is to be encountered in the commercial world; or he may enter upon it merely on the urgings of his parents or relatives who believe him qualified for such a position. He will continue, moreover, the course of study prescribed by the college authorities without once seriously adverting to the real reasons that should move a young man to prepare himself for the medical profession.

The medical profession is, in the physical order, akin to the religious profession in the spiritual order, and requires essentially the same qualifications of its practitioners. The foremost of these is the intellectual capacity for the studies, the next in order is the fixed resolve to exert that capacity to its fullest, that is the determination to assimilate as much knowledge as is within its capabilities and is at its disposal and not merely enough to satisfy the scholastic requirements, and finally a moral character that is equal to the responsibilities and obligations of the profession.

Limits His Success

The absence of any of these will not, of course, deter any one from becoming a physician, but they will limit, and definitely, his success as one. Wanting in the first of these a student's likelihood of achieving his purpose is remote, lacking in the other two there is little probability that his actions will ever reflect credit upon himself or his profession, for it is the degree to which a physician possesses these two qualities is the measure of his importance and service to the community. The doctor who fails to keep himself constantly informed upon the numerous advances that are being made in the profession, is obviously remiss in his obligations to his patients, while he who expends his learning in any manner that is incommensurate with the dictates of sound morality is a disgrace to his profession and himself.

Pre-Med Course Important

There is nothing more pitiable or more designed for mishap than the student who embarks upon his premedical course with the opinion that it is a kind of unpleasant duress that must be endured with the minimum of inconvenience until he enters medical school. This, despite the obvious fact that the real introduction to a medical career is by necessity centered in the preparatory courses. Here the student forms the fixed habits of study, habits of self reliance and self discipline, and develops his powers of observation and correlation. Hence the justification for assuming that student's accomplishments in his preparatory work is indicative of what may be expected from him in the future. Here is laid the foundation of his course, and unless it is firmly laid, the whole structure will topple before it is half completed.

In this respect it is well to mention a phase of the profession that seems to escape many students, and that is the moral obligation that is assumed by any individual who registers himself as a prospective physician. His obligation to his future patients is such that he is bound to bring to the ministration of their suffering every particle of knowledge that it has been possible for him to secure. For when he is licensed by the state it is expected that his period of experimentation is over and that of application has begun.

We recommend that every premedical undergraduate give these things his serious attention. They do not come from the faculty, but are the result of almost four years' experience among pre-medical students, with the realization that too few students really appreciate them until too late.

Pass In Review

By RICHARD DEVERALL

THE OTHER DAY I was chatting with a feminine friend of mine about the species of literature and the forms of composition. Out of a clear sky, she advised me to tell the "Princeton Clown" that he had best change his form. I don't know what she meant, but the word is passed along to those who might understand.

However, to get along with the review of the week, we discovered in the library an excellent new publication: The Well of English, by Blanche Mary Kelly.

It is the thesis of Dr. Kelly that: "The extent to which English literature has been shaped and colored by the Catholic religion. . .that Catholic Christianity infused into English literature a quality which accounts for most of what it has of greatness. . .In other words, the truth at the bottom of the well of English is Catholic truth."

It is a common practice among Catholics to "prove" that Catholicism influenced this or that; that Catholicism was the true "cause" of a certain phenomena. We take, for example, Dr. Walsh's The Thirteenth, Greatest of Centuries. The usual method of proof employed by such writers is to cite one specific example, and then hurriedly infer that it was representative. The method is so dishonest, at times, that we have come to look upon it with disfavor. However, here is a book which grasps the entirety of English literature in masterly embrace. Keen analysis, pungent observation, cutting criticism; the work is that of a master, sure of her field.

The best argument for any cause is to let it speak for itself. Commencing with Anglo-Saxon literature, she takes us down a thrilling path leading to the poetry of Masefield and other writers of own day.

Until the time of the Revolution brought about by that monster, Henry VIII, English literature is undoubtedly Catholic. Langland and Chaucer come in for due recognition, but the omission of Laurence Minot is disappointing, for certainly this poet of northern England has significance.

But, after the Protestant Revolution, the joyous, healthly, zestful, hapiness which flows from a Catholic culture slowly evaporates. In Shakespeare, one of the last Great Catholic writers, it is still present. Succeeding years witness a withering of the Catholic spirit. Indeed, that it is still present one hundred years after Elizabeth is a wonder, for the stern perverted morality of the Puritans left little play for the imaginative and the beautiful.

Skipping down through the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, the next great figure after Shakespeare is the immortal John Henry Cardinal Newman, leader of the Catholic intellectual revival. Of Newman, we cannot speak too highly!

Chatterton, Belloc, Shaw, Wells —these are the great names we find in modern English literature. Strangely, even G. B. Shaw has a Catholic core that stands out in bold relief. Wells? He is an enigma. We denounce him today, but still one can never tell what tomorrow is going to stay about him. Conversely, the much lauded Hilaire Belloc, biographer, historian, literature, might not be held in such high esteem by his readers of a hundred years hence. Of late, Hilaire has been writing too rapidly. Robert Southey tried that . . . and failed.

English literature is the product of a culture that finds its root deep in the rich soil of the Catholic Middle Ages. Even though the surface might appear to be Protestant, as Dr. Kelly says, the core is Catholic.

Ship's Crew

THE Britannic being an English ship, has a completely English crew.

These men have been trained from boyhood to become seamen. At an early age they begin to gain actual experience on the sea by becoming "Ship's boys." They continue in that capacity until the time comes for them to receive their commissions.

During the long period of training the young sailors-to-be lead the life of any normal boy, except that most of it takes place aboard ship. They go to school on the ship, engage in sports, have any number of amusements and even go on vacations, which are usually spent on land.

Besides undergoing this extensive training, every prospective sailor must qualify as a member of the British Naval Reserve.

"Duke of Windsor, Sir!"

Don't refer to the recent king as King Edward aboard an English ship. Much of it is probably done to incite interest or something, but most officers are usually very excited if you mention King Edward. The assistant-purser on the Britannic for instance, when the name was mentioned, contracted his eyebrows, and with a severe expression on his face (but a twinkle in his eyes) said: "The Duke of Windsor, Sir!"

Sea-Sickness

There are many preventives of sea-sickness, the majority of which will probably have very beneficial results—on a calm sea. But nothing will cheat the rail of its victims in stormy weather. Even in good weather, the waters are very rough while passing by Cape Hatteras. On this particular voyage the sea was very rough for most of the trip south. At some meals, fully seventy-five percent of the tables were vacant, and the remaining twenty-five perecnt were occupied by mostly men.

Side-lights

As soon as tropical waters are reached, the officers and crew immediately change to white uniforms.

As a life-boat drill, everyone is instructed what to do in case of an emergency. The men are instructed not to help the crew, they would only be in the way.

Just before leaving the pier in New York harbor, all passengers gather on deck to wave good-bye to friends on the shore. Then the officers walk around with large trays of confetti for whoever wants it.

Practicaly every amusement, sport or recreation is provided for. There is deck tennis, quoits, pingpong, swimming in the ship's large pool, gymnastics, movies, cards, dancing and many, many others.

A bugle-call is the summons for every meal.

It's easy to gain weight on one of these cruises. At eight you have breakfast. At eleven bullion and toast is served on deck, in cool climates; iced cream in warm; at one luncheon; at four hot or iced tea and pastries are served; at six dinner; at eleven a Buffet Supper is served in the main lounge.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

RAYMOND PAIGE, Hollywood maestro, and Hally Sakter, "Hit Parade" batoneer, have a mutual admiration society with two members. Both think the other does a grand job. Haven MacQuarrie, genial presentator of the "Do You Want to Do An Actor" show, won the following compliment from a coast scribe: "He's a good guy because his hat still fits his head even though his job has gotten a lot bigger."

Norbert Ford has taken up the art of crooning which emanates from so many of our more prominent radio vocalists. The "cave man" tactics which he has been using for some time on a fair damsel in Ardmore do not seem to be reacting and thus brought about this sudden shift of attack. He plans to get on the "inside" if this method of approach works out. Another reversal of this kind and Norbert will be losing his grip. . .good luck to ya kee!

Francia White, dimunitive soprano with Fred Astaire, doesn't crowd the microphone as do most female singers. The average soprano huddles about the mike and sings her songs—but not Francia. Her voice is so powerful, technicians require her to stand several feet away while singing, so that her voice will register well. Even then, the control room men have to watch the dials closely so that her voice will not appear too loud.

Turn about is fair play, Vincent Lopez has found. To show their appreciation for the maestro's recent song writing contest for college students, several entertainment committees of Eastern universities have voted Lopez their favorite bandleader and have invited him to supply the music for their schools' Spring dances and proms. The "Speed Show" maestro, at this rate, will be able to accept only half of the offers.

One of the most informal programs on the air is that of Horace Heidt, Saturdays at 9 P. M., EST., over the Mutual network. The fact that he is broadcasting from the Hotel Biltmore, one of the swankiest spots in town, doesn't bother Horace, and the patrons seem to love it. He gets the dancers to participate in community singing and then he calls them to the microphone and conducts spontaneous interviews. It is unusual for a dance band to get a full sustaining spot on a network, but Heidt makes the time fly.

Anne Jamison, soprano star of the Friday "Hollywood Hotel" program, is a flower garden enthusiast. She recently discovered an insect killer which she may commercialize. She made it up originally to save her camellias. Johnny Green, the Fred Astaire stickwaver, manages to find time to visit the Hollywood night spots weekly in the company of various glamorous screen ladies. Most frequently seen wearing a green corsage are Wendy Barrie and Simone Simon.

Conrad Thibault is about to realize his fondest dream. The handsome baritone has long nursed a desire to play in Sigmund Romberg or Victor Herbert operettas. Now the word is out that Thibault will play the leading role in "The Desert Song" for Warner's. Jackson Wheeler, announcer on the Joe Penner program, goes over his lines only once before he goes on the air. Wheeler believes too much rehearsing dulls the natural enthusiasm of an announcer.

Charles Butterworth motors to Palm Springs between Fred Astaire broadcasts to play tennis. Kidded about his infatuation for the California resort, Charlie replied: "It's the desert that gets me. It keeps my wits dry."

THE CATHOLIC PRESS

FEBRUARY is Catholic Press Month. In a day when the press plays so prominent a part in the formation of public opinion, it is imperative that Catholics, above all others, see to it that there is a vigorous Catholic Press.

As Cardinal Pacelli wrote to Signor Lamberto Dignoli a few weeks ago, "In times of fierce fights and anxious social crises, the faithful, so desirous of helping in material suffering, must not forget that there is also a spiritual charity not less noble or necessary, the charity which touches the intelligences and hearts. To help a Catholic paper, to encourage it and defend it, means carrying the light of the Faith to those who doubt, reorientating wandering consciences, straightening intellects troubled by false doctrines, defending the morality of individuals and families . . ."

Many Catholic Colleges throughout the land are holding Catholic Press month exhibits. Villanova College, for many reasons, should be proud to hold such a Press Exhibit, for its many publications, girdling the globe with their messages, are a tribute to the Catholicity of Villanova College. Therefore through the Villanovan we are advocating such a movement.

WELCOME BACK

THE return of Father Charles E. Coughlin to the radio will be received with a great deal of pleasure by some, displeasure by others, and by the vast majority of his whilom listeners with interest. This will be especially so of those who followed his course, from his beginning as an obscure radio priest deerying the want of justice in our social and economic system up to the pinnacle of his success as a nationally famous character of rhetorical extravagance.

Whether we approve or disapprove of many of Father Coughlin's utterances, we cannot deny that his message was needed and his purpose in delivering it laudable. Nor can it be doubted that the innumerable attacks to which he was subjected were, in large measure, instrumental in directing his criticism of the system, to one of personalities. If vituperation and maledictions were occasionally upon his tongue, it is well to remember that they were provoked by the insidious efforts to slander his character and intentions, that were made by those who opposed his views.

In his earlier days upon the radio, there was no other individual factor so instrumental in informing and educating the people of this country on the political, social, and economic conditions that prevailed in it. To his efforts may be ascribed the first awakening of the public mind to a personal interest in the system under which they were living, and which, heretofore, they had considered so little. His was a voice crying in the wilderness — a convincing, a passionate, a reasonable, a sympathetic voice — that besought the people of this country to investigate the causes of their economic woes—for they were man made and as such capable of alteration.

Father Coughlin is a man of intelligence, principles, and exceptional ability. He has the character and qualities of a man that belongs in public life; and his refusal to permit the personal discomfort caused him by the last election to keep him out of it shows a wholesome appreciation of the public need for the advice which he is peculiarly equipped to give. His first address of this series on the social conditions in America, was of such a nature that we take pleasure in welcoming him back.

FOUR YEARS WITH HITLER

ADOLPH HITLER, dictator of the German people, recently ended his four year reign over the destinies of the Nazi regime by speaking before the Reichstag and pointing out the highlights of the past four years of his command. His reference to this time as "a most beautiful and perfect democracy" brought loud acclaim from his Reichstag minons who think that the Hitler regime is the establishment of justice on a "new Nazi basis." The same cheering Reichstag failed to see the incongruity of Hitler's address, and failed to see the true mockery of justice in a system which does not allow any freedom of political and religious belief. The thunderous applause did not show the intelligence of the German senate but was rather significant of the extent to which the German people like to be led.

In his speech Hitler dashed the hopes of peace loving nations upon the rocks of inevitable despair. He absolutely ignored the offer of England's Foreign Secretary Eden to supply economic support in exchange for a promise to secure the peace of Europe not only on a Western but a continental basis. He increased the fears of Lithuania and Czechoslovakia by warning "the smaller neighbors" not to interfere with the national feelings of Germany's smaller minorities in those lands, and laid a broad hint that the German armies may be forced to step in and uphold the rights of her nationals in the neighboring nations. Above all other declarations Hitler reverted to his favorite theme and denounced the Versailles theory.

If Hitler's speech is any indication of his success or his promises for the coming four more years under his command we wonder why it is that the German Reichstag arose from its seats and cheered in loud acclaim. Was it from a feeling of German national pride or from an inward feeling of fear of a dreadful ruler who has complete control over a "free and democratic people."

ODDS and ENDS

IT HAS recently come to our ears from a very reliable source that Norbert Ford, he of cow truck fame, although calm and cool on the campus is a veritable cave man with the fair sex. We hear that some of the girlies fall for that sort of thing but one lass, who was the subject of our hero's attentions, refused to succumb (even after a long tussle) and sent him home a crushed individual. Better give up the True Story counter, Norby!

"Then 'trans' always means across?"

"Yes, it does, always," and the mother added sternly, "If you ask me another question tonight, I'll send you to bed."

The silence lasted quite three seconds. It was broken at last by a plaintive small voice which commented, "Then I suppose transparent means a cross parent."

As We See It . . . . Pre-Meds

By HARRY PARKIN

THE subject of this article is one with which we have been inclined to occupy ourselves for some time. Our failure, however, to make it public prior to this is not because we felt any other more worthy of precedence in your attention, but rather because until now it has failed to have any definite existence in our mind aside from the occasional reflections that we have given to various parts of it. Likewise, one feels some hesitancy in recommending for public approbation a thing that he does not believe himself qualified by experience and observation to propose. It is not unusual to encounter among pretenders to public attention the tendency to propose panaceas for the alleviation of conditions of which they hardly realize the full import much less are able to improve.

Many Reasons for Choice

The average student who enters upon a course of pre-medical studies is usually actuated by any one of a number of reasons which are for the most part of only trifling consequence in proportion to the real motives that should move one. He may be prompted to emulate some physician in his community who enjoys the good-will and esteem of his neighbours; he may be disposed toward the practice of medicine because he would like to partake of the dignity and honour that is associated with the members of the profession; he may feel that the medical field affords a greater opportunity for personal initiative and gain than is to be encountered in the commercial world; or he may enter upon it merely on the urgings of his parents or relatives who believe him qualified for such a position. He will continue, moreover, the course of study prescribed by the college authorities without once seriously advertising to the real reasons that should move a young man to prepare himself for the medical profession.

The medical profession is, in the physical order, akin to the religious profession in the spiritual order, and requires essentially the same qualifications of its practitioners. The foremost of these is the intellectual capacity for the studies, the next in order is the fixed resolve to exert that capacity to its fullest, that is the determination to assimilate as much knowledge as is within its capabilities and is at its disposal and not merely enough to satisfy the scholastic requirements, and finally a moral character that is equal to the responsibilities and obligations of the profession.

Exults His Success

The absence of any of these will not, of course, deter any one from becoming a physician, but they will limit, and definitely, his success as one. Wanting in the first of these a student's likelihood of achieving his purpose is remote, lacking in the other two there is little probability that his actions will ever reflect credit upon himself or his profession, for it is the degree to which a physician possesses these two qualities is the measure of his importance and service to the community. The doctor who fails to keep himself constantly informed upon the numerous advances that are being made in the profession, is obviously remiss in his obligations to his patients, while he who expends his learning in any manner that is incommensurate with the dictates of sound morality is a disgrace to his profession and himself.

Pre-Med Course Important

There is nothing more pitiable or more designed for mishap than the student who embarks upon his pre-medical course with the opinion that it is a kind of unpleasant duress that must be endured with the minimum of inconvenience until he enters medical school. This, despite the obvious fact that the real introduction to a medical career is by necessity centered in the preparatory courses. Here the student forms the fixed habits of study, habits of self reliance and self discipline, and develops his powers of observation and correlation. Hence the justification for assuming that student's accomplishments in his preparatory work is indicative of what may be expected from him in the future. Here is laid the foundation of his course, and unless it is firmly laid, the whole structure will topple before it is half completed.

In this respect it is well to mention a phase of the profession that seems to escape many students, and that is the moral obligation that is assumed by any individual who registers himself as a prospective physician. His obligation to his future patients is such that he is bound to bring to the ministration of their suffering every particle of knowledge that it has been possible for him to secure. For when he is licensed by the state it is expected that his period of experimentation is over and that of application has begun.

Experience Dear Teacher

We recommend that every pre-medical undergraduate give these things his serious attention. They do not come from the faculty, but are the result of almost four years' experience among pre-medical students, with the realization that too few students really appreciate them until too late.

RAYMOND PAIGE, Hollywood maestro, and Hally Sakter, "Hit Parade" batoneer, have a mutual admiration society with two members. Both think the other does a grand job. Haven MacQuarrie, genial presentator of the "Do You Want to Do An Actor" show, won the following compliment from a coast scribe: "He's a good guy because his hat still fits his head even though his job has gotten a lot bigger."

Norbert Ford has taken up the art of crooning which emanates from so many of our more prominent radio vocalists. The "cave man" tactics which he has been using for some time on a fair damsel in Ardmore do not seem to be reacting and thus brought about this sudden shift of attack. He plans to get on the "inside" if this method of approach works out. Another reversal of this kind and Norbert will be losing his grip . . good luck to ya keed!

Francia White, dimunitive soprano with Fred Astaire, doesn't crowd the microphone as do most female singers. The average soprano huddles about the mike and sings her songs—but not Francia. Her voice is so powerful, technicians require her to stand several feet away while singing, so that her voice will register well. Even then, the control room men have to watch the dials closely so that her voice will not appear too loud.

Turn about is fair play. Vincent Lopez has found. To show their appreciation for the maestro's recent song writing contest for college students, several entertainment committees of Eastern universities have voted Lopez their favorite bandleader and have invited him to supply the music for their schools' Spring dances and proms. The "Speed Show" maestro, at this rate, will be able to accept only half of the offers.

One of the most informal programs on the air is that of Horace Heidt, Saturdays at 9 P. M., EST, over the Mutual network. The fact that he is broadcasting from the Hotel Biltmore, one of the swankiest spots in town, doesn't bother Horace, and the patrons seem to love it. He gets the dancers to participate in community singing and then he calls them to the microphone and conducts spontaneous interviews. It is unusual for a dance band to get a full sustaining spot on a network, but Heidt makes the time fly.

Anne Jamison, soprano star of the Friday "Hollywood Hotel" program, is a flower garden enthusiast. She recently discovered an insect killer which she may commercialize. She made it up originally to save her camellias. Johnny Green, the Fred Astaire stickwaver, manages to find time to visit the Hollywood night spots weekly in the company of various glamorous screen ladies. Most frequently seen wearing a green corsage are Wendy Barrie and Simone Simon.

Conrad Thibault is about to realize his fondest dream. The handsome baritone has long nursed a desire to play in Sigmund Romberg or Victor Herbert operettas. Now the word is out that Thibault will play the leading role in "The Desert Song" for Warner's. Jackson Wheeler, announcer on the Joe Penner program, goes over his lines only once before he goes on the air. Wheeler believes too much rehearsing dulls the natural enthusiasm of an announcer.

Charles Butterworth motors to Palm Springs between Fred Astaire broadcasts to play tennis. Kidded about his infatuation for the California resort, Charlie replied: "It's the desert that gets me. It keeps my wits dry."

INITIATION PLANS REACH COMPLETION

P. K. P. Induction and Banquet Set for Tuesday of Next Week

Continuing in its determination to hold the coming initiation and banquet in an exact and scheduled order, Phi Kappa Pi today held its last combined meeting in order to straighten out all conflicts concerning the schedule of events for next Tuesday evening, February 9.

The meeting was addressed by Eugene Barr, fraternity president, who gave final instructions to the various committee heads. In particular, Barr stressed the requisites for membership attendance, that is, every member of the fraternity must be in good standing on the evening of the affair, otherwise, admission rights to the affair are automatically cancelled.

Following Barr's talk, Paul Williams, chairman of the initiation committee, gave in concise form a summary of the plans made for the initiation. Williams explained that he hopes to introduce through the co-operation of his committee some new and unusual forms of entertainment for the evening. The final meeting of the initiation committee will be held on Wednesday, at 1:15 P. M. in order that final and specific instructions may be detailed to the committee members.

The banquet committee which had been very active in its preparations for February 9 up until January 10, was forced into a lull when Edward McHugh, its chairman, was taken ill with appendicitis and confined to the hospital. However, upon appointment of Joseph W. Beittenmiller, a junior chemical engineer, as temporary chairman in Edward McHugh's absence, the committee again functioned smoothly and now, with the date but a week away, preparations are all but complete. Through the untiring efforts of the co-operative committee, several novelties in the way of entertainment have been introduced into the plans. Among the several speakers who will address the gathering is an outstanding personality connected with Villanova College, and whose identity will be kept secret until the appointed time.

The final meeting of the banquet committee is listed for next Saturday at 1:15 o'clock. At this time the members and volunteers will rehearse the duties they will assume in their attempt to make this year's banquet and initiation one that will stand out in the history of Villanova's only engineering fraternity, Phi Kappa Pi.

Mortal sin, the opposition to this aim, was vividly exemplified and its seriousness brought out. Student enthusiasm has arisen to new heights concerning these two debates. All the antagonism and rivalry between these three Philadelphia colleges will be marked at these encounters. Exceptional student attendance at this contest has been predicted by President Differ, "St. Joseph's College have given us such opposition in the past as to be regarded our foremost rivals. All the strength and wit that we can gather will be called upon. It is one debate not to be missed," he commented.

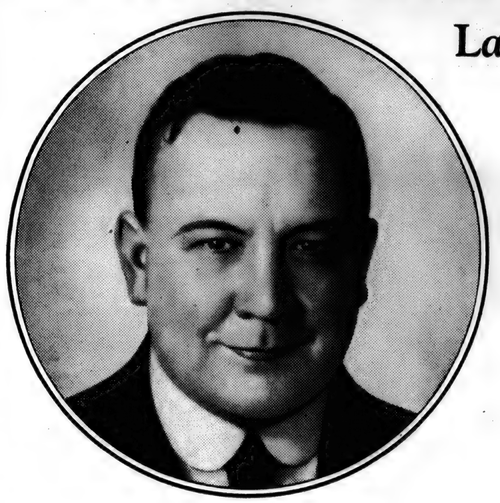
Metropolitan Opera Star chooses light smoke for his throat

Lauritz Melchior says:



"The hardest test I can give a cigarette is to try its effect on my throat after hours of intense rehearsal. I've found that a light smoke meets this test. And so, although I am not a constant smoker, I favor Lucky Strike for the sake of my throat. And, incidentally, so does my wife. When we go back to Europe we never forget to take along a good supply of Luckies."

Lauritz Melchior

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Melchior verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen, and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat!

INTRAMURAL athletics occupy a prominent place among the extra-curricular activities of the Villanova campus. The program is wide and varied and includes all our popular seasonal pastimes. Yet the full scope of intramural activity is even greater than the average student thinks. At a casual glance, the program consists of a basketball league, a large boxing tournament, and several less important leagues and tourneys.

On a closer look one finds that this it not quite the real situation. True, the boxing tournament and the basketball league are the most publicized, but the other events are far from unimportant. A pair of examples will serve to illustrate this point. The softball league, supposedly minor, is the most popular of all sports as far as the "dorm" teams are concerned. The golf tournament is thought by many to be the least important of all the intramural activities. Yet this seemingly insignificant event brings out upwards of 80 golfers, a large field for a one-day tourney.

There is another feature of the work of the Intramural Council that is often overlooked. It is what might be termed "Impromptu Intramurals." These "Impromptu Intramurals" consist essentially of "pick-up" games during spare times. The Dayhops during lunch hour and free periods and the Residents in the evenings and over week-ends play basketball, softball, etc., with equipment furnished by the Intramural Committee. The gym in Alumni Hall is in almost constant use. Softball games during noon hour and at other odd times were increasingly popular last spring. Touch football has attracted a large following, and next fall footballs provided by the Intramural Committee will be available for these "pickup" games.

—o—

The increase in Dayhop interest in the last two years is very encouraging, but there is still plenty of room for improvement in that line. One way for such improvement would be the co-operation of the entire Mendel Dayhop group. Up to this time interest in intramurals has been largely confined to the Engineers. With one or two exceptions, the personnel of the Dayhop basketball team is comprised of Engineers. Likewise in the tournament sports the Slide Rule boys are prominent. Artamen have come out now and then, but there has been very little, if any, co-operation from the Premeds. With an awakening of spirit on their part Dayhop participation in the baseball and softball leagues is feasible.

—o—

There might also be said at this time a word of commendation for the rectors of the various halls engaged in intra-mural activities.

It is an arduous task to direct three leagues and six tournaments and the whole-hearted unselfish interest of those in charge of the dormitories is duly gratifying.

It is spirit of this sort that has boosted intra-murals at Villanova to the spot it now holds.

With the growth of interest in the student body and the co-operation of the coaches intra-mural should gain such favor on the Main Line as to rival the league contests.

—o—

One of the outstanding benefits of intramurals in recent years is the development of the varsity boxing team. The varsity team was formed through the influence of the intramural boxing tournament. Four years ago Villanova had no boxing team. But there was a mural boxing turney, and it attracted much attention then. The result was that in the winter of 1933-34 the Wildcats were represented by a ring squad. Last year Ray Gadsby was appointed coach, and the team showed marked improvement. Which brings us up to the present and this year's group of mittmen, of whom much is expected.

Tornado Blasts Duquesne, John Marshall, Rider College, Bethany and Waynesburg

After trying for several seasons to schedule the Golden Tornado of Geneva College, Villanova has finally succeeded. The game is to take place on Friday night, February 5, at 8:45.

The boys from Beaver Falls, Pa., after a slow start have finally hit their stride, and by the time they check in at our fieldhouse they should be hot. For the Covenanters are classed "on paper" as one of the best teams in the country. They really made that theory an actuality when they swamped the highly touted Duquesne five, 49-30.

Game Proves One-Sided

The game was even more one-sided than the score indicates. The Gold and White clad boys outplayed their Smoky City rivals in every period of their clash. If this contest may be taken as a criterion, the Wildcats will have to have a good night if they want to count this one in their win column.

Besides, the "Dukes," the Genevans have taken the scalps of

EXTRA TIME PERIOD DECIDES FROSH TILT

Lazorchek Mainstay for Losers; Nicol Leads Attack for Owlets

With the Temple jinx still prevailing over the Villanova campus, a stubborn Villanova Freshman team was defeated by a strong and determined Owl quintet in a thrilling extra-period tussle.

Getting away to a fast start, the Frosh jumped to a 9-2 lead. At this point, the Temple Frosh with three successive double - deckers brought the score to a 9-8 count. From then on, the game was nip and tuck with Villanova holding the upper hand until Henderson, Owl center, dropped a basket to tie the score at 15 all.

With about ten seconds remaining of the first half, Gene Ertle, substitute for Ward, dropped a sensational push-shot, which gave the Kittens a two-point advantage at the intermission.

Villanova Leads

After the score had been tied twice at 17-17 and 19-19, the Kittens on four consecutive field goals pulled away to an eight-point lead. When Lazorchek was banished from the game, as a result of committing his fourth personal, the Cherry and White Freshmen became rejuvenated and again began to cut down the Villanova lead.

A field goal by Boyle brought the count to 28-27, and then Paukner dropped in his fifth foul of the evening to give his teammates a two-point advantage with about a minute remaining to play.

Temple then tied up the ball game on two free tosses, one of which was a technical foul, called

Prospective Running Candidates Work Out Daily in Gymnasium With Boxers

By JOHN E. DIMON.

With the coming of Spring the Gym is all agog with the activities of athletes practicing in their respective fields for their oncoming sports encounters.

Of particular interest are the movements of the prospective track team. For the first time in many a moon Villanova will be represented by a fair combine. Coach Jumbo Jim Elliot, former intercollegiate 440-yd. champion, is directing the routines of the candidates in both the Villanova Gym and the Penn Field House.

Workout With Boxers

Ray Gadsby, boxing mentor, is co-operating with Coach Elliot by permitting the trackmen to exercise daily with his fighters. Thrice weekly, before the sun rises, the harriers accompany the pugilists on their five-mile trek through the countryside. Then, late in the afternoon, they all assemble on the stage for calisthenics.

Although the outdoor season is three months off, the boys are not letting any grass grow under their swollen feet by laying off workouts. Elliot has promised the boys that he would consider the indoor meets seriously if the men showed enough interest in practice drills. This means that the boys may get

ARMY BOXERS TRIUMPH OVER C. U. SCRAPPERS

Last Saturday afternoon at West Point the Army boxers gave the Catholic University mittmen a sound trouncing to the tune of seven bouts to one. The superiority and better condition of the Cadets were evident from the start, and the visitors from Washington didn't have a chance.

The West Pointers served notice on the Villanova squad that the Wildcats are in for a rough and tough time when they journey up to the Point this Saturday. Coach Gadsby will have to have his boys in tip-top shape if they are to give a creditable account of themselves.

NEW ENGLAND TRIP FEATURE OF TOUGH BASEBALL SCHEDULE

Villanova Team Aims to Avenge Last Year's Three Defeats

MEET CORNELL IN OPENER

Refusing to sign contracts is the usual thing about this time of the year among professional baseball leagues. Yes, and if Villanova's diamond stars were under contract, they, too, would hold out for greater compensation when they get an eyeful of the new schedule prepared for them. Games have been booked with teams that make any schedule look tough, including Temple, Cornell, Princeton, Penn, Holy Cross, Fordham and Colgate.

Jacobs Has Good Record

Regardless of the fact that the 'Cats are no slouches on the diamond with "Doc" Jacobs at the helm, a schedule of this type cannot be considered easy going. Coach Jacobs, who has achieved an enviable record as a baseball tutor in intercollegiate circles, has been responsible for such stars as Ben Geraghty, Art Mahan, both members of former seasons' crack-erjack teams, Frankie Skaff and "Link" Lenzi.

Last year's nine dropped only three games, one each to Colgate, Providence and Fordham. These schools have been re-engaged, thus providing an opportunity for the Wildcats to avenge those defeats.

The opening game will be played with the big Red team of Cornell

SPRING PRACTICE FOR 150-LB. SQUAD

Fundamentals of Tackling and Blocking to Be Stressed in Training Sessions

Villanova's 150-pound team will again have the opportunity to redeem itself on the gridiron this coming fall. Although its efforts brought little fruit in the previous years ,with a majority of last year's team returning, the outlook for this year should be much better than it has been in the past.

The inauguration of spring practice for the Lightweights should be of much advantage in getting them to learn the fundamentals of blocking and tackling, in which they were rather hazy last season.

With a team better drilled in the rudiments of football and a wiser all-around team, the one-fifties will try to give opponents stiffer competition in contests this coming fall.

Lafayette will be the initial foe and this game will take place at Easton on October 16. A week later the Lightweights will travel to New Brunswick to tackle last year's league champions, Rutgers. On October 29 the one-fifties will take their last trip and play Princeton.

Villanova will complete her season at home, meeting Yale on the 6th of November and Penn's one-fifties on November 19.

BOXERS FACE ARMY IN SEASON OPENER FOR LOCAL SQUAD

LUPER BIG CADET THREAT IN LIGHTHEAVY DIVISION

Jarosik, Shugrue, Tanzola, Veteran Mittmen Competing for Villanova

Villanova's boxing team is rounding off the rough edges in preparation for its opening meet with West Point this Saturday afternoon. The bouts will be held at the Point and will start at 3:45. The team will leave Friday morning in order to get a light workout in the afternoon. This is the first year the Wildcats have met the Cadets in the squared circle.

Sala Meets Luper

Captain Tony Sala will have one of his toughest matches of the season when he meets Luper of Army in the light-heavyweight class. Luper fought in the 165 pound class last year and was runner-up to Jeffries of Syracuse in the Intercollegiates. He is a clever boxer and this bout should prove the best of the afternoon.

Vince Shugrue will probably box for Villanova in the 115 pound division. He has been doing very well lately, and Coach Gadsby expects a lot of him this season.

Joe Tanzola, senior, pre-med, will probably be the choice for the 125 pound class, while Eddie Kirk will make his bow for Villanova at 135 pounds. Eddie is a new man to the squad this year. The former Germantown High School boy is about the best boxer in his weight that Villanova has seen.

Duffy Looks Good

Bill Duffy, the sensational 145 pounder from Hartford, Conn., will represent the Wildcats in that division. Bill has had much experience in amateur bouts and Coach Gadsby has the makings of an intercollegiate champion in Duffy.

There is still a question about the 155 pound class. Jack Jarosik, veteran 165 pounder, has been a bit slow whipping into shape. He has been held back by sickness and is not showing the smooth form which carried him to a successful season last year.

Mike Rutecky, who will fight for the Blue and White in the heavyweight class, will meet Isbelle, former football player and captain of the Army boxing team. Rutecky will be at a disadvantage because of Isbelle's experience, but Mike's power and ruggedness should make it a close match.

Coach Ray Gadsby has several replacements which he might substitute on the last minute in the starting lineup. He is expecting a very successful season, and should the 'Cats start off with a victory over the Cadets, they will be ranked up with the foremost teams of the country. The week following, Gadsby's boys will meet their traditional rival, Temple, in the latter's ring on February 13.

SMITH GUEST OF LAWRENCE ALUMNI

Speaks of Grid Experiences Before Massachusetts Group

Lawrence, Massachusetts, in the form of the Villanova College Alumni Association, played host to "Clipper" Smith, About 500 alumni and friends were present to hear the Wildcat mentor expound his theories from the speaker's table.

The guest of honor told of his many experiences both as a player under Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, and as a coach at Gonzaga, Santa Clara, and last year at the Main Line. He had words of praise for two Lawrence representatives on the Feline grid squad, namely Bill Christopher, stellar quarterback, and Johnny McKenna, center, both of whom played scintillating football during the initial year of the "Clipper" at the Pennsylvania institution.

Among other speakers of the evening was Arthur Mahan, first baseman and captain of last year's highly successful baseball squad. He is to go South with the Boston Red Sox in the Spring.

During his talk, Smith discussed the schedule of the 1937 grid aggregation. He mentioned in passing that he enjoyed the rivalry with Temple and Bucknell, but as to to the rest of the schedule, he had more ambitious plans. His desire is to bring to Villanova such games as will appeal to its students and alumni, as well as the general public.

Tracksters Drill Under Jim Elliot

a crack at the Millrose, K. of C., and the Wanamaker meets held in New York during February and March.

Cook, Higgins Look Good

Two likely candidates for the games are Tom Cook, sensational all-around man, and Charlie Higgins, up and coming Sophomore. These two men are a track team by themselves. Both can run, jump and hurdle with the greatest of ease. Higgins particularly is a hurdle specialist. Using an unorthodox style he resembles the great Forrest Towns as he glides over the cross-bars. Besides the hurdles he does a good job in the 100, 220, and the broadjump.

Cook was the recipient of a beautiful cup as a token of esteem for his fine track and field work in Philadelphia last Summer. In many of the meets last year it was no oddity to see Tom run off with two or three first place.

Natator Turns Runner

"Bookie" Carbine is the most improved member of the distance squad. Tom was a better than fair swimmer before old man gout disqualified him early last Fall. Unable to compete in the tank he decided to switch his efforts to track. Consistent practice has put him in tip-top condition, and much is expected from him in the forthcoming season.

Ben Maloney and Tom Delate are also on hand daily for the drills. The VILLANOVAN boss should go places this year after being handicapped by a severe leg injury the past two years. His wind is considerably better and his pace is much faster. Bill Duffy, Frosh mauler, is another middle distance runner who should go places. In his prep school days, Bill was one-mile champion of the State of Connecticut.

Fritz Monahan, local speed king, will again be listed in 100 and 220. Pop Shealey will undoubtedly be a 440 representative. The one-half mile event will be taken care of by the versatile Jim Lyons and Maloney. Turning to the field events, Franny Nye is readying himself for the weights by doing some heavy shoveling in Fedigan Hall.

Joe Soviero, Austin flash, will compete in the pole vault and the broad jump in company with Joe Horn. Despite his smallness in stature Joe can get further than some of the bigger boys. Although he only stands out 5:6 in stocking feet, he can easily high jump over that.

All in all, Coach Jumbo Jim should turn out one of finest teams ever to represent Villanova. In his first year last season, the squad finished poorly in every meet; however, the outlook will be brighter this year because of the many Sophomore candidates who are eligible for competition not only for the regular meets, but also for the Penn Relays and the other invitation games.

In the Limelight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

ONCE AGAIN the limelight is occupied by a Donovan. This time the interest is centered on Edward James Donovan, known to the campus-at-large as "Moose."

One needs but to talk to "Moose" for a few minutes to find out that he hails from up Boston way. The hero of this tintype was born on October 4, 1913, in the town of Cambridge, Mass., in the very shadow of old John Harvard. In fact, among his many other accomplishments Ed lists the fact that he is a Harvardman. The basis for this claim will be disclosed during the story of his life.

Mrs. Donovan's little boy is a man of many schools, having attended five before enrolling at Villanova. He started his quest for education at St. Mary's Parochial School in his native town. For the next eight years he devoted all his time and energies to pleasing the faculty of St. Mary's.

Off to High School

After this stretch of eight years, "Moose" decided to go to high school. That Fall, 1928, he entered Boston College High, but he found that this institution was not quite suited to his tastes. The following school year saw Ed shifting his allegiance to the Cambridge Latin School. Still his educational likings were unsatisfied, and his stay at the Latin School was also for one year.

In September of 1930 "Moose" entered Rindge Technical School, also in Cambridge. At last he found a school that interested him. Indeed, he liked it so much that in his senior year they had to burn the school down to get him out.

It was the burning down of the school building that led to Ed's becoming a Harvard man. While the Tech School structure was down, classes were held at Harvard. This is the fact on which the "Moose" bases his claim of being a Harvard man.

Takes Post-Grad Course

In the course of time Ed graduated from Tech and took up a postgraduate course at St. John's Academy in Danvers, Mass. It was while attending St. John's that Moose got the idea of coming to Villanova. Brother Ambrose, the headmaster of that school, recommended Villanova to him with very good results. The good results consisting in the enrollment of Edward James Donovan at Villanova in the Autumn of 1933. Since that time Brother Ambrose has been awarded an honorary degree by Villanova College. We don't like to say anything, but the inference is rather obvious. Men of the caliber of Ed Donovan aren't found every year.

During the first semester he spent at Villanova, "Moose" went out for the position of stadium manager. However, the next year he switched to football managing. His efforts were immediately rewarded, and he was given the post of headmanager of the 150 lb. football team. This was the club coached by Lincoln "Red" Lenzi. This coach-manager combination worked out well as is shown by the record of the team. That team was the last Villanova 150 lb. football team to win a game. The Donovan-managed club took Manhattan by 13-0.

Last year "Moose" dropped his job with the lightweights to become assistant manager of the varsity eleven. He has held this position for the past two years.

Austin's Beau Brummel

Managing sports teams is not the only activity that attracts Ed. He is quite the social lion, having been a member of both the Sophomore Cotillion and Junior Prom Committees. His two outstanding hobbies are the cause of his other activities. An ardent amateur photographer, he occupies a place on the Photography Staff of the Belle Air.

It is in his capacity of Greyhound bus agent that Ed has brought himself into greater prominence on the campus. He is ever ready to supply tickets to all parts of the country. Business, according to Moose, is good, and he has nothing to complain about. ("Moose" was interviewed while he was in a very optimistic frame of mind, that frame of mind being the result of the sale of a $10.00 ticket.) Lest we forget, "Moose" is also the President of the newly formed Massachusetts Club.

He has seen four Villanova football teams and has seen plenty of great games, but, he says, "I think I missed the best game, the Temple game of my Junior year. At that time I was in the hospital as a result of an automobile accident. The biggest thrill for me in a football game was Toby Cavanaugh's 45 yard field goal in the Temple game of 1933.

"Another big thrill was hearing the Cubans cheer for Villanova during the recent Villanova-Auburn game."

Promising Geneva Quintet Next Foe

John Marshall, Rider College, Bethany, and Waynesburg twice. They have dropped close decisions to Michigan State and St. Thomas. They still have to face some of the strongest teams in the country.

Aggregations of such calibre as Long Island U., Westminster, Catholic U., Geo. Washington, and Carnegie Tech. will be encountered by the Covies. This should convince the most skeptical why Villanova has striven for several seasons to stop the Golden Tornado. During the past six seasons they have hung up a very enviable record never once falling below a .500 percent average.

Have Veteran Team

This year's team, coached by Don M. Wolfe, who divides his time between teaching the rudiments of English and finer points of the court game, is a veteran combination. Four of the starting five have been seasoned under fire for three years. The other member of the starting line-up participated in collegiate competition for the past two seasons. Besides these veterans, Coach Wolfe has a wealth of seasoned reserves to call upon.

The ace of the scoring department of the Genevans is George Pennebaker. The slim forward who hails from East Liverpool, Ohio, is the captain of the Gold and White. He is very fast, a tricky passer, and possesses a keen eye. He should give the Wildcats' guards a lively evening.

Tom Hurley, a senior, who is a native son of New Brighton, is the best all-around man on the squad. He is heralded as one of the best basketball players ever to perform for the Covenanters. Not only is he an excellent guard, but he is the best floor man on the team. He does not stop at being a guard, but he is also a high scorer, being second only to Pennebaker. He is one of those players who seem to be always on the ball.

Hamer Is Scrapper

The hardest fighter on the team is Don Hamer who is turning in a fine job at forward. Don, who is a home-town boy from Beaver Falls, is an artist in the interchange system used by Geneva. He is fast and handles himself well, in spite of his one-hundred and ninety-eight pounds. He has consistently out-jumped his taller opponents all season because he possesses a powerful pair of legs. Fred Milanovitch, the other regular guard, is a senior from Aliquippe, Pa. He has an eagle eye and large hands which serve him well in his ability to retrieve the ball off the opponents back-board.

Mike Stasko, although he is classed as a reserve, sees much action as a regular, because he is a marksmen when it comes to putting the ball through the nets. General utility man, Bud Carson, comes from the same town as Hurley; he is a sophomore and can do a good job filling in at any position on the team.

Coach Severance, knowing of the potentialities of the Genevans, has been pointing the Wildcats towards their coming conflict. A decisive victory over Geneva would boost Villanova's stocks considerably.

Comments On The Recent Providence Game

Needless to say, I was very well pleased with the showing that we made against Providence last Friday night, and although at times the game gave promise of developing into a football contest, we did show that we have a scoring punch and are about ripe to go on from here and win some ball games.

The outstanding man for us Friday night, in my estimation, was our veteran guard Harry McNally. Harry has been displaying all season a smartness, aggressiveness, general basketball intuition, and an ability to change his style of play quickly enough to cope with the situations that are ever arising on the floor. That is an incentive to the team, and it has contributed much towards the seven victories we have thus far scored this season. His willingness and cooperation have been beyond reproach. Here I might state that his one drawback has been that he does not take enough shots when he is in a position to score—but his reason is a healthy one. McNally is not a ballhog, consequently instead of taking the shots himself, he looks to see if one of his teammates is in a position to score before attempting to convert one in his favor. As an indication of his ability to diagnose the setup of his opponents and formulate a remedy for their style of play, consider the Duquesne and Dickinson games. In these games our victories can mainly be attributed to his hustle and his feeding of the ball to his fellow players.

Tonight we are meeting the Ursinus Bears on our home court, and although they are coming over here without the imposing reputation of some of our former opponents, I am by no means confident in respect to a victory, because too many times they have come over here as the under-dog and upset our apple cart, much to our subsequent dismay. We have power enough in our line-up to beat them down. The question is, will we do it?

The Ursinus freshmen are also coming over with their varsity to oppose our yearling quintet, and after the display that our boys made against the Temple squad, I would say that this is one game that will test the ability of the Kittens to keep up the pace when the going gets tough. So far the Frosh have dropped two hard ones. The Bear Cub five is no small time outfit, and with Duzminski and Lazarchek out of the fray, the task of getting Bear meat looms overwhelmingly before the young wildcats. The yearling squad will have an ample test of its ability to keep up under adverse conditions.

Extra Time Period Decides Frosh Tilt

on "Duke" Duzminski. Just as the whistle brew for the end of the game, "Tiny" Largenberg was fouled.

The stage was all set for "Tiny" to pull the game out of the fire and the frenzied crowd watched anxiously as he prepared himself to throw in the deciding point. However, it wasn't in the books for Villanova to win, and the ball bounded off the rim, sending both teams into an extra period.

Minus the services of "Milkey" Laorchek and "Duke" Duzminski, both of whom were banished from the game on personals, the Kittens fought gamely in the extra session, but were unable to stop the Owlets who now were almost certain of victory.

Holding their opponents to two points and in the interim scoring seven themselves, the Owlets walked off with a ball game, which they never expected to win, by the score of 36-31.

Lazorchek Stars

Outstanding in defeat was little "Milkey" Lazorchek, who proved to be the spearhead of Villanova's offense and defense. His presence in the game had the Owlets guessing, and at the same time he supplied the necessary impetus to keep his teammates working as a unit and ahead of their opponents.

Playing a fine floor game and having an almost perfect night at the charity line, Paulkner shared honors with Villanova's brilliant forward, Scoring honors for the visitors went to Boyle, Nicol and Friedberg; these men proved to be the mainstays of the Cherry and White aggregation and were responsible for all but seven points of their entire team's scoring.

Haverford Team Downed

A week ago, last Friday, the Villanova Frosh rolled up their greatest number of markers in a single contest, by trouncing the Haverford Aces by the lop-sided score of 47-16.

NO FEUD

"Clipper" Smith got a great kick out of the newspaper boys, when they asked him about the "feud" between himself and "Pat" Hanley, Boston University mentor. He denied the existence of any such state of affairs between the two of them.

New England Trip Feature of Season

on April 2 at Villanova's home field. The following day the team journeys to Princeton to do battle with the powerful Tiger aggregation. The annual Penn fray again will be played at Franklin Field on the 14th. This is one to look forward to, fellows.

New York Trip in April

A road trip to New York State winds up the first month's competition, at which time Colgate and a return engagement with Cornell are matched. On the way home, the visitors stop off at State College to invade the Nittany Lion's lair as the first encounter of May.

Engage Fordhamites

This brings us to the home stretch. The 'Cats will go on the hunt after the Fordham Ram with the task of avenging the heartbreaking 4 to 3 defeat (handed them by the New York institution last season) on their hands on May 8th. A New England trip follows with the boys appearing at Providence, Holy Cross and Springfield in three successive days. Incidentally, the Friars will be gunning for them as a result of the recent appearance of the Wildcat basketeers at the Rhode Island Metropolis, and both teams will be geared to a high pitch. The climax of the season comes with Villanova at Temple Stadium to bring home the bacon left there in November, and a final home stand with Ursinus on the twenty-first.

It will also be noticed that four home and home series are featured. They are with Cornell, Providence, Temple and Ursinus.

regularity, and aided by clever Jim Montgomery, Villanova marked up 13 and 10 points respectively through this pair. Pacing the counter attack of the visitors, Gus Hagstrom scored 8 points followed by his teammate Carew, who tallied one less.

Close guarding marked the first five minutes of play, as the crowd settled back in their seats, only to be aroused as Leo Davin, towering visitor guard, dropped in a long shot from mid-floor to start a rally which sent Providence ahead 8-3.

As the speed of the game heightened, Coach "Gen" McLellan pulled four men out of the game—Palaski, Hagstrom, Sinnler and Angelica to give them a rest. Villanova, with the ever vigilant Brennan grabbing rebounds from the back-board, gained possession of the ball and with Jim Montgomery and Harry McNally dropping in field goals built up their 18-10 half time lead.

Villanova Too Strong

Starting the second half with their initial line-up, it became evident that the smooth-working, fast-breaking Wildcats were too much for the closely guarded Friars. Driving hard after the ball at every point, Johnny Krutulis, Art Vigilante and Lou Dubino proved of invaluable aid in this great exhibition of team-work.

Close guarding by Jim Montgomery and Johnny Krutulis caused cessation of the home team rally, as they were banished on personal fouls. Providence players, trailing 28-14 at this point, seemed to be fighting for a lost cause, but the crowd was quickly aroused as the visitors put on a furious counter-attack led by Gus Hagstrom and the final score found Villanova's lead cut to 6 points.

All through the riotous struggle the spectators were interested in seeing the white and black-shirted referees take almost as many tumbles as the players. But in spite of erratic spots Villanova showed it possesses talent to become a great team.

Main Liners Lose

Falling before a flury of field goals propelled by the able hands of George Washington University's basketeers, Villanova became the eighth straight victim of the clever Colonials on the Wildcats' home floor on Friday, January 22. Matching goal for goal in the first half, the home team held their powerful foes to a 12-10 score, but a deluge of field goals after the rest period, gave the visitors a commanding lead, making the final count read 33-23.

Led by Ben Goldfaden, who scored 8 points, Washington took advantage of a lull in the Wildcats play early in the second period, running the count to 18-12, as the fighting, foul-missing home team tried in vain to cut this lead.

"Ball - hawk" Krutulis helped himself to 9 points, and together with Don Brennan sparked the Wildcats' losing battle.

Tight defensive play all through the game aided by clever team work, overcame the Wildcats in spite of Harry McNally's dependable, and Jim Montgomery's spirited play, which if kept up throughout the game might have turned the tide.

Credit must go to the Washingtonians for producing the outstanding star of the game in the person of Schoffield, "mighty mite" guard, who thrilled the crowd by his lightning speed and remarkable team play, as Villanova men tried in vain to stick with them.

Here and There

By WILLIAM BOWKER

BY this time one more person knows what it is to dash off a column, also another knows of the trials of an editor. However, it's a great life.

It is rumored about that Bill Christopher and Johnny Burke, famed Austinites, are keeping in the pink, running from one drug store to another in an attempt to procure a sure-fire cure for falling hair. The lads fear a shiny pate and, no doubt, will welcome any worthwhile suggestions.

Bill Connelly, known as "Villanova's Rooter Numbers One to Ten," has been heard to say that reliable sources brought him the confidential news that the junior class is going to feature Benny Goodman and his lads at the Prom. Scoop Keating, former VILLANOVAN sports scribe, and Ed Reilly, editor in his Senior year, have also heard the same news. Let's hope it's true.

Now that retreat is over, intramural play will again begin, with basketball taking the center of attraction until such time as the weather permits the ball players and tennis enthusiasts to limber up their muscles and dust off the equipment. If winter doesn't come pretty soon, it won't be long until their dreams will be realized.

Tony, until recently major domo of the supply room down at the gym, is now working in Wayne. Last week Harry Guckenberger was down assisting Tony's successor in the gentle art of shining football shoes, at which "Guckie" is very adept.

On the library overdue book list, put up on the bulletin boards recently, was the volume, "The Great Gadsby,' and the offender was none other than the genial boxing coach.

Showing that winter is practically gone from the scene, John "Forest" Donohue one of Fedigan's mainstays in the intramural tennis tourney, is getting in shape by staying up all night and sleeping during the day. He finds that there is not so much noise around during the lighter portion of the day's 24 hours, and so he takes advantage of this fact to fortify himself with some of that which knits the raveled sleeve of care.

So far the Sophomores in Fedigan Hall seem to have benefited by the retreat, as they have not been up to their accustomed rioting and children's games. Autins fire hoses are stretched out to dry just as much as ever, or so they say.

Those of you who are interested in the flatic game will like to know that the Wildcat boxers have some new togs to sport during the coming campaign. They are the traditional Blue and White, the lettering being white, and the trunks having a vertical stripe on the sides. If clothes make the boxer, the Wildcats resin sniffers should emerge victorious in all meets. While we're on the subject of boxing, it might not be amiss to mention the fact that Tony Sala and the Villanova flaticuffers were included in an article on collegiate ring activities in Collier's, the National Weekly. The article quoted Harry Stuhldreher as stating that there were 1700 or so at one of the first meets held at Villanova.

Louie has installed a cigarette vending machine in the pie shop. This makes another thing for the lads to push their father's hard earned money into. What with the record player, the skee-ball game, and the pin-ball machines, the coin-in-the-slot putter is in paradise. What gets us is the complicated pin-ball games. That one called "Rapid Transit' took the cake. Tracks all over the thing. One has to be a college student of no mean ability to add the scores on the gadget.

Then there is the tale of the Villanova Junior, who was the first to her parlor. (Three were invited, none knowing of the others' invitations) and had an unseen but very appreciative audience to his most excellent acting. The strong arm stuff was great to watch, Norby!

By the way, why has the above mentioned Donohue stopped wearing his derby?

BOXERS FACE ARMY IN SEASON OPENER FOR LOCAL SQUAD

Captain Sala Leads Up and Coming Ring Team Into Action

LUPER BIG CADET THREAT IN LIGHTHEAVY DIVISION

Jarosik, Shugrue, Tanzola, Veteran Mittmen Competing for Villanova

Villanova's boxing team is rounding off the rough edges in preparation for its opening meet with West Point this Saturday afternoon. The bouts will be held at the Point and will start at 3:15. The team will leave Friday morning in order to get a light workout in the afternoon. This is the first year the Wildcats have met the Cadets in the squared circle.

Sala Meets Luper

Captain Tony Sala will have one of his toughest matches of the season when he meets Luper of Army. In the light-heavyweight class, Luper fought in the 165 pound class last year and was runner-up to Jeffries of Syracuse in the Intercollegiates. He is a clever boxer and this bout should prove the best of the afternoon.

Vince Shugrue will probably box for Villanova in the 115 pound division. He has been doing very well lately, and Coach Gadsby expects a lot of him this season.

Joe Tanzola, senior, pre-med, will probably be the choice for the 125 pound class, while Eddie Kirk will make his bow for Villanova at 135 pounds. Eddie is a new man to the squad this year. The former German-town High School boy is about the best boxer in his weight that Villanova has seen.

Duffy Looks Good

Bill Duffy, the sensational 145 pounder from Hartford, Conn., will represent the Wildcats in that division. Bill has had much experience in amateur bouts and Coach Gadsby has the makings of an intercollegiate champion in Duffy.

There is still a question about the 155 pound class. Jack Jarosik, veteran 165 pounder, has been a bit slow whipping into shape. He has been held back by sickness and is not showing the smooth form which carried him to a successful season last year.

Mike Rutecky, who will fight for the Blue and White in the heavyweight class, will meet Isbelle, former football player and captain of the Army boxing team. Rutecky will be at a disadvantage because of Isbelle's experience, but Mike's power and ruggedness should make it a close match.

Coach Ray Gadsby has several replacements which he might substitute on the last minute in the starting lineup. He is expecting a very successful season, and should the 'Cats start off with a victory over the Cadets, they will be ranked up with the foremost teams of the country. The week following, Gadsby's boys will meet their traditional rival, Temple, in the latter's ring on February 13.

Coach Maurice "Clipper" Smith (left), receiving the greetings of Lawrence, Mass., from Mayor Walter A. Griffin. The occasion was the "Clipper's" recent trip to the Massachusetts city to address the Villanova alumni there.

SMITH GUEST OF LAWRENCE ALUMNI

Speaks of Grid Experiences Before Massachusetts Group

Lawrence, Massachusetts. In the form of the Villanova College Alumni Association, played host to "Clipper" Smith, About 500 alumni and friends were present to hear the Wildcat mentor expound his theories from the speaker's table.

The guest of honor told of his many experiences both as a player under Knute Rockne at Notre Dame, and as a coach at Gonzaga, Santa Clara, and last year at the Main Line. He had words of praise for two Lawrence representatives on the Feline grid squad, namely Bill Christopher, stellar quarterback, and Johnny McKenna, center, both of whom played scintillating football during the initial year of the "Clipper" at the Pennsylvania institution.

Among other speakers of the evening was Arthur Mahan, first baseman and captain of last year's highly successful baseball squad. He is to go South with the Boston Red Sox in the Spring.

During his talk, Smith discussed the schedule of the 1937 grid aggregation. He mentioned in passing that he enjoyed the rivalry with Temple and Bucknell, but as to to the rest of the schedule, he had more ambitious plans. His desire is to bring to Villanova such games as will appeal to its students and alumni, as well as the general public.

s crack at the Millrose, K. of C., and the Wanamaker meets held in New York during February and March.

Cook, Higgins Look Good

Two likely candidates for the games are Tom Cook, sensational all-around man, and Charlie Higgins, up and coming Sophomore. These two men are a track team by themselves. Both can run, jump and hurdle with the greatest of ease. Higgins particularly is a hurdle specialist. Using an unorthodox style he resembles the great Forrest Towns as he glides over the cross-bars. Besides the hurdles he does a good job in the 100, 220, and the broadjump.

Cook was the recipient of a beautiful cup as a token of esteem for his fine track and field work in Philadelphia last Summer. In many of the meets last year it was no oddity to see Tom run off with two or three first place.

Natator Turns Runner

"Bookie" Carbine is the most improved member of the distance squad. Tom was a better than fair swimmer before old man sinus disqualified him early last Fall. Unable to compete in the tank he decided to switch his efforts to track. Consistent practice has put him in tip-top condition, and much is expected from him in the forthcoming season.

Ben Maloney and Tom Delate are also on hand daily for the drills. The VILLANOVAN boss should go places this year after being handicapped by a severe leg injury the past two years. His wind is considerably better and his pace is much faster. Bill Duffy, Frosh mauler, is another middle distance runner who should go places. In his prep school days, Bill was one-mile champion of the State of Connecticut.

Fritz Monahan, local speed king, will again be listed in 100 and 220. Pop Sheesley will undoubtedly be a 440 representative. The half-mile event will be taken care of by the versatile Jim Lyons and Maloney. Turning to the field events, Franny Nye is readying himself for the weights by doing some heavy shoveling in Fedigan Hall.

Joe Soviero, Austin flash, will compete in the pole vault and the broad jump in conjunction with Joe Horn. Despite his smallness in stature Joe can get further than some of the bigger boys. Although he only stands out 5-6 in stocking feet, he can easily high jump over that.

All in all, Coach Jumbo Jim should turn out one of finest teams ever to represent Villanova. In his first year last season, the squad finished poorly in every meet; however, the outlook will be brighter this year because of the many Sophomore candidates who are eligible for competition not only for the regular meets, but also for the Penn Relays and the other invitation games.

In the Limelight

By JOHN L. SIMONS

ONCE AGAIN the limelight is occupied by a Donovan. This time the interest is centered on Edward James Donovan, known to the campus-at-large as "Moose." One needs but to talk to "Moose" for a few minutes to find out that he hails from up Boston way. The hero of this tintype was born on October 4, 1913, in the town of Cambridge, Mass., in the very shadow of old John Harvard. In fact, among his many other accomplishments Ed lists the fact that he is a Harvardman. The basis for this claim will be disclosed during the story o his life.

Mrs. Donovan's little boy is a man of many schools, having attended five before enrolling at Villanova. He started his quest for education at St. Mary's Parochial School in his native town. For the next eight years he devoted all his time and energies to pleasing the faculty of St. Mary's.

Off to High School

After this stretch of eight years, "Moose" decided to go to high school. That Fall, 1925, he entered Boston College High, but he found that this institution was not quite suited to his tastes. The following school year saw Ed shifting his allegiance to the Cambridge Latin School. Still his educational likings were unsatisfied, and his stay at the Latin School was also for one year.

In September of 1930 "Moose" entered Rindge Technical School, also in Cambridge. At last he found a school that interested him. Indeed, he liked it so much that in his senior year they had to burn the school down to get him out.

It was the burning down of the school building that led to Ed's becoming a Harvard man. While the Tech School structure was down, classes were held at Harvard. This is the fact on which the "Moose" bases his claim of being a Harvard man.

Takes Post-Grad Course

In the course of time Ed graduated from Tech and took up a post-graduate course at St. John's Academy in Danvers, Mass. It was while attending St. John's that Moose got the idea of coming to Villanova. Brother Ambrose, the headmaster of that school, recommended Villanova to him with very good results. The good results consisting in the enrollment of Edward James Donovan at Villanova in the Autumn of 1933. Since that time Brother Ambrose has been awarded an honorary degree by Villanova College. We don't like to say anything, but the inference is r ther obvious. Men of the caliber of Ed Donovan aren't found every year.

During the first semester he spent at Villanova, "Moose" went out for the position of stadium manager. However, the next year he switched to football managing. His efforts were immediately rewarded, and he was given the post of headmanager of the 150 lb. football team. This was the club coached by Lincoln "Red" Lenzi. This coach-manager combination worked out well as is shown by the record of the team. That team was the last Villanova 150 lb. football team to win a game. The Donovan-managed club took Manhattan by 13-0.

Last year "Moose" dropped his job with the lightweights to become assistant manager of the varsity eleven. He has held this position for the past two years.

Austin's Beau Brummel

Managing sports teams is not the only activity that attracts Ed. He is quite the social lion, having been a member of both the Sophomore Cotillion and Junior Prom Committees. His two outstanding hobbies are the cause of his other activities. An ardent amateur photographer, he occupies a place on the Photography Staff of the Belle Air.

It is in his capacity of Greyhound bus agent that Ed has brought himself into greater prominence on the campus. He is ever ready to supply tickets to all parts of the country. Business, according to Moose, is good, and he has nothing to complain about. ("Moose" was interviewed while he was in a very op imistic frame of mind, that frame of mind being the result of the sale of a $10.00 ticket.) Let we forget, "Moose" is also the President of the newly formed Massachusetts Club.

He has seen four Villanova football teams and has seen plenty of great players, he says, "I think I missed the best game, the Temple game of my Junior year. At that time I was in the hospital as a result of an automobile accident. The biggest thrill for me in a football game was Toby Cavanaugh's 70-yard field goal in the Temple game of 1933.

"Another big thrill was hearing the Cubans cheer for Villanova during the recent Villanova-Auburn game."

John Marshall, Rider College, Bethany, and Waynesburg twice. They have dropped close decisions to Michigan State and St. Thomas. They still have to face some of the strongest teams in the country.

Aggregations of such calibre as Long Island U., Westminster, Catholic U., Geo. Washington, and Carnegie Tech, will be encountered by the Covies. This should convince the most skeptical why Villanova has striven for several seasons to stop the Golden Tornado. During the past six seasons they have hung up a very enviable record never once falling below a .500 percent average.

Have Veteran Team

This year's team, coached by Don M. Wolfe, who divides his time between teaching the rudiments of English and finer points of the court game, is a veteran combination. Four of the starting five have been seasoned under fire for three years. The other member of the starting line-up participated in collegiate competition for the past two seasons. Besides these veterans, Coach Wolfe has a wealth of seasoned reserves to call upon.

The ace of the scoring department of the Genevans is George Pennebaker. The slim forward who hails from East Liverpool, Ohio, is the captain of the Gold and White. He is very fast, a tricky passer, and possesses a keen eye. He should give the Wildcats' guards a lively evening.

Tom Hurley, a senior, who is a native son of New Brighton, is the best all-around man on the squad. He is heralded as one of the best basketball players ever to perform for the Covenanters. Not only is he an excellent guard, but he is the best floor man on the team. He does not stop at being a guard, but he is also a high scorer, being second only to Pennebaker. He is one of those players who seem to be always on the ball.

Hamer Is Scrapper

The hardest fighter on the team is Don Hamer who is turning in a fine job at forward. Don, who is a home-town boy from Beaver Falls, is an artist in the interchange system used by Geneva. He is fast and handles himself well, in spite of his one-hundred and ninety-eight pounds. He has consistenty out-jumped his taller opponents all season because he possesses a powerful pair of legs. Fred Milanovitch, the other regular guard, is a senior from Aliquippe, Pa. He has an eagle eye and large hands which serve him well in his ability to retrieve the ball off the opponents back-board.

Mike Stasko, although he is classed as a reserve, sees much action as a regular, because he is a marksmen when it comes to putting the ball through the nets. General utility man, Bud Carson, comes from the same town as Hurley; he is a sophomore and can do a good job filling in at any position on the team.

Coach Severance, knowing of the potentialities of the Genevans, has been pointing the Wildcats toward their coming conflict. A decisive victory over Geneva would boost Villanova's stocks considerably.

Comments On The Recent Providence Game

Needless to say, I was very well pleased with the showing that we made against Providence last Friday night, and although at times the game gave promise of developing into a football contest, we did show that we have a scoring punch and are about ripe to go on from here and win some ball games.

The outstanding man for us Friday night, in my estimation, was our veteran guard Harry McNally. Harry has been displaying all season a smartness, aggressiveness, general basketball intuition, and an ability to change his style of play quickly enough to cope with the situations that are ever arising on the floor. That is an incentive to the team, and it has contributed much towards the seven victories we have thus far scored this season. His willingness and cooperation have been beyond reproach. Here I might state that his one drawback has been that he does not take enough shots when he is in a position to score—but his reason is a healthy one. McNally is not a ballhog, consequently instead of taking the shots himself, he looks to see if one of his teammates is in a position to score before attempting to convert one in his favor. As an indication of his ability to diagnose the setup of his opponents and formulate a remedy for their style of play, consider the Duquesne and Dickinson games. In these games our victories can mainly be attributed to his hustle and his feeding of the ball to his fellow players.

Tonight we are meeting the Ursinus Bears on our home court, and although they are coming over here without the imposing reputation of some of our former opponents, I am by no means confident in respect to a victory, because too many times they have come over here as the under-dog and upset our apple cart, much to our subsequent dismay. We have power enough in our line-up to beat them down. The question is, will we do it?

The Ursinus freshmen are also coming over with their varsity to oppose our yearling quintet, and after the display that our boys made against the Temple squad, I would say that this is one game that will test the ability of the Kittens to keep up the pace when the going gets tough. So far the Frosh have dropped two hard ones, the Bear Cub five is no small time outfit, and with Duzminski and Lazarchek out of the fray, the task of getting Bear meat looms overwhelmingly before the young wildcats. The yearling squad will have an ample test of its ability to keep up under adverse conditions.

Extra Time Period Decides Frosh Tilt

on "Duke" Duzminski. Just as the whistle brew for the end of the game, "Tiny" Largenberg was fouled.

The stage was all set for "Tiny" to pull the game out of the fire and the frenzied crowd watched anxiously as he prepared himself to throw in the deciding point. However, it wasn't in the books for Villanova to win, and the ball bounded off the rim, sending both teams into an extra period.

Minus the services of "Milkey" Lzorchek and "Duke" Duzminski, both of whom were banished from the game on personals, the Kittens fought gamely in the extra session, but were unable to stop the Owlets who now were almost certain of victory.

Holding their opponents to two points and in the interim scoring seven themselves, the Owlets walked off with a ball game, which they never expected to win, by the score of 36-31.

Lazorchek Stars

Outstanding in defeat was little "Milkey" Lazorchek, who proved to be the spearhead of Villanova's offense and defense. His presence in the game had the Owlets guessing, and at the same time he supplied the necessary impetus to keep his teammates working as a unit and ahead of their opponents.

Playing a fine floor game and having an almost perfect night at the charity line, Faulkner shared honors with Villanova's brilliant forward, Scoring honors for the visitors went to Boyle, Nicol and Friedberg; these men proved to be the mainstays of the Cherry and White aggregation and were responsible for all but seven points of their entire team's scoring.

Haverford Team Downed

A week ago, last Friday, the Villanova Frosh rolled up their greatest number of markers in a single contest, by trouncing the Haverford Aces by the lop-sided score of 47-16.

NO FEUD

"Clipper" Smith got a great kick out of the newspaper boys, when they asked him about the "feud" between himself and "Pat" Hanley, Boston University mentor. He denied the existence of any such state of affairs between the two of them.

New England Trip Feature of Season

on April 2 at Villanova's home field. The following day the team journeys to Princeton to do battle with the powerful Tiger aggregation. The annual Penn fray again will be played at Franklin Field on the 14th. This is one to look forward to, fellows.

New York Trip in April

A road trip to New York State winds up the first month's competition, at which time Colgate and a return engagement with Cornell are matched. On the way home, the visitors stop off at State College to invade the Nittany Lion's lair as the first encounter of May.

Engage Fordhamites

This brings us to the home stretch. The 'Cats will go on the hunt after the Fordham Ram with the task of avenging the heartbreaking 4 to 3 defeat (handed them by the New York institution last season) on their hands on May 8th. A New England trip follows with the boys appearing at Providence, Holy Cross and Springfield in three successive days. Incidentally, the Friars will be gunning for them as a result of the recent appearance of the Villanova basketeers at the Rhode Island Metropolis, and both teams will be geared to a high pitch. The climax of the season comes with Villanova at Temple Stadium to bring home the bacon left there in November, and a final home stand with Ursinus on the twenty-first.

It will also be noticed that four home and home series are featured. They are with Cornell, Providence, Temple and Ursinus.

Wildcats Wallop Providence Five

regularity, and aided by clever Jim Montgomery, Villanova marked up 13 and 10 points respectively through this pair. Pacing the counter attack of the visitors, Gus Hagstrom scored 8 points followed by his teammate Carew, who tallied one less.

Close guarding marked the first five minutes of play, as the crowd settled back in their seats, only to be aroused as Leo Davin, towering visitor guard, dropped in a long shot from mid-floor to start a rally which sent Providence ahead 8-3.

As the speed of the game heightened, Coach "Gen" McLellan pulled four men out of the game—Palaski, Hagstrom, Sinnler and Angelica to give them a rest. Villanova, with the ever vigilant Brennan grabbing rebounds from the back-board, gained possession of the ball and with Jim Montgomery and Harry McNally dropping in field goals built up their 18-10 half time lead.

Villanova Too Strong

Starting the second half with their initial line-up, it became evident that the smooth-working, fast-breaking Wildcats were too much for the closely guarded Friars. Driving hard after the ball at every point, Johnny Krutulis, Art Vigilante and Lou Dubino proved of invaluable aid in this great exhibition of team-work.

Close guarding by Jim Montgomery and Johnny Krutulis caused cessation of the home team rally, as they were banished on personal fouls. Providence players, trailing 28-14 at this point, seemed to be fighting for a lost cause, but the crowd was quickly aroused as the visitors put on a furious counter-attack led by Gus Hagstrom and the final score found Villanova's lead cut to 6 points.

All through the riotous struggle the spectators were interested in seeing the white and black-shirted referees take almost as many tumbles as the players. But in spite of erratic spots Villanova showed it possesses talent to become a great team.

Main Liners Lose

Falling before a fury of field goals propelled by the able hands of George Washington University's basketeers, Villanova became the eighth straight victim of the clever Colonials on the Wildcats' home floor on Friday, January 22. Matching goal for goal in the first half, the home team held their powerful foes to a 12-10 score, but a deluge of field goals after the rest period, gave the visitors a commanding lead, making the final count read 33-23.

Led by Ben Goldfaden, who scored 8 points, Washington took advantage of a lull in the Wildcats play early in the second period, running the count to 18-12, as the fighting, foul-missing home team tried in vain to cut this lead.

"Ball - hawk" Krutulis helped himself to 9 points, and together with Don Brennan sparked the Wildcats' losing battle.

Tight defensive play all through the game aided by clever team work, overcame the Wildcats in spite of Harry McNally's dependable, and Jim Montgomery's spirited play, which if kept up throughout the game might have turned the tide.

Credit must go to the Washingtonians for producing the outstanding star of the game in the person of Schofield, "mighty mite" guard, who thrilled the crowd by his lightning speed and remarkable team play, as Villanova men tried in vain to stick with them.

Here and There

By WILLIAM BOWKER

BY this time one more person knows what it is to dash off a column, also another knows of the trials of an editor. However, it's a great life.

It is rumored about that Bill Christopher and Johnny Burke, famed Austinites, are keeping in the pink, running from one drug store to another in an attempt to procure a sure-fire cure for falling hair. The lads fear a shiny pate and, no doubt, will welcome any worthwhile suggestions.

Bill Connelly, known as "Villanova's Rooter Numbers One to Ten," has been heard to say that reliable sources brought him the confidential news that the junior class is going to feature Benny Goodman and his lads at the Prom. Scoop Keating, former VILLANOVAN sports scribe, and Ed Reilly, editor in his Senior year, have also heard the same news. Let's hope it's true.

Now that retreat is over, intramural play will again begin, with basketball taking the center of attraction until such time as the weather permits the ball players and tennis enthusiasts to limber up their muscles and dust off the equipment. If winter doesn't come pretty soon, it won't be long until their dreams will be realized.

Tony, until recently major domo of the supply room down at the gym, is now working in Wayne. Last week Harry Guckenberger was down assisting Tony's successor in the gentle art of shining football shoes, at which "Guckie" is very adept.

On the library overdue book list, put up on the bulletin boards recently, was the volume, "The Great Gadsby,' and the offender was none other than the genial boxing coach.

Showing that winter is practically gone from the scene, John "Forest" Donohue one of Fedigan's stand-outs, is now getting into shape for baseball. Donohue is a veteran of the baseball wars, having performed for the Villanova nine for the past two years.

Those of you who are interested in the fistic game will like to know that the Wildcat boxers have some new togs to sport during the coming campaign. They are the traditional Blue and White, the lettering being white, and the trunks having a vertical stripe on the sides. If clothes make the boxer, the Wildcats resin sniffers should emerge victorious in all meets. While we're on the subject of boxing, it might not be amiss to mention the fact that Tony Sala and the Villanova fisticuffers were included in an article on collegiate ring activities in Collier's, the National Weekly. The article quoted Harry Stuhldreher as stating that there were 1700 or so at one of the first meets held at Villanova.

Louie has installed a cigarette vending machine in the pie shop. This makes another thing for the lads to push their father's hard earned money into. What with the record player, the ekee-ball game, and the pin-ball machines, the coin-in-the-slot putter is in paradise. What gets us is the complicated pin-ball games. That one called "Rapid Transit' took the cake. Tracks all over the thing. One has to be a college student of no mean ability to add the scores on the gadget.

Then there is the tale of the Villanova Junior, who was the first to her parlor. (Three were invited, none knowing of the others' invitations) and had an unseen but very appreciative audience to his most excellent acting. The strong arm stuff was great to watch, Nesby!

By the way, why has the above mentioned Donohue stopped wearing his derby?

EDUCATIONAL SHIFT ABROAD CAUSED BY 'OVERCROWDING'

Italy and Germany Change Teaching Theories Because of Condition

NEW YORK, N. Y.—(ACP)—"To avoid the emergency of educated proletariates with the tragedies that have been witnessed in Europe as the direct result of overcrowding in certain professions," is the world-wide problem of organied education, the Carnegie Foundation on the Advancement of Teaching concluded in its latest public report.

Because Italy has recognized the need of the "right education for the right individual" to preserve a sound social order, says the report, she has reorganized her entire educational system.

"The unrest due to overcrowding in the universities and consequently in the professions was without a doubt a contributory factor to the Nazi revolution," the report continued.

The report, formulated by I. L. Kandel, Professor of Education and Associate in the International Institute, Teachers College, Columbia University, is published as "Bulletin 28: Examinations and Their Substitutes in the United States." The conclusions are:

"The problem of examinations strikes at the very roots of the whole meaning and significance of education for society. It raises the question whether society can proceed, as it has in the main done in the past, on the assumption that there is only one pattern of culture, of liberal education, to which all must be molded, as they advance from the elementary to higher education.

"It inevitably brings up the problem of the social and economic distribution of individuals in society and the danger to social stability which may result from educational and vocational maladjustment.

Alumni Protests Dissolution of Dartmouth Frats

Aroused by Report of College Social Life Committee's Proposal to Curb Clubs

Because Dartmouth fraternities, according to the report of the Committee for the Survey of Social Life at Dartmouth, "failed in accomplishing the ends stated in the fraternity charters and in providing the best possible social units at Dartmouth" a move to dissolve national affiliations in favor of local clubs was started.

When the committee voted 12 to 2 for dissolution, the alumni protested. Last September President Hopkins said national connections would be retained "if the interest and sense of responsibility of the chapters can make the contribution of these chapters to the welfare of the college significant to it, and calculated to support its own objectives."

At the suggestion of the Social Life committee, Dr. Hopkins created the office of Advisor to Fraternities and appointed Davis Jackson '36, he stated, because he thought one of the most recent graduates would be in the best position to serve the purpose.

C. C. N. Y. RADICALS WIN

New York College Left-Wing Party Triumphs Despite Opposition

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—Launching its campaign to oppose the radical group which has dominated student politics at City College for the past year ,the new Progressive-Students' party skyrocketed its candidates to two of the three seats on the student council in the recent election.

That the influence of the radical group is still great was indicated by the results of class elections. The seniors and juniors elected their complete slates of officers from the Student-Union party, the radical organization.

The sophomores split between the Progressives and the Unionists, but the freshmen voted in a full slate of Progressives.

HARVARD PROF RAPS PRESENT ATHLETIC PLAN

Claims That College Sports Should Use Only Regular Students

Cambridge, Mass.—(ACP)—The Carnegie Foundation would get a rude jolt if it were to make an investigation of college athletics today, says William J. Bingham, Harvard University's athletic director.

In his annual report to President James B. Conant, Bingham explained that subsidizing is practiced more now than ever.

"There is more shopping around by athletes than ever before," he reported, "and the pathetic part of this picture is that some college presidents either do not know or do not want to know that these practices are going on in their colleges."

Organized alumni groups rather than coaches are to blame in most cases for the subsidizing and proselyting of college athletes, he added.

FOUR STATE COLLEGES REFUSE TO PAY TAX

Institutions Won't Recognize Federal Right to Collect Tithe

Washington, D. C.—(ACP)—Old Uncle Sam can just try and collect!

That is the stand taken by the four colleges and universities who because they are state supported institutions have refused to pay the 10 per cent federal sports admission tax.

William and Mary, the latest college to object denied the government's right to force a state institution to collect taxes or to levy and collect taxes from a state institution. Furthermore authorities said, the Virginia college would attempt to get a refund on all levies paid the federal government in the last four years

Congressmen Dumb?--Statistics Say Over 70% Have College Education

The total number of members of the House and Senate is 531—435 Representatives and 96 Senators. Of these, 90 failed to indicate in their official biographies whether or not they went to college. Many of them doubtless did and others, of course, did not. However, the percentage of the unrecorded Congressmen is probably not very different from the vast preponderance of those who reveal their educational background. Congressmen refer just as proudly to "educated in public schools," "educated privately," or "self-educated," as they do to "B.A., Harvard, '96." Thus, in omitting these unknown from our calculations, we are not stacking the cards either way.

But if one wants to consider each of the 90 unrecorded legislators as non-college men, the figure in favor of the college man is still impressive. Figuring it this way, Representatives and Senators with a college background make up 69 percent of the personnel of the 75th Congress.

Included in the list of non-collegians are numerous men who attended business colleges, took correspondence work, one who went to an Osteopathic College, and one Representative who took a course at the Normal College of the American Gymnastic Union at Indianapolis, Indiana.

One Congressmen whom your correspondent did not include in the reckoning of "college men," deserves more credit for his training than many of those who earned honors at universities. He is Matthew A. Dunn, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Dunn lst the sight of one eye in an accident when he was 12 years old and, in another mishap at the age of 20, lost the sight of his remaining eye. Mr. Dunn did not allow these misfortunes to down him. He became a student at the Pittsburgh and Overbrook schools for the blind and graduated from the latter, located at Philadelphia, three years later.

He "kept coming" and was elected to the 73rd Congress in 1932 when he was 36 years old.

Mrs. Carraway, the Senator from Arkansas; Mrs. Norton, Congressman from New Jersey, and Mrs. Jenckes, of Indiana fail to record the extent of their education in their official biographies.

GOVERNOR'S ORDERS CAUSED WISCONSIN HEAD'S REMOVAL

Madisonians Charge La Follette With Political Move Prompted by Progressives

MADISON, WISCONSIN — Another attack of severe investigationitis struck the University of Wisconsin again early this month, and this time the Board of Regents removed Pres. Glenn Frank to cure another attack of the disease that twice last year forced other members of its staff to be displaced.

After a two-day operation that assumed the proportions of a great spectacle, the board that was accused of taking orders from Gov. Philip F. LaFollette voted, as newspapers predicted last July, 8 to 7, to remove Dr. Frank. The eight members who voted to remove the president are all Progressives and LaFollette appointees.

Kited to the prominence of a national spectacle, the chief concern of the press and the nation's educators was that the action of the board and the procedure preceding that action were not such as to preserve freedom of thought from the power of government and to give Pres. Frank a hearing by his peers.

Formal charges were made against Dr. Frank by the regent president, but the former's answers were as well documented as the latter's charges, better many observers declared. No matter what one's opinion of the charges and answers was one's verdict of the regents' verdict against Dr. Frank was usually dictated by politics, prejudices, educational theory or just plain personalities.

The verdict of most Madisonians was that Dr. Frank was railroaded out of his job by a Progressive majority that would have voted as it did no matter what was said during the course of the "trial."

SIT-DOWN STRIKE SYSTEM STIMULATES STUDENTS

A modified form of the latest innovation now sweeping the country, sit-down strikes, occurred on the Villanova campus last Friday, when Tom Furey and Sam Brown, engineering students, took objection to the crowded condition of the Pie Shop. As is seen above, they took themselves to the unconfined stretches of the athletic field in the rear of Mendel Hall, where their only companions were their thoughts, and they had the unlimited use of their flailing elbows.

WHEELER BALLOTED TO PRESIDENCY BY COLLEGE AIR CLUB

New Campus Organization Negotiates for Right to Use Airport

ATTEND AVIATION SHOW

Making rapid progress in order to obtain campus recognition, the Flying Club of Villanova College has elected officers for the ensuing year and simultaneously drawn up and adopted its constitution and by-laws. All this business was transacted prior to the Christmas vacation and at present the club is conducting a vigorous campaign for additional members. Those officers elected for this term are James Wheeler, president; Garland Whiteside, vice president, and John Dimon as secretary and treasurer.

The Flying Club of Villanova is composed of students from the various schools of the college, particularly engineers. It offers them the distinct advantage of learning the art of aviation from the ground to actual flying.

The ultimate aim of the club members is to learn how to fly proficiently. All members will receive a course in ground work including the study of motors and the in-

Belle Masque To Present "Journey's End" in Spring

College Dramatic Group Making Considerable Progress Towards Production of R. C. Sheriff's Brilliant Work

INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP DESIRED

Journey's End, poignant drama of war in the trenches, will be presented by Belle Masque, college dramatic society, according to an announcement by Anthony J. Frayne, A. M., moderator of the chapter.

The presentation of the play will be in the Spring, probably during Junior Week, though the exact date is pending but will be officially released to the VILLANOVAN in the very near future.

Considered by some critics as the foremost play in modern times, this drama will be under the dual guidance of the aforementioned Frayne and Rev. Stephen Lannen, O. S. A. The latter will assist primarily in the business department of the production, and will take care of the publicity.

Presentation is Timely

Witten by R. C. Sherriff, "Journey's End" relates the intense bitterness and the reactions of the soldiers as they are waiting for their inevitable doom. As the play is closely paralleled by warfare in Europe today, it is being presented at a time when it should prove of interest to everyone.

Daily meetings are being conducted in the Day Students' room, Mendel Hall, with the express purpose of giving tryouts for those who are desirous of securing a part in the play.

Fifteen Have Applied

The characters have not yet been chosen and at this writing approximately 15 men have applied for roles. Mr. Frayne has issued a call for more candidates and urges the interest of all the schools on the

PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY

BETA GAMMA MEETS STRONG ST. JOSEPH DEBATERS TONIGHT

Traditional Rivals Argue Hours and Wages Topic in Ampitheatre

Tonight, Beta Gamma's foremost representatives, Anthony L. Differ, president, and Joseph P. Carroll, will be called upon to uphold the laurels of the Villanova chapter against the aggressive and renowned forensic aggregation of St. Joseph's College in a debate to be presented at 8.00 P. M., in Mendel Hall.

St. Joseph's College has had the reputation, for the past number of years, of having one of the foremost of Philadelphia's debating groups, and have already shown themselves worthy of repute this year. A large number of spectators is predicted to attend the recurrence of the debating rivalry between the two colleges.

The Villanova debaters will uphold the affirmative of the question, Resolved: That Congress shall have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry.

HON. BERNARD KELLY HOLY NAME SPEAKER

Pennsylvania Deputy Attorney To Address Society at Meeting Sunday

Through the efforts of Hon. John Freney, prominent alumnus and speaker at the last meeting of the Villanova Holy Name Society, the Hon. Bernard J. Kelly, Esq., has consented to speak before this month's gathering on Sunday, February 14.

Mr. Kelly, a native of Philadelphia, is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy and the graduate school of the University of Pennsylvania. After his college days the speaker entered politics and now holds the position of Deputy Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

In view of the fact that such a prominent speaker has been obtained for the occasion, Pio Goggi, president of the Villanova chapter of the organization, joined with Rev. Charles Brown, O. S. A., moderator of the group, in asking for the full co-operation of the students.

"This is an excellent opportunity which we do not wish anyone to miss," said President Goggi, "we are extending our invitation not only to the enrolled members of the Society but to all Villanova students. Immediately before the Communion breakfast, over which Mr. Kelly will preside, there will be a very important meeting of the entire society at which several important issues will be discussed. We hope that everyone will attend."

Rev. Charles Brown, when approached concerning the subject, urged the student body to show their appreciation for the efforts of Mr. John Freney in obtaining so prominent a speaker by turning out in full force.

HAROLD HARTMAN ADDRESSES GROUP

Local Faculty Member Speaks Before Newman Club Saturday on Constitution

In his speech at the sixteenth annual meeting of the Newman Clubs in the Hotel Ritz Carlton in Philadelphia last Saturday afternoon, Doctor Harold F. Hartman, professor of History at Villanova College, emphasized the great power embodied in the Constitution of the United States.

"The Constitution of the United States," he said, "is something more than a political instrument incorporating the fundamental laws of the land. Not merely is that great document a material entity which the eye beholds as a piece of yellow parchment. It is far more since it embodies a great spirit which transcends the realm of materiality. For in essence that document fundamentally eptomizes a noble vindication of the morality of government."

He went on to explain that the Constitution is thoroughly Christian because "the enforcement and security of the natural rights of life, liberty and property are indispensible not only to the moral and social existence of the individual, but to the continuance and preservation of democratic government as we understand it. The framers of the constitution well recognize this fact. And they also realized that the practical benefits of inalienable rights might not at times be preserved unless the compulsion of might be employed. The right of individuals to objectively units in order to overthrow a tyrannical government which destroys these inalienable rights is well recognized in their political philosophy." In conclusion Dr. Hartman

ORATORS OPEN CONTEST SOON

Competition Open to Seniors and Juniors Only; Gold Medal Awarded

As has been the custom for several years, the annual oratorical contest for the members of the senior and junior public speaking classes will soon be held. This contest is under the personal supervision of Anthony J. Frayne, instructor of English, and will take place in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre.

The subject chosen for this year's discussions will be the ever timely topic of the Constitution of the United States. In order to stimulate interest in the speeches, no limitation was made as to what phase of the Constitution must be discussed.

All contestants will be rated on their manner of delivery, oratorical style, diction, enunciation and the contiguity of thought development.

The winner of the contest will be presented with a gold medal at the Commencement exercises in June. This medal has been graciously dedicated by Very Rev. Edward J. Murtaugh, O.S.A.

GROUP PLANS TOURS

A. S. C. E. to Inspect Steel Casting Company in Chester

Villanova's undergraduate Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers met for the first time yesterday, since the mid-year examinations. Among the several items of business attended to by the members, it was definitely decided to have an inspection tour to the Steel Casting Company in Chester, on Wednesday afternoon.

Besides these plans and arrangements that took place at the meeting, a talk was given by Cyril Daley, sophomore engineer, on "Stone Construction." The paper was well received and the period following his address was given to criticism and suggestions.

SUICIDE FLIGHT

IT is with glad eyes that we notice that Dr. James Kimball, chief of the United States Weather Bureau in the North, has refused to give his consent to the proposed flight of single motored airplanes across the Atlantic. This eminent weather prophet pointed out the erratic and very hazardous weather conditions on the proposed route as well as the very dangerous hazard presented by the unusually bad air currents.

The event was to be run to commemorate the epochal flight of America's great air hero, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, and was to take place on the same days as his history making flight. Aside from the very fact that the weather itself presented a useless hazard, the committee in charge made the ruling that only single motored planes would be granted entrance. It is easy to see from the tragic happenings to our own tri-motored and bi-motored planes flying over our western land that even the big planes are having enough difficulty staying in the air. It is foolish to imagine, then, that small single motored planes would stand a very good chance of making such a foolish and difficult trip.

As the Doctor points out this proposed race will have no significance. Flights across the ocean have been made before, so nothing will be contributed towards the furtherance of aviation. Aside from the fact that the development of aviation will not be advanced by the race of the single motors the historical significance is lost because there are attempts to change the time of flight from May until August. Therefore, it is folly to suppose that any good whatsoever will come of this suicide flight.

The time of trans-Atlantic crossings by heavier-than-air craft is not far off. Projects by the Pan American Airways and the Imperial Airways of Great Britian are already in the experimental stage, so it will not be long before regular air service is established between the Old and the New world. If such reputable pillars of aviation service as the above mentioned organizations do not feel that the time is yet ripe for the regular flights of tri-motored planes, certainly the persons behind the proposed trans-oceanic race should be able to realize that it is not time for a hop of ill-equipped single-motors.

INDUSTRY'S THIRD ESTATE

WHILE allegations and their refutations fly back and forth between the contending parties, and each side studies proficiency in those things which will incline public opinion in its favour, a particularly unpleasant phase of the General Motors employes' strike—and one that is peculiar to all strikes — is brought into poignant relief. That is the plight of that group of employes who are bound to lose regardless of how the strike is settled. For to them there is never any redress. These are the office, or so-called "white collar" workers.

Their tragic exodus from the offices of General Motors started at the end of the first week of the strike. Stenographers, bookkeepers, clerks—the first to feel the pinch of depression and the last to taste the fruits of prosperity—they are the real sufferers in the conflict between capital and labor. Denied the increase in salary, or the shortened hours which reconcile the laborer to his weeks of privation, they return to work under the same conditions which they were unwillingly compelled to leave. Paid, frequently, as little as the lowliest laborer on the belt, and as often as much a financial mainstay of their family as he, they are compelled to undergo privations that are not of their instigation, and to suffer in the name of a cause that invariably leaves them in a worse condition than it found them.

Deprived of their jobs because labor decides that its claims to consideration are not being properly treated or capital determines that it shall acknowledge no restraint but its own will, they are constantly being victimized by a situation that they can neither remedy nor avoid. Both capital and labor, in their periodic conflicts, have shown such a lamentable lack of regard for these victims of their disputes, that it is time they made some effort to have their importance to industry properly appreciated. Though non-producers in the strict sense of the word, they are as necessary to business as either capital or labor, and as equally entitled to the consideration of their rights.

The solution of their problem, which is as essential to their well-being as profits to the capitalist or a living wage to the laborer, is only possible of achievement in the way in which the weak have ever protected themselves against exploitation; that is by union. Although such an action may seem to alienate from the capitalists a group who have heretofore been tacitly considered as their partisans, because of the similarity of their desires to see the uninterrupted operation of industry, it will in reality bring into the field of labor disputes a group who might be expected to act as a balance between the principal contestants, for it will be to their advantage to see that the rights of both capital and labor are protected in order that the inconveniences they suffer through the frequent disputes of the two will be minimized.

It is interesting to note the hearty response shown by the American people in the help given the Red Cross during the present flood crisis. It has shown that the United States can ably drop party or local prejudices and become a unified machine when a crisis presents itself.

As We See It . . . At Random

By HARRY FARRIN

NO BUSINESS seems so essentially the public's as the industries upon which the people's livelihood depends. The right to live must, by necessity, transcend the right to property; for where the former is denied the latter is soon put riotously at naught. Hence, the obvious need for regulating the conditions under which they function, in order that those actively engaged in its operation will derive the greatest benefits from it. The capitalist, or entrepreneur, enters business for profit, but to assume that the control of industry should be placed without restraint in the hands of those whose sole intention in managing it is for personal profit, seems almost as ridiculous as placing the control of the government into the hands of a dictator to be conducted for his own glorification. Every task is more speedily executed, and more profitably to those occupied with it if they coordinate their efforts rather than contend one against the other. Yet we more often encounter contentions in industry than harmony. So that it would be well to have some definite regulatory measures imposed upon those engaged in it in order that these objectives might be realized.

Many socialists never consider the socialistic theories of Henri de Man that the capitalistic spirit must be substituted for one of service and pride in things well done. But a spirit of service or pride in one's job has never seemed to us quite capable of effecting the social well-being that is expected of it; in fact we are convinced that the only possible solution of the matter will be found in the realization of the existence of a higher morality than that of social responsibility. This higher ideal is that of religion, which is not, as materialistic socialists will have us believe, a capitalistic instrument for perpetuating its intolerable abuses, but rather is it the one stabilizing force in a world of uncertainty, the one whose hand is ever extended to the down-trodden and raised in admonition to those who abuse their powers, and whose voice is ever crying the principles of justice for all.

We have been upon various occasions taken to task by different members of the student body concerning what they rather vehemently call the many defects in this newspaper. Further inquiry into the cause of the complaint usually reveals that the "many defects" tend to vanish in proportion as they are inquired into. And as we further exercise ourselves in this investigation we soon find that our critic has in realty only one feeble thread upon which to hang his grievance; and when this is further studied it is speedily found that this thread is no longer capable of bearing his charges.

We feel that a great deal of trouble, in this respect, could be avoided if the reader would make some effort to correctly understand the statements of the writers, and cease imagining them to be speaking of things that, in many cases, were not even in their minds at the time they wrote. To those who feel that our editorials, news or feature articles are contrary to the requirements of reason or experience, we can only counsel that in your reading that you attend strictly to the words and thoughts of the writers, as well as the spirit in which the article is written. In doing this you will render yourself a double advantage: first, you will learn the habit of correctly interpreting and understanding what you read; and second, you will be spared the rather foolish feeling of passing judgments upon things which you do not thoroughly understand. Briefly, we recommend, that you make some effort to know what you are talking about before you begin to talk.

We have never been so delighted with the person of a fictional heroine as with that of Ruth Pinch. Although she is not a principal in the story "Martin Chuzzlewit," nevertheless Dickens so charmingly portrays her character that she lends a lustre and interest to the closing chapters of the book that would be definitely lacking if she were absent. That the author, himself, was conscious of the charms of his creation seems likely from the evident pleasure he derived from dwelling upon them each time she entered the story. Her demure modesty, her sweet and delicate shyness, her amiable disposition, her feminine fortitude, and her tenderness and care for the sufferings of those she met are embodied in a face and figure that enchants the imagination. Long after the book is closed the memory of her personality lingers in the mind—her misty midnight eyes within whose depths her lovely spirit sparkles like droplets from a fountain in the moonlight.

Pass In Review

By RICHARD DEVERALL

REV. JAIME CASTIELLO, S. J., Professor of Educational Psychology at Fordham's Graduate School, has just published a book that should be welcomed by every Catholic student of education. Written on a non-materialistic and strictly scientific basis, Rev. Dr. Castiello's A HUMANE PSYCHOLOGY OF EDUCATION is a book to be read and re-read by every Catholic College man.

Professor Louis A. J. Mercier contributes to this volume a challenging preface. He notes: "After all, there are only two fundamental alternative conceptions of human life open to us; belief that there is only this: worldliness and belief that there is this-worldliness and other-worldliness: monistic naturalism and dualistic humanism. We can choose either, but once that is done we are bound by the consequences." Dr. Castiello, naturally, takes the second choice. We have had so much of the mechanistic, materialistic psychology in education that it is refreshing to peruse this challenging work.

Human Reason Superior

Pervading the book is an emphasis upon the superiority of human reason over purely animal instincts and reflex activities. Pitted against the Stimulus-Response theories of such men as Thorndike, who would make of man merely a well-developed animal, is the notion that although man has instincts, emotions, sentiments and desires, these are all subject to the reason of man.

Reason is Paramount

Man's fundamental urge is thought. "Thought cannot be reduced to matter or animal instinct, there being an unbridgeable chasm between thought and matter and between instinct and thought. To put it very briefly, thought liberates man from an exclusive adherence to sex and food (which is the world of animals) and plunges him into the world of meaning and of general, necessary ideas, which is the domain of science."

In the chapter on Creative Power, Dr. Castiello discusses such a man as Ludvig van Beethoven, a great Catholic musician who "did not marry in order to consecrate himself more and better to his music." To such a man as Beethoven, reveals the author, animal urges were subjected to reason. "They were not fatally swept into food or sex. The instinctive drives were there. But there was besides another urge present which cannot be identified with instinct since it does exactly the opposite of what instinct is shrieking after: it gives, it creates; in Beethoven's beautiful expression, it hews out of itself.'

Determined from Within

"This sort of action is not determined from without but from within; it is not selfish, because it seeks beauty, which is absolutely useless; it is not material because it controls matter and because it is fixed and set on that which is immaterial in its object." Thus, the great teachers are those who can inspire their pupils to seek, in that eternal chase, racing down the chasm of Time, the Truth, the Beauty and the Goodness that is God. "There should be no need to add that it is most important for all teachers that they should train children and adolescents to love beauty and to give beauty. "Heroism is simply moral beauty . . . the cult of the beautiful, when carried out in a healthy virile way, is the the most social of all trainings. It is a training for unselfishness."

Art, too, must be taught to the student, for it is a great social asset. "Goodness must be grasped not only rationally but emotionally; it must be loved . . . it should be seen as beautiful."

How strange these words seem in a world where crass materialism, selfishness and greed seem to be the order of the day. How can we ever, for instance, expect to stop this "Insanity of War," as the Pope calls it, by mere neutrality bills? The true peace movement is one based on a love of justice and charity—and their practice. In education, the children from the earliest years must be taken out of themselves. At the root of war is greed. To remove greed, we must implant in the human mind an insatiable love for Truth, for Beauty and for Goodness.

How novel an idea? And yet how ancient an idea. How idealistic an idea? And yet how daringly realistic an idea. But are not idealists the only realists?

"Mama Don't Want No . . ."

AS THE Britannic drew closer to the harbor at Nassau, a swarm of little boats could be seen off in the distance, setting out from shore, and coming towards the ship.

Soon we were able to pick out the occupants. The boats were filled with little dark-skinned boys.

When they drew alongside the decks, several began to sing:

"Mama don't want no peas an rice, an Coconut oil;
Mama don't want no gin, because it will make her sin;
Just a bottle of brandy, handy all the day."

In between verses (there are about ten additional verses to this song), the little boys call up to the passengers for coins.

The water is so clear, that when money is thrown overboard into the harbor, and falls to the bottom, it can easily be seen, provided however, that it is a silver or nickel piece.

The natives will dive after anything except pennies, because copper does not glisten.

Small tenders come out to disembark the passengers.

Upon arriving at the dock, you are beset on every side by little make-shift bargain counters.

Whenever you buy anything here it's usually up to your own bargaining powers as to what you pay. Some examples of reduced prices after a little dickering—One article from $2.50 down to $1.00; another from $2.00 down to 50c.

Side-lights

"Dirty Dick's" is one of the tourists' favorite stopping places.

If anyone wants to go swimming, there is beautiful Paradise Beach on the other side of the island. The water usually averages about eighty degrees, and is crystal clear.

The majority of the natives usually carry heavy loads on their heads. Someone explained that the load is thus borne evenly by the whole body, instead of putting all the effort on one side.

Everyone speaks English.

Before the ship leaves the harbor a whistle is blown; then if there are still some passengers missing, a cab goes through the town picking up those who didn't hear the signal to embark.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

THERE will be fifteen minutes more melody in every program of "Your Hit Parade and Sweepstakes" commencing Saturday, Feb. 13, when the regular weekly program over the Columbia network is augmented to 45 minutes. Theprograms will start at their usual time of 10 P. M., E.S.T. Following the sponsir's policy, the program which was started on the Columbia network on May 2, 1936, has used the services of six well-known orchestra leaders.

These have included Carl Hoff, current bandmaster; Harry Salter, Al Goodman, Bob Waring, Don Voorhees and Freddie Rich. Buddy Clark and Edith Dick have remained as vocalists through the greater part of the series.

For those who think that wielding a half-ounce baton for a half-hour is easy work, consider the case of Frank Simon. Simon conducts the Armco Band concerts, over NBC. The broadcasts last for half an hour. Yet, during that time Frank Simon loses no less than five pounds. However, the five pound loss is not noticeable in view of Simon's 200 pounds, and then after the broadcast there is always a meal that restores a good part of the tonnage.

George Griffin recalls how he got his start as a soloist. He was singing with a church choir, and he failed to notice a musical rest. The other members of the choir stopped, but he continued singing. As a result he was asked to repeat the selection as a solo. . . . Marge Morin of the Morin Sisters has taken over additional duties of arranger for the King's Jesters. She will do mostly quartet arrangements of sweet songs. Incidentally, it's Marge who does those smooth arrangements for the Morin trio.

Kenny Baker recently captured a deadly black widow spider at his home in San Fernando Valley and brought it to the studio in a pint milk bottle. Playful Don Wilson substituted another milk bottle and pandemonium broke loose. Everybody at rehearsal thought Kenny's pet had escaped. "If you must bring animals to the studio," admonished Jack, "bring a hyena. At least he'll help with the laughs."

The busiest man in radio today is Frank Black, NBC music director. Black directs two important programs weekly, and in addition, must serve in his capacity of music director seven days a week. The payoff is that two sponsors have approached the genial maestro with interesting offers, and Black is seriously considering a third program to add to his woes!

Although Fred Allen holds the title of radio's most consistent hermit—refusing to attend theatrical openings, night club parties and other functions where celebrities may be found—the lanky Yankee is one of the best dressed men-at-the-mike. He favors double-breasted suits, has his shoes shined to a mirror brilliance and brightens his costume with fancy ties and handkerchiefs. At home, he relaxes in an old bathrobe and slippers.

This past Saturday afternoon, the Metropolitan Opera House presented Gina Cigna, beautiful young Italian operatic soprano, in the leading role of Aida with Martinelli as Radames. Undoubtedly, she will be named as perhaps the greatest soprano who has reached these shores for several years. Judging from the tremendous ovations tendered her on the opening scene and after each act, Signorina Cigna is off to a great career. It is no wonder that she has made such a hit. Auturo Toscanini, under whose personal supervision she has been coached at La Scala, Milan, for the past six years, recommended her.

SUICIDE FLIGHT

IT is with glad eyes that we notice that Dr. James Kimball, chief of the United States Weather Bureau in the North, has refused to give his consent to the proposed flight of single motored airplanes across the Atlantic. This eminent weather prophet pointed out the erratic and very hazardous weather conditions on the proposed route as well as the very dangerous hazard presented by the unusually bad air currents.

The event was to be run to commemorate the epochal flight of America's great air hero, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, and was to take place on the same days as his history making flight. Aside from the very fact that the weather itself presented a useless hazard, the committee in charge made the ruling that only single motored planes would be granted entrance. It is easy to see from the tragic happenings to our own tri-motored and bi-motored planes flying over our western land that even the big planes are having enough difficulty staying in the air. It is foolish to imagine, then, that small single motored planes would stand a very good chance of making such a foolish and difficult trip.

As the Doctor points out this proposed race will have no significance. Flights across the ocean have been made before, so nothing will be contributed towards the furtherance of aviation. Aside from the fact that the development of aviation will not be advanced by the race of the single motors the historical significance is lost because there are attempts to change the time of flight from May until August. Therefore, it is folly to suppose that any good whatsoever will come of this suicide flight.

The time of trans-Atlantic crossings by heavier-than-air craft is not far off. Projects by the Pan American Airways and the Imperial Airways of Great Britian are already in the experimental stage, so it will not be long before regular air service is established between the Old and the New world. If such reputable pillars of aviation service as the above mentioned organizations do not feel that the time is yet ripe for the regular flights of tri-motored planes, certainly the persons behind the proposed trans-oceanic race should be able to realize that it is not time for a hop of ill-equipped single-motors.

INDUSTRY'S THIRD ESTATE

WHILE allegations and their refutations fly back and forth between the contending parties, and each side studies proficiency in those things which will incline public opinion in its favour, a particularly unpleasant phase of the General Motors employes' strike—and one that is peculiar to all strikes — is brought into poignant relief. That is the plight of that group of employes who are bound to lose regardless of how the strike is settled. For to them there is never any redress. These are the office, or so-called "white collar" workers.

Their tragic exodus from the offices of General Motors started at the end of the first week of the strike. Stenographers, bookkeepers, clerks—the first to feel the pinch of depression and the last to taste the fruits of prosperity—they are the real sufferers in the conflict between capital and labor. Denied the increase in salary, or the shortened hours which reconcile the laborer to his weeks of privation, they return to work under the same conditions which they were unwillingly compelled to leave. Paid, frequently, as little as the lowliest laborer on the belt, and as often as much a financial mainstay of their family as he, they are compelled to undergo privations that are not of their instigation, and to suffer in the name of a cause that invariably leaves them in a worse condition than it found them.

Deprived of their jobs because labor decides that its claims to consideration are not being properly treated or capital determines that it shall acknowledge no restraint but its own will, they are constantly being victimized by a situation that they can neither remedy nor avoid. Both capital and labor, in their periodic conflicts, have shown such a lamentable lack of regard for these victims of their disputes, that it is time they made some effort to have their importance to industry properly appreciated. Though non-producers in the strict sense of the word, they are as necessary to business as either capital or labor, and as equally entitled to the consideration of their rights.

The solution of their problem, which is as essential to their well-being as profits to the capitalist or a living wage to the laborer, is only possible of achievement in the way in which the weak have ever protected themselves against exploitation; that is by union. Although such an action may seem to alienate from the capitalists a group who have heretofore been tacitly considered as their partisans, because of the similarity of their desires to see the uninterrupted operation of industry, it will in reality bring into the field of labor disputes a group who might be expected to act as a balance between the principal contestants, for it will be to their advantage to see that the rights of both capital and labor are protected in order that the inconveniences they suffer through the frequent disputes of the two will be minimized.

It is interesting to note the hearty response shown by the American people in the help given the Red Cross during the present flood crisis. It has shown that the United States can ably drop party or local prejudices and become a unified machine when a crisis presents itself.

As We See It . . . At Random

By HARRY PARRIN

NO BUSINESS seems so essentially the public's as the industries upon which the people's livelihood depends. The right to live must, by necessity, transcend the right to property; for where the former is denied the latter is soon put riotously at naught. Hence, the obvious need for regulating the conditions under which they function, in order that those actively engaged in its operation will derive the greatest benefits from it. The capitalist, or entrepreneur, enters business for profit, but to assume that the control of industry should be placed without restraint in the hands of those whose sole intention in managing it is for personal profit, seems almost as ridiculous as placing the control of the government into the hands of a dictator to be conducted for his own glorification. Every task is more speedily executed, and more profitably to those occupied with it if they coordinate their efforts rather than contend one against the other. Yet we more often encounter contentions in industry than harmony. So that it would be well to have some definite regulatory measures imposed upon those engaged in it in order that these objectives might be realized.

Many socialists never consider the socialistic theories of Henri de Man that the capitalistic spirit must be substituted for one of service and pride in things well done. But a spirit of service or pride in one's job has never seemed to us quite capable of effecting the social well-being that is expected of it; in fact we are convinced that the only possible solution of the matter will be found in the realization of the existence of a higher morality than that of social responsibility. This higher ideal is that of religion, which is not, as materialistic socialists will have us believe, a capitalistic instrument for perpetuating its intolerable abuses, but rather is it the one stabilizing force in a world of uncertainty, the one whose hand is ever extended to the down-trodden and raised in admonition to those who abuse their powers, and whose voice is ever crying the principles of justice for all.

We have been upon various occasions taken to task by different members of the student body concerning what they rather vehemently call the many defects in this newspaper. Further inquiry into the cause of the complaint usually reveals that the "many defects" tend to vanish in proportion as they are inquired into. And as we further exercise ourselves in this investigation we soon find that our critic has in realty only one feeble thread upon which to hang his grievance; and when this is further studied it is speedily found that this thread is no longer capable of bearing his charges.

We feel that a great deal of trouble, in this respect, could be avoided if the reader would make some effort to correctly understand the statements of the writers, and cease imagining them to be speaking of things that, in many cases, were not even in their minds at the time they wrote. To those who feel that our editorials, news or feature articles are contrary to the requirements of reason or experience, we can only counsel that in your reading that you attend strictly to the words and thoughts of the writers, as well as the spirit in which the article is written. In doing this you will render yourself a double advantage: first, you will learn the habit of correctly interpreting and understanding what you read; and second, you will be spared the rather foolish feeling of passing judgments upon things which you do not thoroughly understand. Briefly, we recommend, that you make some effort to know what you are talking about before you begin to talk.

We have never been so delighted with the person of a fictional heroine as with that of Ruth Pinch. Although she is not a principal in the story "Martin Chuzzlewit," nevertheless Dickens so charmingly portrays her character that she lends a lustre and interest to the closing chapters of the book that would be definitely lacking if she were absent. That the author, himself, was conscious of the charms of his creation seems likely from the evident pleasure he derived from dwelling upon them each time she entered the story. Her demure modesty, her sweet and delicate shyness, her amiable disposition, her feminine fortitude, and her tenderness and care for the sufferings of those she met are embodied in a face and figure that enchants the imagination. Long after the book is closed the memory of her personality lingers in the mind—her misty midnight eyes within whose depths her lovely spirit sparkles like droplets from a fountain in the moonlight.

Pass In Review

By RICHARD DEVERALL

REV. JAIME CASTIELLO, S. J., Professor of Educational Psychology at Fordham's Graduate School, has just published a book that should be welcomed by every Catholic student of education. Written on a non-materialistic and strictly scientific basis, Rev. Dr. Castiello's A HUMANE PSYCHOLOGY OF EDUCATION is a book to be read and re-read by every Catholic College man.

Professor Louis A. J. Mercier contributes to this volume a challenging preface. He notes: "After all, there are only two fundamental alternative conceptions of human life open to us; belief that there is only this: worldliness and belief that there is this-worldliness and other-worldliness: monistic naturalism and dualistic humanism. We can choose either, but once that is done we are bound by the consequences." Dr. Castiello, naturally, takes the second choice. We have had so much of the mechanistic, materialistic psychology in education that it is refreshing to peruse this challenging work.

Human Reason Superior

Pervading the book is an emphasis upon the superiority of human reason over purely animal instincts and reflex activities. Pitted against the Stimulus-Response theories of such men as Thorndike, who would make of man merely a well-developed animal, is the notion that although man has instincts, emotions, sentiments and desires, these are all subject to the reason of man.

Reason is Paramount

Man's fundamental urge is thought. "Thought cannot be reduced to matter or animal instinct, there being an unbridgeable chasm between thought and matter and between instinct and thought. To put it very briefly, thought liberates man from an exclusive adherence to sex and food (which is the world of animals) and plunges him into the world of meaning and of general, necessary ideas, which is the domain of science."

In the chapter on Creative Power, Dr. Castiello discusses such a man as Ludvig van Beethoven, a great Catholic musician who "did not marry in order to consecrate himself more and better to his music." To such a man as Beethoven, reveals the author, animal urges were subjected to reason. "They were not fatally swept into food or sex. The instinctive drives were there. But there was besides another urge present which cannot be identified with instinct since it does exactly the opposite of what instinct is shrieking after: it gives, it creates; in Beethoven's beautiful expression, it hews out of itself."

Determined from Within

"This sort of action is not determined from without but from within; it is not selfish, because it seeks beauty, which is absolutely useless; it is not material because it controls matter and because it is fixed and set on that which is immaterial in its object." Thus, the great teachers are those who can inspire their pupils to seek, in that eternal chase, racing down the chasm of Time, the Truth, the Beauty and the Goodness that is God. "There should be no need to add that it is most important for all teachers that they should train children and adolescents to love beauty and to give beauty. "Heroism is simply moral beauty . . . the cult of the beautiful, when carried out in a healthy virile way, is the the most social of all trainings. It is a training for unselfishness."

Art, too, must be taught to the student, for it is a great social asset. "Goodness must be grasped not only rationally but emotionally; it must be loved . . . it should be seen as beautiful."

How strange these words seem in a world where crass materialism, selfishness and greed seem to be the order of the day. How can we ever, for instance, expect to stop this "Insanity of War," as the Pope calls it, by mere neutrality bills? The true peace movement is one based on a love of justice and charity—and their practice. In education, the children from the earliest years must be taken out of themselves. At the root of war is greed. To remove greed, we must implant in the human mind an insatiable love for Truth, for Beauty and for Goodness.

How novel an idea? And yet how ancient an idea. How idealistic an idea? And yet how daringly realistic an idea. But are not idealists the only realists?

(From the January cruise of M. V. Britannic to Nassau and Havana. Continued from last week. Part II.)

"Mama Don't Want No . . ."

AS THE Britannic drew closer to the harbor at Nassau, a swarm of little boats could be seen off in the distance, setting out from shore, and coming towards the ship.

Soon we were able to pick out the occupants. The boats were filled with little dark-skinned boys.

When they drew alongside the decks, several began to sing:

"Mama don't want no peas an rice, an Coconut oil;
Mama don't want no gin, because it will make her sin;
Just a bottle of brandy, handy all the day."

In between verses (there are about ten additional verses to this song), the little boys call up to the passengers for coins.

The water is so clear, that when money is thrown overboard into the harbor, and falls to the bottom, it can easily be seen, provided however, that it is a silver or nickel piece.

The natives will dive after anything except pennies, because copper does not glisten.

Ashore

Small tenders come out to disembark the passengers.

Upon arriving at the dock, you are beset on every side by little make-shift bargain counters.

Whenever you buy anything here it's usually up to your own bargaining powers as to what you pay. Some examples of reduced prices after a little dickering—One article from $2.50 down to $1.00; another from $2.00 down to 50c.

"Dirty Dick's" is one of the tourists' favorite stopping places.

If anyone wants to go swimming, there is beautiful Paradise Beach on the other side of the island. The water usually averages about eighty degrees, and is crystal clear.

The majority of the natives usually carry heavy loads on their heads. Someone explained that the load is thus borne evenly by the whole body, instead of putting all the effort on one side.

Everyone speaks English.

Before the ship leaves the harbor a whistle is blown; then if there are still some passengers missing, a cab goes through the town picking up those who didn't hear the signal to embark.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

THERE will be fifteen minutes more melody in every program of "Your Hit Parade and Sweepstakes" commencing Saturday, Feb. 13, when the regular weekly program over the Columbia network is augmented to 45 minutes. Theprograms will start at their usual time of 10 P. M., E.S.T. Following the sponsi's policy, the program which was started on the Columbia network on May 2, 1936, has used the services of six well-known orchestra leaders.

These have included Carl Hoff, current bandmaster; Harry Salter, Al Goodman, Bob Waring, Don Voorhees and Freddie Rich. Buddy Clark and Edith Dick have remained as vocalists through the greater part of the series.

For those who think that wielding a half-ounce baton for a half-hour is easy work, consider the case of Frank Simon. Simon conducts the Armco Band concerts, over NBC. The broadcasts last for half an hour. Yet, during that time Frank Simon loses no less than five pounds. However, the five pound loss is not noticeable in view of Simon's 200 pounds, and then after the broadcast there is always a meal that restores a good part of the tonnage.

George Griffin recalls how he got his start as a soloist. He was singing with a church choir, and he failed to notice a musical rest. The other members of the choir stopped, but he continued singing. As a result he was asked to repeat the selection as a solo . . . Marge Morin of the Morin Sisters has taken over additional duties of arranger for the King's Jesters. She will do mostly quartet arrangements of sweet songs. Incidentally, it's Marge who does those smooth arrangements for the Morin trio.

Kenny Baker recently captured a deadly black widow spider at his home in San Fernando Valley and brought it to the studio in a pint milk bottle. Playful Don Wilson substituted another milk bottle and pandemonium broke loose. Everybody at rehearsal thought Kenny's pet had escaped. "If you must bring animals to the studio," admonished Jack, "bring a hyena. At least he'll help with the laughs."

The payoff is that two sponsors have approached the genial maestro with interesting offers, and Black is seriously considering a third program to add to his woes!

PHI KAPPA PI FRAT INITIATES TONIGHT

Twenty-Fifth Annual Induction and Banquet Scheduled for This Evening

The 25th annual Initiation and Banquet of the Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity will be held this evening in the basement and Dining Hall of Mendel Hall. The Initiation will commence promptly at 7 o'clock, followed by the Banquet at 10.00.

The Initiation Committee, headed by Paul Williams, reports that everything has been placed in readiness for the affair. At a special meeting held on Saturday afternoon, the apparatus in the laboratories was set up and final plans completed. Mr. Williams was very emphatic when he said: "The candidates will receive a very warm reception."

Seventy-five To Join

According to President Barr, over seventy-five candidates have made known their intention to join the fraternity. This number, if accepted, will establish a new record for admittance into the organization.

Joseph Beittenmiller, temporary chairman of the Banquet Committee, reports that all is in readiness for the affair. Attractive decorations have been secured and a surprise program arranged. The list of speakers will include such notables as Dean Carl T. Humphrey, Paetrus Banmiller, President Barr, and a nationally known speaker, whose name must be kept secret until tonight. Many of the Alumni members of the Fraternity have assured Beittenmiller that they will be present to participate in the affair. It is expected that this year's Initiation and Banquet will be the most outstanding in the history of the Fraternity.

Follows Inter-Class Debating

The talk-fest is a continuation of the undertaking attempted in the year 1935-36 by the presentation of an inter-class debating tournament. Participation in the present talk-fest is not restricted to those students enrolled in the School of Arts. In fact, the latter students are least represented, one of seven speakers being an Artsman.

It will be noticed, therefore, that the talk-fest is intended primarily to enliven the spirit of speech-making in students others than those enrolled in the regular course of Public Speaking. This is a splendid opportunity for students in the Schools of Technology, Science, and Commerce and Finance to better their co-ordination of extemporaneous thought; to improve their presentation of such correlated thought, and to ameliorate their poise and equilibrium before an audience.

Connolly and Michael Garbaik; sophomore Arts: Thomas O'Mahoney, Harold Hart and Albert Holl; junior Arts: Walter Sheftic, Michael Hanna and John McKenna; freshman Technology: Daniel Fay, Harry Kunberger and Francis Hiney. The sophomore Technology students will be selected tomorrow morning.

From these twenty-five students, a group of six will be selected at the eliminations to represent Villanova College.

This is the first time that an intercollegiate spelling contest has been presented in Philadelphia, and it is hoped that such a contest will be of interest and of educational benefit to all concerned. The winning combination is to receive a cup, distinctive for its merit, and each member of the successful team will be presented with a medal for his ability.

spection of the several airplane manufacturers in the vicinity of Eastern Pennsylvania.

During the Christmas holidays president Wheeler attended the National Aviation Show in New York City. At the same time the club as a group attended the Philadelphia Air Show held in the Convention Hall. They were addressed by Commander Charles Rosendahl and Igor Sikorsky. Commander Rosendahl, who is in charge of the Lakehurst Naval Station, spoke on the future of zeppelins and Mr. Sikorsky spoke on the airplane of the future.

In order that they may hold their meetings and transact business in an aviation atmosphere the club is receiving bids from various airports for the use of their available facilities. One airport has offered its facilities, including a plane for the sole use of th eclub members.

During the past week contact has been made with the Intercollegiate Flying Association for a charter and national membership. This association provides material for discussion and at the same time keeps the club provided with up-to-date inventions and news.

The club is under the moderatorship of Mr. William Gorman, who has arranged for an airplane to be flown to the Villanova campus from a local airport in order that the club members may have their picture taken with the airplane for the Book Air.

Beta Gamma Meets St. Joseph's Team

This is one of the principal current topics being argued by collegiate debaters today, and, from all indications, both groups are well informed on the subject.

Yesterday afternoon the Beta Gamma debaters, represented by Frederic Waters and Joseph Alessandroni, engaged the forensic team of Temple University at 3.15 over station WIP. The first argument on the topic, Resolved: That the United States should agree with Europe to prohibit international shipment of arms was presented by Waters, Alessandroni, who was selected to replace William Corkill on the Beta Gamma team, presented the second argument and the rebuttal.

Beta Gamma will engage the debating group of Catholic University at Villanova on Monday, February 15, at 8.00 P. M. The question to be argued will be the intercollegiate debating topic regarding maximum hours and minimum wages of industry. President Differ, in regard to this contest states, "Advanced notice informs us that Catholic University has one of the finest teams ever assembled."

"Before I came over to this country an English cigarette appealed to me because it was firmly packed. In America I tried various popular brands looking for the same virtue. Lucky Strike led all the rest. And what's more—I soon discovered that Luckies were a light smoke and a positive joy to the throat."

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Marshall verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen, and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. BACK to the old pillar after two weeks of mental relaxation (no crax) and it seems good to get behind the typewriter again. The boys who performed so ably during my absence are to be congratulated.

Again the foul line bugaboo spoiled a perfectly good evening for the 'Cat basketeers. Working like a well oiled machine the quintet battered their way through an almost impregnable zone defense and sank shots that brought the crowd to its feet. However, facing the basket with no interference to sink a charity toss was a different matter. They just wouldn't go in. The lads from Geneva had the jinx by the tail though as their free flings swished through the cords as easily as if they had been made from the rim.

—V—

The Geneva players were all over the floor and their attitude was really commendable. A far cry from the usual run of "floor-walkers" who beef over the slightest decision that is not in their favor, the gentlemen from Geneva are really a credit to their institution.

—V—

The Ursinus game was all Villanova. At the beginning it looked like the 'Cats had too much to eat before the fray. Villanova was sluggish and half awake and the Bears had everything their own way for about five minutes. Then, the Main Liners woke up. The ball was swishing through the basket so fast that it looked like a practice session.

—V—

The new gymnasium at West Point was the scene of the Boxers' first appearance this season. A 4-4 tie was the result of the sluggers' earnest endeavors. Though the Army were the best of hosts to the home lads they didn't put any softies in the ring when the bouts came up.

—V—

A crowd of approximately 4000 witnessed the demonstration given by the fisticuffers. Mentzinger, according to most of the papers, won his match over Cadet Hull through a technical K.O. That was not the case. A short, beautifully timed left hook put out the lights for Hull, and the "ref" could have counted a hundred over the Cadet and it wouldn't have mattered. The Barksdale-Schull affair received the same comment in the papers. In the first round Schull was fighting by instinct alone. Barksdale, a heavy puncher and pride of the Army, tied a few on the home boy and put him in a comatose condition. The fight was stopped in the second. The Cat boxer, however, put up a grand battle and should be complimented.

—V—

It was a gala sports affair at West Point with basketball, fencing, swimming, boxing, polo, and a gym meet. A hockey game with Hamilton College was also a drawing card. The polo team defeated a similar aggregation from Harvard, 12-6, as the swimmers bowed to Brown University, 42-33. The Penn State gym team was defeated, as was the fencing team from the Saltus Club in New York.

The L. K. D. fraternity will meet the interns from the Bryn Mawr Hospital tonight. Although the Doctors may be older than the embryo physicians, it is my belief that they will hand the men from the science school a fine trimming. It really seems a shame that one more of the clan, Troncelliti, couldn't be in attendance in the Pre-med school. The quintet would then be a family affair. As it is now, the squad is composed of four of this illustrious name, and the rest of the fellows better save their carfare. Their chance of seeing action in this, the first game that a fraternity team ever played outside of the school walls is slight.

By H. J. BURNS

Villanova's poor foul-shooting came back to haunt them in the Geneva game last Saturday as the Covenanters handed the Wildcats a slight rebuff of 25-21. The foul-shooting really decided the issue as the total number of field goals of both teams at the end of the game was the same, but Geneva's seven fouls to Villanova's three were the points that won the game for them.

All through the game there was enough action to keep the spectators sitting on the edge of their seats right up to the final minute.

Geneva Primed

Geneva started off fast and scored five points before the Wildcats even knew that the game had started, but they quickly retrieved their equilibrium and shot through the almost impregnable Geneva zone defense for two field goals and a foul, which were all the points made in the first ten minutes of the game.

Geneva then went forward with their uncanny passwork and ran their score up to sixteen points when Captain Don Brennan, who did a superb job of holding them during the first half, let one drop through the hoop from the center of the floor, giving the Wildcats

INTERNES FACE SCIENCE SQUAD

Fray Marks Renewal of Fraternity Athletic Contests

For the first time in the history of Villanova College a Fraternity will represent itself in athletic contests with outside teams as well as marking the renewal of competition against athletic teams of the various clubs and fraternities on the campus.

This occasion will be inaugurated tonight when the basketball team representing the Lambda Kappa Delta, the Pre-Med organization, meets the Internes of the Bryn Mawr hospital. The game is scheduled for eight o'clock and will be played in the Gym of the Bryn Mawr public school.

According to rumors there will be a formidable outfit representing the would-be "Docs." Quoting their coach, Mario Troncelliti, who will not be able to participate because of a leg injury, "If the boys go in the ball game and play their best and give all they have I am sure that we will emerge from the fracas victorious."

Internes Strong

However, the Internes are not conceding any advantage to the College boys and are aiming to give their opponents plenty of opposition in this contest. Forming the bulwark of the Interne Quintet will be Dr. Howson and Dr. Stein at the wing positions. Dr. Rule will attempt to control the tap for the home team and Dr. Pennypacker

'CAT BOXERS MEET TEMPLE'S MITTMEN IN AWAY CONTEST

Mitten Hall Scene of Meet With Traditional Enemy Saturday

Back from the Army stronghold with honors divided, by virtue of a tie, the Villanova Boxing team, led by Tony Sala, Wildcat Intercollegiate light heavyweight champion, will engage the Temple Owls, traditional rivals, on the Cherry and White's home grounds next Saturday, February 13.

This will mark the last time Sala will lead a Villanova aggregation against the Broad Streeters. Tony has led three boxing teams and one football squad against the Owls.

One of the Villanova boxers, Eddie Kirk, who has a fine record in amateur contests, lost a very close decision to his Army opponent, and he will be out to get personal satisfaction at the expense of the Owls.

A determined band of brawny battlers will strive to pound out a victory over Temple, and give Tony Sala revenge for the 6-0 defeat his gridiron warriors suffered in the Owl's stadium last November.

Perhaps Sala will be forced to watch his team from a ringside, as Nick Luckas, 175 pound boxer, has left Temple's squad, and in all probability the Owls will forfeit at this weight. Or then again, Sala may go out of his class and fight

BUEK AND SHERLOCK REPORT FOR DAILY TRACK PRACTICES

Varsity Footballers Should Bolster Team in the Sprints

With the passing of exams and the retreat, interest in Track has jumped sky-high. Despite the adamant cold spell, new candidates have reported to begin extensive training for the coming campaign. The schedule has also begun to take a decided shape.

So far, manager Ed "Shipwreck" Kelly has booked dual meets with West Chester State Teachers and Franklin and Marshall on May 12 and 22, respectively. The meet with Temple is still pending. Encounters with other leading schools are hanging until suitable arrangements can be made. However, with the tracksters showing rapid form, a definite team entry will be made in the Penn Relays.

Pre-Season Casualties

Tom Cook, who was counted upon to enter the Millrose games in New York last Saturday night, is on the lay-off list due to a bad molar infection. Although his case is not reported to be very serious, it will be some time before he can again don his running togs. The only other casualty on the list is Ben Maloney, who is laid up with a bad cold; however, this has not stopped the veteran miler. He is seen daily traversing the cross-country course despite the brisk winds that play about him.

MENTZINGER WINS OVER CADET BY TECH. K. O.

Sala, Jarosik and Duffy Win Matches to Tie Soldiers

Army's Cadets came from behind in the last bout to tie Villanova's boxing team last Saturday afternoon in the former's gymnasium at West Point before a crowd of four-thousand.

The Wildcats started the afternoon badly when they lost the first three fights, but came back to win the next four to gain a 4-3 advantage. Pete Rodgers lost the deciding bout in a close match to the more experienced Coughlin of Army.

Vince Shugrue put up a good battle in the opening bout against Bess of Army, but lost the decision. George Shull, who fought in the 125-pound class dropped the next bout to the hard-hitting Barksdale by virtue of a technical knockout in the second round.

Eddie Kirk lost a three-round decision in the 135-pound division. Kirk took the lead in the first round and from all appearances won the bout, and the decision came as a surprise to everyone.

Mentzinger started the 'Cats off on their winning streak in the fourth bout. From the opening bell he tore into Hull, who was Rocky Mountain champion, and dropped him with a terrific left to the stomach to halt the bout after only one minute and thirty sec-

NATATORS SUNK BY ST. FRANCIS

Swimmers, Weakened by Illness, Downed by 42-27 Count

St. Francis' fine swimmers were aided and abetted by sickness last Saturday afternoon when they romped off to a 42-27 victory in the Wildcat tank.

This win by the boys from Brooklyn dashed Coach Mathieu's hopes for an undefeated season. However, with the return of the three stars to the line-up it is felt that the mermen will not again be downed by such a score.

All three were laid up by that dreaded enemy of all those that follow the natatorial art with any consistency, namely, sinus. This is Bill Leahy's second attack, he having gone through a seige last Spring. Captain Joe Duffy has also been afflicted before as has Charlie Timmins, who had been performing all season against the advice of his physician.

Booth, Leahy Star

The meet was not exactly one-sided, however, because mainly through the efforts of Wilmer Booth and Ed Leahy the score was only 23-22 against Villanova with only three events to go. At this point, the pressure became too great and Coach Doorar swimmers came home first in each remaining instance to clinch the meet.

Even with the full team at his disposal Coach Mathieu would have

Austin Upsets First-Half Champions in Close Fray; Alumni and Mendel Residents Other Winners in Week's Play

MENDEL TEAMS SHARE LEAGUE LEAD

By HENRY A. MAZZEI

Last Thursday night, the Mendel Day-Hops and Alumni quintets were returned victors in the Intramural Basketball League, while last Monday the Mendel Residents and Austin five won notable victories.

On Thursday, the Day-Hops won an overwhelming victory over the Mendel Residents, first-half champions, by the count of 26-14. The "Train-and Trolley" boys assumed a commanding lead at the start of the fray and never once relinquished it. Led by Beitenmiller and O'Connor, their two flashy forwards, the Day-Hops had little difficulty in penetrating the zone defense of the badly bewildered "Resies," who, incidentally, were playing without the services of their brilliant forward, Tim Waad. Waad contracted a severe case of grippe prior to the conteat, and was unable to participate in it. Bochetto and Donahue were the only "Resies" to perform with a fair degree of their usual ability.

Day-Hops Tie Residents

By virtue of this victory, the Day-Hops went into a tie for first-place with the Residents, who did not perform with one iota of their former finesse. The Commuters displayed a very fine offense and were decidedly on the rebound from their sorry showing against the Austin outfit earlier in the week.

In the second encounter of the evening, the Alumni five returned to the win column as a result of a 32-29 win over the ill-fated Austin five. This clash was a seesaw affair in which both outfits displayed some very brilliant basketball. "Cookie" Cuskey, Ralph Florette and "Whitey" Bradshaw, with eleven, ten and nine points respectively, were the bright lights for the Frosh, while Sheftic and Dwyer, with ten and nine points respectively, were the stars of the Austins.

Austin Upsets Day-Hops

Meanwhile last Monday night, the Austin club shocked the entire student body by upsetting the powerful Mendel Day-Hop five, 25-18. This contest was a wild affair in which long shots predominated, and while it was not very skillfully contested, it was very thrilling.

When seemingly beaten, the Austins flashed a terrific offense, which enabled them to spurt far beyond the apparently safe lead the Commuters had built up. Conti and Sheftic led this attack, and along with Goumy, were the aces of the contest. Incidentally, this was Austin's first win in the second half and that it should come at the expense of the Day-Hops was very surprising, to say the least.

Alumni Routed

In the nightcap of the evening the two freshmen halls, Mendel and Alumni, clashed in an encounter that was supposed to produce fireworks. Instead of the hot clash that was expected, the game was a complete rout for the Mendel residents, who won by the score of 24-18. The score is no indication of the closeness of the encounter, however, because the "Greenies" did not threaten until the closing minutes of the game, when the Mendel reserves were participating in the fray.

Vic Sandor and Tim Waad, the 'mighty mites' of the Resident quint, led the attack with nine and six points respectively. Joe Bochetto, lanky center man of the Resies, once again demonstrated his value to the team as a result of his stellar floorwork. Ralph Florette was high for the Alumni outfit with seven points.

Alumni will go to the wars again next Monday when they meet the Fedigans in the first contest on Monday night. Austin and Mendel will meet in the nightcap. On Tuesday night the Alumni and Mendel Residents will clash in their return encounter, while the Fedigan outfit and the Mendel Day-Hops meet in the second clash of the evening.

ST. JOSEPH'S THE CREAM

Buek and Sherlock Report for Track

is among the many new-comers who have reported for daily drills. Harvey specializes in the sprints and the low hurdles. Spectators at the gridiron games last Fall can attest to the fact that he has plenty of speed. Many of his touchdowns were made on wide end sweeps that depended on fast footwork.

Another moleskinner who aims to go places in the sprints is Jerry Sherlock. He has everything that a speedster requires—stamina, power and pace. His big, strapping frame should cross many a finish line first. Hack Donovan, Bill Cleary and Bob Daniello are practicing for the distance events.

Donovan and Cleary, particularly, have shown much improvement since they have taken to the track events seriously. Both are the heavy and durable type who should pack some extra punch at the tape. Daniello is stressing his work in the half-mile field in company with Maloney and Jim Lyons.

Higgins Shaping Up

Charlie Higgins is coming around fine and appears to be near tip-top shape for both the prospective indoor meets as well as the outdoor frays. An ordinarily happy-go-lucky chap, Charlie has really taken his training to heart. He runs five miles every morning with the flaticuffers; and then after a busy day in the classroom he hustles down to the gym and tops off the day with a variety of gruelling exercises.

At first glance Higgins may lead one astray and think that he is another "also ran," but after watching him in action one is convinced that he has what it takes to be a trackman. His opponents will find the going tough when they are matched with him, and not being too optimistic, Charlie should often bring home the bacon.

Coach Jim Elliott has done double duty lately. Besides helping the candidates along, he has become a candidate himself in big time. Competing for the Penn A. C., Jim was entered in the mile relay at the Millrose games last Saturday. In his college days Jim was a better than average quarter-miler. In his senior year, he held the Eastern Intercollegiate title in that event.

FROSH BASEBALL MEETING

Tomorrow afternoon, Wednesday, February 10, at 1 P. M., the Freshman baseball squad will hold their initial meeting of the year. All candidates for the squad are expected to report to Coach "Doc" Jacobs in room 104 Mendel Hall. Practice for batterymen will probably begin on or about February 20.

Wildcats Beaten In Close Contest

the momentum to tie the Genevans 16-16 at half-time.

In the second half, Geneva's zone defense, which had relaxed considerably, letting the Villanovans break through to score repeatedly, tightened like a steel wall and held the Villanova team to two field goals.

Not much scoring was made in the first fifteen minutes of the second half; both teams had scored a goal and a foul shot, tying the score 19-19 with but five minutes to go. Villanova won the ball outside and carried it down to the Geneva basket but failed to sink it. Fred Mlianovich, who had been a thorn in the side of the Villanova team all night grabbed it and dribbled down to the Villanova basket to make it 21-19. Geneva won the ball on the toss-up and ran it up to the Wildcat basket to score two more points.

Villanova then gained possession of the ball after the toss-up and Johnny Krutlis sank a beautiful shot from mid-court. Geneva next got the ball and Hurley made the basket which decided the final score, 25-21.

'Cats Panicky

Toward the end of the game Villanova, in desperation, began throwing the ball helter-skelter in a vain effort to even the score but to no avail against the still vigilant Genevans.

Don Brennan played the best ball for the Wildcats and made three excellent shots from the middle of the floor. Lou Dubino, sophomore center, also played a game of basketball par excellence.

Villanova, rallying late in the first half, would have won out had they used the same strategy later in the game that they used in this rally. Beating the zone back they scored time and time again with a fast break. Geneva, weakened by a hard schedule, was tiring quickly but Villanova did not pursue its advantage, instead they lapsed into a slow, ineffectual attack.

Villanova Swamps Ursinus

Following an uneventful first half, the Villanova's basketball men set the Ursinus Bears back on their heels to the tune of 39-14 last Tuesday night in the Main Line gym.

The first fifteen minutes was left entirely in the hands of the Collegeville hoopsters with Villanova scoring but three points. They eventually regained control of themselves and managed to put down the attacks of the inspired Bears, making the score 13-9 at half-time.

From that point on, the Wildcats showed their superiority over their opponents by sinking the sphere in the bucket for an average of one every two minutes for the rest of the game, meanwhile holding the Ursinus team down to only five points in the final period. Their furious scoring attack and indestructible defense completely baffled Ken Hashagen's boys and left them on the floor flat-footed.

Lou Wanamaker, flashy forward substitute, was the starting scorer and gave the team its point scoring momentum. Harry McNally, Lou Dubino, who was absent in the first minutes of the game because of an eye injury, and Jim Montgomery were the high scorers with Dubino leading with nine points.

At times during the second half of this point-grabbing spree, the Villanova courtmen really seemed endowed with miraculous powers. Their passing attack was one of the best seen this year and was easily the ultimate in passwork that they have shown this season. Employing repeatedly the use of a double pivot, the Main Liners smashed through the defense for frequent bucket shots and gradually pulled the game from a lukewarm contest to a first-calss massacre with the Ursinus aggregation coming out on the short end of the final tabulation.

By PAT VASSALLUZZO

PULL up to the curb! Let's see your license! . . . But officer, I wasn't doing over thirty—why hello Don! Boy, wouldn't it be swell, when you're just about sure you're going to get a ticket, to find that the big "copper" on the motorcycle is an old friend, for instance, Don Brennan?

Since it is customary, however, to look into the past, when honoring an athlete via the limelight, we will leave the future to take care of itself and delve into the very interesting past of one Donald Francis Brennan, the Villanova athlete, who is a New York State Trooper, during the summer months.

A native son (attention, Mr. Landon) of Pennsylvania, Don was born in Carbondale, about 15 miles from Scranton, on December 14, 1912. His nativity caused such an uproar that only two years later all Europe became engulfed in one of the fiercest conflicts ever staged, the World War. Shakespeare would say, "Much Ado About Nothing"; but we are inclined to disagree with him.

One month in Pennsylvania was all that young Donald could bear; for after that time the Brennan family migrated to the Empire State, and made their permanent abode there.

Just as soon as Don reached the age of reason (it's usually reached at the age of seven, but we know it doesn't apply to everyone—we're not hinting at anything), well anyway, at the age oof seven, Don was enrolled at P. S. No. 7, in New York City, where he completed the requirements in the customary time (P. S. means Public School.)

Like all other good boys, Don went directly to high school. After four years at Evander Childs High School, in N. Y. C., Brennan received his diploma; but not before he had made quite a name for himself, both as a scholar and an athlete. At that time Don had not yet reached the height and weight he now carries around (6 ft. 3 in.—180 lbs.); but he was big enough both in body and spirit to go in for sports. Brennan was a three-letter man in high school, playing three years of baseball, basketball, and football.

Don's splendid work as pivot man on the basketball team won the esteem of his teammates, for he was elected to lead the quintet in his senior year. We hear, too, that it was mainly through Brennan's fine handling of the "keystone sack," that Evander Childs won the Bronx Divisional Sectional Championship in 1932. To top it all, "our State Trooper" received the P. S. Athletic Award in his senior year, to finish in a blaze of glory. This award is a medal given to the outstanding athlete and scholar.

In September, following his graduation from high school, Don matriculated at Fordham, in the School of Science. Here he played Frosh basketball and football, dropping baseball. As a sophomore, however, he dropped football, too, concentrating on his favorite sport, basketball. Brennan made the varsity squad and became the regular guard.

At the end of that year, however, Brennan decided to make a change. He wished to attend some college away from home. He showed good judgment when he chose Villanova. So, in September, of '34, he entered the Main Line institution.

Don played frosh basketball here, but became ill with rheumatism from January to March, during which time he was out of school. Thus it is that our Don graduates in '37 instead of '36.

Last season, as a junior, Brennan played varsity basketball at the pivot position. Although the quintet had a very poor season as a whole, Don's game was superb.

This year the Villanova quintet adopted the system of appointing a captain for each game. To date Don Brennan has lead the team in every game, and the squad is enjoying one of its most successful seasons.

Brennan has employed his summers as life-guard or as a policeman. Don was a life-guard at the Rye Country Club, in Rye, N. Y., for two years. The following summer, he was a New York State Park Policeman in Wildwood State Park, Long Island, last summer, Don became a New York State Trooper, attached to Troup L, Babylon, L. I. At the end of the summer he obtained a leave of absence to return to Villanova for a degree.

Upon graduation in June, Brennan will receive the degree of B. S. in Biology. He tells us he intends to return to the State Police, and at the same time enter St. John's Law School, in Brooklyn.

Lots of luck, Don! And don't you ever try "pulling" in any of your friends for speeding or any other traffic violations, or we will get "Carlos" after you.

FRIDAY NIGHT — STAGE SHOW

Here and There

By WILLIAM BOWKER

LAST Friday the general student body of Villanova College was treated to the sight of Tom Furey and Sam Brown easterday, Friday noon repast on the snow-covered, wind-swept plains of Mendel field. Needless to say, the lads are engineers.

Among the week's heroes of the campus "Durable Mike" Malloy ranks highest.

His noble efforts to evade the grim reaper despite the efforts of three of his friends, as told in last week's "Gang Busters" program, has won the admiration of all Main Line students. Second to the long-living lmbiber in the line of heroic figures is "Jungle Jim" Montgomery, so called because of his penchant for a certain wooded portion of Bryn Mawr. His classmates greet him appropriately with Tarzan calls and similar vocal jungle effects.

After reading and hearing of the recent Louis-Pastor fiasco we wonder, as often before, why the American sport public patronizes the professional fight game, especially in the heavyweight divisions. It seems to us that much more excitement is to be found in amateur or collegiate boxing. In the former, the lads, if not full of ring lore, are certainly willing to mix it up. As to collegiate fighting, the main drawback is that the spectator must contain his enthusiasm during the progress of the rounds, but the class of boxing is far superior, it seems, than such a footrace between Bob and Joe in the Garden two Fridays ago. Especially when tickets range up to ten and twenty dollars, and oftentimes, more, in price. The boxing promoters certainly rely on Barnum's famous statement.

Don Mackowski, who disappointed us by not starring in basketball, is certain to show up for baseball, as he has often expressed a love for the sport. The Bradford Flash, next to football manager Bill Burke, is the hardest man to rout out of bed of a morning.

Dominick "Pat" Pascucci, the South Philly battler, expressed a willingness to mix it up with any comers. "I'm willing to put on the mittens with anybody," were his words. Those wishing to oblige this ambitious fisticuffer see his manager, Bill Slaughter.

Snow has come at last, and with it the possibility of the lads having some fun sliding down the hills on the campus, using the dining room trays as sleds, as was the practice last year.

Carrying on valiantly where Norbert Ford, the columnist's Godsend last week, dropped the stick, is a fellow columnist, who spent from forty-five minutes to an hour crooning to the young person on the other end of the wire. Something tells me that the person wasn't masculine: "Pennies From Heaven" was the tune, wasn't it, Joe?

According to reports, Charlie Noonan, former Blue and White court luminary, is doing well in professional basketball. On a quick change of subject, we wonder why the Insurance majors in the Business school are having so much trouble reading during class. They seem to have trouble controlling their risible muscles. And in closing, there was nothing more neglected that the little black dog which happened to wnader into the Stocks class last Friday with "Clipper" Monahan. No one paid any attention to it, strange to say. Lou Biester was the boy scout who let the forgotten creature out.

HAWKS LISTED AS 1937 LINKS FOES

Tentative Golf Schedule to Include 16 Matches During Spring

St. Joseph's College will renew golf relations with Villanova during the 1937 Spring season after a lapse of four years, according to John B. Geraghty, Jr.

The Hawks' match will take place during the last week in April, playing a six-man team.

Several other matches are being tentatively arranged, but the schedule will not be complete before March. The golfers will play a 16 match schedule, with the first match postponed from March to the first week in April.

In previous years, the golf schedule usually opened on the third week in May, but due to the unusually early date upon which Easter falls this year, it is necessary to advance the entire schedule two weeks.

Among the opponents to be met this season will be Temple, University of Delaware, University of Pennsylvania, Lafayette and Haverford.

The golfers will tour northern Pennsylvania, if arrangements can be made, in May, with opponents including St. Thomas, Lehigh and a home match with Lafayette.

Candidates for the team will be called out early in March, with qualifying rounds held before the Easter holidays. As Villanova is not a member of the Eastern Intercollegiate League, freshmen are eligible for the varsity golf team.

ERNIE NEVERS KEPT

Lafayette has signed Ernie Nevers as football coach for this year. Rumors were that the Leopard athletic authorities had not renewed his contract, due to the mediocre showing of the pigskin squad last season.

and Dr. Clammer will form the main part of the Interne defense. Dr. Kehres and Dr. Fritz are the other two members of the team and although they are the reserve strength of the home team they will see action.

Coach Troncelliti has not announced the starting lineup but he intends to use every available man in the tussle. Those scheduled to play are Manrico and "Eddie" Troncelliti, "Pat" Linguiti, Rene Caillliet, Tom Maye, John Urie, "Jerry" Piscreria and Andrew Conti.

experienced considerable difficulty in overcoming the two fine men possessed by the Brooklyn team, Charlie Schram and Nat Ephriam.

Both of these fin-men splashed down the last lap in the lead on two occasions besides swimming a leg on the winning relay team. Ephriam started off his field day by winning the first event, the 50-yd. freestyle, in the fast time of 25.4 seconds.

The high spot of his day's work occurred in the 100-yd. freestyle race when he touched out his teammate Jack Farrell for first honors. This marked his first victory over Farrell in two years of team rivalry.

onds of the first round. Previous to this match, Hull had eight straight knockouts to his credit.

Bill Duffy continued the winning when he won handily over Harrison of the Army in the 155-pound class. Duffy took command of the situation in the first round and was not in the slightest trouble throughout the entire bout.

Jack Jarosik then came through with the surprise of the afternoon by defeating Luper, Army's candidate for inter-collegiate honors. Jarosik was slow starting, but came out strong in the second round and pounded Luber steadily to take the decision. Jack looked very good and seems to be back in his regular form. If he continues to fight as he did against Luper, he will be among the favorites to take his division in the inter-collegiates at Syracuse next month.

Captain Tony Sala had a comparatively easy time of it with Haska, Army's light-heavyweight. Like Duffy, Sala took the lead from the start and carried Haska for the last two rounds. Tony received a great ovation at the end of the bout for his sportsmanship. Sala's victory put Villanova ahead for the first time in the afternoon and left the deciding point up to Rodgers.

Rodgers came out in the opening round and caught Coughlin a solid right in the mid-section that almost stopped the fight. Coughlin made a spendid comeback to take the second round. The third round was hard-fought and very close. The bout was difficult to decide and the judges gave it to Coughlin.

Tommy Kennedy, Wildcat manager, remarked particularly about the wonderful treatment shown the team during their stay at West Point. Coach Ray Gadsby hopes to have a return match with the Cadets next year and continue relations with the Point in other sports.

Summaries:

RAY GADSBY

Discusses the Recent Army Boxing Meet

VILLANOVA'S BOXERS have passed their first milestone in a difficult schedule, and their performance was, on the whole, satisfactory, although a victory over Army would have been much more preferable to the draw we received. The boys fought well, but it was not in the books for us to score a complete victory.

Vince Shugrue, in losing to "Sarge" Bess, showed himself to be a smart man in ring generalship, and in the future should come along nicely and get us some points. While he did not defeat his opponent he gave a good account of himself.

Next on the program was the Barksdale-Schull bout with the Army Captain hammering the Villanovan in the first round so that I thought it better not to send him in for the second round. Barksdale is a terrific puncher, and it is no disgrace to Schull that he was unable to continue the bout.

Victory number three came for the soldiers when Eddie Kirk lost the decision to Shanley, in the 135-lb. class. It seemed to me that Eddie clearly outpointed the Cadet, but the judges thought differently. This was the only poor decision made in the entire meet, according to our way of thinking. The whole Villanova squad was disappointed.

Wildcat hopes were revived when Harry Mentzinger scored the major surprise of the evening by getting a technical knockout over Army's Hull, who was expected to win easily. Hull is a fast and hard puncher, and in defeating him, Mentzinger showed that he can be relied upon in coming meets.

Bill Duffy, after a very stormy first round, displayed a brand of aggressiveness that was pleasing to watch and sufficient to give him the decision over Harrison, Army 155-pounder. It was mainly this aggressive manner of fighting that won him the judges' nod.

In the 165-lb. class, the Wildcats tied the count when Jack Jarosik won in unimpressive fashion from Luper, who, incidentally, was expected to fight Tony Sala. Jarosik, in this battle, showed that he has not yet fully rounded into shape, and that he will have plenty of work to do to get up to his last year's form.

Tony Sala, in winning his bout, also won the admiration of all present by his gentlemanly conduct in carrying his opponent, Hoska, to the end of the three rounds, when he easily could have finished him off sooner. For those unacquainted with the ethics of college boxing, gentlemanliness is of prime importance, and such an attitude as Tony displayed toward his foe is appreciated by the followers of the college ring game. All the spectators, and there were many, were outspoken in their appreciation of Sala's courtesy.

In the final bout, Pete Rodgers, after trouncing the Army heavyweight soundly in the first round, lost the bout when the soldier came back strongly in the next two rounds to end the match with four victories for each squad.

Although we did not come home with a victory, I am well satisfied with the performance the boys put on, and as to the treatment accorded us by the Army officials, none but words of praise can be used. If possible, I would like to arrange another meet with the West Pointers next year. As regards to the attendance, no complaint is possible. It seemed as though the entire school was there, and they were gentlemen all. Army officials and athletic directors complimented the Villanova squad on their showing and upon their gentlemanly behavior while at the Point. Bill Cavanaugh, Army boxing coach, stated that we had a well-rounded squad, and should go places.

Next week is the Temple meet, and intense preparation is necessary, for although the Owls lost to Bucknell recently, past records mean nothing when the Wildcat meets the Broad Streeter.

'Cat Boxers Meet Temple Mittmen

heavyweight; which he has done before.

Temple's team names William Komber, 115; Lou Rubenstein, 125; Bill Pullen, 135; Tony Guida, 145; Jerry Vendetti, 155; Eddie Mulhern, 165; and Stan Gurzinski, one of the Owl's football heroes in their recent victory over Villanova, fights heavyweight.

Last season Coach Gadsby's boys trounced the Owls by a 5-3 margin. Jack Jarosik and Vince Schugrue are the only Wildcats' back that engaged in that meet, Sala winning by forfeit. Jarosik knocked Timmons of Temple through the ropes in the second round to score a K. O.; while Schugrue lost the decision to Nick Glenn.

CARNEGIE INSTITUTE PLANS TO ABANDON BIG TIME FOOTBALL

Expense Given as Reason for Move; Kern Appointed Coach

Pittsburgh, Pa.—(ACP)—The Carnegie Institute of Technology cannot afford "big-time" football and has set in motion a new athletic policy, it has been announced by its president, Dr. Robert E. Doherty.

Simultaneously, Pres. Doherty named William A. Kern, former first assistant to "Jock" Sutherland, football coach at the University of Pittsburgh, head coach.

A prepared statement by the president said:

"The Carnegie Institute of Technology plans to leave big-time football. It is too expensive. Like a number of other institutions, Carnegie Tech has observed with deep concern the mounting deficit which its athletic association has had to face during the past few years in its effort to maintain against serious handicaps a first class football team.

"The high entrance requirements, severe class schedules and rigid scholastic standards insisted upon by the institution have made the task of maintaining such a team next to impossible; and without it the result has been the income of the athletic association has been inadequate for the purpose.

"However, the institution desires to conform to the practice of most colleges in the matter in the control of athletics."

"Slide-Rule" Sage Reveals Facts About Badger Cigarette Smokers

Madison, Wis.— (ACP)—The University of Wisconsin's "Slide-rule Sage," who gained national prominence by calculating that Badger co-eds use enough lipstick in a year to cover a barn, is making his rule say queer things again.

Aldro Lingard has discovered that the university heating plant would use 23 tons less coal a year if students smoked in the buildings. (The fire hazard bans smoking.) Ninety-one percent of the heat value would come from cigarrettes and the remainder from pipes.

Doing some more serious "sliding," Aldro found that Badgerites spend $241,000 for cigarettes and $9500 for pipe tobacco a year .

"Most people," he said, "take about 12 puffs per cigarette, and the average volume of a puff is about .2 cubic inches. In one year the student body inhales about 63,000 cubic feet of smoke. Pipe smokers take in another 12,000 cubic feet. This is the volume of a room 60 feet square and 18 feet high.

"The energy content of all the tobacco is about 150,000,000,000,000 calories. If all that heat energy could be converted into mechanical energy 100 per cent., there would be 465 pounds of it, which would be enough to run escalators up the hill for about five years.

"Apparently, however, students would rather blow smoke around in people's faces than ride up the hill in comfort all year around," he concluded sticking the slide-rule in his boot, engineer fashion.

COLLEGE GROUPS FORM NEW LAW ASSOCIATION

Six Eastern Schools Band Together to Discuss Current Problems

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—In order to deal more effectively with legal, ethical, social and economic problems that confront law students, the American Law Students Association has been formed by students from six eastern law schools.

Institutions represented are Columbia University, New York University, St. Johns University and Brookyln Law School in New York City, and Harvard and Yale.

Chief topic of interest for its members is the conomic difficulties that will be barriers for them as law clerks and young lawyers. However, no definite stand was taken on minimum wages for law clerks.

The group has voted in favor of taking "adequate steps, in conjunction with bar associations, law school faculties, and other legal groups, to improve the economic well-being of law students, law clerks, and young attorneys."

HECKLING ADVISED

"Among the American plains-Indians, horseplay, teasing, practical jokes and satirical remarks are encouraged. These customs serve to organize hostility in a socially useful way." Dr. Frederick Eggan, University of Chicago anthropologist, recommends the prod of heckling.

University Gives Instruction in Latest Developmental Technique

Students at Lehigh University have become camera conscious this year with the organization of a course in photography in connection with the journalism instruction provided for the student newspaper, "The Brown and White." The class has had to be divided into two sections.

The student semi-weekly has equipped a dark room and purchased a miniature camera for use of this photographic staff. Judson L. Schaeffer, assistant in journalism, whose hobby for years has been photography, is the instructor. Students are required to master developing and printing technique and to learn to take pictures under the varied conditions which newspaper photographers face.

Each member of the class is on call for assignment by the photographic editor of "The Brown and White." The newspaper thus has been able to cover pictorially all types of student activities, including sports, dramatics, debating, music, pledgings by honorary fraternities, dances, pep rallies and a variety of feature news.

Photographs produced by the class are also made available to the student monthly magazine and to the yearbook. The result has increased interest in publication work generally as well as increased interest in photography.

N. Y. A. STUDENTS SURVIVE SLASHING OF GOVT. PROJECTS

School Aid One of Few Not Hit by Economy Move

College students who receive financial aid from the NYA have been fortunate their number has not been reduced as has the number on work-relief projects. Hundreds of thousands of WPA workers have been taken from relief rolls because of a shortage of funds to operate the projects. However, there has been no such move initiated with regard to students receiving college aid, despite the fact that the money for both work-relief and college aid comes from the same fund.

In November, the latest month for which figures are available, the National Youth Administration gave financial aid to more than 127,000 college students. Of this number, some 4700 were graduate students and the remainder undergraduates.

While relief workers have been reduced, the number of NYA college students has apparently increased. Complete data on January, the current month, has not been assembled in final form, but it looks as if there will be a substantial increase in the number of college-aid students.

It would appear from these facts that the Powers-That-Be will cut the NYA college activities only as a last resort, after all other sources of economy have been exhausted.

Rev. Pierre Teilhard de Chardin Chosen Recipient of Mendel Medal

NOTED PALEONTOLOGIST IS INTERNATIONALLY FAMOUS

Has Spent Last Quarter Century in Asia Studying Ancient Man

Rev. Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, Jesuit missionary to China and renowned paleontologist, will be the recipient of the Mendel Medal for 1937, it was announced today by Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College. Father Chardin recently received the approval of the executive committee in charge of the coveted award.

The Mendel Medal, which commemorates the work of the great Augustinian monk Gregor Mendel, is awarded annually to to the outstanding Catholic in the field of science.

Internationally Famous

Dr. Chardin is internationally known for his work in paleontology in Asia where he has devoted himself to the study of ancient man for the past quarter century. From time to time he has been associated with several expeditions into the heart of Asia. Chief among them is his trip into Mongolia with Roy Chapman. Second to this is his trip with the Chinese-Swedish group and the Yale group into North India.

The greatest achievement of Dr. Chardin in the field of science is his proving that the antiquity of man dates back to the early ice region.

PLANS FOR DANCE NEARLY COMPLETED

Connecticut Club Officers, Social Chairman Presage Highly Successful Affair

Extensive plans have already been formulated and are rapidly nearing completion for the annual Easter dance to be sponsored by the Connecticut Club of Villanova according to a statement made by the Dance Chairman, Harry Luzzie, at the last meeting of the organization, which occurred on the evening of Tuesday, February 9.

Several places suitable for such an occasion have been considered up to this time, but in all probability the social affair will take place at the Pavillion Royale located at West Haven, Connecticut. The date is, however, definitely settled as being the Monday following Easter Sunday, March 29.

Alumni Get Invitations

Invitations have been recently extended to those alumni of the college who have resided in the Nutmeg State. Up to this time, no word of affirmation or negation has been received as a result of having posted these invitations. It is with a certain degree of confidence concerning the successful outcome of the affair, however, that Chairman Luzzie wishes to announce that favorable returns have been made to him by present students and members of the organization.

It was announced by President J. Benedict Maloney that a new vice president and treasurer would necessarily have to be chosen at the next meeting, to be held tonight at seven o'clock, in order to fill vacancies in the administrative body of the club. It is necessary, therefore, that all members be present for this reason and, also, in order to discuss further the details of the Easter Dance.

At the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Student Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers a motion made by Norman Cotter, '37, that an open meeting to which various student chapters of the vicinity would be invited to attend was seconded and passed. The open meeting would serve as a round table discussion on the different functions as perpetrated by the several chapters.

Professor J. Stanley Morehouse, faculty adviser to the society, also announced that a talking motion picture of Diesel Engine Construction and Operation will be shown at the next meeting of the chapter. Prof. Morehouse has extended an invitation to all those who are interested in this motion picture to attend the meeting at which it will be shown.

FIRST ANNUAL P. K. P. AWARD TENDERED TO PROF. WM. A. SLAVIN

Popular Instructor of Electrical Engineering Honored at Banquet, Initiation

FIFTY ACCEPTED TO GROUP

William A. Slavin, assistant professor of Electrical Engineering and a member of the Class of 1933, was the recipient of the First Annual Phi Kappa Pi Fraternity Award, given on Tuesday evening, February 9, on the occasion of the fraternity's annual initiation and banquet. The award was recently created by the fraternity and will be given each year to a Villanova engineering graduate who by his personality, scholastic achievement, and interest in Villanova's activities will have done the most to further the cause of Villanova Engineering Students.

Banmiller Addresses Group

Besides Professor Slavin's impromptu address in which he encouraged the student gathering to face the world with courage on the basis of the solid foundation nurtured by the course which Villanova offers, there were other addresses, among which was the featured address delivered by Paetrus F. Banmiller, college registrar, and former Editor of the VILLANOVA ENGINEER. Mr. Banmiller stressed the practicability of a student's participation in extra-curricula activities and urged the undergraduates, the freshmen in particular, to take an active part in the school publications and other such activities that will increase one's versatality and make him better fitted for his life's profession.

L. K. D. FRATERNITY HEARS LECTURE BY DR. G. B. SALISBURY

Prominent Philadelphia Dentist Addresses Group at Regular Meeting

WARNS OF MOUTH DISEASES

Lecturing at length on the care and treatment of mouth diseases, Dr. Gregory B. Salisbury, prominent Philadelphia dentist, addressed a gathering of pre-medical students at the regular meeting of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity held last Thursday evening in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre.

In general, the discussion consisted of a survey of the mouth proper, its care, and various comments on the patient's viewpoint of a dentist as well as dental progress in research. Dr. Salisbury explained to the pre-medics that the dental profession has rapidly grown from one of purely mechanical work to a profession immense in its research and its aid to the health of the human body. In this explanation was incorporated the thought that some of the most important progress in medical science was achieved by the research and discoveries of dentists. Supreme in such work was the discovery of general anaesthesia.

Warns of Dentrifices

Included in his discussion of the general care of the mouth, Dr. Salisbury explained that many dentrifices now on the market and widely publicized are detrimental to health and give rise to secondary defects. "Also mouth washes," said Dr. Salisbury, "may be prepared by individuals for their own use at a price much cheaper than the retail price, and at the same time more benefit derived." Another interesting fact that he brought out was the importance of chang-

CLUB HEARS FR. MAHONEY

Priest Speaks To Spanish Group Concerning Nation's Art

Members of the Spanish Club of Villanova have been working for some time on a Spanish play to be given some time in the near future. It has not yet been decided if this play will be given for the members of the club alone or for anyone interested in seeing it.

Rev. Jerome A. Mahoney, O.S.A., professor of Spanish in the college, spoke at the last meeting of the group. The chief topic of Father Mahoney's address was the art and beauty of old Spain. He particularly contrasted the Spain of Alfonso with the present-day war-torn country.

At the next meeting of the group, each member of the club will turn in letters written in Spanish. These will be corrected by the moderator and president and returned to their authors.

HON. BERNARD KELLY ADDRESSES SOCIETY

Noted Attorney Reveals Experiences to Holy Name Gathering

Hon. Bernard Kelly, Esq., Deputy Attorney-General of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, gave a very interesting talk last Sunday to the members of the Holy Name Society, at their monthly Communion breakfast.

Mr. Kelly, a graduate of the United States Naval Academy in 1917, served eight years in the Navy, including service on the battleship U.S.S. California. After resigning from active service he attended the University of Pennsylvania where he studied law.

Relates Experiences

Life at the Naval Academy and his sea experiences were the main points of Mr. Kelly's address. In describing the activities of the Academy he brought out that there was no religious discrimination. A man upon entering the school is required to choose the religious service he prefers to attend. Catholics by far hold the majority, according to Mr. Kelly. He found this quite evident during his service as Lieutenant on the battleship California, at which time while serving as officer of the deck he was required to report the number of men who attended religious services. On the day the Protestant services were held, about 14 or 15 out of the ship's 1400 men were present. On the other hand at the Catholic services there were usually about 400 or 500, and of this number quite a few were non-Catholics. Included in his talk was a resume of the unique system of

MEXICO'S TRIUMPH

MEXICAN Catholics, beaten into submission for so many years, have risen up in rebellion, have reopened long closed churches and have defied the Mexican government. Contrary to the majority of expectations there were no repercussions by the government. In fact President Cardenas even went so far as to release all those prominent Catholics who have been jailed so long for their religion. He has also permitted exiled Catholic hierarchy to return to their native land.

With Monsignor Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, archibishop of Michoacan and Apostolic delegate to Mexico, back in his rightful position and with the release of many other prominent Catholics such as General Felix Diax, Rene Garza and General Gonzalo Escobar the outlook for the future of our southern neighbor is very bright.

This sudden reform is only another indication of the mighty power of the Catholic church. For centuries the land of the Aztecs has been overwhelmingly Catholic, and the recent developments have shown that it is more than impossible for any earthly government to believe that they can possibly crush forever the fire of faith.

The Mexican government has found that their former action against the church was altogether wrong, for the greater majority of the people disagreed with their policies. It is because of this then than they submissively allowed the churches to be re-opened and allowed exiled Catholics to return to the scenes of their former labors.

It seems that the actions of Catholics in Mexico would cause Hitlerian Germany to beware. Germany, like Mexico, has long been a Catholic country. The rebellion in Mexico was bloodless. Let us hope that the unfair treatment of German Catholics may be settled peaceably by the concurrence of the German church and the German state. Let us hope that Hitler will view the conditions in Mexico and realize that he with all his power can never hope to overthrow the Catholic church.

CONSTITUTIONAL CRISIS?

AMID the hustle and bustle of city life, amidst the rushing life that is so characteristic of Washington, men are girding themselves with swords—political, intellectual, and legal—for the coming struggle for constitutional power.

Nine old men, sitting on the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States, have received from the President of the United States word that they represent a day that has passed. By attaching to these old men the so-called stigma of old age, by pointing them out as enemies of social progress, the present Administration has led many to believe that a change is necessary in the Supreme Court if social progress is to be assured. Spokesmen of the Administration point to a series of so-called anti-social decisions rendered by this Court, concluding that it is reactionary and un-progressive.

But we do believe that the Administration should concentrate efforts at writing laws into the books that are sound, constitutional, and truly constructive. The N. I. R. A. fell because it was hastily and sloppily drawn up. Other acts have met with the same fate for the same reason. The problem of social reconstruction is a great one, and it requires years of research and study. A nation is not "re-formed" in one year.

Before we start reforming the Supreme Court, we should exhaust all other sources, for those nine old men sitting down in Washington have rendered to the people of this country a great service. During the period of stress existing at the time of the depression, the people of America, through their representatives, were inclined to rush through laws which, in the long view, would have altered the American tradition in government.

Certainly, many of the condemned acts of the Administration, viewed impartially without any preconceptions, would have tended to socialize American socialeconomic life. We do not mean that America is "going communistic," but the trend to socialization is leading into water that might prove to be too deep for democracy.

Therefore, we believe that the attack on the Supreme Court is ill-timed and unwise. History may yet ascribe to those nine old men a more important place than to the leaders of the Democratic reform Administration. Such are the curious workings of Providence.

REBELLION OR REVOLUTION

THE forceful entry and occupation of a number of closed churches by the people of Orizaba, in protest against the cold blooded murder of a young girl, slain by a policeman during a raid upon a secret religious service, grimly recalls to mind the fact that the deplorable conditions that have so long existed in Mexico still continue. This murder in the name of government serves to remind us how close to home is the tyrannical abuse of power that invariably prevails when certain fanatical groups of world reformers are permitted to seize control of a country under the guise of administering it for the public good.

It has always been easy for those who live in well ordered communities, protected by constitutional right, to proclaim the necessity of effecting governmental changes only by due process of law. But where there is no law but violence, no order but the seriate ranks of one's oppressors, and no recourse but to violence, the time soon comes when abject terror turns to mad desperation, submission gives way to defiance, and the preference to die rather than to live enslaved kindles in the human breast such a desire for change that it burns itself out in the fury of retribution.

KNOX COLLEGE received a letter from an old grad who wished to show his appreciation for what the school had done for him. He wanted to make a donation of ten thousand dollars to the school, but desired to remain anonymous. As a result, the letter was unsigned and the check was also unsigned.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

AUSTIN'S phone jangled noisily. Several persons not expecting a call themselves and, hence, not caring to help the other fellow, passed by. Finally someone answered the clamoring instrument and was suprised to hear a sweet feminine voice on the other end inquire if "there are two boys in the hall who want to go to a party." Sensing a ruse but willing to oblige the young lady, the lad who answered the phone conveyed the request to general residency of the building.

Needless to say, two of the Gigolos quickly dressed up in their Sunday best and set out by means of the thumb express for the quaint town of Wayne. For fully a half hour they waited until Dame Fortune, in the guise of a dump truck driver, picked them up. Enthroned on top of a pile of debris they began to wonder just where their house of destiny was located. "On Eaglebrook Road," the voice had said, "you can't miss it."

Several hours later the police received many calls from Eaglebrook Rd. stating that two desperate-looking men were knocking on the door of every house on said street. At the time the last call was received the men had already covered five miles of the road and, according to reports, were nearly frantic. A police car went to investigate and found that the men had last appeared heading toward Villanova College, muttering to themselves and glowering fiercely at all women who chanced to pass them by.

Questions we'd like answered—

Who is this Eleanor who calls up six different students on the campus and wants them all to croon to her. . . Where is the Belle Masque holding tryouts for "Journey's End.". . Several students have been trying t find the club and have thus far been unsuccessful. . . .

Ramblin' Around—We see that "Clipper" Smith was on the checkout list for Austin one evening last week. . . . We wonder if he came home on time. . . . They tell us that Elmer Feldkamp, the chap who sings with Freddy Martin's orchestra, is a Villanova grad. . . .We hear that the Horizontal club of Austin is dickering for a contest with the Fedigan loafers to see who can sleep latest and longest in the mornings. . . . Anyone interested see Bud Quinn, Austin's captain. . . .

If you intend going to see our natators splash their way to victory over some rival aggregation be ready to sit in silence. They tell us that the referee down there at the pool holds a starting gun in one hand and a long whip in the other. The whip is not for the swimmers, far from it, but is held in readiness for you if you dare so much as cry out "Hurrah." We can readily see where silence is necessary in college boxing where the opponents are doing each other bodily harm, but in swimming where it is not even cricket to splash water in your enemy's face we see no reason why our rooters can't cheer our team on or applaud a good dive.

As We See It . . . Birth Control

By HARRY PARKIN

THE other day a pamphlet, describing the social and economic ills that would be cured if society would only learn a proper appreciation for the virtues of Birth Control, accidentally fell into our hands. We read it, we must confess, with more curiosity than interest; to learn if the advocates were still using in the advancement of their cause the same trite and specious arguments that had so intrigued the fancies of the Victorians. It was almost as if the author had deliberately conspired to make our disappointment complete, for there, and not enlivened even by one passage in the outer style of the moderns, was the same sentimental appeal to the inviolable right of women to the full expression of their personality and love without the "life-shattering" burden of excessive childbearing. That term "life shattering" we feel, will tip the balance in favor of the doctrine in the minds of the many of our young sophisticates who enjoy such an excellent capacity for dodging responsibility under the pretext of a strong-sounding phrase. Precisely what portion of a woman's personality is denied expression, or in what way her love, unless of course the author means free love, is frustrated, under a system that does not conform to the tenets of Birth Control is not made clear. But that it is of serious import could hardly be doubted from the feelings of sympathy that the author experienced for it.

The stirring appeal of the author (whose rhetorical extravagance semed indicative of one of those militant female propagandists who have such a propensity for allying themselves with some of the most peculiar movements) for the necessity of every woman to preserve her health and happiness at the expense of her moral character almost moved us to tears—tears, that such well-meant efforts, and mellifluous phrases should be so irrationally expend l. As though happine s can exist in the denial of truth, or health is to be found in the abuse of nature.

The advocates of Birth Control, who so loudly lament the many sufferings endured by women who are forced to bring child after child into an environment of poverty and disease when they are unable to properly clothe and feed those they already have, and suggest as the solution of this problem, not the improvement of these women's economic but rather the women's economic conditions, but rather the frustration of their procreative activities, would doubtlessly exhibit a great deal of surprise if some enterprising anti-capitalist were to suddenly denounce them and their movement as a capitalistic scheme to divert the minds of the poor from the real causes of their misery, the unequal distribution of wealth, to ones which in spite of their plausibility are an outright confusion of facts. Ridiculous as such a suggestion might seem, it could, if dressed in the proper language, given an air of reasonableness, and introduced through the proper medium of appeal, prove just as persuasive, to those in search of a formulated excuse for their actions, as do the arguments of Birth Control.

It requires no intimate acquaintance with people to realize that there are many who will sacrifice moral principles to economic exigencies. Those who see necessity where it is non-existent or manufacture it as an excuse for violating some law of morality can be disregarded, for to them the real thing is the violation of the law and not the cause that moves them to it. So there can be little doubt but that the doctrines of birth limitation without self-restraint or denial will have a strong appeal to those in that standard of living who have just enough education to be beguiled by the specious and not enough faith to overcome it.

Pass In Review

By RICHARD DEVERALL

SOME time ago, your correspondent was chatting with the distinguished editor of a most important Catholic magazine. This gentleman, a holy priest, remarked that Catholics do not support their press in the right way. He said that, when he compared his subscription list with the list of an equally important Catholic weekly, he found that substantially the same names appeared on both lists. The inference he drew from this was that in America we have a small nucleus of Catholics who support the press, leaving a great number of Catholics who prefer the secular, the profane press to the Catholic press.

Following close upon this conversation, a letter appeared in the columns of THE BROOKLYN TABLET. Written by a Spanish Catholic, it said that: "The blame for the evils which have overtaken us are not due so much to the plottings of evil men who have but carried out their designs as to the Catholics, who have refused to comply with their evident duty."

This writer then pointed out that Catholics in Spain, for decades, had failed to heed the signs of the times. Deaf to progress, lacking prudent foresight, they allowed Communistic agitators to seize the reins of government. When things had gone too far, the Catholics of Spain had to resort to arms to oust a small group of radical agitators. Had they acted a few decades ago, when they should have acted, the present Civil War in Spain might have never come to pass. Indeed, how would it have been possible for Moscow to buy off the heads of the government if they had all been loyal sons of Holy Mother Church?

This man says that, " . . . our greatest and principal Catholic daily paper was taxed to its limits in its efforts to make ends meet. In spite of the self-sacrificing zeal of its Editor . . . it found itself, year after year, with large deficits that were made up only by the greatest sacrifice and the strenuous labors of a few Catholics of penetrating social foresight. These people are worthy to be immortalized in bronze."

This is Catholic press month, brothers. Are you supporting the Catholic press as you should? Do you spend on the Catholic press as generously as you spend upon your amusements? Do you, for every cent you spend for secular magazines and secular newspapers, spend an equal amount for Catholic newspapers and Catholic magazines? If you don't, you ought to. Indeed, there is no reason why any Catholic should read a secular newspaper or magazine, for we have Catholic dailies, weeklies, monthlies, and so forth. Even in the field of philosophy, education, and sociology we have Catholic scientific publications.

Our Spanish friend has one last word for us. He says, "Tell my brethren in America that there is yet time to oppose a powerful dike to the turbulent and miry waters of anarchy. . . . Urge them, for the love of those souls redeemed by the Blood of Christ, to direct themselves to the people. The masses are malleable and docile and should be sought out with intelligence and love on the streets, in the workshops, and in the homes. Turn to them, and invite them to a quiet reflection and a serious consideration of the profound transformations that are now approaching. . . . In this way, we shall witness the expansion of our great Catholic American daily paper (The Brooklyn Tablet). We shall behold it taking all before it as it convinces the minds of men, educates their hearts, and intrepidly opposes, in face to face encounter, and with equal arms, the enemies of God and of our civilization."

Is it not true that the first fight against Communism is fought amidst the souls of men. But is it not also equally as true that one of the best bulwarks against Communism is a strong, vigorous Catholic press. The vicious Communist press is daily turning out tons of subtle propaganda that is poisoning the minds of unsuspecting persons. Until the day when Catholics not only match the Communist Press, word for word, but exceed their output, America can never be safe from these aliens who would destroy our democratic government.

When you leave the Church, next Sunday, why not, as you buy your Sunday paper, make it a habit to buy a Catholic paper at the same time? Remember Spain!

RHUMBA-LAND

(From the January cruise of M. V. Britannic to Nassau and Havana. Part III.)

Ancient Sentinel

THERE are few harbors in the world that can compare in beauty and splendor with the Port of Havana in Cuba.

From far out at sea it resembled the phantom entrance to some beautiful fortress of fairy legend.

As our ship moved nearer, however, these faint shapes gradually resolved themselves in distinct images.

Ancient old Morro Castle, dating back five centuries, can be seen as it still keeps its aged watch over the watery gateway to the harbor.

Broad tree-lined boulevards reach down almost to the edge of the shore. Beautiful modern buildings alongside of old picturesque ones present a charming contrast of the past with the present. Occasionally statuary fills out this scene that could readily be seen from the Britannic before it came to anchor.

All of this in spite of the fact that Havana is a modern metropolis of nearly a million inhabitants. Other large sea-port cities elsewhere usually present a very uninteresting, bleak, and unclean harbor, with the worst looking, if not the poorest section of the city, nearby.

Striking a Bargain

The foreigner, wishing to see something of the city, usually hires a car and driver (who acts as a guide) for the entire day and night.

The fee for this service varies from six to sixteen dollars. It all depends upon what kind of a bargain you are capable of striking.

After a brief skirmish, we succeeded in engaging a car and guide at the former figure, and set out on the tour.

"Police Only In the Way!"

There are very few traffic signals in even the crowded sections of the city. This is probably due to the cautiousness of Cuban drivers.

Once when we drew near a busy six-street intersection in the heart of Havana, we asked Mario Dias, our guide, why there was not a traffic light here, or at least a policeman.

He replied—

"Oh there is too much traffic here for a light signal; and a policeman would only be in the way!"

Political Plums

Havana is crowded with police. At first we thought that crime must have been very prevalent; but Mario informed us that such was not the case, indeed the opposite is true, the percentage of crime in this city is very low.

As our guide explained to us, most policemen are political appointees; a police appointment is considered a choice political plum, hence the tremendous number of police.

As already explained, delinquency is very infrequent, so down in Cuba political appointees must at least serve some good.

(This is the third in a series of five articles on Cuba and Nassau. The fourth, entitled, "HAVANA HIGHLIGHTS" will appear next week.)

Talk Well Received

In general Dr. Salisbury's address was very informal, interesting, and instructive to the future medicos, who demonstrated their interest and approval by their close attention throughout the lecture, by their ready response to the informality of the talk and their whole-hearted acclaim at the close of the lecture.

Dr. Salisbury was a former instructor in Human Anatomy. Oral Anaesthesia, Therapeutics and Histopathology at Temple University Dental School. He was graduated with honors and many prizes from that institution.

DIAL-LOG

FAME and fortune have, naturally, changed Charles Butterworth's mode of living, but not his mode of thinking.

Butterworth, solemn visaged comic heard on Fred Astaire's program has not forgotten his early days as a cub reporter on a small Indiana newspaper.

Last week, two awestruck kids accosted Charlie as he left the NBC studios after rehearsal. They explained that they wanted to interview him for their school paper. Touched by their timorous admission that they had "never interviewed a real celebrity before and didn't know just how to begin," Butterworth smiled.

"I was a newspaperman once myself," he consoled, and took the youngsters to a nearby drugstore to "talk things over." . . . over an ice cream soda. . . . just as one reporter to another.

Fifteen minutes later, two dazed but happy boys emerged from the drugstore—clutching their notebook. Butterworth had borrowed the notebook and written his own interview, his first newspaper work since he entered radio.

Peter Van Steeden, maestro of the Fred Allen program, spends a lot of time with the sound effects men and has acquired a fascinating vocabulary based on their peculiar lingo.

The weird, melodramatic programs which call for train whistles, police sirens, gun shots and so on are termed "Boom booms," by these resourceful gentlemen.

Electrically transcribed crowd noises come under the heading of "New Year's Eve"—probably because the street demonstrations of past New Year's Eve celebrations were recorded, and often are used on the air for mob scenes.

Any radio script which minimizes sound effects in favor of a great deal of conversation is referred to as "a Coward." This is because the Noel Coward plays are mainly drawing room dramas with emphasis on clever dialogue.

And when they're called upon to simulate the sound of clicking knives, forks and dishes for luncheon effects, the boys yell, "Up with the hash!"

Lanny Ross stops before one of those window displays of steaming hot eat-cakes, looks at his watch, and hurries in. . . . Kate Smith smilingly inspects her caricature—made with an egg—in a Broadway window trick novelties, called egg-a-toons. . . . Guy Lombardo at the Roosevelt blowing out the birthday candles at a party given for an old friend from Montreal. . . . Andre Kostelanetz outside the 53rd St. stage entrance of the Columbia Playhouse, getting a breath of some of that "unusual" Winter air. . . . Robert L. (Believe-It-Or-Not) Ripley waiting for the traffic light at Times Square, patiently watching typical Manhattanites zig-zagging through taxis against the signal.

Here's a chance for you fellows who have been clamoring for a poll on the favorite band of Villanova students. All you have to do is fill in the ballot you find below and hand it to me either in the dining hall during meal hours or in room 124 Fedigan Hall. After your choice, sign your name to the ballot. Your opinion may influence the dance committees for our prom chairmen, both senior and junior.

Those of you interested in railroads might appreciate Reginald Gardner's dissertation on the locomotive. He gave his famous monologue on wallpaper and locomotives on the recent Red Cross benefit program which began late at night and went on and on. Among other notables of stage, screen and radio were Guy Lombardo and his lads, Bee Lillie, Georgie Jessel and others.

Speaking of comedians, or supposed - to - be comedians, bring to mind the fact that brings to midn the fact that Joe Penner is still on the air. After listening to the Cocoamalt program for about five weeks and not being able to get a laugh from it, we decided that either we have no sense of humor, or that Joe Penner is not so good.

Tommy Dorsey, who will soon replace Mal Hallett at the Commodore in New York, is going to begin some sort of swing club for college students. But more about that later.

Drake University is sponsoring a contest for original radio dramas. The prize offered is $50, and all residents of the United States are eligible. Monday, March 15, is the closing day of the contest, so you lads who think you have ability along that line will do well to send your efforts to Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa. The script should be of such length that the play can be presented in thirteen (13) or twenty-six (26) minutes. Don't say we never did anything for you.

RELATIONS GROUP ATTENDS MEETING

Society Well Represented at Annual Peace Federation Conference

The International Relations Club, of Villanova, was represented at the conference of the Catholic Students Peace Federation at St. Joseph's College for Women in Brooklyn, last Saturday. Those attending were Paul Juergens, secretary of the club; Joseph Bonglovanni, and Rev. William Lunney, O.S.A., Moderator.

Among the highlights of the conference were the speeches by Elizabeth Lynekey, Ph.D., professor of Political Science at Hunter College, and Doctor Chas. G. Fenwick, Professor of Political Science at Bryn Mawr College and President of the Catholic Association for International Peace. Miss Lynskey stated the price we must pay for peace if we are to obtain it. We must make sacrifices which will be social, economic, political and spiritual.

Following her, Dr. Fenwick spoke on the foundations of a Peace-Moral. He stressed the fact that the moral governing nations are the same that regulate the relations of individuals toward each other. He proposed a world disarmament with an international tribunal to decide all questions which would arise between the nations.

Constitution Accepted

At the business session, the proposed constitution was passed with slight modifications in the wording. The body will be almost autonomous. But all the resolutions of the federation will need the approval of the committee of the faculty moderators. The temporary officers of the organization were elected to hold office until the conference in May. All subsequent officers will be in office for one year with the annual elections in the spring. The constitution provides that all those elected to the vice presidency or to office of treasurer must not be juniors.

In addition to this, Father Lunney announced that the time of the meetings for the International Relations Club would be changed from the morning to the evening. While it has not been definitely decided the time will probably be Thursday evening at 7.30 P. M.

Miss Stanwyck verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. PLAYING in the fashion of proverbial iron men the frosh basketballers met three teams in as many days during the past week and emerged victorious in two of them. The Temple freshmen are the ones who hung it on the kittens. The Varsity squad also played on successive nights, meeting Dickinson and Bucknell. Although a one point lead gave the Carlisle squad the nod, the Bucknell Bisons were humbled the following night by an everwhelming score.

—V—

It was a fighting Villanova team that took the floor Thursday night against Bucknell, and their style of play showed the mood they were in. No wonder they were mad, when their own student followers stand up and cheer the opposing team to victory they should have something to be mad about. Every time a Dickinson player made a basket the noise was as great as when a Villanova tally was recorded. There is such a thing as being good sportsmen and giving the visitors a break but that can be carried to extremes.

—V—

When it looked as though Villanova was bound to lose then, and only then, did the stands wake up and encourage the Wildcats. When the final whistle was blown and the game was over, the realization of what had happened came as a shock. It was then that sundry sounds of derision echoed through the gym. Perhaps we are wrong, but in our minds the fans were as much to blame for that defeat as the players. Although the players did not show any sterling qualities as basketeers, they at least were playing for Villanova and not against her.

—V—

In the Bucknell game, the fans' spirits were apparently the same, but they had toned down considerably. The play was fast and the team worked smoothly in all occasions. The squad was out for a victory at any cost. Every time a shot was possible it was taken. In all, there were 73 tries made for double deckers. Out of these, 17 were converted. Lou Dubino made up for a season of assists by trying for the basket 27 times.

—V—

The foul shooting was as erratic as usual with three shots converted out of nine tries. Another thing that comes to mind is the fact that very few personal fouls were called on the quintet. Don Brennan, acting captain, led the scorers with ten points and was closely followed by Montgomery.

—V—

On lost balls, that is, balls given to the other team through technicalities and wild passes, Montgomery led the field with six lost balls. Brennan and Vigilante lost two apiece, while Dubino, Krutulis and McNally threw away three chances apiece.

—V—

The recent Temple boxing match has caused more comment on this campus than any other sport this year . . . Without a doubt Villanova should have been credited with a win at this meet. The final bout, given to Temple by referee Joe McGuigan and resulting in a four to four tie for the meet, at the least should have been a draw. According to very reliable authorities the final round was cut 13 seconds. It was during this round that Villanova's heavyweight was staging a vicious rally and had the Templar groggy.

—V—

According to Red Smith, reliable sports writer for the Philadelphia Record, Rutecky was credited with one round, one round was a draw and the Temple heavyweight won a round. When all this is summed up the only available decision is a draw and yet Temple won the bout.

—V—

After seeing the results of the bouts in Villanova's boxing meets, the authorities at Penn saw fit to cancel the scheduled meet with the Wildcat mittmen. Possibly the athletic heads thought Gadsby's boys were more than their lads could handle.

JAROSIK, KIRK SCORE EASY KAYOES

Villanova's mittmen were held to a 4-4 draw with Temple's boxing team last Saturday in the latter's gymnasium in Mitten Hall before a crowd of 1000 enthusiastic spectators.

The Wildcats held a 2-1 advantage before the first bout started by virtue of forfeits to Bill Duffy in the 155-pound class and to Captain Tony Sala in the light-heavyweight division. Villanova forfeited the 115-pound class.

Jack Jarosik continued on his road to the inter-collegiate top honors when he won his fifth straight victory with a first round knockout over Temple's Eddie Mulhern.

Jarosik took the lead from Mulhern from the opening whistle (there was no bell). He pounded the Owl and sent him through the ropes with a right cross. It was obvious then that the bout would not go the limit. Mulhern took the count of eight only to be sent down again with another terrific right that half spun the Templar around. Referee McGuigan called the bout then and there giving Jarosik the victory in one minute and five seconds.

Kirk Kayoes Templar

Eddie Kirk gained the other victory for the 'Cats with another first round knockout in the 135 pound class over Bill Pullen. Kirk took it very easy for the first half of the opening round, then suddenly changed his pace and flung them hard and fast to floor Pullen for

INABILITY TO SINK FOULS DECIDES CAT-DEVIL FRAY

Kintzing's Basket in Waning Seconds Turns Almost Inevitable Loss Into Win

By HENRY A. MAZZEI

During the past week, the Villanova basketeers ranged from the ridiculous to the sublime on successive evenings. The ridiculous stage was reached last Wednesday when the Wildcats fell before the determined attack of a doughty band of Dickinson Red Devils, 27-26, and the sublime occurred last Thursday when the Main Liners reached their season's peak and submerged the Bucknell Bisons, 37-14. Both of these contests were held at the Main Liners' gymnasium.

While beating Bucknell, the Wildcats appeared to have everything an outstanding court team needed—they passed, shot, and dribbled to perfection and were never once threatened.

Immediately after the contest began, the Main Liners were in command of the situation and with Don Brennan, "Jungle Jim" Montgomery, and Lou Dubino leading the attack, they had amassed a 20-5 lead at half-time.

The second half started in the same manner that the first half had, but the insertion of the Villanova reserves kept the score down and enabled the Bisons to score as many points as they did.

SWIM MEET SET FOR NEXT WEEK

Feb. 24 Is Date Arranged For Intra-Mural Meet In Pool

With the intramural basketball league well advanced in the second half race, the time for other sports is rapidly drawing near. To this end, Rev. Edward McKee, O.S.A. has set February 24 as the date for the fifth annual intramural swimming meet. The event has attracted many participants in former years, both residents and non-residents. Competition has always been keen, and the boys are anxiously waiting for the grand splash to roll around.

The list of events is similar to last year's schedule. There will be 25- and 50-yard dashes together with the usual 100-yard and 200-yard sprint. Next in line comes the breast-stroke and back-stroke experts, and, as a climax, the 100-yard relay. The latter is the feature of the meet with the various halls set on taking top honors in spite of each other.

Of the four previous meets held, the Mendel Day-hops have shown their superiority by clinching first honors three times. The "Train and Trolley" boys had a let-down in 1935 at which time Fedigan Hall romped to victory. This year the day students are especially strong with several defending champions available for competition.

The list of events:

25-yard free-style.
50-yard free-style.
100-yard free-style.
220-yard free-style.
100-yard relay.

INTERNES DEFEAT FRATERNITY FIVE

Medicos Beat Science Men 24-19 in Initial Court Contest

Supremacy in the Medical Profession, as well as on the basketball court, must be conceded to the Bryn Mawr Internes by the members of the Lambda Kappa Delta, as a result of the defeat suffered in their season's opener, Tuesday night.

Unable to cope with the fast breaking and quick cutting offense of the homesters, the Pre-meds had to be satisfied to watch their elders win out in a thriling fracas, which was marked by a fine brand of basketball.

Holding the advantage throughout the entire game, the Internes had matters well in control during the first half and went into the intermission sporting a six-point lead, the score being 11-5.

White, Conte Star

Becoming accimated to the environment and to the type of basketball played by the Doctors, the Pre-meds fared much better in the second half, scoring 14 points to 13 for the medicos. This showing was largely due to the fine marksmanship of Georgie White and Andy Conte, who were responsible for all but six of the visitors' 19 points.

However, the Internes were not to be deprived of the lead that they piled up in the first period, and stayed in the ball game mainly through the combined efforts of Dr. Stein and Dr. Howson, who scored ten and six points respectively.

Dr. Pennypacker and Dr. Kehres also contributed to the credit column for the Internes, besides playing a fine defensive game in limiting the Pre-meds to only five goals from the court. In fact, the whole team played very well and are to be complimented for taking over the younger and more agile youths.

VILLANOVA ENGAGES WESTMINSTER FIVE

Lafayette and C. C. N. Y. Will Provide Competition This Week

Tonight, Villanova's basketeers battle Westminster College at home, in the first of three major encounters to be decided this week, and reaching the crossroads, which may turn the 1937 season toward success or failure.

On Wednesday, February 17, the Wildcats travel to Easton, Pa., where the Leopards of Lafayette will be met, and two days later they encounter the brilliant basketeers of C. C. N. Y.

With nine victories in eleven starts, Westminster has lost only to Pitt and Bethany College. Boasting wins over such strong teams as Geneva, Carnegie Tech and Salem College, they will seek their tenth victory against the Wildcats, this evening.

Ken "Speedo" Grubb, tall center of the Titans, continues to pace his team in scoring for the season with 116 points in eleven games, for an average of almost 11 points per game.

Andy Demo Star

Close behind the tall Youngstown sophomore is Andy Demo, Johnstown forward, with 100 points from 41 baskets and 18 charity tosses for a nine point a game average. Gelliland, New Wilmington forward, and John Dirwoeh, Sharon varsity guard, are running a close race for third position on the Titan squad, with 62 and 60 points respectively, in eleven games.

High point man for the season is a tie between Demo and Grubb for individual games, each making a high of 18 points against Slippery Rock.

Bill Anderson, Lower Merion basketball mentor, who predicted dire results for the basketball season, finally smiled last week as his charges captured their second straight Suburban Conference Section One diadem.

ENGINEERS HOLD BOWLING MATCH

Phi Kappa Pi Arranges Annual Ten-Pin Tournament

In spite of the fact that this is the season for bowling the alleys down at the gym are usually very, very empty. The ten pin sport does not seem to have a great following among the Villanova students. There is not even enough interest evidenced to warrant the running of an Intramural tourney.

Most of the interest is centered in the Engineers and their frat, the Phi Kappa Pi. The Phi Kap will again run a bowling tournament this Winter. Several of the boys are tuning up for this coming event.

Thorn Favorite

Favored to win the title is Bill Thorn, a Junior. Bill was runnerup last year, losing out to Frank "Buck" Rodgers in a tight match. Bill is showing the same fine form he displayed in past years and is improving all the time. On the alleys in the gym, with which he is not yet familiar, Bill consistently rolls above 160. Occasionally he hits well over the 200 mark.

Billiards is more to the liking of the Villanova men. At almost any time during these Winter afternoons, the tables are occupied by coming "Willie Hoppes" and budding "Ralph Greenleafs." However, the boys confine their efforts to pocket billiards or in plan, everyday English pool. Devotees of the new 28.2 balkline game are arrangely notable by their absence.

Mendel Hall Stops Alumni To Gain On Mural Leaders

Joe Bochetto and Jack Donahue Pace Frosh to Endanger Day Hops' Half-Game Lead in Tournament

FEDIGAN TOPPLED AS CUSKEY STARS

By JOHN E. DIMON

After bowing to Austin in one of the season's major upsets, the Mendel Residents, paced by lanky Joe Bochetto, came back in their second game last week to top the highly-touted Alumni club, 30-17. This win enabled them to creep up on the league leading Mendel Day Hops, who were idle because initiation cermonies necessitated a postponement of their scheduled game with the Fedigan Hall team. In the other game played, Alumni had an easy time with Fediganites.

With Tim Waad, Jack Donahue and Joe Bochetto throwing baskets from all corners of the floor, the Mendel "Penthousers" built up a 17-14 lead over their Austin rivals, at half time. However, their lead was ephemeral for the "gas house" gang came back and outscored their opponents in the final canto to win, 33-23.

Jim Dwyer and Walt Sheftic collaborated with ten and six points respectively, in leading Austin to a well-earned win. With the score tied and only a few minutes to go before the final gun, these two boys put on a burst of speed that spelled victory for their team. Junior Adams besides playing a marvelous floor game, contributed six points to the Austin cause. Vic Sandor's floor game was outstanding for the losers.

Mendel Comes Back

In the feature game of the week, Mendel Hall started out by getting the jump on Alumni which they never relinquished. Waad opened the scoring with a basket on the first play of the game. Bochetto and Donahue added two more before Cuskey tallied to break the ice for Alumni. Joe Angelozzi was fouled in making a tally. He converted to make the score, 6-5. However, the sudden splurge was futile for the Mazzei clan surged ahead with a flurry of two-pointers to lead at half-time, 13-9.

Playing air-tight ball in the final canto, the Mendel quintet held their adversaries to eight points while they helped themselves to 17 to make the final score 30-17.

Bochetto was easily the star of the game. Throwing up seven field goals and one free throw for 15 markers, he was the high scorer. Since Lloyd Rice has been claimed by the venerable Al Severance for his frosh five, Joe is the mainstay of the team. Although in a recent slump the boys seem to be on the right foot again towards their second crown and the championship. Cuskey, the usual star of the Alumni attack, was held to six points by Donahue, who played a whale of a game at guard.

Cuskey Stars for Alumni

Fedigan never had a chance in their tussle with Alumni which ended in a 32-25 runaway. The score does not indicate the true story of the game. Handicapped by the season's loss of players, the "Gigilos" put up a hard fight but it was to no avail. Joe Fioretto scored eight points in succession to place his team in the van. Hal Murphy had a busy evening with the flashy Fioretto, who, incidentally, notched 12 tallies via six field goals.

Alumni lost their big lead when Fedigan, passing and working in their old form, came within one point of the fleeing Frosh. Jim Carroll and Jack Costello scored field goals to make the score, 9-8. Fioretto scored another basket to end the half. With Cuskey running wild in the second half to mark up 13 points, the Alumni club assumed a commanding lead that was never endangered. Ignatius Hart and Brud O'Connell played bang-up games, but their fighting was not enough to bring home the solomi.

The second half is midway gone. Father McKee and the Inter-dorm officials have announced the tentative play-off dates. They will be held in the big gym on March 9, 11 and 16th. The team that is crowned as champions will meet mural survivors from other schools in the Philadelphia district. The Mendel Day-Hops won top honors in both the Villanova and the district eliminations.

Villanova Shares Honor With Owls

the count of nine. Kirk continued to punch Pullen around, knocking him through the ropes. Pullen rolled back into the ring and tried to rise but couldn't, and was counted out.

The most exciting bout of the afternoon was put on by Bob Mentzinger and Tony Guida. Mentzinger, after being knocked through the loose ropes in the first round, came back strong to make the fight very close. However, Guida's margin in the first round gained him the nod.

Captain Lou Rubenstein, of Temple, started the bouts off with a technical knockout victory over Villanova's George Shull. The battle started off fast with Shull holding his own with the experienced southpaw until Rubenstein half-wrestled and half-hit him to the floor. Shull got up without any count, but received two hard lefts on the jaw which sent him to the floor. McGuigan called the bout, awarding Rubenstein a technical knock-out.

Rutecky Loses Decision

With the score 4-3 in favor of the Wildcats, Mike Rutecky met Stan Gurzynski, of the Owl's football team, for the deciding bout in the heavyweight class. Despite this handicap, Mike took the offensive and had a slight edge over his opponent in a slow first round. The second round saw Rutecky still carrying the fight to Gurzynski, but the Templer managed to win the round with a series of left jabs that kept Mike at long range fighting.

In the third round, Rutecky landed several body blows that took noticeable effect on Gurzynski and was apparently gaining the advantage when the whistle blew, ending a very short two-minute round. The decision, which rested entirely upon the referee, as there were no judges, was given to Gurzynski amid the demonstrations of disapproval from the crowd, which was on the whole unruly throughout the entire afternoon.

Summaries:

115-POUND CLASS—William Comber, Temple, won by forfeit.

125-POUND CLASS—Lou Rubenstein, Temple, scored technical knockout over George Shull, Villanova, 1 minute, 20 seconds, first bout.

135-POUND CLASS—Eddie Kirk, Villanova, defeated Bill Pullen, Temple, technical knockout, 1 minute, 54 seconds, first round.

'CAT TRACK SQUAD SHAPING UP WELL

Pre-Season Practice Finds Candidates in Fine Form

Unseasonal weather and unusually keen interest in track activities this year have combined to start the track season off earlier than is customary. Ordinarily the track season would not begin until the latter part of March and come into full bloom in the middle of April but now, in the middle of February, the track men have already been at the arduous task of training for over two weeks. In fact, some of the boys began working out in the gym in the middle of January and have just come out into the open during the past two weeks.

Team Has Promise

All signs point to a very successful season and it is certain that the boys will come out ahead in their meets if they keep up the good work they have shown in their recent training.

Manager Kelly had little information to impart concerning the schedule. However, he did vouchsafe that proposals for future meets have been made to several colleges but to date no reply has been received. Franklin and Marshall and West Chester Teachers are still the only positive opponents that the team is scheduled to encounter, although the idea of the meet has been broached to Ursinus, Albright and Penn State.

An invitation to the Penn Relays is the expected result of the team's progress during the course of the season. An official statement to this effect, however, is lacking to substantiate this expectation.

The first meet is scheduled against Swarthmore some time in March, presumably before the Easter recess.

Frosh Material Good

The freshmen that have turned out this year for track are some of the best that have been seen for a long time. Nearly all of the boys are seasoned hands at the running and sprinting game and much is to be expected of them. They will not be allowed in meets where freshmen are excluded, however, and if allowed to run at all, will probably receive no points.

No Team Drawn Up

As yet no definite team has been selected, but it is probable that the mile position will be left to Ben Maloney who has occupied that position in former years.

Fritz Monahan will occupy the starting position in the sprints and more than likely will outdistance any other man on the squad. Lou Beister is tentatively occupying the 440 position and Vincent LaBrasca is trying for distance running.

Higgins Leaves School

Charlie Higgins' transferring to another college dealt a severe blow to the tracksters as they were relying on his support and co-operation in most of their meets. His place, however, is most likely to be filled by other capable runners. Harvey Buek is daily seen gamboling on the fairways and unquestionably packs a pace in those stalwart legs of his. Tom Carbine, Tom Cook, "Moe" Dimon and Bill Cleary are likewise seen in and around the gym limbering up for the coming track season. Cook, one of the best track men around, is due to start training soon and undoubtedly will fill his position very well. Tom Delate, a speedy sophomore, is rapidly rounding out into shape due to the intensive training he has been undergoing during the past few weeks.

All signs point to a successful season and we are sure that Jim Elliot's wards will not disappoint him.

Here and There

By WILLIAM BOWKER

JOE FEEHAN is Austin Hall's official greeter. It seems that some visitors came to call upon some Austinites who happened to be out at the time. So Joe, always the perfect host, dashed upstairs to get his "Pick-up Sticks," and entertained the young ladies for the rest of the evening with that most engrossing game.

Rosemont freshmen had better beware of Villanova sophomores.

One lass was led to believe that Moe Dimon was Tony Sala. Only the excellent detective work of Ray Stoviak uncovered the heinous plot of deception and Moe was brought to task.

We have a solution for the Dickinson loss, other than the inefficiency of the boys from the foul line. So many of the spectators left at the half in order to hear "Gang Busters" that the lads became discouraged, due to lack of an audience. Incidentally, there are some members of the class of 1940 who do not enter enough into the spirit of cheering.

A new game of billiards has been introduced in this country. It is 28.2 balkline, and its purpose is to test to a greater extent the skill of the masters of the cue game. In the other two balkline games, 18.1 and 18.2, the experts could remain for long stretches at the table, and the game became monotonous to watch. With the new game, however, high runs are supposed to be cut down about 20 percent. Willie Hoppe and Jake Schaefer are introducing the type of billiards to the American public by means of a series of exhibition matches throughout the nation. In the first block of the Philly match, Schaefer ran 123, which looks as though the lads might easily become as proficient at 28.2 as at the other two balkline games. Anyhow, it's something new for Villanova billiard addicts to attempt.

Basil Dobrowslki, Jersey City's favorite son, now has a southern accent. This was not acquired from the trip to Cuba, says Dobby, so others attribute this new manner of speaking to a secret trip to the regions known as "South Philly."

Reliable observers report that Harvey Buek was seen knitting in the Greeks recently. If memory serves well, in a knitting contest not too long ago, a man was returned victorious, so Harvey can point out the fact to would-be scoffers. The abovementioned knitting bee was held, as far as we can remember, in Massachusetts. "Doc" Daniello does not claim to know the winner.

There is a story raging about the campus that Frank Nye was captain of his high school grid team, and that so great was his fame that admirers used to follow him about the streets of Harrisburg. Nye, when accosted with the report, very indignantly denied any such thing, but we attribute this to his modesty.

Chesterfield's local representative was around again inquiring if the boys had been smoking that company's products, and during the course of the chat it came out that Jim Carroll, sometimes known as "Cheerleader Charlie," had been to the Hal Kemp Friday night program three or four times. The point of the tale is that, as far as we know, Jim doesn't even touch the weeds. Such is life.

It certainly looks as though Villanova's swimming future is definitely on the upgrade. Last year they were swamped by Lafayette by a score of something like 51-23, but last week they took the Leopards by a margin almost as impressive.

Sunday was Valentine's Day, and from what we hear around the campus, some of the boys were in rare form when they chose the tender missives.

er this shot the whistle blew ending the contest, and Villanova had been handed its sixth defeat of the year.

Basketeers Break Even in Matches

Don Brennan and Jim Montgomery were the shining lights of the imbroglio, as the former garnered ten points on shots from outside the foul circle and the latter scored nine markers as a result of some fine play under the basket. Monohan, who scored eight points, was the whole show for the beaten Bucknellians.

On Wednesday, however, the story was a bit different. The Dickinson Red Devils came down from Carlisle and handed the Wildcats a 27-26 lacing, which was rather surprising when it is recalled that the Wildcats dealt out a terrific shellacking to the Dickinsonians in their first clash of the year.

The old inability to make their foul shots sent the Villanova quintet down to this defeat and marks the third contest they have lost in this manner. Due credit must be given to the Red Devils, however, for they played a fighting brand of ball and never stopped trying with the result that they scored the biggest upset of the season in the Philadelphia area.

Villanova swung into a commanding lead as soon as the contest opened, when Wannemacher swished two heaves through the net. Wannemacher's second shot, incidentally, was actually tabbed out of the basket by Kintzing, the Red Devils' lanky center-man, but the officials ruled the score legal.

With the aid of three baskets by Johnny Krutulis and one by Montgomery, who was far and away the outstanding Wildcat on the floor, the Main Liners held a 14-10 lead at the half.

When the second half began Villanova increased its lead to 18-10 on a lay-up by Montgomery and a side shot by Brennan. At this juncture "Doc" Sterner, who with 12 points, was the highest scorer of the contest, began functioning and dropped two fouls through the net.

Montgomery nullified these scores on another spectacular one-handed lay-up shot. Then the redoubtable Sterner fired three shots through the hoop and Kintzing and Captain Smith each scored once to send the Red Devils in front for the first time.

The lead see-sawed back and forth for the next few minutes, with Villanova taking it on the brilliant Montgomery's backboard shot, losing it on Sterner's pop shot, and regaining it on Montgomery's sensational follow-up tap-in of Brennan's long try.

With the score 26-25 and only slightly more than a minute to play, Kintzing sank the shot that won the ball-game, when he retrieved Paugn's short try and converted it from under the basket. Shortly after-

Discusses the Recent Temple Boxing Match

LAST SUNDAY was Valentine Day, and the Villanova boxing squad received a prize valentine the day before with the 4-4 tie with Temple's ringmen. To all persons connected with the Main Line college, the news of the deadlock was a distinct shock. Many of the spectators were of the opinion that the Wildcat mittmen should have been returned the victors. The results only go to show, however, that when the Blue and White and Cherry and White representatives tangle, all past performances go by the board.

Of the eight scheduled bouts two were forfeited by the Owls and one by us. Illness of Vince Shugrue, 115 pounder, forced us to concede that event to our hosts. Tony Sala and Bill Duffy, our two best bets and certain point winners, were inactive due to the decision of the Temple authorities to withdraw their candidates.

George Schuil, game 125 pounder, again met a tough customer in Rubenstein, acting captain, and went down in the first before the vicious assault of the Owl boxer. Although Schull has suffered two setbacks in as many fights, he has been against the cream of his weight class, and no reflection need be cast upon his ability because of his recent losses. Incidentally, Georgie faces Tofano, Eastern Association champ, who recently defeated Rubenstein, in the coming Bucknell meet. Schull has a hard row to hoe, but I have confidence in him.

Eddie Kirk, smarting from the defeat at Army in what seemed a poor decision, took his vengeance on Bill Pullen, by dropping that Temple worthy three times in 1:50 of the initial round. By this exhibition, Eddie has given notice that he will go far in intercollegiate ring circles. Buckinell's 135 pound auch thing, but we attribute this to his modesty.

Mike Rutecky, in making his ring debut, performed well, but could not get the decision from Gurzynski, Temple heavy. Many of the spectators thought the decision should have been a draw at least, as Mike took the first round, dropped the second, and seemed to take the third. However, Referee McGuigan ruled otherwise, and the score was knotted at four wins apiece. Lack of experience in ring generalship was the eminent factor in Mike's defeat, but he showed plenty of possibilities.

This meet will intensify the spirit between Temple and Villanova. Dave Veloff, the Owl coach, was visibly elated over the result of the meet, while I was quite a bit disappointed. But that is past and Bucknell is ahead. The Bisons took the Owls 6-2 and so our lads will have to do some intensive work in preparation for the invasion of the Lewisburg horde on the 26th of this month.

Internes Defeat Fraternity Five

tion did go down to defeat they likewise made a commendable showing in their season's opener. It was the first time that they had played together as a unit and in the future contests in which they will meet sectional clubs and fraternities, a decided improvement is expected.

About 200 spectators witnessed the fray, which took place at the Gym of the Bryn Mawr Public School. Quite a number of the hospital attendants and nurses were present. (Maybe the presence of all the good looking nurses of the Bryn Mawr Hospital had something to do with the defeat of the L. K. D. quintet.)

In between halves, the Bryn Mawr nurses engaged in a contest with a local girls' team, to make the evening a complete success. The game between the Internes and the L. K. D. fraternity was marked by real sportsmanship and a friendly attitude.

Thus the evening was not spent in vain even though the L. K. D. boys did lose because they served the primary purpose of spreading the fine reputation of Villanova students about the neighboring environs.

Villanova Engages Titans Tonight

the Titan line-up is Paul Backus, sophomore center from Youngstown, Ohio, for whom 600 Westminster students struck last year over a border-line case of ineligibility.

The Westminster College Titans left Sunday morning for a three-game schedule in the East, against George Washington, Villanova and Westchester, February 15, 16, and 17.

Coach Alexander Severance's charges are primed for the battle tonight, and seek three successive victories over Westminister tonight, Lafayette Wednesday, and C. C. N. Y. Friday, in the Arena.

BASEBALL PRACTICE FOR PITCHERS SOON

Daily Practice Sessions Will Be Held in Gymnasium

In the parlance of the sub-title writers, spring has come to Villanova. The charges of Coach George A. Jacobs are soon to begin their preparations for the coming baseball wars with daily warm-up sessions in the gym. Coach Jacobs, no relation to Mike of "I should of stood in bed" fame, will be faced with the problem of filling several key positions with promising, but green, sophomores. Last year's captain, Art Mahan," will be sorely missed at first base, though Bobby Bond, regular first sacker of the 1939 team, has shown great possibilities at that post.

Pitchers Scarce

The pitching staff was especially hard-hit. Ed Vaughan, Tom Collins and Joe McGovern were all lost through the commencement route, leaving only Bill McLaughlin and Paul Kane of last year's starters. Frank Escott, outfielder in the past, may be converted to moundsman, on the strength of his showing in amateur ball at Cape Cod this past Summer. If this is done, enemy batsman will have to face a staff that is predominately left-handed. Only Joe Desmond, lanky sophomore star, serves them up in the orthodox manner.

The infield, with seven men fighting for jobs, should be a tower of strength once more as the regulars, Walt Sheftic, Leo Schoppmeyer and Walt McKenna try to hold off Lenny Merullo, Cowboy Crowley, Charley DeLuomo and Bobby Bond. In the outfield, Ray Stoviak is back, along with Escott; Lou Wannemacher and Joe Hopkins, sophomore luminaries from New York, will contest their right to starting berths out where the bleachers begin.

Cornell First Foe

There will undoubtedly be much to be done before the Wildcats take the field, April 2, to face Cornell in the season's opener on the Main Line diamond. It is hoped that the record of last year's squad will be equalled, if not surpassed. If you remember, only three games out of twenty-two were lost, one each to Colgate, Providence and Fordham, and Temple was humbled twice in a two-game series. However, with the superlative material on hand, and the able coaching of "Doc" Jacobs, even the difficult schedule ahead should not be too disheartening.

Comments On The Officials of the Court Game

JUST HOW much importance a high ethical standard should have in the sport of basketball depends on how much time we have given the sport and upon our idea of what constitutes the proper conduct of this activity. In this article I will try to bring out one point in basketball which to me constitutes a very important factor of the ethics of the game.

Confidence, courtesy and co-operation should mark our attitude towards the officials of the game. Since every coach has a voice in the selection of the officials, he, above all, should support them not only during the game, but after the game. When a game is over, all the abuse we may wish to heap upon an official will not help matters but, on the contrary will only tend to make one look shabby in the eyes of all who are really interested in the better points of the game.

Players Err

Basketball, without a doubt, is one of the most difficult sports to officiate. Both a team and the spectators will find that better results can be achieved by being more patient and tolerant of the work of their officials. From the bench, many coaches can see mistakes that are made during the course of a game and very often after a defeat we have the tendency to enlarge upon these errors in defeat and forget them very often in victory. You will find that a player will make ten mistakes to an official's one, yet we are never ten times as hard on the player.

It would be a stupid mistake for any coach to discuss a players individual errors with outsiders or to lament to the press a lack of execution of fundamentals or strategy; but both the coach and the player get together under conditions, where their reasoning faculties can properly function and arrange for the correction of the faults, whatever they might be. After this, if such a procedure does not eradicate the condition, then we seek another to take his place. In short, we attempt to improve his style of play in a constructive rather than a destructive manner of criticism. Why shouldn't both players and fans assume the same attitude toward the officials of the game?

Sportsmanship Preferred

Basketball is attaining its deserved place in the curricula of sports in the estimation of the public be ca ise more and more than fans are beginning to realize the fine characteristics of this indoor game and to sense the problems of the officials and the necessity of their support. Common sense warns us that wholesale criticism of officials is unfair and wrong and yet we find it occurring season after season. As a layman may become puzzled when medical men cannot agree, how can we, the student body and the team, who are closely allied to this sport at Villanova, expect the outside following of the sport to retain their admiration of us, if on every occasion when the officials toot their horns against one of our favorites, we give him the proverbial bronx cheer. We will find in the long run that if we do not agree with the decision, the age-old proverb, "silence is golden" has its place in this situation.

AMERICAN STUDENT CALLED IGNORANT

Harvard Professor Claims Our Students Just Get 'Good Smattering'

Washington, D. C.—(ACP)—"If a student in America received three hours to concentrate on one subject, he would die of shock."

So said Harvard University's President James Bryant Conant to the Association of American Universities.

"As it is now, he has to jump from Algebra to tap dancing to Cherokee to Choctaw. Our students emerge from college with a wonderful smattering of everything."

An unidentified professor from the South sprang to his feet and yelled:

"Why! Our football team was playing yours at Cambridge, and our cheering section was calling your boys 'damn Yankees,' but they quit after the 1 if because they realized no Harvard man had enough history to know what they were talking about."

Uncle Sam's Civilian Conservation Corps Has 250,000 Student Body

Washington, D. C.—One "Institution" with 250,000 students. That is the educational record of Uncle Sam's Civilian Conservation Corps. The students blanket the nation and the scope of their instruction covers almost every phase of human knowledge — from electrical mathematics to personal hygiene, and from forestry to crime prevention.

The CCC enrollees number 350,000 and the official figures indicate that 75 percent of these young men are taking educational courses. Not merely elementary and vocational courses, but back in the foothills, the forests and the mountains thousands of CCC boys are occupying their evenings and week-ends with regular college and university instruction.

When a camp is situated near a college, arrangements are possible whereby the enrollee may attend regular morning classes and perform his camp duties in the afternoon. For instance, 31 CCC boys are enrolled at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, Alabama. CCC camp 447 is located nearby and this enables the enrollees to take regular college courses.

Many other camps are conveniently situated for ambitious CCC boys who wish to continue the educations that the depression forced them to abandon.

The bulk of the college work done by boys of the CCC, is, of necessity, through correspondence and extension courses. More than 200 colleges, including the nation's leading universities, cooperate with the Educational Advisors of the CCC to make college courses available for the enrollees.

PROF. SUGGESTS A. B. C. ORIGIN

Thinks That Ancient Greeks Were Creators of Present Form

New Haven, Conn—(ACP)—Professors who know their ABC's have long been puzzled as to their origin.

General opinion had it that the alphabet was transmitted to us from the Greeks through the Phoenicians. It appears, from a recent announcement of Dr. Julius Obermann, professor of Semitics at Yale University, that we inherited our ABC's from a little-known people of northern Syria.

Basing his conclusions on the study of cuneiform alphabet writings on clay tablets unearthed six years ago at Ras Shamra in Syria, Dr. Obermann claims the Greeks really borrowed an archaic form of this Semitic alphabet and preserved it.

Tracing the alphabet to Ras Shamra dissolves the perplexities of ABC-historians, he explained. The Greeks used more symbols than the Phoenicians did. Accounting for the non-Phoenician elements was a problem. Now these elements can be shown "one and all to be present in the cuneiform alphabet from Ras Shamra."

MEMBER'S LETTER RAPS FRAT 'GUESTS'

Student Decries Constant 'Sponging' by Rival Campus Organization

"That letter ought to get them," is the attitude of a "Bewildered Greek" at the University of Michigan.

When rival fraternity men attempted to appropriate the house of his brethren, he wrote an open letter of protest in the Michigan Daily. This is a nutshell of it:

"Members of a rival fraternity have overrun our chapter house. You can't go downstairs in the evening without tripping over several of them. They constantly invite themselves for meals in spite of a frigid reception. In answer to our earnest queries they blandly state that they enjoy our meals. What can we do in the face of such compliments? It seems as if those fellows just can't take a hint.

"Tonight was the last straw. Several of these rival Greeks asked me if I would leave the room so they could study in privacy!"

Here's aroma for you

If you could be there when these hundreds of hogsheads are opened up . . . if you could see this mild ripe tobacco, prime and ready to be made into Chesterfield Cigarettes . . . see the golden color of the leaf . . . and get a whiff of that delightful aroma . . . you'd say . . .

SCIENCE STUDENTS HEAR ABRAM L. YIP

Former Student Here Addresses Pre-Meds at Regular Meeting of Seminar

"It may be, perhaps, that a great factor in retarding amicable relationship between the Oriental and the Occidental is due to the fact that the Oriental thinks and speaks in poetical style. This makes it difficult for the Oriental to explain himself clearly to the Occidental, and thus the two can not mingle to any great extent."

This was the statement tendered by Mr. Abram L. Yip to the science seminar held last Thursday in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre.

Former Villanova Student

Mr. Yip, a former Chinese student of the Villanova pre-medical school, spoke solely on the topic of Chinese manner of thought, expression, and customs, in an effort to explain away some of the difficulties existing between Oriental and Occidental.

In his discussion Mr. Yip brought out the fact that the Chinese differ from the Americans in that they do most with what they have on hand, while the American people are always progressing and perfecting in all fields of endeavor.

From Mr. Yip's description of the Chinese plays, it appears that they are more in the form of operas. It also may be concluded that from the viewpoint of the spectators the plays are presented more on the order of the Elizabethan plays. Most, if not all, of the setting and action is left to the imagination.

Writing is Artistic

Chinese speech consists of words of no more than one syllable, while Chinese writing is purely artistic.

REV. JOHN HAMMOND CONDUCTS STUDENT LENTEN DEVOTIONS

Popular Faculty Member Delivers Third in Series of Sermons Last Evening

TOPIC, 'THOUGHTLESSNESS'

"One of the things with which the modern youth of today may be charged is thoughtlessness. If young men would only take time to think and to meditate upon the things that would be to their advantage they would keep out of trouble." Thus spoke Rev. John Hammond, O. S. A., last evening as he delivered the third in a series of weekly Lenten sermons to the student body.

To further emphasize his points, Father Hammond told of his experience with a man on his way to the electric chair who was heard to exclaim, "If I had only thought." "This," the speaker said, "sums up my whole argument. Each day should have some portion set aside for the purpose of meditation."

As has been the custom for the past few years, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, presented the initial address on Ash Wednesday.

Seek "Corruptible Crown"

Father Stanford brought out the fact that while athletes strive for a "corruptible crown," every good-living Catholic should strive for an "incorruptible crown," which is eternal happiness. He also stipulated that various sacrifices should be made during the lenten season.

On last Tuesday evening, Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Arts and Philosophy, spoke on the Salvation of the Soul. In the course of his sermon, Father Burns quoted the self-deprecatory speech of Tarquin, famous Shakespearian character. It was also explained very clearly that it is very selfish and unwanting to gain material things, at the expense of the loss of eternal salvation of the soul.

DANIEL J. O'CONNOR, who was recently appointed by Junior Class President, John L. Simons, as chairman of the annual Junior Promenade, which will be held this year on the evening of May 7 in the college gymnasium. O'Connor is a member of the School of Technology.

Formal announcement of the chairman of the colorful Junior Promenade, which is to be held on Friday evening, May 7, in the college gymnasium, was officially made late yesterday afternoon by John L. Simons, junior class president.

In conjunction with the publication of the singular honor, all other Junior Week appointments were officially confirmed by President Simons.

Precedent Is Set

Simultaneous with the above disclosures, it was revealed that a precedent is being established by the creation of a sub-committee, composed of two members, to aid the General Chairman in guiding the destinies of this traditional event. Edward Gornowski and Frank Menapace will be under the immediate direction of J. Walter Stahmann, who was announced as Chairman in a previous issue of the VILLANOVAN.

J. Paul Skelly, also of the Engineering School, has been appointed to the chairmanship of the dinner-dance, which will provide the anticlimax to this gala occasion. As has been customary, the dinner-dance will be a closed affair.

BETA GAMMA MEETS BUCKNELL, UPSALA

Local Forensic Team Argues Hour and Wage Question Here This Week

Opponents for the ensuing week for Beta Gamma, Debating Society of Villanova College, have been announced by Anthony Differ, president of the society. The engagements, two in number, will both be presented in the Amphitheatre of Mendel Hall at eight o'clock in the evening of the respective dates.

Face Bucknell Thursday

Beta Gamma will entertain, first, Bucknell University on Thursday, February 25. The question is, Resolved: That Congress shall have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry. This point of discussion has been much considered at the present time; it appears that both opponents are well informed on the subject. The society will be competently represented by John Hosey and John McManus, both of whom will uphold the affirmative aspect of the question.

On Friday, February 26, the local forensic team will encounter Upsala College. The speakers for Villanova, however, will be Joseph Alessandroni and Frederick Waters. Again, Villanova will uphold the affirmative side of the same question, namely, the hour and wage controversy.

Hold Three Engagements

Engagements during the past week have been with the following colleges: Nassau College of New York, the question for debate again was that one concerning the hours and wages of labor. The affirmative group of debaters was competently represented in the persons of Thomas Delate and William

Uncle Sam's Civilian Conservation Corps Has 250,000 Student Body

Washington, D. C.—One "Institution" with 250,000 students. That is the educational record of Uncle Sam's Civilian Conservation Corps. The students blanket the nation and the scope of their instruction covers almost every phase of human knowledge — from electrical mathematics to personal hygiene, and from forestry to crime prevention.

The CCC enrollees number 350,000 and the official figures indicate that 75 percent of these young men are taking educational courses. Not merely elementary and vocational courses, but back in the foothills, the forests and the mountains thousands of CCC boys are occupying their evenings and week-ends with regular college and university instruction.

When a camp is situated near a college, arrangements are possible whereby the enrollee may attend regular morning classes and perform his camp duties in the afternoon. For instance, 31 CCC boys are enrolled at Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn, Alabama. CCC camp 447 is located nearby and this enables the enrollees to take regular college courses.

Many other camps are conveniently situated for ambitious CCC boys who wish to continue the educations that the depression forced them to abandon.

The bulk of the college work done by boys of the CCC, is, of necessity, through correspondence and extension courses. More than 200 colleges, including the nation's leading universities, cooperate with the Educational Advisors of the CCC to make college courses available for the enrollees.

PROF. SUGGESTS A. B. C. ORIGIN

Thinks That Ancient Greeks Were Creators of Present Form

New Haven, Conn—(ACP)—Professors who know their ABC's have long been puzzled as to their origin.

General opinion had it that the alphabet was transmitted to us from the Greeks through the Phoenicians. It appears, from a recent announcement of Dr. Julius Obermann, professor of Semitics at Yale University, that we inherited our ABC's from a little-known people of northern Syria.

Basing his conclusions on the study of cuneiform alphabet writings on clay tablets unearthed six years ago at Ras Shamra in Syria, Dr. Obermann claims the Greeks really borrowed an archaic form of this Semitic alphabet and preserved it.

Tracing the alphabet to Ras Shamra dissolves the perplexities of ABC-historians, he explained. The Greeks used more symbols than the Phoenicians did. Accounting for the non-Phoenician elements was a problem. Now these elements can be shown "one and all to be present in the cuneiform alphabet from Ras Shamra."

MEMBER'S LETTER RAPS FRAT 'GUESTS'

Student Decries Constant 'Sponging' by Rival Campus Organization

"That letter ought to get them," is the attitude of a "Bewildered Greek" at the University of Michigan.

When rival fraternity men attempted to appropriate the house of his brethren, he wrote an open letter of protest in the Michigan Daily. This is a nutshell of it:

"Members of a rival fraternity have overrun our chapter house. You can't go downstairs in the evening without tripping over several of them. They constantly invite themselves for meals in spite of a frigid reception. In answer to our earnest queries they blandly state that they enjoy our meals. What can we do in the face of such compliments? It seems as if those fellows just can't take a hint.

"'onight was the last straw. Several of these rival Greeks asked me if I would leave the room so they could study in privacy!"

Sanborn succeeds Edward J. Casey, '37, retiring editor, who during his term of office maintained the standards of the Engineer and brought a considerable amount of favorable comment to the college and especially to the School of Technology. As a final act of his capacity, Casey published a note of thanks to the staff members of the past scholastic term for the fine spirit of co-operation that made the publication possible, and made special note of his successor's splendid work as Copy Editor.

SCIENCE STUDENTS HEAR ABRAM L. YIP

Former Student Here Addresses Pre-Meds at Regular Meeting of Seminar

"It may be, perhaps, that a great factor in retarding amicable relationship between the Oriental and the Occidental is due to the fact that the Oriental thinks and speaks in poetical style. This makes it difficult for the Oriental to explain himself clearly to the Occidental, and thus the two can not mingle to any great extent."

This was the statement tendered by Mr. Abram L. Yip to the science seminar held last Thursday in the Mendel Hall amphitheatre.

Former Villanova Student

Mr. Yip, a former Chinese student of the Villanova pre-medical school, spoke solely on the topic of Chinese manner of thought, expression, and customs, in an effort to explain away some of the difficulties existing between Oriental and Occidental.

In his discussion Mr. Yip brought out the fact that the Chinese differ from the Americans in that they do most with what they have on hand, while the American people are always progressing and perfecting in all fields of endeavor.

From Mr. Yip's description of the Chinese plays, it appears that they are more in the form of operas. It also may be concluded that from the viewpoint of the spectators the plays are presented more on the order of the Elizabethan plays. Most, if not all, of the setting and action is left to the imagination.

Writing is Artistic

Chinese speech consists of words of no more than one syllable, while Chinese writing is purely artistic.

REV. JOHN HAMMOND CONDUCTS STUDENT LENTEN DEVOTIONS

Popular Faculty Member Delivers Third in Series of Sermons Last Evening

TOPIC, 'THOUGHTLESSNESS'

"One of the things with which the modern youth of today may be charged is thoughtlessness. If young men would only take time to think and to meditate upon the things that would be to their advantage they would keep out of trouble." Thus spoke Rev. John Hammond, O. S. A., last evening as he delivered the third in a series of weekly Lenten sermons to the student body.

To further emphasize his points, Father Hammond told of his experience with a man on his way to the electric chair who was heard to exclaim, "If I had only thought." "This," the speaker said, "sums up my whole argument. Each day should have some portion set aside for the purpose of meditation."

As has been the custom for the past few years, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College, presented the initial address on Ash Wednesday.

Seek "Corruptible Crown"

Father Stanford brought out the fact that while athletes strive for a "corruptible crown," every good-living Catholic should strive for an "incorruptible crown," which is eternal happiness. He also stipulated that various sacrifices should be made during the lenten season.

On last Tuesday evening, Rev. John F. Burns, O. S. A., Dean of the School of Arts and Philosophy, spoke on the Salvation of the Soul. In the course of his sermon, Father Burns quoted the self-deprecatory speech of Tarquin, famous Shakespearian character. It was also explained very clearly that it is very selfish and unwanting to gain material things, at the expense of the loss of eternal salvation of the soul.

BETA GAMMA MEETS BUCKNELL, UPSALA

Local Forensic Team Argues Hour and Wage Question Here This Week

Opponents for the ensuing week for Beta Gamma, Debating Society of Villanova College, have been announced by Anthony Differ, president of the society. The engagements, two in number, will both be presented in the Amphitheatre of Mendel Hall at eight o'clock in the evening of the respective dates.

Face Bucknell Thursday

Beta Gamma will entertain, first, Bucknell University on Thursday, February 25. The question is, Resolved: That Congress shall have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry. This point of discussion has been much considered at the present time; it appears that both opponents are well informed on the subject. The society will be competently represented by John Hosey and John McManus, both of whom will uphold the affirmative aspect of the question.

On Friday, February 26, the local forensic team will encounter Upsula College. The speakers for Villanova, however, will be Joseph Alessandroni and Frederick Waters. Again, Villanova will uphold the affirmative side of the same question, namely, the hour and wage controversy.

Hold Three Engagements

Engagements during the past week have been with the following colleges: Nassau College of New York, the question for debate again was that one concerning the hours and wages of labor. The affirmative group of debaters was competently represented in the persons of Thomas Delate and William

LENT

IT is a tragic feature of modern life that the "average" Catholic does not attach very much importance to the Holy Season of Lent. Too commonly, a dispensation from fasting is sought; or, if this step is not taken, the average man explains away the necessity for fasting, observing to himself that "those fellows in the old days overdid things."

Perhaps they might have overdone things in those days, but there seems to be a connection between the rise of materialism and Communism, and the decline of the Christian Spirit amongst the peoples of the world.

Lent is a season of the year when we chastise our bodies and our minds for Christ's sake. An athlete is made strong by exercise. And in the same way, a Christian develops will power not by explaining away the necessity for fasting, or for denying his will, but rather develops his will by denying it. To acquire a strong will, one must do violence to one's desires.

There we repeat that it is tragic to note the apparent passing of rigid Lenten observance on the part of the average Catholic. We can hardly expect to reform the world, or to put down Communists, when we ourselves need a long overdue internal reformation.

A HAZARDOUS PRACTICE

IT may prove of interest to those members of the student body who are accustomed to trespass upon the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks in their passages to and from the Postoffice to learn that the Pennsylvania Railroad went to the expense of building the present underpass to prevent the repetition of a casualty similar to the one that resulted in the untimely death of Rev. John F. Emmett, O. S. A., some time ago. To further discourage such a practice an iron fence is erected between the tracks for the entire length of the station, with the hope that where native good sense is lacking the inconvenience of encircling it will prove a deterrent.

Not only is the habit of trespassing upon the railroad tracks indicative of a lamentable lack of common sense on the part of those guilty of it, but it also, and this makes the fault more serious, is proving a bad example to the children about the station who are now beginning to pattern their own actions after those of the students.

The rapidity with which through trains approach the station is not easily reckoned by the average person. The train is upon the pedestrian before he is fully aware of it, and frequently requires some scurrying if he is to remove himself from its path. When such a person is a child, whose intuitive faculties work less rapidly than those of an adult, there is a real possibility of a fatality.

We live in a society where no man can violate a prohibition without the likelihood of encouraging some other person to imitate him. When his actions are the transgression of a law that carries tragic consequences there is a double responsibility. This joined to the obligation of all older persons to direct the minds of children along the course of proper conduct, should prompt those who are careless in this respect to the immediate correction of their fault.

OUR AID TO FANCO

DESPITE the fact that over 66 percent of the American people have expressed little or no interest in the Spanish affair, that 22 percent favor the loyalists and 12 percent have pledged their favoritism in the rebel cause the United States has been really materially helping the rebel forces. Surprising as this statement may be it is true.

Early in the fracas President Roosevelt insisted upon a strict neutrality pact and asked Congress to place an embargo on arms to Spain, in order that our non-interference plan could be more successfully carried out. Actually this act has helped the rebel cause, for while this act prohibited sending arms to the combatants in Spain it made buying our guns impossible for the loyalist forces but did not stop the importation of our arms through German and Italian channels into Spain for rebel use.

Thus our neutrality is not quite complete. Although we have insured ourselves and our people from all possible danger in the Spanish situation we have been indirectly aiding Franco's armies by selling arms to Germany and Italy, who in turn can sell them to the rebel government with whom they are in open concurrence.

Because of the German and Italian intervention it looked for a time as though world war was imminent. It seemed as though the apparent strife would line the Fascist Germany and Italy against Communist Spain, France and Russia. Due to foresight on the part of Great Britain and other nations, who were almost sure of being drawn into any such European war, a meeting was called and the Goddess of Peace won her conquest with the power of War when 38 world powers agreed to withdraw all aid from either side on the Spanish front. Thus the world was left safe for another short breathing spell.

But what is to be the future of Spain? Removal of all interference has made the conflict purely Spanish, but what of the aid already given the rebels by Germany and Italy? Surely they will ask for some reward for their part in the almost sure victory of Franco's forces. England, too, has slyly given aid to the rebels on the promise that the new government will protect the British interests in Spain. All this makes us wonder just what will happen to the stricken nation even if the forces of the Rightists do win. In our own mind we can see nothing left but division of old Spain into a strongly fascist influenced country completely dominated by Italian and German interests.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

SCREAMS OF terror and the whack of oaken paddles against flesh drew us to the old Alumni gym last Wednesday evening where the pre-medico's were "giving the works" to a few aspirants for their fraternity. Remembering our own period of trial a year or so ago and anxious to see someone else suffer as we had done, we went inside. Here and there on the main floor of the gym we found the sixteen neophytes in various stages of undress going through the foolish motions assigned to them by the upperclassmen. For the most part the new men were taking their licking in a very admirable manner, but one lad, an upperclassman who "skipped out" of last year's affair, wore a sullen expression and gave an undue amount of back talk. This, of course, drew more attention to him, a fact which caused him no little concern. Finally he tore off his blindfold and walked off the floor. He just couldn't take it.

Not wanting a quitter in their group the frat members let him go, but President Piserchia, kind-hearted soul that he is, persuaded him to come back, and he was allowed to stand for a time in a corner. Neophyte after neophyte went through all the tortures of the ceremony and came out smiling and submissive, but this was not the way with the quitter. When it came his turn to go through with the rest had done he balked again and threw aside his mask and with a few unsportsmanlike remarks quit the group. So far as we know this is the first time in the history of the fraternity that such a thing has happened. Perhaps the I. K. D. is better off for his showing his true color.

As We See It . . . Indifferentism

By HARRY PARKIN

THOSE of a philosophical turn may be inclined to question the usage to which we put the title of this article. Theologians apply it to those who deny the obligation of man to worship God according to the doctrines of the one true religion. In this article, however, we ascribe it to those who do not acknowledge, whether they perceive it or not, any real difference between conditions as they are and as they should be. A little attention to the matter will soon reveal a similarity of usage that is not at first apparent. Where the former grants the necessity of morality but is indifferent to the creed that fixes it, the latter sees the necessity for justice and charity among men but does nothing to promote it. Where the first believes a man's religion an instance of a pre-conceived drawing of names from a hat, the second believes the order that prevails in society is the inevitable outcome of living. Where the one reconciles the irreconcilable in theology, the other attributes an intelligent plan to something that lacks existence. The indifferentist, heedless of the political and social evils of the day, subordinates the ideals of true living—an actively constructive interest in the things about him—to a standard of importance that has no reality outside himself.

We are all familiar with those members of society who wave away an incurable its defects, or leave their correction to the future without other than the passing abuse of their existence; but seldom do we encounter those who set about the task of curing them. Politicians never think of repealing any of the useless and unheeded laws that make our statute books a conglomerate mass of restrictions and prohibitions, before they add to the chaos with a new piece of legislation. Social workers bemoan the tendency for crime among children of the slums, but hasten to berate the individual as an extravagant idealist who suggests their removal. The Supreme Court upholds a state law permitting the sterilization of the feeble-minded, while a lower court permits the prosecution of a suit against a woman who had a doctor sterilize her daughter on the grounds that she was feeble-minded.

The eugenists proclaim that only the physically fit should have children, and then denounce the large families of the poor. As a group indifferentists are all alike; they grant the necessity of order in society, but are ignorant of the form that it should take; they see the need of moral behaviour, but don't seem to know what is moral.

Much of what first appears as inconsistencies in the social order is in reality the outcome of social indifference. They are the result of myriads of plans that have only this in common, that they are no plans because they are designed to solve a problem that no one understands. Everyone seems to be demonated by the thought that there is no going back to the root of the trouble and there effecting the alteration. The materialistic concept that society is constantly evolving toward perfection, endorses the idea that what might be considered as evils in a world dominated by Christian thought, is merely less desirable stages in our social development and if left to themselves will ultimately correct themselves. Which they doubtlessly will by effecting a general breakdown in our social and economic structure.

Many people are so engrossed in their own advancement that any time they may be constrainted to devote to needs of others is regarded as an infringment upon their rights. Each for himself and God for us all, is the philosophy of the day, but no one stops to wonder why God should be for anyone who thinks only of himself, when He has already commanded us to be the contrary. Society is not "me" to an individual, but rather some extraneous group with whom he externally maintains the amenities but under their cover carries on a continued state of war. The most outstanding vice of the people is selfishness, it is carried into all their business, social, and domestic relations, and breede in them an indifference to all about them, which is largely responsible for their failure to concern themselves with evils that are a disgrace to a civilization that is advanced as far as this one professedly is. But like all the victims of faults that are so bound up with their personality as to seem virtue, the indifferentist is not indifferent to anything so much as his own indifference.

Pass In Review

By RICHARD DEVERALL

FROM time to time, during the past few years, it has been our custom to talk about music. Although we have pointed out time and again that music should be a source of inspiration of every man on the campus, we feel certain that most of the young men on the campus use music only to arouse their sense of rhythm . . . or something.

We feel certain that such a condition obtains not because we do not want to appreciate good music, but because we do not know what meaning there is in music. As St. Thomas has written, one does not love that which one does now know.

Recently, on the Villanova campus, there has been formed a club to study the meaning of music. By means of books and phonograph records, this group is making a study of opears, symphonies, and the other forms of musical composition. One of the Augustinian Fathers on the campus has invested in a magnificent electric victrola and, working with the boys, the idea of studying music is meeting with an enthusiastic response.

What such a group can accomplish seems at first unimportant and futile. But, like all things done for their own sake, a study of music so enriches one's intellectual and emotional life that those who do not receive at least even an education in the rudiments of education are one-sided and partially undeveloped

Music, like any one of the arts, is many sided. That is, it can be appreciated by almost anyone. Further, the appeal of music is so universal that it has been termed the "international language." To illustrate, few can hear Beethoven's Fifth and not but grasp the dramatic, tremendous struggle of the will against the forces of evil. The final triumph, the triumph of the will, so clashes against one's spirit that when the final notes of the finale have died down, one is trembling with the ecstatic fear born of this vision of Beethoven's gigantic conception.

And for another example, what else could Rimsky - Korsakoff's Flight of the Bumble Bee be but the Flight of the Bumble Bee? Or could Saint-Saens The Swan have been given any other name?

You know, there is a difference between modern "jazz" or "swing" music and good, substantial classical music.

What do you, for instance, like about 'Pennies from Heaven"? Tell me exactly what it means to you? Do you like the words? If you do, that is beside the point. If you heard the melody alone, you couldn't for the love of Villanova guess the title. The usual answer, I suppose, would be that you "like" it. That means nothing. A child "likes" to suck on its finger. The "liking" of jazz is on about the same level as thumb-sucking.

Or, as is usually the case, it is not the music that is appreciated, but rather is it the manner of presenting the music. If Clyde McCoy gives the trumpet a "kiss," or drives one almost to the point of nervous exhausion with a rendition of "Sugar Blues" . . . is that an appreciation of music, or is it not an appreciation of technique? Obviously, it is an appreciation of technique. What, then, can be the basis of modern musical "popular" songs. If the truth must be told, the basis is an animal appreciation of "nice" sounds and "woozy" movement. That and no more.

So what about it, brother? When you see a notice up on the bulletin board announcing the first meeting of this group (it has been meeting informally for some time now), why not look it up, attend the meetings, and develop an intelligent appreciation of music.

If I had the choice of hiring a man who loved Beethoven, and a man whose highest love for music was Clyde McCoy, I'd certainly hire the man who loved Beethoven, for if a man loves beauty in music, he ought to love the beauty of virtue. This probably sounds far-fetched . . . but you think it over.

HAVANA HIGHLIGHTS

(Part IV. of a series of five articles dealing with the January cruise of M. V. Britannic to Nassau (Bahamas), and Havana (Cuba).

MOB-VIOLENCE

CUBANS are usually very calm and peaceful, but if the occasion calls for it, their fiery Latin temperament will blaze forth suddenly, sweeping all before it.

Such was the case after the recent abdication of former President Machado.

Many remnants of that wild rampage of a normally peaceful people can still be seen today in Havana.

The magnificent home of Machado still bears the marks of one of those angry mobs back in the darkest days of the revolution. Half-hanging doors, wood-work torn away, dilapidated rooms, shattered window-panes, all show mute evidence to the violence and disorder which disrupted and devastated all of Cuba back in 1933.

Mr. Machado didn't leave any too soon.

STUDENT REBELS

The nefarious A. B. C., and the student body of Havana University were two of the principal participants in the revolution.

The A. B. C. was forcibly dissolved; and the University of Havana was closed, and has remained closed for several years, until only two weeks ago when its doors were again opened.

When we asked our guide what he did during the revolt, he replied "I went home and stayed there!"

AN EMPTY FRAME

Probably the most impressive sight in Havana is its beautiful capitol, built to resemble ours at Washington, but on a much larger scale.

It is a magnificent edifice, erected at the enormous cost of twenty million dollars; it is the second largest in North or South America, giving way only to the colossal capitol at Buenos Aires in Argentina.

Once inside, it is fascinating to watch the immense doors, weighing several tons, move back and forth with apparent ease.

Also of interest is the large compass in the central hall, from which all distances in Havana are measured. In the exact center of this compass there is a beautiful pearl, donated by the workmen who built the capitol.

In one of the many corridors, there is a gallery of all the past Presidents of Cuba. Even Machado is represented. But there is one empty frame from which the picture has been removed. That was the picture of former President Gomez.

Even those opposed to the recent President, think that this was a very petty and childish act upon the part of these authorities who were responsible for its removal.

FLASH!

According to our guide there are 50,000 Chinese males in Cuba, as against only 50 Chinese females.

Although U. S. money is interchangeable with Cuban, you will always receive Cuban money unless you ask for United States money. Don't bring back Cuban money into the States expecting to redeem it. Upon inquiry the Foreign Exchange departments of the large Philadelphia banks said that they would not redeem any amount of Cuban money.

During our three day stay in Havana, everyone boarded on the ship. This is done to avoid trouble, expense and waste of time in moving ashore.

HERE'S a little more news about that "College Dance Club." As a result of his straight swing sessions on the weekly Jack Pearl coast-to-coast radio show (Monday, WJZ — 9:30 P. M.) a survey is said to show that the greater percentage of listeners to Tommy Dorsey's music are college and prep-school students. Thus Dorsey announces that he is now planning to create "College Dance Clubs" on the various campuses and will play the tunes selected by the groups during a new twice-weekly CBS coast-to-coast broadcast which starts the week of February 22nd. The idea behind the plan is to find out the numbers most popular among collegians from week to week. According to Dorsey, mention will be made over the air of the names of the individual colleges, universities and clubs participating. Check up on your radio programs for the exact hour and station of the broadcast.

Now for a few early returns on that favorite band poll. The old master himself is still in the lead but a small margin. To give you more accurate returns here they are:

1. Guy Lombardo 25
2. Benny Goodman 23
3. Hal Kemp 21
4. Horace Heidt 17
5. Step Fields 5
6. Fred Waring 3
7. Phil Harris, Russ Morgan, Kay Kaiser 2
8. Noble, Hallet, Savitt, Fio Rito and Garber, bringing up the rear with one vote.

These early returns show how they stand. A greater majority of these votes were received from the day students. A canvass of the resident students will be made next week. Yours truly expects to have the largest count ever had in Villanova. Over 400 students will be approached and asked for their opinions and a signature to make the ballot valid.

Ray Sinatra is celebrating his third anniversary as a band leader . . . Rubinoff, the violinist, is brushing up on his native tongue through perusing a history of Russia presented him by a fan in Baltimore . . . Ozzie Nelson will continue to air via CBS from the Netherland-Plaza Hotel Lexington until May 6, at least, by virtue of an extended contract with the hotel . . . Howard Barlow has resumed active work as musical director of "March of Time" after six weeks away from the studios due to illness. During recuperation he supplied many cues by telephone to the MOT office.

Charles Butterworth, comic star on the Fred Astaire program, maintains the same owlish solemnity in real life that brought him screen fame. The funnier his radio lines, the more he shakes his head and the sadder he looks . . . Authors of the show's script didn't know this and were plenty discouraged at the first rehearsals — until Butterworth congratulated them on the swell job . . . Shirley Temple has announced that she will make her radio debut Gillette wants her for the Community Sing. They've heard that she is the most famous little shaver in the world . . . Lanny Ross knows a champion parachute jumper who, like his sponsor's product, is good to the last drop . . . Robert Ripley, on the other hand, knows a little boy who gets spanked often but is, nevertheless, bad to the last strop.

Eugene Ormandy, director of the Philadelphia Orchestra's concerts, has been invited to conduct at the Danube festival at Linz, Austria, July 16-21. Linz is the birthpiace of Anton Bruckner, of whose music Ormandy is considered a leading interpreter. Last Summer the conductor broke up his vacation to substitute at the festival for Bruno Walter, who was ill.

A few notes on grand opera and the classics . . . Gina Cigna has brought back to grand opera a new interpretation of Norma, Bellini's masterpiece. Her work as usual was supreme . . . Fr. Vrana has purchased some new records of famous arias from our leading operas today. Among them "Casa Nome" sung by Lily Pons . . . "Celeste Aida" interpreted by Giovanni Martinelli . . . "Mi Chiammano Mimi" from La Boheme sung by one of grand opera's most famous and beloved stars, Lucrezia Bori. For those interested in the classics they may well appreciate and learn music by attending the weekly meetings of the music club.

DRAMATIC SOCIETY VIEWS REHEARSAL

Group Attends Dress Performance of 'Journey's End' at Alden Park Theatre

In an effort to make the Belle Masque Society an interesting feature of college activity, Anthony J. Frayne, A.M., moderator of the chapter, announced that on Thursday, February 18, the twenty-five club members will travel by bus to the Alden Park Theater to witness a special dress rehearsal of "Journey's End."

To Be Presented Here

"Journey's End" is the forthcoming presentation of the Belle Masque, which will tentatively be given during Junior Week. The arrangements for this special dress rehearsal were made through the courtesy of Mr. Walton, manager of the theatre, which is in the Alden Park Apartments. Professor Frayne hopes that the members of the cast will be benefited by this special performance, by reason of its staging and production.

Rehearsals Held

Several important rehearsals have been held during the week and also committees have been appointed to guide the society for its coming production. All members are of the School of Commerce and Finance and are Juniors with the exception of William Bailey, who is a Sophomore and a member of the Poster Committee and Edward Donovan, a Senior, who is the stage manager. The following are the committees: Tickets, Vincent Brasca, George Oesterle and Jack Jolly. The Program Committee consists of Lou Biester and Charles O'Connor. Poster Committee, Pete McManus, William Bailey and James McAndrews. Dominic Pascucci is in charge of publicity.

PHILA. ALUMNI CLUB SELECTS OFFICERS

John J. Dougherty, '18, Chosen President of Prominent Graduate Group

Election and installation of officers of the Villanova Club of Philadelphia occurred at the recent meeting of the association last Thursday evening at the Philopatrian Club in Philadelphia. John J. Dougherty, '18, was elected to the office of president for the ensuing year.

Leaming, Laughlin Chosen

The other officers who were elected to positions at this meeting were: vice president, Joseph J. Linsaiata, '35; treasurer, Joseph Cunningham, '20; secretary, Francis McDonald, '28. James P. Leaming, '10, and Charles B. Laughlin, '23, were the two members chosen to the Board of Governors of the National Alumni Association as representatives of the Philadelphia Club.

In attendance at the meeting were approximately 125 club members representing the Philadelphia district. Following the elections, the meeting gave over to a discussion of business of the coming year. The newly elected president, Dougherty, began his duties immediately after showing his appreciation of the confidence that had been placed in him.

To Appoint Committees

President Dougherty will appoint all committees that will direct activities of the society this year. Committees will be chosen to prepare for the Annual Football Dinner, the Villanova-Temple chance-book raffle, Membership Committee. An entirely new committee will be appointed by Dougherty in the near future to decide policies and activities of other chapters that should be brought to the consideration of the Philadelphia Club.

YEARLING DEBATERS MEET COURT TEAM

Georgian Court College Plays Host to Freshman Forensic Group Thursday

Villanova's Freshmen debating society journeyed to Lakewood New Jersey last Thursday afternoon to debate with the freshmen team of Georgian Court college.

Hour, Wage Question

The topic for debate chosen by the schools was: Resolved, "That Congress should be empowered to regulate maximum hours and minimum wages in industry." There was no decision given.

Georgian Court was represented by Adelaide Beuder, Ruth Kensie, and Jean Sloyan, while Robert O'Brien and Frank Pimpinella of the Commerce and Finance School and Robert Wilderotter of the School of Technology upheld the colors of the Villanova freshmen.

Thus far this year the Villanova freshmen have had several debates with the varsity and with other colleges. Most of these contests have been no decision affairs so the real strength of the yearlings cannot be determined. However, several debates have been arranged for dates within th near future. Among those colleges contacted are Princeton, Rosemont and Bucknell.

Princeton To Be Met

The Princeton contest will probably be the first debate arranged by the freshmen as bothe teams are eagarly awaiting the debate. A debate arranged with Rosemont before the Christmas holidays was cancelled because of a misunderstanding concerning the date. Recent negotiations have made a contest with the girls school definitely sure for the very near future. The Bucknell engagement is still only a possibility but the authorities of the freshmen forensic group are sure that a definite arrangement will be made before another week.

The team representing Villanova was composed of Robert J. Connolly, Daniel J. Troy, Francis J. Hiney, Hugh F. Ferguson, Anthony L. Differ, and John J. Harrington. Connolly was the outstanding Villanova representative.

Swarthmore was awarded both the team and individual championships. Haverford, Temple, La Salle, Beaver and Drexel were the other Philadelphia teams in the contest.

Mr. Yip explained to the pre-medics his viewpoint as to how the Oriental characters were evolved. From his explanation it appears that these characters were first used by his people somewhere in the neighborhood of the year 2000 B. C. They were crude picture forms describing what the writer wished to say. The present-day characters have had no radical changes but have improved upon and shortened and combined various characters to form the words used today.

Mr. Yip concluded his lecture by describing briefly Oriental forms of dinners, which may consist of from 12 to 24 individual courses; and then by expressing his viewpoint on Chinese politics in reference to relations between China and other nations and between China and Japan.

It was stated that China must "clean house" before establishing permanent foreign relations, and that Chinese and Japanese can only exist and continue the Oriental races by establishing amicable relationships instead of militaristic campaigns.

Mr. Cooper verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. LAST WEEK was a record week for the courtmen. Three wins in as many starts is good ball in anybody's league. That C.C.N.Y. crowd was all that could be wished for as far as basketball goes but their vocabulary befitted a gang of lumberjacks. The pet names that were yelled at Capt. Don Brennan would have made any other man lose his head but the Wildcat center kept his head and played swell ball.

The extra period was wild and woolly enough to make up for any other dull games that preceded it. The Westminster quintet and the Leopard contingent were just too easy for the home boys and the games were just like any other meets with the Main Liners out in front all the time.

Our apologies to Arthur Mathieu, coach of the Wildcat swimming team, for not giving his team the space in the sports section they so deserved last week. Two wins in one week, Mr. Mathieu, is a fine record for your team. A reporter was assigned to cover those meets, however, when he awoke from his lethargy on Monday afternoon he found, to his surprise, that the paper had already gone to press. We assure Mr. Mathieu that his team will get all the publicity deserved in the future.

For the benefit of those who still wonder how the quintet of misfits happened to play the Frosh last Tuesday evening, here is the story. The first year men were scheduled to play the Haverford Aces as a preliminary to the Varsity game but at the last minute the Aces cancelled the match. A sports reporter in town called the gym and announced that he was sending a marvalous team to meet the Kittens that night. Such a build-up was given this quintet of "stars" that the athletic officials could not refuse and the game was scheduled. You saw the result, the neatest double-cross so far this season. The "stars" had all they could do to keep their feet let alone take a shot now and then.

The boxing team meets one of the toughest teams in the loop when they bump up against the Bucknell Bisons Friday night in the Main Line gym. The upstaters boast two inter-collegiate champs in the 125 and 145 pound classes and an all-around squad of good punchers in the other weights. Georgie Shull will again have his hands full when he tackles Joe Stephano, young 125 pounder, who carries dynamite in both hands and incidentally is the intercollegiate champ in that division. Shull, who is boxing intercollegiate for the first time, has had a hard row to hoe this year and is training hard for the Bucknell fray.

Shull is determined to avenge his two former defeats this season by a win over Stephano and it will certainly boost his average if he does so. Bob Mentzinger will also meet an intercollegiate champ in the 145 pound division and is hoping to make his record two out of three by a win over Ballard. Ray Gasbdy, boxing mentor, is confident that his boys will come through with flying colors but he readily admits that the Bisons will furnish the 'Cats with their first big time competition.

Manhattan in their loss to the Temple quintet last Friday night looked like anything but a collegiate basketball team. Although apparently well versed in the fundamentals of floor play, they forgot everything when then hit the boards. They could hardly be called a representative Gotham team as they were named in the local papers.

BOXING MATCH

The Intercollegiate bouts with the Bisons from Bucknell, Friday night will start promptly at 8.15 P. M. The price of admission will be the same as always, 42 cents. Seats may be had on the floor at ringside at no advance in price. The referee for the evening will be Bryan Hayes.

Quaker Withdrawal After Temple Exhibition Surprising to Villanova Officials

P.M.C. ALSO CANCELS MEET

With the two scheduled matches having been cancelled last week, Villanova fight enthusiasts will have to wait until this Friday night to get their first home glimpse of Ray Gadsby's current edition of fisticuffers as they stack up against a rough and ready Bucknell team.

Having watched the Temple matches last week, both the University of Pennsylvania and P. M. C. officials deemed it wise not to allow their forces to engage the Wildcats this season. Lack of suitable material to face the Gadsby combine is given as the chief excuse. The announcements from both Institutions came as a surprise to the Villanova athletic leaders.

If these two schools had no intention of meeting the locals, they should have not carded the bouts at the outset of the season. Meets could have been arranged with Catholic U., Penn State and Maryland, all strong squads.

Father Charles Melchior, Director of Athletics, as well as Gadsby did not wish to add any more meets to seven carded, when the offers from others came in, because they feared that the card would be overloaded. However, they are now virtually left holding the proverbial bag, for the aforementioned schools all have full schedules.

Thus the fighters are left with three remaining exhibitions and the Intercollegiates on their hands. Surely this is not enough for a group of young men who have been training strenuously for the last two and one-half months. However, some compensation has been made for the Cadet default. Ar-

INTRAMURAL SWIM MATCH POSTPONED

Conflict With Varsity Competition Moves Tourney Ahead

The intramural swimming meet that was scheduled for February 24 has been postponed to March 3, because of conflicts in both swimming and basketball schedules. The event was scheduled to take place Wednesday night, February 24 at the swimming pool but it was later found that Temple is swimming here that evening.

However, the moderators hope that enthusiasm and interest in this function will not be lessened because of the postponement. They have appointed managers for Hall teams and they have been active already in getting their teams into shape for the contest. Gene Barr has been appointed manager for the Mendel Day-hops, last year's swim champs, and he hopes to repeat again this year. The other team managers have taken up the challenge and all signs point toward a spirited conflict.

Managers Appointed

Harry Mazzei was appointed manager for the Mendel Residents squad, Art Vigilante for the Fedigan Hall team, Gene Ertle for Alumni, Jim Dwyer for Austin and Charley O'Connor for the Commerce and Finance Day-hops.

Mr. J. Q. Public Thinks That Colleges Put Too Much Emphasis On Football

By JOHN B. GERAGHTY, JR.

Mr. Average Man, reading the sports pages on a Sunday morning, gets a rather hazy idea of intercollegiate athletics.

Mr. Average Man, chatting with his fellow-riders in the smoker of the 8:15, thinks that "these college fellers" are a group of heavy-shouldered, light-headed lads who get along by their biceps, not their brains.

Mr. Average Man, as usual, is wrong.

His intercollegiate world runs along in a seasonal cycle; football in the Fall, basketball in the Winter, track in the Spring. In the Summer, all the athletes are building roads or delivering ice to make more biceps.

Football, basketball, track. This is the intercollegiate athletic program. This program takes care of, roughly, 40 football men, 15 basketball men, 20 track men, a total of 75 athletes in each college. This is the answer, if Mr. A. M. ever thought about it. But A. M. never thinks.

That's why he is so often wrong.

Let's tell the old boy the facts. Let's look at the record.

In the average college of 1000 students, about 35 per cent. of the student body are engaged in intercollegiate athletics, that is, competing with outside colleges. Within the walls of the college, or intramural athletics, about 30 per cent. of the students will play regularly, while 20 per cent. will play occasionally. Summarizing, about 80 per cent. of the students are engaged in athletics.

Continuing in our average college, the sports calendar will list nine sports: football, baseball, basketball, track, golf, tennis, swimming, boxing and soccer.

It is not unusual to add fencing, gymnastics, skiing and other indoor and outdoor teams.

Let our sports page peruser digest that.

With all the ballyhoo of the European countries regarding "mens sana in corpora sano," and the overemphasis concerning military training and mass athletics, the American college, with no publicity, does as much and more for its students.

It is to the eternal credit of the various Athletic Associations of colleges that adequate provisions are made to accommodate every student in seasonal athletics, if he wishes to participate. The humblest intramuralist is given the same provisions that are afforded the captain of varsity football.

It is because the minor sports are not news of universal appeal that they do not gain the sports pages of the metropolitan dailies. In explanation, the football game is seen by a huge number of spectators; the golf match by a few friends or "roomies" of the team members. The golf match has no interest to readers; the football game has. That is one of the functions of news; to satisfy the appeal of the masses.

So the next time that Mr. Average Man beefs about the overemphasis of football, tell him that the revenue derived from the gridiron supports ten athletic activities for hundreds of collegians.

It seems worth it to me.

RUNNERS HOLD DRILLS

Though old man Winter closed down on the campus during the last week he didn't dampen the spirits of the Wildcat trackmen any. The cindermen just moved their training area indoors and practice sessions were held in the gymnasium. According to "Jumbo" Jim Elliot coach of the varsity aggregation, an indoor meet will be held in the Swarthmore College field house sometime in March.

This announcement spurred the 'Cat harriers on to a higher level of endeavor, if this was possible, and training took on a new aspect. Ben Maloney, veteran distance man, will not compete this year according to a recent report. Afflicted with that scourge of athletes, a sinus condition, Maloney has been advised by his doctor not to compete.

BRENNAN PUTS C. C. N. Y. GAME INTO EXTRA PERIOD

Gotham Lads Lose to Main Liners, 33-32, in Exciting Fray

By J. ALESSANDRONI

Rising to a roaring crescendo, Villanova's basketeers released latent power, as they capped the climax of a winning streak to garner their fourth consecutive triumph in a heated, heart-throbbing extra period, one-point victory over the brilliant Lavender of C.C.N.Y. last Friday night.

Westminster, Lafayette and C.C. N.Y. fell before the fury of a smooth-working, fully-aroused band of Wildcats within a week. Steadily improving, the Blue and White's Harry McNally and Don Brennan with sophomores Lou DuBino, John Krutulis, Jim Montgomery and Art Vigilangte have defeated the Titans of Westminster 27-10, Lafayette's "Leopards" 44-31 and the Lavender of C.C.N.Y., 33-32.

Wildcats Show Form

Few, if any court games played on the battle-scarred boards of Philadelphia's Arena, can take precedence over the cool, collected team-work that the Wildcats showed as they came from behind a first half count of 15-13 to win by a single point in an extra five minupte period over City College of New York.

Montgomery, of Villanova, opened the scoring, making one foul out of two tries. Again Montgomery, followed by Dubino, shot a field goal giving the Wildcats a 5-0 lead.

BASEBALLERS HOLD INITIAL PRACTICE

Indoor Workout for Batteries Marks Pre-Season Session

"Doc" Jacobs held his first baseball workout in the Main Line gym last Thursday and seemed very non-committal over the possible success of the team. The genial "Doc" will be faced with the severe task of replacing four of last year's starting moundsmen, besides the heavy-hitting first sacker, Art Mahan, who is now performing with the Boston Red Sox, and Mike O'Meara, star outfielder.

Ed Vaughn, Tom Collins, and Joe McGovern are the hurlers who are lost and saying that they will be missed is only stating it mildly. Jacobs is depending upon "Lefty" McLaughlin, the only holdover from last year's pitching staff; Joe Desmond, who showed promise as a sophomore, and Jim Schelle, to form the nucleus of his current crew of flingers. However, several other twirlers must be uncovered to lend aid to this trio.

Squad Changes Planned

Several changes are being contemplated by Coach Jacobs, including the shifting of "Lefty" Escott from the outfield to the pitcher's box, the changing of Walt Sheftic from third base to the outfield, and the possible conversion of Ray Stowiak from the outfield to first base. This last move depends upon the ability of Bob Bond, last year's freshman guardian of the initial bag. If Bond comes through as ex-

VILLANOVA MERMEN SINK TWO STRONG SWIMMING SQUADS

Lafayette Fin-Men First Victims of Powerful Feline Swim Team

LEAHY SETS NEW RECORD IN SWARTHMORE MEET

Main Liners Win Seven of Nine Eevents in Garnet Pool

Within the last two weeks, Villanova's mermen have regained the championship form, that was upset by St. Francis, by overwhelming Lafayette 42-27 in the Villanova pool, and then two days later taking into camp their hosts, Swarthmore College, by the count of 47-31.

Bill Leahy, who has proved to be Villanova's greatest swimmer since the inception of the sport at that institution, returned to his former achievements after a short illness required his withdrawal from competition. In each of the two meets, he captured a brace of first places, winning in his specialities, the 220 and 440, as well as churning the water for 100 yards as a member of the winning relay team. He rose to his greatest heights in the Swarthmore meet when he set a new pool record by negotiating the course in the fast time of 2 minutes 32 seconds.

The decisive win over the Leopards from Easton evened up the disastrous meeting of last year in which this year's starring Sophomores were unable to compete because of the Freshmen eligibility rule enforced by Lafayette.

Leopard Meet One-Sided

In this dual meet held at Villanova, the Wildcats carried off six of the eight events. The other individual winners besides Leahy were Jack Hosey in the 50 yard freestyle, Wilmer Booth in the 150 yard backstroke event, and Toby Greco in the 200 yard breaststroke race. Bill Bailey added six points to the score by taking a second place in both the 220 and 440. Lafayette's winners were Tom Hartranft in the diving and John Hay in the 100 yard freestyle.

Meeting the Garnet at Swarthmore, Villanova was responsible for breaking two pool records while the home club broke one. The new record established by Swarthmore was in the 220 yard breaststroke event when Tom Mawhinney covered the course in 2 minutes 52.6 seconds. After Leahey set the record in the 220 Charlie Barrett churned up the 50 yard freestyle course in the fast time of 25.6 seconds to set a new record for that event.

Baseballers Hold Initial Practice

pected, Stoviak will probably remain in the gardens.

The catching department will undoubtedly be taken care of by the reliable Mike Garbark, who will probably form the nucleus of the outfit.

Five sophomore infielders are coming up with the hopes of gaining first string berths and all of them have the ability to do it. They are Len Marullo short stop; Frank "Cowboy" Crowley, second baseman; Charles DellUomo, third baseman; Harry Matsinger, utility man, and Bob Bond.

This quintet will press the veteran infielders led by "Lippy" Leo Schoppmeyer and Walt McKenna no little, and they will give the Wildcats a tremendous amount of infield strength.

Indoor Practice Scheduled

Workouts will be held every day now in the confines of the gymnasium, until the weather permits outdoor practice. The Wildcat will be wielding the leaders of college baseball in the United States.

"Doc" Jacobs also disclosed the possibility of a contest with a major league team, but he would not disclose the name of the team.

Main Liners are going to enjoy any degree of success against opponents like these and of the same caliber, their practices have not started too early.

SCIENCEMEN PLAN SPORTS SCHEDULE

L. K. D. Fraternity Forms Teams for Competitive Sports

Starting out anew after their recent defeat at the hands of Bryn Mawr Internes, the L. K. D. Fraternity basketball team is faced with a tentative schedule which is no set-up. Games have been arranged with other campus organizations which will be played in the near future. The Massachusetts, Connecticut and North Jersey clubs as well as the VILLANOVAN staff and the Phi Kappa Pi fraternity are down in the books. February 27 has been definitely set aside for the engineering fraternity tussle.

Members of the L. K. D. team have been working in the Alumni gym twice weekly, on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. These court enthusiasts have improved their passing and floor work to a point of fine coordination.

As a sidelight from basketball, the committee on athletics in the fraternity plan to place a representative baseball and tennis team on the field when these sports make their return to the calender.

The committee is trying to form closer ties and interests with other fraternities and campus organizations. Much credit goes to the students on the committee who are working hard so as to accomplish the end in view. The group is composed of Pio Goggi, who acts in the role of chairman; Joseph Toland, and Witold Kryzwicki.

OWL BOXERS LOSE

Temple met a strong rival last week, when the leatherpushers from C. C. N. Y. took the Owls into camp, 4½ to 3½. The referee for these matches was Joe McGuigan, the same one that judged the Villanova meet. Before the bouts got under way, C. C. N. Y. was given two points in forfeits and gained the other two and one-half points through actual competition.

MURAL BASKETBALL FEATURED BY TWO DOUBLE VICTORIES

Fedigan Hall and Mendel Day Hops Win Double Headers

DAY HOPS LEAD LEAGUE IN SECOND HALF RACE

Austin Hall Drops Two Games in Vain Attempt to Show Old Form

This week's intramural race was featured by the double wins scored by the red-shirts of Fedigan Hall and the Mendel Day Hops. Each team, by its performance, beat off dangerous rivals who might have proved embarrassing in the future, and are building up to a really hot session on March 2, when they meet in a crucial game.

Austin presented a rather sad appearance in their two losses, to Fedigan and the Day Hops. Although the blue shirts, in a desperate attempt to pull up in the standings, recalled Joe McCabe, veteran of three year's competition, and Maurice McDonnell, the Washington songbird, their efforts proved unavailing.

Fedigan Wins, 34-28

In the first game of the week, Fedigan, trailing 15-14 at the middle gun, took Austin 34-28. Adams and Frachila, with four points apiece in the first half, aided the blue-shirts to garner their early lead. Although they were aided by Soviero, Dwyer, and Sheftic in the second canto, Hart, Costello and Carrol amassed 16 numerals among themselves to put the affair on the well-known ice. In the final contest of the evening, the Day-Hops, led by O'Connor and Beltenmiller took the measure of a fighting Alumni outfit, 26-21. The green-clad frosh held the defending champions to a 7-7 tie in the opening stanza, but Beltenmiller's 11 points and O'Connor's six in the deciding period assured the daily visitors to the college of another win. Keller, Bradshaw and Cuskey played for the losers, and if supported better by their teammates might have pulled the game out of the fire in an outstanding upset.

On Thursday night, the Old Gym resounded to the echoes of two fast battles. In the evening's lid-lifter, Fedigan made it two in a row by toppling Mendel Hall, 24-18, in a game marked by fiery play and frequent comments on the officials' decisions by Fedigan coach Art Vigilante, who looks more like a mentor every day. One of the refs was none other than the Austin nightingale, "Mac" McDonnell.

Pantaleo and Costello played smart ball for the Gigilos, while Joe Bochetto again turned in a remarkable performance for the losers. The Austinites worked together well, and had enough to repulse a last-minute whirlwind attack by the freshmen in the most exciting portion of the fray.

"Mac's" interesting methods of officiating led to a hope that he would be appointed a regular referee. His decisions were usually unquestioned by non-partisans in attendance, and the players expressed no more than the customary beefs. Apparently this was not enough exercise for the Washingtonian, for he appeared in the Austin line-up during the wind-up encounter with the flying Day Hops, won by the Train and Tram youths, 34-24.

Day Hops Star

O'Connor, Barr and Thorn starred as the victors built up a 16-9 lead in the first half, as the hapless Austinites attempted to keep in the game. Junior Adams' spectacular one-hand heaves were a constant threat to the Day-Hops and also to the onlooker's reason. Vincent McHugh, who scintillated on the Alumni team of last year, teamed up with his fellow District-of-Columbia, McDonnell, to break up many potential scoring plays, and Jersey Joe McCabe and Jim Dwyer played creditably. However, the game was Day-Hop all the way.

The Engineers, while not in their best form, and not showing their customary perfect team-play, had enough class to win by means of several solo dashes, made principally by the stop-proof O'Connor and Bill Beltenmiller. Their second-half advantage was slight, as they seemed to tire toward the finish, but it cannot honestly be said that they were not the best team on the floor all night.

In the Limelight

By PAT VASSALLUZZO

"Babyface" Dick Emmerling is the choice for this week's limelight. Dick, as a matter of fact, has always shared Villanova's sports limelight from the day he entered the portals of the Main Line institution. This lad is truly a champion of hard luck. That he deserves this title will be very evident in a review of his misfortunes during his college football career. But first, it will be interesting to know something of our comrade's boyhood days.

On the thirty-first day of August, 1911, in the town of Pekin, Illinois, a bouncing boy made his appearance in the Emmerling home. A family conference decided to give this tot the moniker, Richard William. When Dick was thirteen years of age, the Emmerling clan moved to Kokomo, Indiana, only to return five years later. Richard attended the elementary school in Pekin and high school at Kokomo.

Once in high school, Dick lost no time in displaying his athletic prowess. He played football as a freshman, as well as tennis and basketball. Through three years of competition he earned himself the honor of captaining both the football and tennis teams in his senior year. A capable leader, he was rewarded with the distinction of an all-state selection at the fullback position.

In 1931, Dick entered Notre Dame University, which institution he attended for two years. However, before matriculating an auto accident was the cause of a severe spine injury, forcing him to refrain from strenuous activity. This marks the beginning of Dick's misfortunes. In September, 1933, the love of football induced him to start afresh at another college. Accordingly he registered at Villanova.

This time he really did start off on the right foot, starring at the fullback post on the frosh team. Stuldreher, then head coach, acclaimed this six-foot one-hundred-ninety-pound husky as the best fullback to his these parts. However, as a sophomore varsity fullback, his injury necessitated another operation during the season. The following year the injury jinx again took its toll in the form of a broken hand. In his senior year the ever-ailing back caused Dick to give up varsity football, a sad blow to the coaches and team alike.

Nevertheless, he did not quit altogether. He rendered invaluable service by coaching the 150-pound aggregation and showed up well despite a deficiency of material on hand. In an effort to get Villanova up in the lightweight football world, Richard took it upon himself to conduct spring practice at which time he drilled the inexperienced squad in pigskin fundamentals. His team was the first to represent the school in the Eastern Intercollegiate 150-pound League.

Dick spent two Summers working at a gravel pit in Perkin and another at a steel mill. His idea of recreation when off the gridiron is reading. His favorite authors being O'Neill, Barrington and Stribling.

When asked to voice his opinion of the greatest thrill of his athletic career at Villanova, Dick very eagerly replied, "Watching Eddie Michaels and the boys crash through Temple for a great 21-14 victory in November, 1933." Three fractured vertebrae kept Dick on the bench during that memorable game, which, as many of us well remember, was played in the snow.

In June, Dick anticipates a B. S. in Education degree, and upon graduation intends to teach and coach. We of Villanova will always remember Richard William Emmerling, the rosy-cheeked lad, in spite if his tough breaks—a true Wildcat champion.

lected to begin training, preferring to leave it to a later date. They are urged to start training for the swimming meet and get their teams lined up for the event.

Swimming team members who have participated in any meets are ineligible to enter competition. They will be relied on, however, to assist the intramural committee in putting on this event.

The pool is open every afternoon from one to five and splendid opportunities for getting into shape are offered to anyone who wishes to take the time to get back into the swimming habit.

In former years, this event has always met with the greatest enthusiasm of the student body and it is hoped that this year interest will reach new heights. Up till now the amateur swimmers have had little opportunity to exhibit their prowess in this sport but with the chance offered now it is hoped that many will take advantage of the opening.

Keen competition is expected in the sprints and tapering off in the longer events as most of the swimbers are more adept at the short swims than in the longer events. The complete list of events was published in last week's VILLANOVANand for further details aspirants to intramural swimming fame are advised to see their Hall managers with all haste.

first for his team at the four and one-half minute mark. Fliegal was caught pushing and McNally scored a singleton. Montgomery pushed Kovner and the C.C.N.Y. guard reduced the lead to 6-2.

Dubino and Krutulis scored field goals to widen the Wildcat margin, 106. Brennan charged Schneidman and the City College player dropped in a foul. Morris Goldstein scored successive field goals to put C.C. N.Y. ahead 11-10.

Katz added three points to the City College total as Brennan, in turn, made three points to bring the half-time count to 15-13 in favor of C.C.N.Y.

As the second half started the vaunted valiants of City College tried to outspeed the Wildcats, but hanging to their fast-moving opponents the blue and white were only behind by two points as the score read 23-25 with barely three minutes left.

Art Vigilangte racked up one from the corner and reduced the City College margin 27-25. Now Brennan, with cool deliberation, electrified the crowd with a spectacular heave from mid-floor, which tied the count 27-all as the game-ending gun barked.

Spectators sank back as fatigued as the players, from nervous strain, while both teams welcomed a brief breathing spell before the extra session.

Brennan Banned

At the start of the extra period, Don Brennan, who had played a brilliant game, was banned on personal fouls. Chances of victory seemed slim, but with "ball-hawk" John Krutulis and fighting Harry McNally retrieving the ball, Villanova out-nerved and out-fought their visitors to win by McNally's one point foul conversion.

Lou Dubino was high scorer for Villanova with 9 points, followed by John Krutulis who scored seven.

Westminster Downed

Holding their opponents to two field goals, Villanova played a remarkable defensive battle to down the highly-vaunted Titans of Westminster 27-10, on the Wildcats' home floor last Tuesday, February 16.

Threading their way through the Titan zone defense with ease, the charges of Al Severance, puzzled the visitors with a fine defense. Villanova led at half-time, 16-6.

The scoring started slowly as Captain Don Brennan looped in a long shot for the first goal. Brennan had another, Jim Montgomery and Harry McNally each added one, which together with a brace of fouls by John Krutulis's made the Villanova margin 11-1. Andy Demo, Westminster star, stopped the onrush momentarily with his and Westminster's first field toss after 13 minutes of play.

Thereafter the Wildcats had things much their own way as Jim Montgomery was high scorer with eight points followed by John Krutulis with seven. The final score read, Villanova 27, Westminster 10.

Lafayette Vanquished

Fresh from victory over the powerful Titans of Westminster, Villanova's varsity quintet traveled to Easton, Pa., Wednesday, February 17, making the Lafayette passers their second straight victims, as the final score read 44-31.

Sparked to fiery action by Lafayette's 11-8 lead, the Wildcats ran their opponents ragged, in the second half building a margin of 39-18 before Coach Severance substituted new men into the starting line-up.

Paced by Lou Dubino, who garnered 13 points in one of his periodic scoring sprees, the blue and white built up a comfortable lead. Following this, Scintillating sophomore Harry McNally, Jim Montgomery and John Krutulis shared second place with eight points apiece.

ENGINEERS TO HAVE BOWLING TOURNEY

Gene Barr Sets March as Date for Annual Match

According to Gene Barr, President of Phi Kappa Pi, the date for that fraternity's annual bowling tournament has not been definitely set. However, President Barr announced that the tourney would be held for certain some time in March.

Meanwhile, the prospective entries have been putting in a lot of practice, getting themselves accustomed to the alleys down in the gym. The recent practices have brought to the fore several outstanding contenders. These men are expected to give Bill Thorn, tournament favorite, a run for his money.

Cook Dark Horse

One of these, and incidentally the real "dark horse" is "Jupe" Cook, the Conshohocken flash. Cook does much of his pin toppling across the river in his native town, and has not achieved as much prominence as Thorn. Yet, he is an excellent bowler, rolling a "200" game now and then. In the past he has rolled with the best of the Engineers, but a tendency to be erratic has gone against him. This Winter his bowling has become considerably more consistent, and he shapes up as a real threat.

Jerry Agnes, like Thorn and Cook also a junior, is another standout contender. While he has not hit the heights as often as the other two he is very steady and seems to go very well on the Villanova alleys.

Boxers Ready For Thundering Herd

rangements have been made for George Shull, Eddie Kirk, Bob Mentsinger, Bill Duffy and Mike Rutecky to fight a select group from P. M. C. at the Penn A. C. on March 11th.

Ready for Bucknell

Spirit for the Bucknell bouts reached sky-high during the past week. The Villanova boys, particularly Captain Tony Sala, who was also leader of the grid warriors that suffered defeat at the hands of the Bisons after five straight wins, will be out for revenge. Tony will be pitted against Marty Quick. Pete Valentino, a member of the football team, will, undoubtedly, fight in the 165 class against the Wildcat killer, Jack Jarosik.

This match will, in all probability, be the highlight of the evening. Both contestants are very good punchers, and consistent winners. Jarosik is coming along fine after a slow start, and has been undefeated since the Penn meet last year.

There will be two champions in action in the bouts. Besides Sala, who is the 175-title holder, there will be one Joe Stephano, the 125 king. After two straight setbacks, Georgie Shull will be gunning for his first win against the lightweight champ. The road has certainly been tough for the diminutive Shull, He fought the captains as well as prides of both the Army and Temple squads, and with a bit more experience is bound to cut a niche for himself in collegiate annals.

Rogers, Rutecky Vie

The squad as a whole has been coming around fine and should be in top shape for the fight. Billy Duffy sparring with Sala impresses one greatly. He is the fastest man on the squad, using science to its fullest advantage Having already tucked two wins under his belt, he will be out for more when the Bisons and the other opponents come to town. Being ineligible to compete for the Intercollegiates this year, he should be a likely candidate for the 155 crown next year.

The heavyweight situation is still a toss-up. Mike Rutecky, the victim of that short third round in the Temple "tie," and Pete Rogers are still fighting it out for the position. It is impossible to pick the starter for this division at this time as both boys have been going at a top speed. However, Kirk and Mentzinzer are sure of their positions, but the 115-lb. division is still uncertain. Vince Shagrue has not completely recovered from his illness, which necessitated a postponement of his bout in the Temple affair. Mike "Bing" Rodriquez has been training hard lately, but it is highly improbable that he will be in shape to participate against Bucknell.

Here and There

By WILLIAM BOWKER

SOME OF the C and F Day-Hops have been complaining of lack of publicity in this column. So, wishing to please as many as possible, here goes. Last week, while waiting for one of the professors to show up for class, the lads started warming up for the baseball season by tossing rubbers around.

A pair of size ten overshoes made a suitable object for the hurlers, and only adroit maneuvering kept the innocent bystander from harm. A bit of boxing practice was also tried with several hats being used as punching bags. "Peanuts" McAndrew's Stetson ("I just had it cleaned and blocked last week.") was the recipient of much attention.

Pick-up-Sticks has made its way into Fedigan with John D'Ippolito claiming the championship of Room 221, although his roommate gave him a close battle in the wee sma' hours of the morning one day last week.

Advice to the lovelorn: If you want to keep in good, give her little brother autographed baseballs. So says Ray Stoviak, the nickle giver-outer.

Villanova has at least one ski enthusiast. Jim Wheeler, aviation club prexy was seen returning from an outing. He was a bit disappointed in the condition of the snow. Too sticky.

One of the football managers says to notify the general public that Tony Sala had his picture in the Mt. Carmel Item. This is a signal honor, as all people do not get their pictures in this newspaper.

The Winter's first big snowfall came last week, and as a result various apertures have been appearing in different window panes about the campus. Austin and Alumni have not gone unscathed, and Mendel Hall has been a victim of the wildness of ambitious youths.

We wonder how Jim Dwyer acquired the nickname "Maggie."

Intramurals are just as hotly contested as ever. One of the lads recently had one of his front chewers cracked, and is now going around minus half a tooth.

While on the subject of basketball, it would not be amiss to say something about the preliminary to the Westminster-Villanova game. We were fortunate enough to arrive there in time for the first encounter, and it was pitiful to behold. The team opposing the Freshmen was composed of a group of misfits who couldn't even hit the backboard until late in the first half. They looked like the Big Brothers club which plays in between the halves of the Arena games. So great was the difference between the two squads that the home lads just passed the ball around and refused to shoot. Things came to such a pass that the spectators booed when the Villanovans scored, and cheered vociferously on each occasion that the opposition tallied. With that type of opposition, it is no wonder that the Kittens have an impressive record. Of three gamesagainst high calibre opponents, the class of '40 courtmen have dropped all, two to Temple and one to Brown. If the Frosh are to play preliminaries against such class teams as last Tuesday night, it would be better not to have any first game.

Pro boxing comes up for another looking into with the Torrance affair raising somewhat of a nauseating odor. It goes to show, in a small way, how reputations in the squared circle are gained. Incidentally, Joe Louis is supposed to be a contender for the heavyweight honors by his koyoing Natie Brown last week.

GONZALEZ LEADS COLLEGE CHESSMEN

Puerto Rican Star Elected President of Rejuvenated Campus Organization

Under the able leadership of Joseph Gonzalez, the Villanova Chess Club has been rejuvenated and has played several matches with colleges in Philadelphia.

Through the medium of the Philadelphia Chess Association, the Villanova chessmen have met the players from Temple, Saint Joseph's, Pennsylvania, Drexel and the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy. Although all the matches have been very close the Villanovens were victorious only in their match against the Hawks of St. Joseph's.

Gonzalez Proves Expert

Gonzalez, the president of the Villanova club, in one of the foremost chessmen in Puerto Rico, and his five victories in the intercollegiate matches are largely responsible for the successes of the team. Chief among his victories is the one he obtained over Temple University's number one player who is also an Olympic chess team member.

OPERA SELECTIONS FEATURE MEETING OF CAMPUS GROUP

Recordings of Rigoletto and Aida Heard by College Music Club

REV. JOHN VRANA EXPLAINS PURPOSE OF NEW SOCIETY

Dr. William McHugh Will Give Beethoven Concert at Thursday Gathering

The first in a series of concerts was held by the Villanova Music Club last Thursday evening in the Day Students' Room. Attended by approximately 30 students, the concert, which was given by means of an electric victrola and high-fidelity records, consisted of Haydn's Clock Symphony, excerpts from Rigoletto, Aida, and the Barber of Seville.

Careful Study Needed

Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of this newly-formed campus organization, explained the purpose of the symphony, pointing out that an intelligent appreciation of music is only to be derived by careful study of musical compositions. He related to the club members the story of Rigoletto, then played several arias from Verdi's great opera.

The next meeting of the organization is scheduled for this Thursday evening in the Day Students' Room. Dr. William H. McHugh, Head of the School of Education, will present some of Beethoven's outstanding concertos at this time.

Mimeographed outlines of the works presented are given to each music lover at each meeting. Father Vrana expressed the hope that at least 50 men would attend the next concert.

At each weekly session of the music group different operatic selections will be played upon the new recording machine recently purchased by Father Vrana. This machine is one of the best of its kind and gives a very clear and natural rendition.

It will be awarded each June to the student in the pre-Medical school, who has shown general excellence during his four years in that department.

JERSEYITES SELECT J. FALLON CHAIRMAN

Popular Commerce Senior Will Head Annual Dinner-Dance Committee

Joseph Fallon, senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, has been appointed chairman of the North Jersey Club's annual Easter Dinner-Dance, it was announced today by President John Cronin. Fallon will be assisted by a committee including Charles Costa, Louis Dubino, Edward Tirrel, Thomas O'Mahoney, John McPike and Henry Mazzei.

Date Not Selected

Two possible dates for the affair have been posted, the definite evening to be selected upon completion of negotiations with hotels and clubs in the Metropolitan area. A proposal to hold the dance in the Manhattan Room of the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City has been welcomed by Benny Goodman fans of the club, and is to be discussed at the next meeting. Opponents of the plan claim that holding the function outside the territorial limits of the organization will defeat the purpose of the club, and a spirited discussion is expected.

In one way, at least, the dance will be different from all former affairs of the club. Bids must be paid for by March 23. This will assure the monetary success of the project, thus continuing the financial policy of President Cronin's term in office, and obviating any worries which might prove disturbing at a later date. Formal dress will probably be required.

Faculty Pension Plan Goes Into Effect at Villanova

Two-Thirds of Lay Faculty Affected by Ruling; First Catholic College to Adopt Such a Measure

SETS MINUMUM ANNUITY OF $1200

Two-thirds of the lay faculty of Villanova College already hold annuity policies under the new Faculty Pension Plan which went into effect on March 1, it was revealed by the president, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A. The remaining one-third of the lay faculty will participate in the new plan, beginning with October 1937.

Questioned as to the most important features of the pension system, Father Stanford stated: "Our pension system is planned for a retirement age of 65, and it embodies the usual provisions adopted by the majority of colleges having pension systems; viz, (1) That the policy is the personal property of the faculty member; (2) It has no loan or cash value; (3) The premiums are paid on a contributory basis, half by the faculty member and half by the college.

"In the case of those entering under the plan at the present time, including as it does the faculty members who have served for many years, the premium payments on a contributory basis are in some cases more than double the usual ten percent of the salary in order to equalize the difference in the length of service and to provide a guaranteed minimum annuity of $1200. For those coming in under the plan after March 1, the premium payments will be based on ten percent of salary on a contributory basis. After October 1937, participation in the pension system will be required of all faculty members who have completed two years in the service of the college.

Increase in Salary

"In order to enable members of the faculty to participate in the new pension plan with little inconveniences, salary increases were made to coincide with the beginning of premium payments and

Faculty Pension Plan Goes Into Effect at Villanova

Two-Thirds of Lay Faculty Affected by Ruling; First Catholic College to Adopt Such a Measure

SETS MINUMUM ANNUITY OF $1200

Two-thirds of the lay faculty of Villanova College already hold annuity policies under the new Faculty Pension Plan which went into effect on March 1, it was revealed by the president, Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A. The remaining one-third of the lay faculty will participate in the new plan, beginning with October 1937.

Questioned as to the most important features of the pension system, Father Stanford stated: "Our pension system is planned for a retirement age of 65, and it embodies the usual provisions adopted by the majority of colleges having pension systems; viz, (1) That the policy is the personal property of the faculty member; (2) It has no loan or cash value; (3) The premiums are paid on a contributory basis, half by the faculty member and half by the college.

"In the case of those entering under the plan at the present time, including as it does the faculty members who have served for many years, the premium payments on a contributory basis are in some cases more than double the usual ten percent of the salary in order to equalize the difference in the length of service and to provide a guaranteed minimum annuity of $1200. For those coming in under the plan after March 1, the premium payments will be based on ten percent of salary on a contributory basis. After October 1937, participation in the pension system will be required of all faculty members who have completed two years in the service of the college.

Increase in Salary

"In order to enable members of the faculty to participate in the new pension plan with little inconveniences, salary increases were made to coincide with the beginning of premium payments and

GROUP ANNOUNCES REHEARSAL HOURS

Belle Masque Society Will Meet Three Times Weekly for Regular Drills

Definite hours for the rehearsal of the forthcoming production of "Journey's End" have been made known by the moderator of the Belle Masque Society, Anthony J. Frayne, M. A. The days appointed for the rehearsals are Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday; the hours are divided into two periods, one in the afternoon and one in the evening.

Held In Day Students Room

The evening rehearsals of the three days mentioned above will extend from 6.30 to 10.30 o'clock. The time of the afternoon rehearsals is variable. On Tuesdays, the afternoon practice will include that interval between 2.30 and 5.30 o'clock; on Wednesdays, the rehearsing exercises will extend from 3.30 to 5.30 o'clock; on Fridays, the practice periods will extend from 1 to 5.30 o'clock. All rehearsals are held in the Day Students' Room of Mendel Hall.

Having attended a special performance of their future production, "Journey's End," through the kindness of the authorities from the Alden Park Theatre, the tentative performers have increased immensely their knowledge of dramatic representation. It is necessary, however, that those individuals attend the scheduled practice sessions faithfully and sincerely.

Fifty Enrolled Thus Far

Already, 50 individuals are enrolled in the organization; it is interesting to note that all of these students attend the School of Commerce and Finance. Despite the number already enrolled, there is a

L. K. D. Fraternity Makes Inspection Tour of Abbott's

Phila. Dairy Plays Host to Pre-Meds; Observe Many Operations

An interesting and instructive afternoon was spent by the Lambda Kappa Delta Fraternity last Friday, when it toured the Abbott's Milk Plant at 31st and Chestnut Sts., Philadelphia.

See Moving Pictures

Miss A. E. Preston, head of the Education Department at Abbott's Dairies, welcomed the pre-medics, showed them moving pictures of the production of milk, and explained in general the various operations carried on at the Dairy to insure the purity of the milk.

Mr. Harry Noonan, of the Sales Promotion Department, then acted as guide for the fraternity.

In the course of the tour it was seen how milk was tested for bacterial count, which had to be under 25,000 per milliliter, and for that

LOCAL DEBATE TEAM HAS TWO CONTESTS DURING PAST WEEK

Will Meet Team from Shippensburg Today; Face St. Joseph's Thursday

Forensic engagements for the following week have been formulated by Anthony Differ, president of the Beta Gamma Literary Debating Chapter of Villanova College. The two debates that are scheduled for the ensuing week and those which have occurred during the past week concern the question: Resolved: That Congress shall have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry.

Meet Teachers' College

Representative debaters from Shippensburg Teachers' College will be entertained by Villanova College here today. The time of the encounter has been fixed at 2:30 o'clock; the place, the Amphitheatre of Mendel Hall. President Differ has appointed the following individuals for the purpose of defending the affirmative aspect of the point of discussion: Thomas Delate and William Corkill.

On Thursday evening, Beta Gamma members will be guests of the forensic representatives from St. Joseph's College at that institution. The negative viewpoint of the hour and wage question, however, will be defended by the Villanova debaters who are Joseph Carroll and Anthony Differ.

DEFEND LIBERTY!

THE reform of the Federal Judiciary announced by Adminstration leaders has caused a veritable storm of discussion, both pro and contra. It is most unfortunate that many issues have been confused during these discussions, for there are many good and many bad reforms recommended by the Administration.

The need for reform of the district courts is long overdue. In fact, the Roosevelt Administration is merely trying to answer realistically the demands of leading lawyers that the judicial process be hustled up. And the provision making for speedy decisions on cases involving constitutional issues is certainly a good one. Further, the recommendation curtailing the power of Federal judges to issue blanket injunctions is a salutary and long overdue one. We need but recall the famous Debs case, 158 U. S. 564, to recall the power wielded by these legalistic and tyrannical justices.

However, let us point out that the attack on the Federal Judiciary, specifically on the Supreme Court, is ill-advised, imprudent, scurrilous, insolent, and altogether repugnant to the American way of doing things.

Many years ago, Thomas Jefferson warned his countrymen that if the principle of judicial review were allowed, the country would become but a thing of wax in the hands of a few Supreme Court Justices. What can we say of a "reform" that would make the Supreme Court a thing of wax in the hands of politicians?

Chief Justice Marshall, in the famous case of Madison v. Marbury, 1 Branch 137, opinionated that: "It is emphatically the province and duty of the judicial department to say what the law is. Those who apply the rule to particular cases, must of necessity expound and interpret that rule. If two laws conflict with each other, the courts must decide on the operation of each." And in the same opinion, Marshall informs us that if a Justice of the Supreme Court does not abide by the spirit of the American Constitution, the "superior paramount law of the land," such a Justice performs an act "worse than solemn mockery."

The Supreme Court has handed down many decisions of late that have apparently militated against the wishes of the people. But if the people care to pass a law repugnant to their own Constitution, they are foolishly attacking their own great protector. Surely we should be glad that those Nine Old Men are so fearless in their defense of American rights and liberties. If a change is necessary, let it be made law that before a law can be condemned, the decision must be unanimous, or at least six to three. Five to four decisions should be obviated. But for the sake of liberty we should not pack the Supreme Court with politicians who are ready to scrap our Constitution for the wishes of any one political party.

The attack on the Supreme Court is the first step toward dictatorship. If we allow politicians, or members of either the Executive or Legislative departments to dictate principles to the Justices of the Supreme Court, the battles of the American Revolution and the Civil War have been fought in vain.

Liberty shall not be allowed to perish in America, as it has been in many European countries. Let us rush to the defense of the American Constitution, and to the defense of the Supreme Court.

TAX REDUCTIONS

GOVERNOR'S EARLE'S budget recommendations, carrying a reduction of $48,500,000 in State and local taxes, which he submitted to the Legislature for the biennium beginning June 1, is an indication that economies can be effected in the administration of State affairs when a man of executive and business ability seriously sets himself to the task. This reduction is the more laudable and expressive of the Governor's determination to bring efficiency to State operations, when it is recalled that the increase in the number of departments necessary to take care of the needy, both through direct relief and works programs, offered an excellent opportunity for the careless expenditure of State funds.

Although the total appropriations which will have been required for Governor Earle's administration will be some $212,342,642.19 in excess of the previous one, there is a great deal of consolation in knowing that practically all of this will have been expended for the relief of the victims of the recent depression, and for increasing the pensions of the aged, widowed mothers with dependent children, and the blind. In this respect it is worth noting that economies approximating $5,474,800.88 have been effected in the normal operation of the government; and that about $3,000,000 of this is in departments that are directly under the supervision of the Governor.

Among the tax reductions, which includes the discontinuance of the amusement tax, the distillers tax, the documentary stamp tax, and the reduction of the corporate net income tax, is one which will win the hearty approval of the driving public. That is the one which lowers the driver's license fee to $1.00. Although the amount of this reduction is trifling when considered over the period of time for which it extends, nevertheless it has become such a matter of principle for those who own automobiles to object to the disproportionate distribution of taxes upon them, that they will appreciate the spirit more than the sum involved of the reduction. Aside from the operating taxes that govern the use of an automobile, it has always seemed to be carrying the matter too far to further demand that the motorist pay a yearly fee for the right to use the car as well as one for the privilege of driving it.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

WITH the ending of the home basketball season comes the end of the season for the cheerleaders. Several suggestions have come to them suggesting new and peppy cheers. Acting upon this suggestion we have seen fit to ask the students to do their part to help the cheerleadrs by thinking up some new cheers or by recalling some of the old ones learned in high school. From those turned in to use a few will be selected and printed in the new freshmen rule-book so that the members of the incoming class may learn them. Please give all contributions to either "Dutch" Stahman in 213 Fedigan or to me in 336 Austin. Thanks.

As We See It . . . Conversation

By HARRY PARKIN

THE other evening while reading a volume of Swift's essays, we happened across that on conversation, and having read it, fell to a consideration of the little attention that is given at present, to this form of entertainment. We call it entertainment because there seems to be no intellectual enjoyment comparable to that of being a partner in a witty imaginative, stimulating conversation — one divorced from those sonorous opinions delivered with a judicial mien and presence that brooks no contradiction, and is restricted to one that is friendly, inoffensive, and thought provoking. In passing it may be mentioned that by wit is not meant those monotonous inanities that commonly go by the name of "wisecracks," and whose only right to existence was in the pungency of their first application; nor by imagination is meant the reduction of the extravagant to he plausible, nor by stimulating is meant that which is risque, or the innuendo that would coat verbal refuse with sugar.

Every man has in him the capacity for being agreeable. In fact this state is native to his constitution, for otherwise we cannot account for the pleasure that he derives from the practice of it. So that if he merely permits this disposition to expand, and in conjunction with it gives some attention to the development of an appreciation for the conversational distinction between badinage and raillery, levity and frivolity, and seriousness there seems no reason for doubting that he will develop into a conversationalist of some merits.

As proficiency in any field cannot be acquired without first removing the deficiencies that characterize one's efforts in it, it seems that the mention of certain prevalent conversational faults may provoke those guilty of them toward their correction.

The disposition to talk too often and to too great lengths about one's own merits and accomplishments is a fault more common to the youthful than the adult. In the former it is mere gasconading founded on the desire to attract attention, but in the adult it may be ascribed to the undue importance people are prone to attach to those things that concern themselves and the failure to realize that everyone else does not similarly regard them.

Conversation exists to entertain and improve each person who is concerned with it, but neither can derive any pleasure, where one impatiently tries to obtrude some thought that has suddenly occurred to him into the speech of the other. His first or second effort having failed the speaker is usually spurred on to such a rate that his only desire is to get over what he has to say, before the other drags the right to speak away from him.

Again there are occasions when someone apt at telling a story launches upon one, when some boor having heard it before, literally grabs it from his mouth and ends it with a word or two, which usually leaves the listeners befuddled as to its true contents and necessitates a deal of explanations before everyone understands it, without anyone enjoying it.

Then there are those who hold forth at such lengths that the other members of the company must needs remain dumb for the greater part of the time they are with him.

Conversation as an art is becoming extinct because few continue to think of it as an art. The barbarities of speech that are on everyone's tongue are tolerated because there are few to whom they are intolerable. Where no one is proficient there seems to be no reason for studying proficiency. But unless we give some attention to our speech, especially to the grammatical and rhetorical qualities that characterize it, we will soon lose not only a taste for all culture and are but also the ability to manufacture it.

Shroud That Enveloped Christ Now In Possession of Family of Savoy

(Ed. Note: Article taken from Scientific American tells of mystery surrounding shroud in which body of Christ was wrapped.)

Despite years of research the sacred Shroud in which the body of Christ was supposed to have been wrapped is still enveloped in mystery. First heard of in the fifth century, when it was used as a model for the present paintings of Christ's face, the sacred relic went to Constantinople in the 12th century but disappeared with the coming of the Crusaders. In 1204 it was supposed to have been lost in a church fire but was rediscovered in 1355 in Lurey, a small French village near Paris. In 1455 the Duke Louis I, of Savoy claimed it as belonging to his family because it was they who were supposed to have brought it back from Constantinople at the cessation of the first Crusade. To this day it remains in care of this noble family whose present residence is at Turin in Italy.

Many Doubts Arise

Several gaps in the history of the relic as well as several physical phenomena cause the existence of a few doubts concerning it. Chief among these is the doubt as to its authenticity. Some critics hesitate to believe that the Shroud in possion of the Savoy family is really the one in which the sacred body was wrapped after the Crucifixion; while others like Dr. Paul Vignon, professsor of biology of the Institute Catholique in Paris, believe it is.

In his recent article in the Scientific American, Doctor Vignon strove to prove that the Shroud could be none other than the one spoken of in the Scriptures. Proof that the crucified Christus was wrapped in such a cloth may be had from the writings of Saint John when he says that "Nicodemus came bringing a mixture of aloes and myrrh. They took therefore the Body of Jesus and bound it in linen cloths with the spices as is the manner of the Jews."

Definite Markings

Further proof given by Vignon is that the marks on the Shroud showing just what must have happened to its occupant seem to fit perfectly with the descriptions of the Passion which have been given us. For instance there is a definite mark on the hands and feet showing how they had been pierced by nails. Marks of scourging are evident; deep gashes in the head show that member was sorely abused. Then, too, there is a deep cut in the left side bearing out the Scriptural statement that "one of the soldiers with a spear opened his side and immediately there came out blood and water." Chemical stains on the cloth near the wound in the side show evidences that blood and serum really did come out of Christ's side. The presence of the serum, however, shows that Jesus was already dead when the soldier delivered his final blow.

From the marks on the back of the cloth the type of scourge used by the executioners is easily discerned. Scars of the heavy Roman whip or "flagellum" made of two or three tongs having a heavy iron ball at the tip and another an inch or so down the cord are to be seen. Descriptions from other sources bear up the statement that this was the type of weapon used on the sacred Body of Christ.

Signs of Corruption

Other doubts concerning the authenticity of the Shroud are that the cloth showed the first signs of corruption and that Christ was not in the grave long enough for any stages of this process to take place. Vignon answers this doubt by proving that the evidences on the cloth mistaken for the first signs of corruption were really marks caused by the presence of an excess of urea always present in cases of extreme physical torture.

The fermentation of this urea, together with the action of the bodily ammonia and the embalming aloes on the cloth are the chief reasons why the imprint of the Christus is so perfect. If the cloth had pressed heavily upon the Sacred Body or had been allowed to crease, the print would have been lost, but the fermentation and other chemical processes taking place caused vapors to arise and give the two impressions on the cloth.

The print of the face is so clear and so complete that many critics were led to believe that the Shroud was the product of the minds of ancient painters. Recent experiments made on the cloth by eminent world photographers prove, however, that this is not the case.

Negative Is Clear

The Shroud was first photographed in 1898 when it was discovered that a reversed negative showed the picture of the face of the Christus more clearly than it had ever before been seen. The true expression of majesty tinged with sadness can be easily discerned. It is this reversed negative picture that is now familiar to the Christian world. Since that time several more perfect photographs have been taken, the last of which was made by the famous scientist, Cavalier Giuseppe Enric in 1931.

Other arguments against the "painting" theory are that the chemical composition of the substances remaining on the cloth are of a purely physiological nature. The serums produced by the body in time of torture are definitely present on the cloth and the chemical composition of the blood is still the same at it was the first Good Friday. This is the one thing that has scientists baffled because the chemical content of blood usually does not last more than a year at the most. This miracle together with all other contributing factors make it quite evident that the ancient House of Savoy is in possession of the greatest treasure left by Jesus as a token of His love for His struggling children on earth.

Over Rolling Lands by Waves

Homeward Bound!

OUR LAST day in Havana was spent in a whirl-wind tour through those parts of the city which we had missed on previous trips.

Interesting places were: Oriental Park, with its famous and picturesque race track; The Casino, known as the "Monte Carlo of the New World"; The Chinese section; Castillo de la Fuerza, "The Castle of the Armed Forces," said to be the oldest fortification in America, whose history dates back to 1500; Columbus Cathedral, built in 1700, at one time contained the remains of Christopher Columbus until at the end of Spanish rule over the island, they were said to have been removed to Spain. (Recently in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, what were claimed as the "real Columbus relics" were entombed with much pomp and ceremony in a special memorial.)

Havana's main street, the Prado, lined with beautiful trees, flowers and shrubs, extends for more than a mile in the very heart of the city. Near the suburbs it joins the sea wall, and together they constitute one of the most beautiful avenues that we have ever seen.

Imitation Palm Trees

At times there are as many as 25 orchestras playing in the beautiful Tropical Gardens. In these gardens there are some large imitation palm trees. At first they seem real, so life-like as to be deceiving. If you touch one you will immediately discover that these "palm trees" are simply cement posts, painted to resemble bark, with a real palm plant placed on the top so as to simulate growth from the "tree."

Sidelights

The army commander, General Batiste, is virtually, in fact if not in name, dictator of Cuba.

Everyone we met liked him. Among the many laws that are indirectly attributed to him is the eight hour working day which is now in effect in Havana.

Cock-fighting is very popular. To make these affairs more exciting, the legs of the contestants are equipped with sharp spurs.

Many Cubans are of a very apologetic nature. In several of the factories, the guides were forever saying: "Of course these do not compare with what you have (or make) back in the States."

Cuban matches are made of a small piece of string coated with wax, with a drop of phosphorous on the tip. Price 3 cents a box.

Most houses are built on the edge of the pavement, with no front lawn. Immense mansions are built alongside of very poor looking houses.

Back in New York

Each passenger is allowed to bring $100 worth of merchandise in to the country free of duty. Certain articles are limited, however. Only four quarts of liquor are allowed with no duty. On the dock at New York your baggage is arranged according to your last initial in readiness for the customs inspection.

Undeclared items are confiscated. Undeclared liquor (above the four quart allowance) when discovered is immediately smashed against the ocean-side of the wharf. Before many hours after our landing the place reeked of spilt liquor.

DIAL-LOG

By PIO P. GOGGI

WE NOTE That . . . Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians have been renewed for another 52 weeks by the present sponsors of their weekly 5.30 Sunday afternoon broadcast . . . Jack Benny has been signed for a three year contract with his present backer which will keep him on the air until the Summer of 1940. Good news for the popular comedian who has been voted the outstanding star comedian consecutively since 1934, only we wish he'd forget this tommyrot about Fred Allen and The Bee. It's getting sort of boresom. . . .

Some comment on the recent report that several companies are preparing a landside of programs dealing with true life adventure stuff . . . At the present time the radios are blaring with the adventures of this one and that one, presented in real hair-raising reality and by competent performers, but did it ever occur to these sponsors that the hours between 3.30 and 8 P. M. are in some cases the only possible time for many grownups to tune. Why not present something interesting to all, or at least a little diversion from the East Lynn drama types.

Well gang, here's the final tabulation of the Villanova orchestra poll conducted by yours truly of the Villanovan staff. A surprise to me and many of you I suppose will be the first ranking of Guy Lombardo. Of course I'm not casting anya spersions on his band but perhaps there might have been another choice. At any rate you fellows voted so here are the results:

1. Guy Lombardo	97
2. Hal Kemp	64
3. Benny Goodman	61
4. Horace Heidt	47
5. Kay Kyser	25
5. Tommy Dorsey	7
7. Jan Garber, Villanovans, Shep Fields	6
8. Baron Lee	5
9. Fred Waring, Phil Harris, and Wayne King	4
10 Sammy Kay, Ozzie Nelson, Ray Noble, Will Osborne, Cab Calloway, Russ Morgan and Abe Lyman	3
11. Jimmie Lunceford and Duke Ellington coming through with one vote.

And so, there you have it. A grand total of 352 votes were turned in. Even the Villanovans figured in on this poll. At any rate, they drew as may as Shep Fields' Benny Goodman and Hal Kemp had it out in close quarters which shows that in general the boys like swing music. The difference being that the two bands play their arrangements a bit different and they feature a hot clarinet and trumpets respectively. The total of the two bands indicates 125 for "swing" and only 97 for Lombardo's saxophone orchestra. It's interesting to note that Kay Kayser came up to finish in the first five. Horace Heidt certainly did not deserve the ranking he received. As a show band and novelty arrangements he's tops, but for strictly dancing I believe we have better stuff. I wonder how Shep Fields polled 6 votes? Somebody must have stuffed the ballot box!

College Library Boasts Abundance Of Today's Fiction Best Sellers

Some critics say the philosophy of the age is reflected in the fiction of that period. Whether or not this is a fact has been questioned, but certainly it seems to be true in present day best sellers of fiction. The following is a representative collection of best sellers in the college library. All these books are located either in the P23 section of the library or on the new book display rack.

Mitchell Book Popular

Wherever one goes today, when literature is suggested, some one mentions "Gone With The Wind" or the person "Scarlett." The poularity of this book is attested by the fact that another 100,000 copies have come off the press during the past week bringing the total over 1,300,000. Mrs. Mitchell's first novel is long, 1037 pages, about the Civil War and its aftermath in Georgia. This is a solid and vividly interesting story of war and reconstruction, realistic in detail and told from an original point of view. The heroine is "Scarlett," a selfish, wilful girl of sixteen at the opening of the story, a woman of twenty-eight at the close. This novel swarms with living human beings, personalities rather than mere characters are met.

Another Best Seller

The author of the "Cross of Peace," Sir Philip Gibbs, has written another best seller, "Cities of Refuge," 470 pages. Sir Philip is an English convert to the Catholic church. During the past week six Philadelphia stores reported that this book was their best seller and its sales are rolling along at the rate of 2000 a week. This story treats of the Markov family, remnants of the old aristocracy, who, following the defeat of the White Russians, escaped to Turkey. Destitute and with no training for self-support, they fled to Vienna, then to Berlin, Paris and the United States, meeting everywhere other exiles who had no place in the world. Here we have a servey of the various philosophies, practices and events of the post-war period bringing in many well-known figures.

Story of Conflict

"Yang and Yin," 366 pages, by Mrs. Alice Hobart, author of "Oil for the Lamps of China." Mrs. Hobart brings to this book the result ofmany years of observation and study in China. Here is a story of conflict between East and West, the old and the new, in the life of an American doctor, Peter Frazer, stationed in China, and his young wife. The time of this story is from after the Boxer uprising to 1928, being excellent background for the current "New Life Movement" in China.

Douglas Writes Two

Two books of Lloyd Douglas, "Green Light" with 326 pages and his more recent book "White Banners," 400 pages. "Green Light" is a story of Dean Harcourt, who has been crippled by infantile paralysis early in his career. His subsequent suffering has made him more aware of the suffering in other people. There is a young doctor whom the Dean assists even to a subsequent marriage. The latter is a story of how the Ward family progressed from debt and near-poverty to affluence through the philosophy of life of Hanna, who is Marcia Ward's maid.

Wodehouse Praised

Last week during Rudy Vallee's radio hour Hilaire Belloc considered P. G. Wodehouse as the best present day writer. Belloc said that Wodehouse has wit and can create living characters. The best sellers list contains Wodehouse's latest book "Laughing Gas" of 303 pages. The plot in this story is a indicrous situation, laid in Hollywood, developed with immense elaboration and so wittily that one is all but convinced of its validity.

Hugh Walpole continues to have one on the list—this time "A Prayer for My Son" with 303 pages. This is a psychological horror story of a mother's love for her child.

Catholic Fiction Strong

There are four books in the college library that were on the best sellers of Catholic fiction during the month of January. First on the list is Owen Dudley's "Coming of the Monster," 275 pages. This is volume five in "Problems of Human Happiness," by the same author. In this book Father Dudley continues to relate the adventures of the monk, Father Anselm. The plot here is a struggle against the forces of anti-Christ, revealing some of Satan's modern masks, Bolshevist Russia together with sensual Hollywood.

Olive White's book of 521 pages "The King's Good Servant" continues to be a best seller. Deep and solid scholarship have gone into the making of this book. It is an historical novel based on the last six years of the recently canonized Saint, Sir Thomas More. The bare bones of facts have been clothed with the living flesh of colorful writing in scene after scene of rich color and dramatic intensity.

Kaye-Smith's Best Seller

A very recent book, one of the best sellers on the Catholic list and in the Herald Tribune's list, is by the English convert, Mrs. Fry. Perhaps you do not recognize this name. It is the marriage name of Sheila Kaye-Smith, and her book is "Rose Deeprose." This is a fateful story of an English farm girl who at 28 unwittingly caused the death of her mother. Although this book is loaded with sudden deaths it is full of incidents moving swiftly and competently.

(Next week! The best sellers in non-fiction in the library.)

LOCAL STUDY CLUB HEARS LECTURE BY PROMINENT EDITOR

Bernard Wall Addresses Students of Rosemont College on 'Modern Man'

EDITS SOCIOLOGY JOURNAL

The members of the Villanova College Study Club attended a lecture last Wednesday evening at Rosemont College. Bernard Wall, editor of the English journal of Christian sociological thought, THE COLOSSEUM, lectured on "Modern Man."

It was Mr. Wall's thesis that the present state of Western Civilization is that of a decaying society. Western Civilization, since the time of the Protestant Revolution, has progressively cut itself off from the roots of true culture: holy religion. This modern Western civilization, Mr. Wall told his audience, has replaced the God of the Christians with a deified nation; such a national deity as we find in Italy, in Germany, or in other totalitarian states.

As examples of this decay of Western civilization, Mr. Wall examined several representative minds. Shakespeare, he said, was one of the first great literary nationalists. He then examined such men as Jean Jacques Rousseau, Hegel, Nietzsche, Karl Marx, Kent, Fichte, Aldous Huxley, and H. G. Wells. As things stand today, modern man faces an awful alternative; either a positive belief in God, such as we find in Roman Catholicism, or utter cynicism.

Marxian Communism, Mr. Wall said, is not a revolt against 19th century Liberalism, but rather is the logical development of that school of individualistic, materialistic thought. Unless civilization returns to religion and to Catholicism, it is doomed.

Attending the lecture were Rev. John Vrana, O.S.A., Rev. William Lunney, O.S.A., Professor Harold Hartman, William Corkill, Paul Juergens, Joseph O'Loughlen, Richard Deverall, Charles J. Cooke, Thomas O'Brien, Joseph Carroll, Robert Strong, and several others.

The annual policies are being underwritten by the Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association of America.

Faculty Enthused

Various members of the faculty, when questioned by a staff writer of the VILLANOVAN, expressed great satisfaction and were very enthusiastic over the proposed plan.

Dean Carl T. Humphrey, of the School of Engineering, asserted, "The plan is closely in accord with that in force in a large group of representative colleges, and cannot help enhancing the respect with which the college is regarded by other institutions."

Doctor William H. McHugh, head of the Department of Education, said, "I heartily favor a system of pensions for professors. To my knowledge this is the first time any Catholic College or University in the United States has considered seriously the future security of its lay professors."

J. Stanley Morehouse, professor of Mechanical Engineering, when approached concerning his opinion of the plan said: "I am glad that the trustees have seen fit to establish such a plan here at Villanova. It seems that every line of business is amply cared for by some sort of security, save the farmer and professional man. Hence, this annuity plan is quite welcome to the Villanova lay professors."

content, which had to be in the neighborhood of 3.5%.

It was explained to the men that all bottles were thoroughly sterilized before being used, that all the pipes in the plant used to transport the milk were taken down and cleaned twice a day, as was done with all the containers.

An interesting fact stressed was the production of irradiated milk. It was explained that the milk is permitted to flow down the sides of a container in tiny droplets, while a carbon arc in the center of the apparatus generated a heat ray which contained the vitamin D, and this vitamin was absorbed by the milk.

Pasteurization of milk was demonstrated. Raw milk is taken and heated to a temperature of about 144 deg. for about half an hour. It is then slowly cooled. This process kills all non-sporulating bacteria and also lessens greatly the vitamin C content.

Mr. Noonan then closed the tour by answering all questions and by supplying each member with a glass of fresh, cooled milk.

U. S. Senator Reynolds says: "Luckies are considerate of my throat"

"Two Southern traditions are oratory—and good tobacco. Lucky Strike shows me how to indulge in both. For this light smoke not only pleases my taste but leaves my throat in condition. Last fall in North Carolina—when I made over 100 speeches—I visited the Lucky Strike factory. I believe I discovered, in the Lucky Strike 'Toasting' process, the secret of what makes this cigarette so considerate of my throat. I have been more than ever an advocate of a light smoke since seeing the extra care and expense devoted to making Luckies easy on the throat."

HON. ROB'T R. REYNOLDS
U. S. SENATOR FROM NORTH CAROLINA

In a recent independent survey, an overwhelming majority of lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc., who said they smoked cigarettes, expressed their personal preference for a light smoke.

Senator Reynolds' statement verifies the wisdom of this preference and so do leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, whose voices are their fortunes, and who choose Luckies, a light smoke. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on your throat.

AS THE basketball season nears its end, we find the Villanova quintet has 15 wins and seven losses to its credit. Although some of the spectators at the games down in the gym were not impressed by the team's showing at times, the fact remains that the boys are well in the black as far as the percentage figures are concerned. In contrast to last year's disastrous campaign, the boys have acquitted themselves quite well. Only two of their last ten games have been lost. This string of victories as the campaign nears its close is due in no small measure to the improvement in foul shooting. Noticeably weak in that department for the first half of the year, the Wildcats steadily bettered themselves from the free-throw mark until they became very proficient at the art of getting points when given to them through the misdeeds of their opponents. No better example can be given of the importance of foul shooting than the recent St. John's game, which showed the Villanovans sinking nine of their ten fouls, while the Redmen from the metropolitan area missed all but four of their initial 13 trials. Had the losers made two-thirds of their free throws, the story would have been different.

—V—

Next Saturday's contest with George Washington University concludes the court season, and also the basketball careers of Don Brennan and Harry McNally. These two lads, well-versed in the art of basketball, were at all times mainstays of the quintet. Both will be missed when it comes time for the basketeers to begin practice for next year's schedule. We wish the best of luck to two good fellows and fine sportsmen.

—V—

Among the more pleasing things to be talked of is the comeback of Georgie Shull, 125-pounder of Ray Gadeby's mitt team. After facing two of the best men in his class, and faring badly, he decisively outboxed the intercollegiate champ when he won the decision over Steve Stephano. They saying is that they can't come back, but this has been proven fallacious.

—V—

Incidentally, the crowd which turned out for the Bucknell bouts nearly filled the gym. Only the very end seats were unoccupied. All of which speaks well for the future of the ring game, as far as Villanova is concerned. Bucknell came with a reputation of having a good team, and the fans came to see it. They were not disappointed as the Bucknellians were a game lot. Another capacity crowd should be present this Saturday as Western Maryland is the opponent.

—V—

One of the members of the student body approached us with an idea for a sports festival, to be held during the earlier months of the year. After listening to his explanation, we thought it good enough to pass on to the rest of the students, so here it is. This mammoth day of sports would begin with a boxing meet, which would start quite early in the evening, or in the afternoon. Immediately following the conclusion of the bouts, a swimming meet would take place, during which time the ring could be removed from the gym floor to make way for the basketball game which would follow the swimming meet. To conclude the festivities, a dance would be held.

This idea is by no means new in collegiate circles, as many institutions of higher learning have affairs somewhat along these lines every week. Army is a notable example. Last Saturday polo, fencing, wrestling and boxing were held, and the week our lads boxed up at the Point, there were two or three other contests being held the same day. Yale, Harvard, and Princeton have on several occasions had such gala sports affairs. We think it would be a popular innovation at Villanova if the authorities could see their way to arranging a schedule so that such a day could be enjoyed by Villanova enthusiasts. An ideal opponent for such an event would be Temple. With the intense rivalry existing between the two schools, the festivities would certainly be a financial, if not social, success.

St. John's, Albright and Lehigh Fall Before Rampant Wildcats

SIX-GAME STREAK BROKEN BY N. Y. U. IN SLOW TILT

Entire Squad Sees Action During Most Active Week of Season

By JOHN E. DIMON

After having their ephemeral streak of six consecutive wins shattered by a strong New York University five, 37-23, in a dull and listless game on Friday night last, the Villanova basketeers rebounded on Saturday night to show a reversal of form in trimming the conquerer of champions, St. John's, 31-25, in the featured clash at the Hippodrome.

The Wildcats had not tasted defeat since the Dickinson upset a fortnight ago. Since then they have taken over Bucknell, Westminster, Lafayette, C. C. N. Y., Lehigh and Albright. The defeat was a hard pill to swallow for the Severance clan. It was the old story ofthe bandbox court for the winners. No team has emerged victorious in the last 40 games against the N. Y. U. team on its home court.

Wildcats Listless

The spark of old was missing in the Villanova attack. Their passing was very weak, and the shots wild. They were held scoreless from the field for almost half of the first period. The Violets started early in scoring. With Phil Carnevale leading the seige, they rolled up a Villanova's mittmen will be facing an enraged Western Maryland ring squad next Saturday at the Wildcat field house. The Green Terrors lost to Army by a very decisive 7½-½ score, Bill Ortenzi, light heavy of the southerners, scoring their only tally by getting a draw with Cadet Coughlin.

Georgie Shull will be up against Musselman, who was a victim of Barksdale, the West Pointer's leader. The soldier won by a knockout, so the Green Terror will be around with an eye to making up for it.

In the 135-pound class, Eddie Kirk will face another knockout victim, and will have to be on his toes as Argile, his opponent will undoubtedly be in a bellicose mood after the rough treatment up at the Point.

BASKETEERS FACE WASHINGTON FIVE IN FINAL CONTEST

Wildcats Out to Avenge Defeat at Hands of Colonials

END SUCCESSFUL SEASON

With fifteen victories against seven defeats, Villanova's basketeers close their 1936-37 season at George Washington University, Saturday, March 6, where they are determined to avenge a defeat suffered earlier this season and give Coach Al. Severance a final flourish to his first year as head mentor.

Since their victory over the Wildcats, at the Main Line gym, the Colonials have been defeated by Long Island University, while garnering victories over Mt. St. Mary's, St. John's (N. Y.) and Nebraska.

To Watch Schonfield

Few have forgotten the "mighty mite" Schonfield, who ran wild as his team dropped our Wildcats over a month ago. He will be watched with special care by fiery John Krutulis, and may not move so fast this time.

Showing a progressive improvement, Villanova's quintet has proven their worth, considering that the team is composed mostly of Sophomores. Victories over such brilliant teams as Duquesne, C. C. N. Y., St. John's (N. Y.) and Westminster prove a good team which may become a great team next year with experience gained over first-rate opponents.

Sophomores Art Vigilante, John Krutulis, Jim Montgomery and Lou Dubino have performed with increasing cleverness, and with the freshmen stars are expected to form the nucleus of next year's squad.

This game marks the swan song of those pillars of defense and offense, Harry McNally and Don Brennan. Both these men have giv-

TANKMEN SCORE 54-19 VICTORY IN MEET WITH OWLS

Bill Leahy Stars Again in Breaking Pool Record for 440

DIVING EVENT ONLY LOSS

Finishing first in every event except diving, Villanova's finmen dunked Temple's natators in the drink last Wednesday evening, by an overwhelming 54-19 score.

The Wildcats were paced by their ace swimmer, Bill Leahy, who added another broken record to his list. After winning the 220-yard free-style, Leahy returned two events later to swim the 440, in which race he set a new pool record for the distance with a time of 5 minutes and 34.4 seconds. This did not conclude his performances for the evening, however, for he anchored the 400-yard relay to a victory in the closing event of the meet.

Captain Joe Duffy was again in the line-up, after an absence due to a recent illness. Besides swimming a leg in the relay race he took second place to his teammate Jack Hosey in the 50-yard free-style. Hosey also collected three points by taking second place in the 150-yard backstroke race and helped the relay team to its victory.

Temple's lone winner was Matthews in the diving event. Villanova's expert diver, Charlie Timmins, was not allowed to compete because of the Freshman eligibility rule enforced by the Owls. Otherwise it is felt that the Wildcats would have made a clean sweep of all first places.

"Bert" Cousart returned to his top form of last season, when he outraced Smith, of Temple, for first place in the 100-yard free-style. "Cos" also anchored the winning medley relay team in the first event on the program.

Shull Gains Decision Over Stephano, Association Champ, in 125-Pound Class

Visitors' Heavyweight Scores Knockout in Initial Round of Final Battle

Villanova's mittmen punched out their initial win of the season by defeating the strong Bucknell boxing team by the score of 6-2 before a capacity crowd in the winner's gym last Friday night.

Tom Kennedy, replacing Shugrue in the 115-pound class, won without even putting on the gloves when the Bisons forfeited the first bout to start the 'Cats one-up. George Shull started the evening off by upsetting the dope and gaining the nod over Steve Stephano, Eastern Association champion. Shull won the first round mainly on aggressiveness, lost the second, and came back in the third to eke out the decision. It was Stephano's first defeat in six starts.

Kirk Beats Androski

Eddie Kirk swelled the score to 3-0 when he pounded out another close decision over Bucknell's Bill Androski in the 125-pound class. Androski gave Kirk plenty of trouble until the final bell.

Walter Ballard, Bucknell's other Eastern Association champion, stemmed the tide of victories for a while by winning the decision over Bob Mentzinger. Ballard fought from a half-crouch and seemed to find difficulty in getting inside Bob's left jabs. It took all

Mendel Residents Triumph In Mural Fray

Alumni Hall Also Victor As Court Race Nears End

Sandor's Last-Minute Basket Decides Mendel - Austin Tilt, 29-28; Fedigan Bows to Frosh by Seven-Point Margin

SKYTOPPERS SECOND IN STANDINGS

While Victor Sandor's one handed aerial hoop decided last Thursday's intramural basketball conflict between the Mendel Residents and Austin Hall by a score of 29-28, a scoring spree with which the Alumni quintet opened their second half engulfed the Fediganites, 32-25.

As an added touch to a thrilling second half during which Austin came up from a five-point deficit to take the lead 28-27 with but a few seconds to play Vic Sandor, sensational Resident forward, sank a spectacular one-handed shot that bagged the game for the Mendel Residents. Austin started their scoring parade early in the game but was efficiently checked by the ubiquitous arms of Tim Waad and Joe Bochetto who intercepted most of their passes.

Gradually the Mendelians came to the fore through a few tricky Bochetto buckets with the able assistance of Jack Donohue and Art Santelli. Sandor, who played a remarkable defensive game all night, characterized his shooting by sinking a couple from mid-court. Bochetto was high scorer for the vanquishers with a tally of 12 points, while Art Santelli and Sandor came through with seven and six respectively.

For the losers Andy Conte was high score man with ten points followed by Dwyer, the matchless wonder, who came home with nine points under his belt. Some excellent shots were made by the Austin ites which all but put the game on ice for them, toward the finish Jim Dwyer made three straight baskets tying the score and Conte followed through with another making the score 28-26. Bochetto sank a foul shot which placed the Mendel men just one point in the rear and with Sandor's timely thrust they took the game.

Gigolos Tire

In the Fedigan-Alumni fracas the action was so fast and furious in the first half, in fact, all through the game, that the fatiguing Fedigantes bent so low as to attempt wheedle an extra time out from the time keeper. The game started off with a bang and both teams kept passing the ball around like cigars at a political rally. However, the score was kept low until the latter part of the first period when both fives began to bag one basket after another.

After fifteen minutes of play, Frank Connors, lanky Alumni courtster, sank a one-handed flying shot tying the tally, ten all. John Costello, diminutive Gigolo, next contributed to the evening's entertainment by sinking a bucket, but Connors was not to be stopped, and came through with another basket tying the score 12-12 at the half.

Alumni Spurts

At the commencement of the last half, Charley Barrett came into the game and seemed to inspire his teammates with a new confidence. Anyhow, led by Bob Keeler and Frank Connors, who chalked up ten points each, they all started shooting at the little hoop that graced the Fedigan backboard and very frequently their shots were redeemable for two points.

The stunned Gigolos tried their feeble best to keep up with the spirited Alumnians and even sent in "Moe" Dimon, their "ace in the hole," but to no avail. Toward the end of the second half, however, they seemed to partly come out of their reverie, which is just a high-sounding word for "fog," and sank a couple of shots. Time and again after they had succeeded in gaining possession of the hide-bound sphere, they demonstrated an amazing lack of ability to convert their shots into baskets.

Late in the game "Bud" O'Connell, the Collingswood cut-up, saw a chance to make the headlines and consequently availed himself of the opportunity by sinking three buckets but the Gods were with the sons of Alumni and they brought the game home to Father Ludwig on that well-worn silver platter.

These two major engagements shuffled the team standings in the Intramural League quite considerably. The Mendel Day-hops are at the present moment at the top of the heap with four wins under their belts against one loss. However, the commuters have two important games yet to play with the Fedigan aggregation and their outcomes may disarrange the standings still further.

MARCH 8 OPENING OF GRID PRACTICE

Burke and Guckenberger Eligible for Manager's Post

It won't be long before the Villanova campus again will be imbued with that well known Wildcat football spirit and enthusiasm.

This occasion will be ushered in with the annual Villanova Spring practice which starts on March 8 and continues up to the Easter vacation. Duties will resume on the first of April and proceed throughout the entire month.

Head Coach "Clipper" Smith is eager to start rounding his men in condition so that the finest squad possible will be prepared to face the toughest schedule in Villanova football history.

A trip to the U. S. Naval Academy will be made in the very near future by Coach Smith to complete negotiations for a practice tilt with the Navy this Spring. The Wildcat squad will probably journey to New York again this Spring to engage in a scrimmage with the Columbia "Lions," coached by Lou Little.

Along with the daily workouts on the gridiron, Coach Smith has decided that football lectures will be a part of the Spring practice session; these blackboard conferences will most likely be held during the noon hour.

George Fox may assist Coaches Smith and McNally in these pre-season sessions as will "Bunny" Galazin, in all probability, if he does not take over the coaching duties of the Freshman baseball squad.

Eligible men for the varsity managerial duties for this season's team are Harry Guckenberger and Bill Burke. Both boys have been out there for three seasons carrying out their respective duties and are deserving of the reward that goes with the time and effort expended in helping to make things go that come under the duties of a manager.

Realizing this fact "Clipper" Smith in wanting to show his appreciation has decided not to appoint one manager but to let Guckenberger and Burke have equal say in as far as the managerial duties are concerned.

VARSITY TOSSERS PRACTICE IN GYM

Batterymen Predominate Early Baseball Drills; Infielders Also Report

Last Tuesday was not the first indoor drill for the baseball squad, but it marked the beginning of regular practice. The batterymen are limbering up their soupbones with a great deal of care under the watchful eye of "Doc" Jacobs. The genial coach is keeping his eye peeled for any likely hurling prospects who might decrease his worries and add power to his staff which was almost depleted by graduation.

The veteran Bill McLaughlin, on whose broad shoulders will rest the brunt of the pitching burdens for the coming season, looked in fine shape. Bill probably will see plenty of action this year, but like Dizzy Dean, Bill thrives on hard work; and if Dame Fortune smiles on the pride of Camden he should turn in many a victory for the Wildcats.

Eager Squad

A few of the infielders and outfielders who wish to get the jump on their teammates have been tossing the old horse-hide about with plenty of zest. The battle for positions will warm up as the practice sessions continue. "Doc" expects to have the boys out sharpening their batting eyes as soon as the new equipment arrives along with some of the Springlike weather.

"Doc" also revealed that Villanova would start a precedent this year by playing a game with N. Y. U. for the Alumni after the closing of school. This new undertaking should meet with success and should be an attraction for the Alumni festivities.

SWIM MEET AS SCHEDULED

The Intramural swimming meet will be held as scheduled on Wednesday evening, March 3. Any students desirous of participating should see their hall managers not later than this afternoon as eliminations will most likely be held this afternoon and late registrants will be excluded from competition.

Here and There

By JOHN I. SIMONS

NORT PADEN'S Sportorial in the February 16th issue of the VILLANOVAN attracted the notice of one of Philadelphia's sports announcers. On a broadcast last week over WIP Stoney McLinn commented at some length on our sports editor's remarks about Penn's cancelling its boxing meet with Villanova's mittmen.

This should make some of the chronic critics of our paper sit up and take notice. Outsiders, and newspaper men at that, do read this sheet and speak favorably of it.

The Temple students at the recent doubleheader at the Arena showed themselves up as poor sports by their conduct during the Villanova-C. C. N. Y. game. It gave the Villanova rooters an extra grand feeling of satisfaction when Don Brennan sunk that foul amidst loud and lusty booing from the Owl followers.

Anyone who has attended the games down in the gym the past two weeks has heard the chorus of "bow-wows," "woofs-woofs" and other "dog calls" that have greeted Joe Hopkins when he has stepped out on the floor. Being a little curious we tried to find out the reason behind all this. With the help of "Moe" Dimon we finally got to the bottom of the affair. It seems that when "Hoppy" was a youngster he went by the nickname of "Doggy," and some of the boys are reviving that moniker.

Between the hours of six and seven in the evening a campus radio can pick up no fewer than six sports commentators. Ira Walsh, Joe Tumelty, Lanse McCurley, Kirby Cushing, Stoney McLinn and Stan Lomax are the broadcasters.

Joe Tumelty is a Villanova Alumnus, having been graduated in the Class of 1924. Since that time he has gone far as a sports writer and is now connected with the Associated Press.

During the past week or so we have missed Red Smith's inimitable basketball writeups in the Philadelphia Record. Red's distinctive style has brought him to the top among Quaker City sports scribes in a few months. He first came into prominence during the latter half of the 1936 baseball season, and he has been "tops" since.

A sports fan, particularly a basketball fan, in this district can't help but admire the pluck of the "Mighty Midget" of St. Joe's College. The stirring, last-ditch rallies these lads put on to squeeze out victories are somthing that command the admiration of any real fan. Their conquest of Penn's Intercollegiate Champs in the last 17 seconds of play is typical of the victories the Hawks have been winning this year.

"Doc" Jacobs, who has developed some first rate ball players in his years as baseball mentor at Villanova, will manage the Easton Club of the newly reorganized Eastern Shore League this summer. This league, defunct for the past few years, produced many stars for the big leagues; the most notable of these is Jimmy Foxx, now with Boston, who was at one time a member of the Easton team.

Orchids are in order for Bill Leahy, the mainstay of the successful swimming team. Bill turned his usual fine performance in the Temple meet last Wednesday, and it was a fitting climax to a season of record toppling. He broke the pool record in the 440 yard freestyle and later stroked his way to victory in the 220 yard race.

Still his labors for the evening were not finished; he swam a very effective anchor leg in piloting his mates to victory in the freestyle relay. The third Temple man finished his lap with a three yard lead. Bill, swimming last for the 'Cats made up this deficit and proceeded to win without unduly exerting himself.

Don Brennan and Harry McNally have ended their careers on the Villanova boards. They played their last home game when they faced Lehigh last Wednesday. In losing them, the Wildcats lose two good men. Don was always a cool player, a great hand at holding the team together, and a master at drawing out a zone defense. Harry McNally, the little "Burrhead," is a veteran courtman, a good pivot man in spite of his lack of size, and a grand competitor.

tative, will give Bob Mentzinger an exciting evening this coming Saturday evening. Bringing a hard, fast punch, and a shifty weave, the Terror can give a good account of himself in any man's ring. Bob will have his hands full if he wishes to put him away.

"Slugger" Andrews, in the next weight class, is a terrific puncher, able in ring generalship, and capable of giving anybody a run for his money, and should furnish Bill Duffy with some lively moments throughout the course of the bout.

May Forfeit

At present, there seems to be no contender for the 165 division, so "Sparky" Jarosik may spend the evening watching his sparring mates show their wares. Tony Sala will face his old friend, Ortenzi, who is out take Tony from the undefeated ranks.

The Green Terrors are coming to Villanova with the express intention of cleaning up the Wildcat ringsters, and believe they can repeat their triumph of last year, when they cleaned up by a 5-3 count, for the Blue and White's only loss of the season.

VILLANOVAN STAFF

Members of the VILLANOVAN staff are reminded that there is a basketball game with the L. K. D. fraternity tomorow, 7:30 P. M., in Alumni Gym.

Engineers Defeat L. K. D. By 51-27

a new aspect for it was then that the engineers broke with the fury of a storm. They racked point after point to speedily pull away from the future medicos. But the L. K. D. men stuck to their guns and played with grim determination and the game continued on in its fast pace with the men of both sides cutting fast and with quick, sly motions. At the closing gun the count was 51 for the P. K. P. fraternity, while the L. K. D. congregation gathered 14 points to bring their total up to 27.

Individually, Conte shone for the pre-medics by sending 6 two pointers and 3 single counters through the netted hoop for a total of 15 points, more than half of the L. K. D. tabulation.

For the P. K. P. fraternity, O'Connor was the proverbial "Bob Armstrong." He gathered a grand cummation of 20 points, which included 9 field goals and 2 charity tosses.

Considering that it was their second game of the year, the L. K. D. team didn't do badly, but they could not keep up with P. K. P. courtmen, who mostly compose the Championship Mendel Hall day hop squad.

As a notice of the future, the remaining games of the L. K. D. fraternity will be played in the Alumni Hall gymnasium. These tussles promise to be of the type that interests all followers of the sport.

Discusses the Recent Bucknell Boxing Match

AFTER being held to draws by Temple at Mitten Hall and Army at West Point, our boys came through in fine style against a strong Bucknell boxing team which has compiled a remarkable record this year. I was very doubtful as to the outcome of this contest, but I had supreme confidence in the boys. As you all know that confidence was well-founded.

I received the greatest satisfaction for the Steve Stephano-George Shull bout. George met two decisive defeats in the first two matches of his intercollegiate career, and Villanova students may have been skeptical as to his ability. However he dispelled all doubt last Friday night, when he clearly outboxed Stephano, the Eastern 125-pound champion. Shull, using a fine left jab with the finesse of a champion and a hard right cross at the proper intervals, boxed a fine bout, and is sure to improve in future contests.

Kirk's Boxing

I thought Eddie Kirk's boxing and puncning was outstanding even though he was handicapped by an injured hand. By virtue of this win, Eddie has given notice that he will be one of the outstanding collegiate boxers of the year.

For some unknown reason Bob Mentzinger bought he had his bout won and coasted in the last round. Although I was disappointed, I am sure that Mentzinger will do much better in the future. He has great possibilities, but he will have to work hard to develop them.

Duffy Outweighed

Although outweighed by eight pounds, Bill Duffy gave an outstanding performance in outpointing Dick Reider, a hard-punching, durable southpaw. Duffy is a legitimate welterweight, but because I have two welters, Duffy has graciously agreed to box in the 155-pound class. That is real sportsmanship and shows clearly that Bill puts the welfare of the team above his own.

Captain Joe Valentino, who played end on last year's Bucknell grid outfit, and "Sparky" Jarosik met in what I believed was the feature bout of the evening. Both boys had won five fights in a row before their clash. I was very doubtful as to the outcome of this battle. Valentino is a hard right-handed puncher, and I wondered what Jarosik would do when he met such formidable opposition. "Sparky" came through with flying colors, as he fought the finest bout of his intercollegiate career. His accurate left hand jab and terrific right hand punches held Valentino in check throughout the entire bout. I look for big things from Jarosik.

Sala In Close One

Captain Tony Sala met a tartar in Marty Quick, Bucknell quarterback and former Northeast High School star. As Tony tore out at the opening bell, he was hit by a wild right which almost floored him. However, he soon regained his equilibrium and boxed his way through the remainder of the round. He did much better in the second stanza, and in the third round he clearly outpunched and outfought Quick. Sala's opponent had a very unorthodox style which was quite hard to fathom. There is not much one can do with a style such as Quick used, so Tony had to be content with outboxing him. That was Tony's second bout in almost a year, while it was Quick's sixth contest of the season. He had won five bouts in a row previous to Friday's fight. That battle will do Tony a lot of good, and I am sure that he will be in tip-top form to meet his old friend, Mr. Orenzi, of the Western Maryland boxing team, next Saturday night here at the Villanova Field House.

Also in the ring for Villanova Villanova College had its colors lowered when Lynn scored a one-round kayo over Mike Rutecky, Villanova College's heavyweight representative. Mike shouldn't feel too badly about that, because it was his opponent's fifth consecutive one-round kayo. I sincerely believe Mike will come back and score many points for the Wildcats in the future.

Will Meet Again

I spent quite some time with Joe Renz, former top flight welterweight and coach of the Bucknell boxing team for the past six years. Joe is an outstanding coach and a fine gentleman as well. I am looking forward to renewing our acquaintance at Lewisburg next Winter, when the Bucknell and Villanova boxing teams will meet again.

The large crowd at the show gave conclusive proof that intercollegiate boxing is an attraction along the Main Line. We have a good boxing team at Villanova College as Friday night's performance will testify, but the thing to do now is to let the general public know about it. Our next opponent is our perennial rival, Western Maryland, whichwas the only team to defeat us last year. They scored a 5-3 win over us in our contest held at Westminster, Maryland. Needless to say we will be out for revenge. I happen to have inside information that they are "gunning" for us and I am looking forward to a hard and clean match. It will mark the last appearance of our own Tony Sala, the light-heavyweight intercollegiate champion.

the Bison's championship form and power to gain the nod over Mentzinger.

Bill Duffy, Villanova's stellar 155-pounder, took up where Kirk left off. Duffy was at a slight disadvantage because his opponent, Dick Reider, was a southpaw. However, Bill's experience helped him keep everything under control throughout the entire three rounds.

Jarosik Wins Sixth

One of the closest bouts of the evening was supposed to be between "Sparky" Jarosik and the hard-hitting John Valentine. Jarosik started off slowly, but pepped up to take all three rounds from the Bison. Valentine managed to make the fight last until the final bell. This win makes six straight victories for Jarosik, and things look more promising than ever for the inter-collegiates at Syracuse this month.

The Tony Sala-Marty Quick battle was the highlight of the evening. Quick, a Northeast High graduate, had a string of six straight victories when he entered the ring against Captain Sala. Tony seemed a bit off form in the opening round and Quick had a decided advantage. However, Sala came back in the second and third rounds to overcome the Bison's early lead and gain the decision.

For the first time this season the Wildcat heavyweight climbed through the ropes with the score already settled. Both at West Point and Temple, the heavyweight bout was for the deciding point. Mike Rutecky, Villanova's stocky heavyweight, met the more experienced Jim Lynn, of Bucknell with both fists flying. The Bison retaliated in no mean fashion. The fight was hard and fast while it lasted, but Lynn overwhelmed Rutecky with a torrent of rights and lefts to the face to floor the stocky Wildcat at the end of one minute and 42 seconds.

135-pound class: Eddie Kirk, Villanova, gained a decision over Bill Androski, Bucknell.

145-pound class: Walter Balard, Bucknell, gained a decision in three rounds over Bob Mentzinger, Villanova.

175-pound class: Tony Sala, Villanova, won a three-round decision over Marty Quick, Bucknell.

Heavyweight class: Jim Lynn, Bucknell, knocked out Mike Rutecky, Villanova, in 1:42.

YEARLING BASEBALL CLUB AWAITS CALL

Candidates Eager to Begin Training; Seven-Game Schedule Planned

With the cessation of the basketball season in the very near future the athletic-minded individuals have already turned their thoughts to the baseball diamond and the denizens thereof. The varsity batteries are already practicing in the gymnasium and a difficult schedule has been compiled for them.

The representatives of the Freshman nine will not begin practice until later in the season. According to a statement emanating from the offices of George "Doc" Jacobs, varsity baseball coach, the kittens will not see any action whatsoever until after the Easter vacation. At this time a competent coach will be appointed to handle the candidates aspiring for positions on the first year squad.

Galazin Mentioned

One of the many names submitted as probable coach of the Frosh was that of "Bunny" Galazin. Galazin has had much experience in this sport, having played it in prep school and also on teams around his home district. Due to conflicts with football training "Bunny" did not play any varsity ball at Villanova.

In regards to the members of the freshmen squad Jacobs was noncommittal but as is usually the case a formidable team will be moulded, out of the material already on hand, that will represent Villanova on the field. Plans for a schedule for the first year men are already underway and it will prove to be one that will demand the best from the Kittens.

Schedule Planned

A seven game schedule has been planned including games with the Freshmen from Penn State and the Ursinus Plebes. In addition, a game with the University of Pennsylvania Freshmen is pending.

Along with these intercollegiate games scheduled the Frosh will also scrimmage with the Varsity nine and play pick-up teams from this locality.

Practice sessions will be held indoors until the weather permits the practice field behind the gymnasium being used. The new diamond that was constructed last year and has lain fallow during the Winter season will see plenty of action from the devotees of the "hit and run" sport this Spring with a strong club representing both the Varsity and the Frosh.

en good account of themselves during their court career at the Main Line institution. These boys will be hard to replace, but in the group of talented Freshmen Coach Severance should find able replacements for these valuable basketeers.

Quintet Defeats Three Opponents

11-5 score before their adversaries could get started.

However, with Harry McNally leading the way, the 'Cats came back and nearly caught the fleeing New Yorkers. Harry sank a basket to make the boards read 11-9, but N. Y. U. put on a burst of speed at the end of the half to lead, 16-9.

The Wildcats put up a good brand of basketball in the final canto, but it was not enough for victory. Lou Dubino was the whole show for the losing combine. He scored five points and was instrumental in breaking up the fast breaking and passing attack of the winners. Much credit must be given to a man who left his sick bed in the Infirmary to play great basketball. Dubino has not been in the best of health all year long. Time and time he has gone against the advice of his physicians to do his part. Carnivale led the scorers for the day with 14 tallies.

Defeat Redmen

With the fresh pall of defeat hanging over their heads, the Wildcats, paced by acting-captain Don Brennan, sought revenge and got it in their clash with St. John's. The Redmen, incidentally, stopped a great St. Joseph's team in the midst of one of their many streaks earlier in the season.

Having defeat their major adversary, and a strong case of stage fright, the Villanova boys proceeded to work out on the favorite Red Birds. St. John's secured the lead on Gorman's foulshot, but McNally placed with a set shot and the Felines took the lead never to relinquish it. Jim Montgomery, "Bandy" Krutulis, and Art Vigilante pushed the Villanc a total up to 15, while their opponents were able to gather but eight. Jim Lloyd tallied with a field goal and Joe Palmer notched a pair of fouls to make the half-time count, 15-13.

'Cats Speed Up

At the outset of the second half the game had an appearance of a rout. With Montgomery running wild, the ultimate winners built up a 23-16 margin. Gerry Bush, the usual spearhead of the Indian attack was held scoreless from the floor by the peerless guard, Brennan. Don was able to slip away from the big forward long enough to sink a goal, and he later added a foul try for his total of three points.

The passing of Krutulis completely baffled the losers. Feinting and dribbling like a veteran should, he shot bullet-like passes to Montgomery or Dubino under the basket for scores. Gorman starred for the losers with ten points, which was high for the evening.

Albright Entertained

In the first game of the week on Tuesday night, the Wildcats entertained the Albright five from Reading. Showing plenty of form, Villanova easily won, 39-20. Vigilante opened the ceremonies with a two-pointer. Albright tied the score on Bonner's goal, and then went ahead on his foul shot.

Their lead was not lasting for Vigilante placed with a set shot that put his team ahead for keeps. After the regulars had run up a 17-7 lead at intermission, the reserves were sent in and they did all right by themselves. Mike Totin, Walt Burlington, Lou Wannemacher, "Doggie" Hopkins and Walt McKenna comprised the shock troops. High proved to be Villanova's second easy opponent in as many days. The Engineers had compiled a very commendable record before they hit into the 'Cats; however, the local lads had an on night and they proceeded to spank the Bethlehem five, 35-23.

FRIGID WEATHER HALTS TRACKMEN

Definite Meets Carded With Tempie, Swarthmore, West Chester and F. and M.

Inasmuch as weather conditions have not been satisfactory for track candidates in the past few weeks many of the aspirants have been forced inside the gym for their daily workout.

Those members who can get down to Franklin Field and Hutchinson Gym are still going through their daily routine. These boys should be in fine condition for the first indoor meet with Swarthmore which is scheduled to take place in about the middle of March at the Swarthmore field house.

Villanova will compete in the Penn relays and this meet with Swarthmore will probably decide for Coach Jim Elliot those men to form the relay team and those to compete in some of the other track and field events.

Temple May-Day Foe

As far as the schedule is concerned Manager Kelly disclosed that Temple was booked for a meet which will take place at the Owls' own White athletic field on May 1, Kelly is still waiting to hear from Lehigh and La Salle Colleges. If meets with these two institutions are arranged the track schedule will be complete for this year.

Meets with West Chester, Franklin and Marshall and Swarthmore have been arranged and competition in the Penn Relays and against the Temple Owls should form formidable opposition for the Blue and White cindermen.

DR. FRANK APPERLY SUGGESTS AMERICAN LEGION OF HONOR

Claims That U. S. Should Adopt Foreign System of Recognition

Richmond, Va.—(ACP)—It is about time the Americans set up a system for distinguishing outstanding men, an American Legion of Honor.

So says Dr. Frank Apperly, professor of pathology at the Medical College of Virginia.

"When a man has given freely of his life's work to his fellow men, it is but natural that he should desire some mark of appreciation bestowed by his country or by the world," explained Dr. Apperly.

In Europe and in England, he continued, outstanding writers, scientists, artists, philanthropists and soldiers are rewarded with titles. In France, where no royal titles are given, great men in the fields of art and science are elected to the Legion of Honor.

"These marks of distinction cost nothing," he said, "but what recipient does not highly prize such a mark of appreciation when it is bestowed by a body which is entirely non-political and above suspicion? When, in fact, it is the mark of pure merit, bestowed by his peers?"

Williams College Senior Students Establish Fund

Life Insurance Policy Plan Awaits Only Undergraduate Council's Sanction

Plans for senior class life insurance, making Williams College sole beneficiary of a $20,000 fund at the end of 25 years, await only approval of the Undergraduate Council.

Originated by the class of '14, the idea consists of buying $200 policies on members of the class. The college is the beneficiary when the policy matures.

Richard W. Colman, Jr., president of the class of '37, recommended the action duplicating that undertaken by last year's seniors in accordance with the wishes of President Emeritus Harry A. Garfield, at whose suggestion the plan was originated at Williams two decades ago. It was Mr. Garfield's thought that were the plan adopted by successive classes it might be put on a permanent basis and accumulate a large college endowment similar to that which has given Princeton University a working fund of $2,000,000.

Student approval was foreshadowed in the editorial columns of the Williams Record, undergraduate biweekly, which heralded the scheme as "the best way in which the class of 1937 could pay some of the vast debt which it owes to the college."

LAWYERS ADVISED

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—Practice law for the common good, not the money, is the text of the address delivered by the University of Chicago's Pres. Robt. Maynard Hutchins, to lawyers and judges assembled at the annual meeting of the New York State Bar Association.

NEW METHOD DISCOVERED

Alberta University Scientists Find New Method for Preserving Vitamin D

Edmonton, Alberta—(ACP)—By keeping cod liver oil in the dark, two Canadian scientists have thrown new light on its effective use.

Cod liver oil, which contains the rickets-preventing vitamin D, is also a source of the growth-promotting vitamin A, but, says Dr. W. D. McFarlane and his associate, L. Rudolph of the University of Alberta's biochemistry department, this latter vitamin is destroyed by exposure to light.

Therefore, they claim, cod liver oil should be kept in amber colored bottles and in a cool dark place.

SCHOOLS HONOR C. C. C.

Over 100 Colleges Offer Aid to Youths in Federal Project Camps

Almost 100 colleges have awarded scholarships to CCC enrollees. Carleton College, for example, offered one, but the president of the college, after interviewing six applicants for the final selection was so impressed that he gave two scholarships instead of one. One lucky CCC enrollee received a four year scholarship to Tufts Medical School. This scholarship is worth $1000 a year.

The next time you see a sweaty, overall-clad CCC boy laboring over a hard job, don't laugh at his humble task. He may be doing better college work than you are.

Authorities Claim New Court Rule Will Benefit Prospective Lawyers

Washington, D. C.—This city is teeming with rumors, reports, inside information and fantastic schemes concerning the President's proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court and overhaul the Federal judicial machinery. Nobody knows what the final outcome will be, so one guess is as good as another. Washington hasn't enjoyed itself so thoroughly since the hectic days of the NRA.

One argument advanced by proponents of the reorganization scheme may interest prospective lawyers, now in college. Here it is: Well established law firms now have more business than they can attend to. This results in their requesting the courts for continuances of their cases. The courts being very crowded are glad to grant these requests in most instances. Meantime, younger lawyers, just as good as the members of the noted firms, struggle for an existence.

The President's plan, say one group of proponents, would improve this situation for the young lawyer. By increasing the personnel of various Federal courts, the judicial process will be speeded; continuances will be more difficult to secure; big firms cannot take more cases than they can handle because they will not be able to get the postponements that they receive now. Hence, more clients will find their way to less well known law offices and the young barristers, with ample time to prepare their cases promptly, will get more legal business.

Maybe this is a bit far fetched, but this is an argument being used in favor of the reorganization plan.

Every Fifteenth Student Earns Part of Tuition Through Government Plan

Washington, D. C.—(ACP)—One out of every 15 college students is earning part of his expenses through employment in the NYA program.

That is the claim of Aubrey Williams, administrator of the National Youth Administration. The student aid program has expanded to include 15,817 more students and 84 more colleges and universities, included in the total of 124,818 students and 1686 institutions.

Exactly 98 percent of U. S. institutions are participating in the student aid program, said Williams. To be eligible the college or university must be non-profit making and tax exempt. This embraces practically every degree-granting institution in the country.

In regard to the fears expressed at the time of the NYA's establishment in the summer of 1935, Williams declared:

"Such fears have been allayed completely as the program has developed. The NYA has not interfered in any way whatever with matters of curricula or administration, and the actual working of the program in each institution has been left entirely in the hands of the institution's own 'authorities.'"

JESUIT MISSIONARY TO RECEIVE AWARD HERE ON MARCH 22

Rev. Pierre de Chardin, Famous Paleontologist, Recipient of Medal

TRACED MAN'S ANTIQUITY BACK TO EARLY ICE ERA

Associated With Many Prominent Scientific Groups, Particularly Cenozoic Lab

Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, internationally-known palentologist, who was named the recipient of the Mendel Medal for this year, will officially receive this award on Monday evening, March 22. This announcement was made yesterday by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College.

Appears Before Academy

Dr. Chardin, who gained national fame as a result of his proving that the antiquity of man dates back to the early ice era, will deliver one of the principal addresses at the Academy of Natural Sciences, which is celebrating the 125th anniversary of its founding, Friday, March 19.

This famous priest-scientist, Jesuit missionary to China, first attracted attention of the scientific world as a result of his work in paleontology in Asia, where he devoted himself to the study of ancient man and continued his interest during the past twenty-five years.

Has Many Connections

Dr. Chardin is associated with many different scientific associations, particularly the Cenozole Research Laboratory, a branch of the National Geographic Survey of China, which is largely supported by the Rockefeller Foundation.

STUDY CLUB HEARS LECTURE ON SPAIN

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A. Gives New Slants on Spanish Situation

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., instructor of Spanish, presented many interesting sidelights of the present conditions of affairs existing in Spain today, in an address before the Study Club last Wednesday evening.

Rebellion Unlawful

Beginning his speech, Fr. Lozano pointed out that a rebellion, in its proper sense, is an unlawful, forceful uprising against a lawful, organized government. However, this is not the situation in Spain today. The so-called Loyalist forces have, unjustly and contrary to vote of people, usurped the powers of government.

In order to prove this statement, Fr. Lozano showed clearly, beyond any reasonable doubt, that votes were stolen from the provinces of Pontevedra, Lugo, Seville, Cordova, and Craceres. By means of this coup, the Leftist Party ascended to the control of the government. Actually, the Rightist Party had 400,000 more votes than the Leftists.

Must Use Reason

From February, when the Leftist government came into power, until July, when the revolution broke out, the government was responsible for many atrocities. In the course of this period, eighty churches were closed, and Calvo Satelo, deputy and leader of Catholic action, was killed.

Father Lozano continued, asserting that with such atrocities becoming more numerous as time went on, there could only be expected a forceful revolt against such a government.

Father Lozano brought out that the Leftist government was entirely controlled by Reds, and that Rosen-

"Indifferentism" Is Topic of Lecture By Fr. Gilligan

Gives Regular Weekly Lenten Sermon; Fr. Sparrow Speaks Tonight

"Indifferentism is the characteristic sin of today," declared Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan, O.S.A., who delivered the Lenten sermon to the resident students last Tuesday evening.

Father Gilligan's sermon was based on the text of Jeremiah the prophet, "With desolation the land is made desolate."

World Constantly Changes

From this he proceeded to bring out that the world changes for either better or worse, and that at the present time the moral tone is worse than ever before. He showed that something had gone out of the world, that the moving pictures, stage, literature, magazines, and radio have all descended to levels of vice not allowed 25 years ago. At this point Father asked the question, "To what extent are you because you are a Catholic any different from the rest of the world?"

Must Build Defense

Continuing, Father brought out that filth has penetrated even into Catholicism, and that this should not be. The Catholic Church must build a defense against the indifferentism towards religion that is strangling the world today.

In conclusion he stressed that if you are a member of the Catholic Church you should believe in it with your whole heart and soul,

Scientific Work Of Missionaries In China Little Known By Layman

By JAMES P. TOFANI

Unaware to many people, scientist missionaries are steadily bringing China to the pinnacle of the scientific world. This fact is more evident by the recent discovery of the so-called Simanthropus Pekinensis, whose discovery is always associated with the name of Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, who has been named to receive the Mendel Medal this year.

Few Specially Trained

Instrumental in the elevation of China to great heights are a few specially trained priests, who have identified themselves with, and in some respects have been, pioneers of such research in this heretofore backward country. Those few specialists have made it their whole ambition, and work untirelessly for the advancement of China.

Catholics abroad have principally before them the China of peasant Christian and peasant pagan, for among such lies the primary and best work of the church. But, it must be remembered there is another China on which the missionaries have hitherto had but little influence. This is a China sometimes of real scholarship and the church must hold its respect even during such times as it may fail to win its adherence.

In the course of the last decade three notable institutions have labored to unravel the geological and palaeontological story of China. These the the Natural Geological Survey of China, Asiatic-American Expedition, and the Hoangho-Paiho Museum.

In the year 1923, Father Teilhard, with a noted collaborator, led a combined palaeontological mission of the National Museum of Paris and the Hoangho-Paiho Museum. Their excavations unearthed fossil bones in several places, accompanied by unmistakable palaelithic utensils and weapons, which left no doubt as to human existence in Asia. A few years after these diggings, there is evidence of man's existence in China, if the enigmatic Sinanthropus can be proved human.

It can readily be ascertained that the church is represented in the scientific research in China. It is justifiable and necessary that the Church be interested in the scientific activity of China. It is an appeal to a class not easily reached by the missions, an appeal made with no hope of converting that class, but of holding its tolerance and respect.

DR. FRANK APPERLY SUGGESTS AMERICAN LEGION OF HONOR

Claims That U. S. Should Adopt Foreign System of Recognition

Richmond, Va.—(ACP)—It is about time that Americans set up a system for distinguishing outstanding men, an American Legion of Honor.

So says Dr. Frank Apperly, professor of pathology at the Medical College of Virginia.

"When a man has given freely of his life's work to his fellow men, it is but natural that he should desire some mark of appreciation bestowed by his country or by the world," explained Dr. Apperly.

In Europe and in England, he continued, outstanding writers, scientists, artists, philanthropists and soldiers are rewarded with titles. In France, where no royal titles are given, great men in the fields of art and science are elected to the Legion of Honor.

"These marks of distinction cost nothing," he said, "but what recipient does not highly prize such a mark of appreciation when it is bestowed by a body which is entirely non-political and above suspicion? When, in fact, it is the mark of pure merit, bestowed by his peers?"

Williams College Senior Students Establish Fund

Life Insurance Policy Plan Awaits Only Undergraduate Council's Sanction

Plans for senior class life insurance, making Williams College sole beneficiary of a $20,000 fund at the end of 25 years, await only approval of the Undergraduate Council.

Originated by the class of '14, the idea consists of buying $200 policies on members of the class. The college is the beneficiary when the policy matures.

Richard W. Colman, Jr., president of the class of '37, recommended the action duplicating that undertaken by last year's seniors in accordance with the wishes of President Emeritus Harry A. Garfield, at whose suggestion the plan was originated at Williams two decades ago. It was Mr. Garfield's thought that were the plan adopted by successive classes it might be put on a permanent basis and accumulate a large college endowment similar to that which has given Princeton University a working fund of $2,000,000.

Student approval was foreshadowed in the editorial columns of the Williams Record, undergraduate biweekly, which heralded the scheme as "the best way in which the class of 1937 could pay some of the vast debt which it owes to the college."

LAWYERS ADVISED

New York, N. Y.—(ACP)—Practice law for the common good, not the money, is the text of the address delivered by the University of Chicago's Pres. Robt. Maynard Hutchins, to lawyers and judges assembled at the annual meeting of the New York State Bar Association.

NEW METHOD DISCOVERED

Alberta University Scientists Find New Method for Preserving Vitamin D

Edmonton, Alberta—(ACP)—By keeping cod liver oil in the dark, two Canadian scientists have thrown new light on its effective use.

Cod liver oil, which contains the rickets-preventing vitamin D, is also a source of the growth-promoting vitamin A, but, says Dr. W. D. McFarlane and his associate, L. Rudolph of the University of Alberta's biochemistry department, this latter vitamin is destroyed by exposure to light.

Therefore, they claim, cod liver oil should be kept in amber colored bottles and in a cool dark place.

SCHOOLS HONOR C. C. C.

Over 100 Colleges Offer Aid to Youths in Federal Project Camps

Almost 100 colleges have awarded scholarships to CCC enrollees. Carleton College, for example, offered one, but the president of the college, after interviewing six applicants for the final selection was so impressed that he gave two scholarships instead of one. One lucky CCC enrollee received a four year scholarship to Tufts Medical School. This scholarship is worth $1000 a year.

The next time you see a sweaty, overall-clad CCC boy laboring over a hard job, don't laugh at his humble task. He may be doing better college work than you are.

Authorities Claim New Court Rule Will Benefit Prospective Lawyers

Washington, D. C.—This city is teeming with rumors, reports, inside information and fantastic schemes concerning the President's proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court and overhaul the Federal judicial machinery. Nobody knows what the final outcome will be, so one guess is as good as another. Washington hasn't enjoyed itself so thoroughly since the hectic days of the NRA.

One argument advanced by proponents of the reorganization scheme may interest prospective lawyers, now in college. Here it is: Well established law firms now have more business than they can attend to. This results in their requesting the courts for continuances of their cases. The courts being very crowded are glad to grant these requests in most instances. Meantime, younger lawyers, just as good as the members of the noted firms, struggle for an existence.

The President's plan, say one group of proponents, would improve this situation for the young lawyer. By increasing the personnel of various Federal courts, the judicial process will be speeded; continuances will be more difficult to secure; big firms cannot take more cases than they can handle because they will not be able to get the postponements that they receive now. Hence, more clients will find their way to less well known law offices and the young barristers, with ample time to prepare their cases promptly, will get more legal business.

Maybe this is a bit far fetched, but this is an argument being used in favor of the reorganization plan.

Every Fifteenth Student Earns Part of Tuition Through Government Plan

Washington, D. C.—(ACP)—One out of every 15 college students is earning part of his expenses through employment in the NYA program.

That is the claim of Aubrey Williams, administrator of the National Youth Administration. The student aid program has expanded to include 15,817 more students and 34 more colleges and universities, included in the total of 124,818 students and 1686 institutions.

Exactly 98 percent of U. S. institutions are participating in the student aid program, said Williams. To be eligible the college or university must be non-profit making and tax exempt. This embraces practically every degree-granting institution in the country.

In regard to the fears expressed at the time of the NYA's establishment in the summer of 1935, Williams declared:

"Such fears have been allayed completely as the program has developed. The NYA has not interfered in any way whatever with matters of curricula or administration, and the actual working of the program in each institution has been left entirely in the hands of the institution's own 'authorities.'"

JESUIT MISSIONARY TO RECEIVE AWARD HERE ON MARCH 22

Rev. Pierre de Chardin, Famous Paleontologist, Recipient of Medal

TRACED MAN'S ANTIQUITY BACK TO EARLY ICE ERA

Associated With Many Prominent Scientific Groups, Particularly Cenozoic Lab

Pierre Teilhard de Chardin, internationally-known palentologist, who was named the recipient of the Mendel Medal for this year, will officially receive this award on Monday evening, March 22. This announcement was made yesterday by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of Villanova College.

Appears Before Academy

Dr. Chardin, who gained national fame as a result of his proving that the antiquity of man dates back to the early ice era, will deliver one of the principal addresses at the Academy of Natural Sciences, which is celebrating the 125th anniversary of its founding, Friday, March 19.

This famous priest-scientist, Jesuit missionary to China, first attracted attention of the scientific world as a result of his work in paleontology in Asia, where he devoted himself to the study of ancient man and continued his interest during the past twenty-five years.

Has Many Connections

Dr. Chardin is associated with many different scientific associations, particularly the Cenozoic Research Laboratory, a branch of the National Geographic Survey of China, which is largely supported by the Rockefeller Foundation.

STUDY CLUB HEARS LECTURE ON SPAIN

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A. Gives New Slants on Spanish Situation

Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., Instructor of Spanish, presented many interesting sidelights of the present conditions of affairs existing in Spain today, in an address before the Study Club last Wednesday evening.

Rebellion Unlawful

Beginning his speech, Fr. Lozano pointed out that a rebellion, in its proper sense, is an unlawful, forceful uprising against a lawful, organized government. However, this is not the situation in Spain today. The so-called Loyalist forces have, unjustly and contrary to vote of people, usurped the powers of government.

In order to prove this statement, Fr. Lozano showed clearly, beyond any reasonable doubt, that votes were stolen from the provinces of Pontevedra, Lugo, Seville, Cordova, and Craceres. By means of this coup, the Leftist Party ascended to the control of the government. Actually, the Rightist Party had 400,000 more votes than the Leftists.

Must Use Reason

From February, when the Leftist government came into power, until July, when the revolution broke out, the government was responsible for many atrocities. In the course of this period, eighty churches were closed, and Calvo Satelo, deputy and leader of Catholic action, was killed.

Father Lozano continued, asserting that with such atrocities becoming more numerous as time went on, there could only be expected a forceful revolt against such a government.

Father Lozano brought out that the Leftist government was entirely controlled by Reds, and that Rosen-

"Indifferentism" Is Topic of Lecture By Fr. Gilligan

Gives Regular Weekly Lenten Sermon; Fr. Sparrow Speaks Tonight

"Indifferentism is the characteristic sin of today," declared Rev. Thomas F. Gilligan, O.S.A., who delivered the Lenten sermon to the resident students last Tuesday evening.

Father Gilligan's sermon was based on the text of Jeremiah the prophet, "With desolation the land is made desolate."

World Constantly Changes

From this he proceeded to bring out that the world changes for either better or worse, and that at the present time the moral tone is worse than ever before. He showed that something had gone out of the world, that the moving pictures, stage, literature, magazines, and radio have all descended to levels of vice not allowed 25 years ago. At this point Father asked the question, "To what extent are you because you are a Catholic any different from the rest of the world?"

Must Build Defense

Continuing, Father brought out that filth has penetrated even into Catholicism, and that this should not be. The Catholic Church must build a defense against the indifferentism towards religion that is strangling the world today.

In conclusion he stressed that if you are a member of the Catholic Church you should believe in it with your whole heart and soul,

COMMUNISM AN EXAMPLE?

PARADOXICAL is the fact that among the nations of the world, the anti-Christian Communist State of Soviet Russia, according to the latest reports, is playing an increasingly important part in the suppression of birth control, abortion, and so forth. We say paradoxical, for certainly it is a peculiar and horrible tragedy when the Christian nations of the Western world are forgetting their cultural basis, Christianity, and allowing the enemy of Christianity, Communism, to lead the path to national fecundity.

In America, for instance, the birth rate has been dropping at such a rate that if the present drop continues, we face not only a stationary population by 1950, but by 1985 we actually can expect a declining population.

The America that would fight Communism blandly assumes that it can frustrate the Will of God and continue on this pernicious path. Nations, like individuals, are eventually called before the Seat of the All High. We cannot continue to practice this hideous practice of birth control and expect the Almighty to bless and protect our democratic country. One by one, the nations of Europe that have followed this course, have fallen under the leadership of radical and subversive elements. Are we going to let this happen in America?

The problem of social reconstruction in America is a mighty one. And let no man be deceived that it is a merely economic problem. Basically it is a religious problem. We can have all sorts of elaborate governmental agencies to establish social justice, but there is a higher justice: the justice of man in following out the natural law. When men defy the natural law, as they are doing in America today, retribution is inexorable.

America the beautiful? Are we to cast this idea on the scrap heap and place there instead this: America the decaying?

Catholics are the only true enemies of Communism, for Catholics fight Communism as an enemy of the spirit, as well as an enemy of property rights. If we are to keep Communism out of America, let us mend our fences at once and teach our young men and women that Birth Control is a horrible practice. It is an insult to Almighty God. It is a sin against society. And let those who practice birth control know that they are co-operating with the Communists, for they foster a practice which leads to Communism.

Paradoxical it is therefore the Communism has realized the suicidal content to be found in birth control. America: Awaken!

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES

ALTHOUGH election expenditures are a matter which most public officeholders are inclined to view with indulgence because of the intimate relation to themselves, the report issued by the Senate Campaign Expenditures Investigating Committee upon the amount spent by all parties during the last national election, which was close to $24,000,000, cannot help suggesting the thought that some legislative enactment should be proposed to curtail such tremendous expenditures.

It is well-known that the American people enjoy few things as they do elections. The more bitterly contested they are the more they interest the people. But when such sums as the above are spent in the effort to convince the electorate of the political merits of a former national nonentity or of a man whose activities have already been widely publicized, the electioneering takes on the appearance of a national sales campaign, rather than a means of introducing the candidates and their respective political opinions to the voters of the nation.

A further subject of interest in the report is the estimated expenditures per Presidential vote cast for each party. The average cost of each Republican vote was 85 cents as compared to 33 cents for each Democratic. The Socialist was placed at 20 cents and the Communistic at $3.37. Examination reveals that the Communist party spent $162,040 upon the campaign as compared with the Socialist $24,962. These expenditures demonstrate, if nothing else, that Communistic activities in this country are not the imaginary "bogies" that many would have us believe; but rather an actively aggressive force that is constantly striving to undermine the American principles of government.

In our zeal to grant everyone the right of free speech and assembly regardless of how inimical his intentions to our social and economic well-being, we seem to have lost sight of the necessity of doing all in our power to see that the credulity of the people is not imposed upon by the pernicious and unsound doctrines of every political theorist who wishes to exploit it.

EDWARD, OUR NEIGHBOR

WITH THE announcement from Vienna that the former King Edward has leased the palatial "Cloisters" estate near Baltimore for at least a year comes the idea that Sinclair Lewis' now famous letter of invitation had some effect. Written during the time of trouble, this letter reminded the king that America was the best place in the world for him to live.

Prior to his ascension to the throne of England it will be remembered that as Prince of Wales, Edward spent much of his time in the United States. Because of his democratic ideas and his rebellion against the Victorian modes of his family, he likes America, and it seems only natural that he would chose this country as his home.

Reports of his coming here bring doubts, however, as to whether he will become completely Americanized by accepting the nationality of his wife and pledging his allegiance to our flag and our President as a citizen of the United States.

To make life easier and safer for referees, Arcadia University in Nova Scotia has inaugurated a system where the ref can rest on the roof somewhere and save his feet. His assistant throws up the ball for tap-offs and otherwise executes his boss' commands. (Who's a stooge?) When Herr ref wants to halt play, he pushes a button attached to a whistle operated by compressed air. The whistle toots (or does a whistle toot?) out of an amplifier directly over the player's heads, scaring them out of their collective rompers.

ODDS and ENDS

Editor's Note: Guest columnist this week is Tom O'Mahoney '39 who is relieving the regular columnist who is busily engaged in other fields (?).

IN THE interests of journalistic honesty, we are compelled to state that writing a column is not the easiest thing in the world. We know—we're trying it.

Joe Toland, regular Odds and Ender, (plug), featured a "Frosh Do You Know" item during the first quarter, as you loyal readers probably remember. Now we have no grudge against the class of 1940, for we were freshmen once, too; but we think that the transfers ought to be informed of the salient bits of knowledge floating about the campus. Forthwith—

Transfers, Did You Know?

That the Villanova glee club was declared to be one of the finest collegiate outfits in the East? (this by WCAU staff members).

That MacDonnell was greatly vexed when THE young lady estimated his age at 28?

That there is a widespread suspicion that 97 of Guy Lombardo's relatives voted in the recent orchestra poll?

Why it is that there are none but engineers in the Immaculata League? Can it be that the lassies from up the Line are mathematically inclined? We can't figure that one, somehow.

They do say that Moe Dimon is so lazy that he hitch-hikes from Fedigan to the Pie Shop. Personally, we think this a rank libel, Moe. But there is a story going around that you would like to live in Austin so that you could return library books by falling downstairs. How about it?

As We See It .... At Random

By HARRY PARKIN

NAZI rules of decorum, contrary to those which prevail among people of good sense and discernment, seem to be founded on the principle that two wrongs make a right; otherwise we should experience some difficulty in accounting for the scurrility that the German newspapers viciously heaped upon Mayor La Guardia as a result of his untoward remarks concerning Adolph Hitler. Few will deny that the Mayor's remarks were not in the best of taste or designed to prove particularly gratifying to a group of individuals who make a fetish of racial hatreds, but then again the actions of Hitler and his satellites likewise, are seldom in the best of taste. And where it is a matter of determining which is the more reprehensible, words or deeds, we don't imagine that there are many people who would not prefer to be threatened with murder than to be actually murdered.

The essential difference between the American newspaper and the German, is that the statements of the latter are directly under the control of the Minister of Propaganda, and may be considered as his formal expressions. So there would seem to be some justification for Mayor La Guardia to lodge with the Berlin Foreign office a complaint similar to the one registered with the Secretary of State; by reason of the many opprobrious remarks with which the Nazi newspapers characterized him—remarks, by the way, which revealed themselves more indicative of paid animosity than righteous indignation.

Since Hitler entered upon the scene of German politics and "sold" the people on the rather nebulous idea of the nobility of their Nordic ancestry and the superiority that such a heritage conferred upon them, he has found it expedient to make many changes in the moral and philosophical opinions that had obtained among the people for centuries. That these alterations were intended to secure his own position cannot be doubted. But that they will ultimately be his undoing will likewise hardly be doubted. Hitler is trying to unify the state upon principles that make for its confusion; he is attempting to establish order by means of chaos. The social and economic sufferings, the international distrust, and the internal unrest that his theories have brought to the country are gradually becoming known to the rest of the world in spite of his pains to disguise it. Hence the necessity of seizing upon any incident that occurs in the world and magnifying it into a national problem so as to direct the minds of the people from the abominable mess that he is speedily making out of their country.

From the association which we have had with scholastic philosophy, we find it varying with much of what passes for modern thought by reason of its tendency to debate from fundamentals or first principles. Lacking these it does not debate at all. The moderns however seem to have evolved a new philosophy for the development of philosophy, that is one that strives for effects while it ignores causes.

Pajama Clad Students Frolic As Fire Corps Battle Conflagration

By JOHN E. DIMON

One of the most interesting bull-fests ever staged was unexpectedly terminated in the wee hours of last Thursday morning by loud outbursts of Fire! Fire! emanating from the lonely Spring Mill Road. Suspecting that the Austin "cut-ups" were at work again, the Fediganites paid little attention to the cries until they heard the sharp shrills of a siren break the still of the night.

Finally convinced that this was far from a joke, the night hawks peered out the window and noticed a blazing structure a few yards off of the Pike. One of the boys crossed the hall and aroused Jake Simons, the Intercollegiate champion hog-caller.

Chief Kerrigan On Scene

In response to John L's frantic calls, the Austin Hall bucket brigade headed by Chief Paul Kerrigan arrived at Fedigan fully prepared to take care of the situation. They were heavily loaded with plenty of wood, kerosene, and a few sticks of dynamite. They were really dismayed when they found that Fedigan was not on fire. Thinking the College Inn ablaze they hurried back to their abodes to get their ever-waiting outstretched hoses.

Many students awakened by the stampeding students hurrying to the fire became furious in trying to pack their few things together. "Choo-Choo" Bowker became entangled in his night shirt, as he attempted his get-away. Downstairs, "Buzz" Hart rushed out with all his riches — about 50 unread Street and Smith's. Upon being informed that there was a fire, Dick Deverall merely said, "Swell, now we can have some heat," and he rolled over again.

Malcolm Wouldn't Budge

Over in Mendel, "Tiny" Malcolm forget to use a shoehorn and never got to the fire. He became enlodged in the small aperture of his room, and was not freed until night custodian Charlie Vondra secured a block and fall.

Residents of Austin thought the world had come to an end. Joe McCabe was so confused that he walked headlong into a wall. "Pop" Shealey hit a tree, and thinking that it was a "Gigolo" commanded it to "put up your dukes."

"Jaber" Burke and Jimmy Quigley took the novelty prize. Absent-mindedly in their excitement they forgot to don their shoes. A race the major part of the discussion resulted but the web-footed Fediganite came across the line first.

Donohue—Beau Brummel

On the scene of the fire much confusion was noticed. Late theatregoers bedecked in top hats and ermine chuckled as they ambled through the multitude of pajama-clad students. John "Kelly" Donohue, for instance, was draped in a flaming red outfit that draped slightly below the knees. A huge safety pin served as a unique means of support. His trench coat, worn in cape fashion, and cut-out and well worn slippers completed his ensemble.

And "Corn" Kolb selected a combination for the affair. His flowered top was well - tailored with a high buttoned collar. His violet trousers with a large green patch on the thigh gave a contrasting effect. He wore size 14 ski shoes for a perfect balance. "Buzz" Howlett, who pursued Charlie Timmins all evening, was the only Villanovan not formally attired.

Wind Against Them

A large number of Freshmen were on hand praying for the wind to change its course, so that the sparks would ignite Alumni. And still a larger group of Pre-meds were hoping that the flames would take a liking to Mendel proper; so they would not have to take the belated re-exams in the morning.

Kelvin Quinn attempted a "Fireman save my wife" act when he was falsely informed that cries for help came from the second story. (There were no living quarters in the garage ablaze). "Junior" Adams purposely loosened a hose connection causing everyone in the vicinity to get a shower. Incidentally, his side kick Shealey made a fortune the next day soliciting for the tailor. It's all a racket, with "Junior" working on a commission basis.

Apples! Roasted Apples!

Tom O'Mahoney, Fritz Monahan, and Ray Mullen were waiting for the fruit stand to ignite; so they could have roasted apples and hot cider, or something more palatable. "Moose" Donovan was on the spot taking unusual photos for the Belle Air.

The fire was finally put out, and much credit must be given Bill Burke and Frank Hanlon for their expert back seat driving. The retreat back to the various halls was marked by exhibitions of joy and laughter. The bull session was recommenced with lively srson stories and fireman's tales taking up

A One Student School

THE CLASSES are very small at the Pine Hill Rural School, up in Hope Township, Ontario, Canada.

As a matter of fact there is only one pupil attending the school! The lone pupil, Leo Gann, is coming along splendidly with his studies. Ever since he entered the school, Leo has never failed to come out at the head of his class!

The teacher, Miss Edith Carruthers, receives most of the $900 that is paid by the province to educate young Cann.

London-New York Contrasts

There are no skyscrapers in London, the highest buildings average ten stories.

There is much crime in New York. The chances of getting murdered in that city are 40 times greater than in London.

London police or "Bobbies" do not carry guns. A short stick or "club" is their only weapon, and few are ever seen with these.

London streets are seldom congested with traffic. The English like to walk.

English boys do not seem as carefree and happy as American boys. They act and appear like little men, already carrying their burden of the cares of life.

Mr. Woolworth receives a little more for his wares in London. Here his "3d and 6d" stores are the English substitute for our "Five and Ten." As a penny is worth two cents in American money, these are really 6c and 12c stores.

Bath Water

Moslem Holy Water is not very sanitary. After the Aga Khan (High Priest, equivalent to our Pope) has thoroughly cleansed himself in an immense bath tub, (the beautiful construction of which would even bring a sigh from Mr. Cecil DeMille) the water is collected and put in containers to be sold at fabulous prices to the Moslems in India, by whom it is used as very sacred "holy water."

Here in the East we have had a very mild Winter. But in the South and West it has been a different story.

Several southern states have received their first snow storm in twenty years.

People who have never before seen snow have been surprised to see "cotton falling from the heavens."

Out in California the Winter has proven a ghastly, long drawn out nightmare. It has been estimated that 20 percent of next Summer's immense orange crop has been destroyed by frost. Last week alone over two million gallons of oil were burned in the orange groves to help preserve the remainder of the crop.

Flash!

Don't smoke or blow your horn while driving in Stockholm, Sweden. It's against the law.

If you live in New York, don't be afraid of a gas attack in the next war. 28,000,000 pounds of the deadliest gas would be needed. Far more special planes would be required to carry this gas, than there are ordinary planes in existence all over the world today.

REILEY SPEAKER FOR HOLY NAME

West Chester Attorney Will Address Monthly Meeting of Group

Philip J. Reiley, Assistant District Attorney and member of the law firm of Reiley and Reiley, of West Chester, will address the Villanova Holy Name society at their regular monthly Communion breakfast this coming Sunday.

For the topic of his discussion Mr. Reiley has chosen the ever-important question of Catholic Action. He will also give a short talk on the existing jury system.

Mr. Reiley is a graduate of Pennsylvania Military College and served for several years as lieutenant of the Pennsylvania National Guards.

The last time a distinguished speaker was obtained for the monthly meeting of the society the attendance was so very small that officers of the group were embarrassed. It is hoped that this condition will be remedied in the future.

PARKYAKARKUS, who claims to be the originator of the nation's current fad, "sit-down strikes," returned to the networks last week with Al Jolson's gang following a month's honeymoon with the former Thelma Leeds. He has signed for sixteen weeks with options running for two years replacing Sid Silvers as the Mammy Singer's heckler. Sid withdrew voluntarily because he felt that the new program set-up, instituted three weeks ago when Jolson introduced his song dramatizations, did not allow him sufficient time on the air.

Those of you who heard Jack Benny's rendition of "The Bee" on February 28 merely caught the anticlimax of the Benny-Allen feud. The grand climax is listed for this Sunday's broadcast when Fred Allen appears as guest on Jack's program. We hope it will be the end of that. It will be remembered that it all started when Fred made a harmless ad-lib remark several weeks ago. After presenting a 10-year-old violinist, Allen declared Jack Benny ought to be ashamed of himself to let such a youngster show him up as a fiddler.

Benny in his next broadcast immediately took up the argument. One broadside followed another, until the thing developed into a barrage of epithets. As a result, the two programs have gained in popularity surveys. Other comedians, sensing the possibilities offered by the fued, often commented upon it, some sometimes amusingly.

Eddie Cantor remarked, " 'To be or not to be' was once Hamlet's problem, now it has become Jack Benny's."

Charles Butterworth, when asked what a bee had done for civilization, replied: "Well, it has kept two programs on the air for six weeks!"

However, in spite of professional rivalry, Jack and Fred are old friends and actually plan their inside by phone each week. Fred writes his program before the Benny show goes on, so he likes to know what is going to be said about him, helping him to plan a counter-attack.

A few lines about the Royal Canadians and their leader, "wise" Guy, winners of the orchestra poll conducted by this column . . . Dancers at the Hotel Roosevelt often notice Guy Lombardo make peculiar gestures with his hands apparently to someone in the rear of the room. It seems as though the popular band master is utilizing deaf-mute technique, but actually he is merely rehearsing for his Sunday evening show. In this manner Guy runs through his entire program several times a week. At a table across the room sits Dave White, in charge of production; he is the interpreter having a stop-watch handy to time each number.

The maestro scrutinizes the dancers for their reactions to the tunes played. One that doesn't click with them is cast aside and another placed in its stead.

Is it any wonder that his programs are pleasing to the ear—after going through the mill several times!

Latest Non-Fiction Best Sellers At Students' Disposal In Library

"Man does not possess enough intelligence and courage to manage the world that he himself has blindly created. The solution of the present crisis is for us to acquire a complete knowledge of our body and our soul, and of their indespensable requirements." Thus spoke the savant Alexis Carrel when he received the Newman Award at the University of Illinois.

Best Seller for Months

Dr. Carrel's book, "Man the Unknown," 346 pages, has been among the non-fiction best sellers for many months. The author offers his evidence to a jury consisting of you and me. He leaves us to our own conclusion. Here is a synthesis of what psychologists, biologists, chemists, and physicists have learned about the nature of man. The Catholic World for December, '36, contains an article, "Man the Knowable," by J. H. Fichter, which is a discussion and refutation of Dr. Carrel's book. The call number for "Man the Unknown" in the college library is GN24C3.

Pearson, Allen Again

All will remember the comments on the one time famous book, "Washington Merry - Go - Round." The authors of this work, Pearson and Allen, have another equally popular book among the Best Sellers; it is "Nine Old Men," 325 pages. This book in no uncertain terms takes to task the highest tribunal in the land. Without documents, proof or even evidence, the authors analyze the present justices of the Supreme Court and their records.

G. K. Chesterton

The library has the first four books on the non-fiction section of the "Catholic Best Book Sellers" for January. The first on this list is, as everyone expects, the autobiography of the founder of a new school among catholic writers, Gilbert Keith Chesterton. In 360 pages, the much regretted "G. K." gives us an insight of almost every consequential Englishman, among whom are Hardy, Shaw and Wells and Belloc with a host of others. Here are the great and the near great of England. Chesterton's paradoxes and his passion for principle has so long been an international institution that one can scarcely believe this autobiography to be good-bye. Three copies of this work are in the library with the call number PR4453C4Z5.

Catholic Action Demanded

"Catholic Action" should be a prominent, awakening, and soul-stirring phrase among Catholic college men. If one reads just one chapter of Father Furfey's short book, "Fire on Earth," 159 pages, he certainly will be stimulated to action, for here is an honest effort to face the difficulties that lie in the way of social progress, particularly as that progress is aided or hindered by charity, philanthrophy and organized relief. The call number for this book in our library is HN37C3F8. A commentary of this book may be found in the inspiring editorial of Father Gillis in last September's issue of the Catholic World. A sequel to "Fire on Earth" is the 36 page pamphlet by the same author, with the title, "Catholic Extremism." The call number for this is HN37C3F79.

From Belloc's Pen

Next on the list is "Characters of the Reformation" by Hilaire Belloc. Within these 324 pages we have actual portraits of the 23 characters by Jean Charlot together with the pen portraits by Mr. Belloc. In the author's masterful, sharp and clear style we meet persons who played an important part during the so-called Reformation period. This book has the call number BR-315B35, placing it next to Spaulding's "History of the Reformation"

DEBATERS SCHEDULE FORENSIC MEETINGS FOR ENSUING WEEK

Will Oppose Teams Representing St. Francis, Fordham, Manhattan

TO DEBATE WAGE QUESTION

Forensic representatives of Beta Gamma, the College Debating Society, will act in the capacity of hosts to representatives from St. Francis College on the evening of Thursday, March 11, at 8 o'clock in the Amphitheatre of Mendel Hall. This announcement was made by Anthony Differ, president of the organization.

Debate Wage Question

The subject for debate in the encounters of the coming week, as well as those of the past week, is: Resolved: That Congress shall have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry. The question, which is also known as the Pi Kappa Delta question, is characterized by national interest, especially at the present time when capital and labor are much at point of dispute.

Villanova will be competently represented by two junior members of the chapter on the debate with St. Francis College, Frederick Waters and Joseph Allessandroni, both of whom will present a discussion defending the negative aspect of the question.

To Oppose Fordham

On the following week-end, Beta Gamma will journey to New York City, meeting Fordham University an March 12, and Manhattan College on the 13th of this month. The individuals representing the society in these encounters and whether the latter will defend the negative or affirmative of the 'hour and wage' question are still undetermined.

Debates during the past week were two in number. The first team meet concerning hours and wages was Shippensburg State Teachers on Wednesday, March 3. William Corkill and Thomas Delate, upholding the affirmative, represented the Villanova group of debaters; Garnet Zimmerman and John Ruhl, presented the views of the Shippensburg group.

Meet Bucknell Debaters

On last Friday evening, Beta Gamma representatives journeyed to Lewisburg, in order to oppose the Bucknell University debaters, the Villanova men defending the negative in the question involving capital and labor. While on the same excursion, the Villanova debaters upholding the affirmative encountered Misericordia College at Dallas, Penna., on Saturday, last.

GOTHAM HOTEL SITE OF JERSEY SOCIAL

Manhattan Room of Hotel Pennsylvania Chosen by Jersey Club

At the appointed and successful meeting of the North Jersey Club on Thursday evening, it was approved by all members concerned to hold the annual Easter Dinner-dance in the Manhattan Room of the Hofel Pennsylvania. Adding to the excellent choice of the environment of the dance will be the music of Benny Goodman.

Arrangements Disclosed

Only after considerable deliberation and unanimous consent of the committee, were the full arrangements disclosed. A serious problem had to be defeated in the discussion of whether holding the dance outside of the territorial limits would down the purpose of the club. However, the decided setting is most commendable.

The club committee, which includes Charles Costa, Louis Dubino, Thomas O'Mahoney, Edward Tirrel, Henry Mazzei, and John McPike, announced upon the recommendation of President John Cronin, and chairman Joseph Fallon, that all bids must be paid by March 23.

The date for the next meeting has not been decided upon as definite, but it is expected that new officers will be elected for the coming year.

Local Music Club Hears Selections From La Traviata, Barber of Seville

At the last meeting of the Villanova Music Club, selections from the Barber of Seville, La Traviata, and Carmen were played on the electric victrola by Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., moderator of the group.

Hear Tibbett Sing

Thirty Villanova students gathered last Thursday evening in the Day Students' room to hear Lawrence Tibbett render the aria Largo al Factotum from the Barber of Seville. The rollicking voice of the "Barber" entranced the listeners. Next on the program was Tschaikowsky's immortal Overture of 1812. Written to commemorate the withdrawal of Napoleon's troops from Russia, in 1812, the students were thrilled by the dramatic ending of the symphony when the bells of Moscow were heard to peal forth in exotic joyousness accompanied by the sonorous throbbing of the Russian National Hymn.

The concluding selection was the aria Di Provenze Il Mar, from La Traviata. Sung by John Charles Thomas, this beautiful aria from the second act of Verdi's opera prepared the boys for the Saturday afternoon breadcast of La Traviata, coming over the radio from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Another Concert Thursday

Dr. William McHugh, originally scheduled to appear at this meeting was ill and could not attend. At the next meeting of the club, Thursday evening, 7:30 o'clock, in the Day Students' Room, Dr. McHugh will play and explain Tschaikowsky's Concerto in B Flat Minor. He also plans to present Franz Liszt's Hungarian Fantasia, a delightful bit of old-world folk music. Father Vrana expressed great satisfaction with the interest shown in the club, and hoped that many more would join the group this coming Thursday evening.

CONNECTICUT CLUB MEETS

There will be a meeting of the Connecticut lub tonight in the Mendel Amphitheatre immediately after chapel. All members must be present as important business is to be discussed.

JOS. O'BRIEN GIVES 'GLASS HOUSES' TALK

Addresses A. S. C. E. Society; Group Plans Inspection Tour in Near Future

At the regular bi-weekly meeting of the Student Chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held yesterday in room 214, Mendel Hall, Joseph O'Brien, '38, delivered an illustrated lecture on "Recent Developments in the Building of Glass Houses."

O'Brien pointed out the unique features of these ultra modern edifices and detailed to the student gathering the new problems that would necessarily confront the engineer in such construction work. This meeting was outstanding for its unusual attendance.

J. Paul Skelly, Chairman of the Trip Committee, announced at the conclusion of the meeting that an inspection tour will be made by the Chapter to the Northeast Sewage Disposal Plant on Thursday afternoon at 1 P. M. Skelly has issued a request that those who intend to make the trip, kindly meet in the lounge room at that time; and for any one who has a car to let him know so that accommodations may be made.

L. K. D. FRATERNITY HEARS LECTURE BY NEUROLOGIST

Dr. A. M. Ornsteen Tells Members of Common Nervous System Ailments

"Neurologists must concern themselves not only with diseases of the nervous system, but also with diseases which secondarily effect the nervous system, such as diphtheria," stated Dr. A. M. Ornsteen, in his lecture given to the members of the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity last Thursday evening.

Discusses Rabies

Dr. Ornsteen, a prominent neurologist of Philadelphia, who is associate professor of Neurology at the University of Pennsylvania, and consultant neurologist to the Philadelphia General Hispital, then proceeded to elaborate on his statement by discussing Rabies, a disease of the nervous system, and various diseases which affect the nervous system such as diphtheria, measels and scarlet fever.

Helen Jepson tells why she chooses Luckies for her voice

LOVELY PRIMA DONNA OF METROPOLITAN OPERA SAYS:

"A season of opera and concert means my voice and throat must be consistently in perfect condition. Therefore, although most of my smoking is done while I am on vacation, it is all important to me that I be careful in choosing my cigarette. I smoke Luckies because I enjoy their taste and because I feel it is wiser for me to choose a light smoke for my voice."

Helen Jepson

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Jepson verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

LAST SATURDAY'S capacity crowd at the Western Maryland meet assures the Villanova athletic authorities that the ring game is popular at Villanova and is here to stay. It consistently outdraws the basketball team, ranking second only to the high school championship contests which are held yearly in the gym. The fact that we have a fine boxing team is not the only factor which draws the crowd because we also have a good court team. It must be that boxing is catching along the Main Line.

—V—

Seeing a notice of a streamlined golf club which is supposed to increase the length of the drive 15 yards brings to mind the fact that Villanova has a golf team, although not much has been heard about it due to other sport attractions. With the advent of the mild, sunny weather, however, the divot-diggers are blossoming forth in all their glory, chasing the small pellets with much ambition and delight. As golf is a minor sport, Freshmen are eligible for competition. This means that any member of the class of '40 can try out for the greens squad. Eliminations will be held in the near future, as is the custom, and a squad will be picked from the various competitors. So take advantage of the golfing weather and polish up on the game. If there are some who are dissatisfied with the condition of the college golf course, the Main Line Open Club is just a mile or so up the Lancaster Pike, so there is no cause for lack of facilities.

No one was more surprised than we when the score of the St. Joe's-Temple game was told to us. Temple, although slightly favored, certainly surprised the "experts" when she walloped the Hawks by such an overwhelming score. St. Joe's must have had an off night, or Temple was "on"or both. No one can take away from the small college boys the fact that they are one of the gamest bunch of boys to go out on a hardwood court.

—V—

Speaking of Temple, in regard to their court team, we must admit that the Owl quintet is fast both on their feet and in their thinking capacity. One must have a quick wit to succeed in a competitive sport. It is really a shame that as much can't be said for the sports department of the Temple Owl. These worthy scribes are just awakening to the fact that the recent boxing fiasco at Temple aroused quite a bit of comment not only at Villanova but in boxing circles throughout the city. The following is an excerpt from a column in the sports section of the Temple paper:

"Cries From Catdom"

"And speaking of boxing, the Villanova paper cried foul in regard to the 4-4 tie with the Owl punchers two weeks ago. The Cat gripe claimed 'incompetent officiating'. With the Owls winning three of five matches actually fought, it would seem that the Cats were fortunate in getting a deadlock. Which again points to the woes forthcoming from 75 per cent. of a boxing team."

—V—

There dear readers is the response from Temple. When one stops to consider that the Cat boxers not only had to fight the Owl mittmen, in those two bouts they won, but also the referee and the timekeeper, the results were very gratifying. When two men can beat six that is a fine record. The referee involved was Philly's old friend, Joseph McGuigan, upon whose decision rested the outcome of every bout. Joe's decision on the Lewis-Ettore fracas about a month and a half ago was reversed by the Boxing commission . . . nuff said.

—V—

The Villanova boxing team is willing and ready, at any time, to convince the Owl fisticuffers that they are superior to them in every phase of the ring game. The fights should take place in neutral territory with impartial officials.

Have you any answer to that Temple?

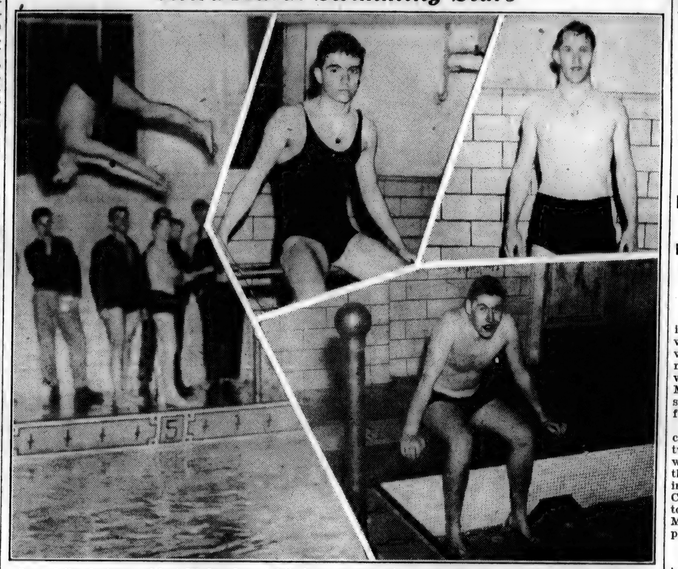
Intra-Mural Swimming Stars



One of the features of last Wednesday night's intra-mural swim meet was the fact that much hitherto undiscovered talent was uncovered among the competing mermen. Ed Hanlon, snapped while competing in the diving event, won in this field. Paul Fitzmaurice upper center, representing Alumni Hall won the breast stroke and 50-yard free style events. Upper right is Paul Kerrigan and lower right is Harry J. Burns, who represented Mendel Residents and garnered first places in the 100-yard free style event and also competed in the 220-yard relay.

BURNS, FREESTYLE STAR, VICTORIOUS AT 100 YARDS

Fitzmaurice and Duffy Pace Second Place Team; Jim McAndrews Wins in Diving

With a splash and a click, coming from the starter's fallible weapon (it seemed always to work when not wanted), the 1937 Intramural Swimming Meet got under way last Wednesday night at the Main Gym Swimming pool, after several false starts by the nervous fifty yard contenders.

Austin Hall, with ten men in competition, won first place by twenty-five points. Alumni Hall was a close second with twenty-three, while Mendel Residents came in third with ten points, and the C. and F. Day-Hops rolled up five to take fourth. Fedigan and the Mendel Day-Hops tied for last place.

Austinites Place Many

The Blue Shirt winners consistently placed in nearly every event they participated in. Paced by Paul Kerrigan and Jim Butler who each entered three races, the Austinites showed themselves far superior in the swimming pool than on the basketball floor. An Austin man made a place in every event except the 200 yard freestyle.

Alumni also showed up with an able aggregation of aquatic aspirants. Father Ludwig and Gene Ertle sent nine men down to do or die for old Alumni and the acquitted themselves very favorably, taking quite a few firsts and seconds. Paul Fitzmaurice and Covert Duffy were the wheel men for the Alumnians with Austin Bradshaw and Joe Hanlon making a good showing in their own specialty.

Burns Leads Skytoppers

The Mendel Residents with a noticeable lack of representatives garnered ten points and finished a distant third. Harry Burns,whose

QUINTET DEFEATED BY COLONIAL FIVE IN SEASON FINALE

McNally Shines as Wildcats Drops 29-17 Contest Ending Successful Campaign

By JOHN L. SIMONS

George Washington University's jinx over the Villanova Wildcats continued unbroken. The 'Cats rang down the curtain on an in-and-out season by bowing to the high-flying Colonials last Saturday in the nation's Capitol, by a 29-17 count. This defeat brought the Wildcats' record for the year to 16 victories against eight setbacks.

Harry McNally, playing his last game for the Main Liners, was the outstanding performer for the losers. His five points led the Villanova boys in scoring, and his all-around play kept the 'Cats in the game almost up to the finish. The work of Sophomore Jim Montgomery was also very commendable; he too, racked up five counters to tie McNally for Villanova scoring honors.

Unknown Steals Show

Berg, heretofore a comparative unknown, stole the show from his more highly publicized teammates. He was the spearhead of the homesters attack from start to finish and was the leading point producer of the evening with eleven markers.

This was the second meeting between the two teams this season and the second victory for the Washington lads. In the previous encounter, which was played here at Villanova a couple of months ago, went against the 'Cats to the tune of 33-23.

As in the first meeting, the Villanova team held on gamely during the initial half of the fray but gave ground in the final few minutes. The Colonials came through then with a rush to put the game in the bag.

Even in defeat the Wildcats

TRACKMEN TRAIN ON CINDER PATH

Sunny Weather Brings Elliot Squad to Stadium For Workouts

Hard work and plenty of it is slated ahead for the Wildcats of the cinder-path. Coach Elliot, realizing that the success of this year's edition of the track team depends on the condition of its members, has scheduled daily practice for his aspirants.

During the past week, many of the boys have been outdoors taking advantage of the Spring - like weather and getting the feel of the cinders. Although the track is in bad shape after the Winter, it did not prevent Elliot's proteges from going through a spirited work-out. "Jumbo" has been on hand to supervise the drills and lend any advice that would correct any glaring faults of his runners.

Pointing for Relays

Although the meet with Swarthmore is still hanging fire, most of the boys are pointing for it and hoping that it will materialize. It would provide a good test for the untried candidates and give Coach Elliot an idea of how the team would fare in the fast competition of the Penn Relays and future meets.

This year's trackmen have some good competition to look forward to, and with the aid of as competent a coach as Elliot, they should bring Villanova back the prestige it held a few years ago in college track circles.

MERMEN MEET RIDER

This Wednesday afternoon in the pool the Villanova finmen will meet the swimming team from Rider College. Rider has one of the strongest teams in the section and the Wildcats will have their work cut out for them when they face this aggregation.

MENDEL DAY-HOPS WIN TWO, TAKING INTRAMURAL TITLE

Victories Over Fedigan and Mendel Residents Gain Play-Offs

Last Thursday night at the Alumni Gym, the Mendel Day-Hops, led by the flashy Joe Beltenmiller who ran amuck in the last period to score ten points, clinched the second half Intramural race by drubbing the Mendel Residents, 25-17. The Day-Hops had previously defeated the Fedigan outfit 28-23 earlier in the week to enable their contest with the Residents to be as climactical as it was.

By defeating the Mendel Residents the "Train and Trolley" boys partly scotched an old injury which was occasioned when the "Penthousers" "hung it on them" to win the first half championship. The Day-Hops will receive an opportunity to wipe out the remaining sting, when they clash with the Residents this week in the championship playoffs.

As a result of their sensational play during the half in which they lost only one contest, the "Commuters" will be heavily favored to top their slipping rivals.

Fedigan Falls

Last Tuesday evening the Day-Hops clashed with the Fediganites and received plenty of opposition before subduing them 28-23. The Fediganites were in a belligerant mood, because prior to that contest they were still contenders for the second-half championship.

The game was a ace-saw contest until the closing minutes of play, when the "Commuters" spurted to gain their victory at the half the score was 12-11 with Day-Hops leading mainly through the fine work of Gene Barr, who swished the cords for eight points.

In the second half this same Barr led a sparkling "Commuter" attack which shook off its shackles in the last five minutes and enabled

FOOTBALLERS START PRE-SEASON DRILLS

Scrimmages, Fundamentals and Motion Pictures to Mark Early Training

Yesterday the Villanova Campus received the first of a long series of beatings rendered by the hands and feet of sixty ambitious footballers.

Twenty-one varsity men and thirty-nine freshmen worked themselves to the utmost in an effort to show "Clipper" Smith that they hadn't gone rusty during the past two and a half months. The mentors, not wishing to tire their proteges too much, simply reviewed fundamentals and gave them a general workout.

Numerous Scrimmages

In an interview last week "Clipper" stated that he had in mind several improvements that will be made this year in the football curriculum. A stiff practice this Spring is foreseen with active scrimmage nearly every day. This will eliminate the Fall scrimmage with the Freshmen, who will scrimmage among themselves and only occasionally with the varsity.

Tackling, dummy work, the bucking machine and other types of fundamentals will be stressed, especial-

Mittmen Club Terror Boxers By 6 - 2 Score

Western Maryland Meet Features Two Knockouts

Shull and Mentzinger Kayo Foes; Duffy and Jarosik Get Decisions Before Capacity Crowd; Rutecky Loses Close Battle

SALA IMPRESSIVE IN WIN

Fighting before a capacity crowd of 3000, the Villanova boxing team registered an impressive 6-2 win over a strong Western Maryland outfit in their last home engagement of the current season. The bouts also marked a grand finis to Tony Sala's fighting career in the Main Line Field House.

Meeting a tartar in Tony Ortenzi for the third time in two years, Sala got the fans to their feet with his fine exhibition of slugging to gain a well-earned win over the rugged Terror. This fight, although not the turning point of the evening, marked a fitting climax to the royal slugfest.

The Eastern Intercollegiate lightheavyweight champion, ever remindful of the Quick episode last week, came out at the opening bell with fire in his eyes. He jabbed the well-built Ortenzi with the finesse of a Tunney, and then crossed with well-timed hooks at opportune times.

Ortenzi's rushing tactics were stopped for no gain by the clever Wildcat. As his adversary came charging in, Sala ducked and came back with a rocking upper cut to Ortenzi's jaw. Only the aggressiveness and ruggedness of the green-clad boy saved him from an inevitable knockout.

The only time that the score was tied was at the outset of the affair. Sam Grimsy won on a forfeit from Joe Tanzola. The Feline could not make the required weight in the 115-pound class. In the 135-pound field, Eddie Kirk gained a default over Joe Allgire of Western Maryland. Allgire was shaken up by the ride north, and was too ill to compete.

Shull Starts Rout

Starting out where he left off last week against Bucknell, Georgie Shull proved that he is a real competitor when he T. K. O'd. Paige Mussleman in the curtain raiser. Mussleman came out at the opening gong and landed three wild would-be haymakers on the chin of the Villanova 125-pounder. However, Georgie held up under the barrage, and from there on proceeded to maul his opponent all over the ring until Referee Bryan Hayes halted the encounter in early moments of the third and last round. Mussleman was a badly battered foe at the end of the pounding.

Mentzinger Also K. O.'s

In another slugfest, Bob Mentzinger left-hooked his way to a kayo over Bill Bender in 1:10 of the second round of the 145-pound fight. Both boys were evenly matched. They threw punches hard and often, but the Western Marylander weakened in the clinching department. Time and time again, the 'Cat fisticuffer would hook his opponent's midriff. The end came on a short left to the solar plexus.

Bill Duffy had a disadvantageous opponent in Ellwood Andrews, but after shaking him in the first round, he took it easy and gained an overwhelming welterweight decision. The Terror coach cried to Referee Hayes to stop the bout in the torrid first round, but his product refused to quit. Andrews stood three or four inches over six feet, and provided many laughs for the fans with his antics.

Walker Another Pastor

The 165-pound division was a preview of the recent Louis-Paator embroglio. Jack Jarosik had a busy time trying to catch Clint Walker of the visitors. Walker, probably forewarned that Jarosik the Day-Hops to sew up the ball game.

Barr Scintillates

Barr rang up fourteen points during the course of the fray to take high scoring honors, while Costello, with seven markers, led the losers. Pantaleo and Murphy also deserve commendation for their fine play for the Fedigans.

The Day-Hops and Fediganites were scheduled to meet once more, but owing to the fact that the league championship has already been decided, Father McKee is going to let the contest go by the boards.

During this week the Mendel Residents and Mendel Day-Hops will meet in a two-out-of-three game series for the Intramural championship.

Beitenmiller Stars

The Day-Hops took the lead soon after the opening whistle, when Joe Beitenmiller, who was a thorn in the side of the "Resies" all through the encounter, made a foul. Gene Barr tossed two more fouls through the net, and the "Commuters" led, 3-0. This lead was shortlived, however, as Jack Donahue sank a foul for the "Penthousers," and Joe Bochetti and "Hunk" Sandor followed with doubledeckers.

Displaying a tenacious brand of ball, the "Resies" gained a five point lead on two fine shots by Joe Bochetto, who once again scintillated for the "Penthousers." However, this lead was whittled to one point, as the "Commuters," taking advantage of the "Residents" hard play, made four more fouls, which, coupled with Beitenmiller's basket, made the score 10-9 at halftime.

With the resuming of play, the Mendel Day-Hops flashed an attack that could not be denied, and with Joe Beitenmiller leading the way, they smothered the Residents. Beitenmiller garnered ten points in the second period, and this alone would have been enough to defeat the demoralized Skytoppers.

The diminutive Beitenmiller was the outstanding star of the embroglio, as he tossed thirteen points in all through the hoop. For the Residents the brilliant Joe Bochetto once again proved his mettle by laying up nine markers and holding the hard fighting Dan O'Connor to one basket. The latter performance by itself is meritorius and coupled with the former, it seems nothing short of sensational.

RECEIVE INVITATION

"Clipper" Smith and Andy Stopper, coach and halfback of the Villanova grid squad, have received invitations to attend a testimonial dinner at Williamsport High, Andy's Alma Mater. Larry Kelley, a former teammate of Stopper's, will also be present.

JACOBSMEN BEGIN OUTDOOR PRACTICE

Varsity Nine Takes to Diamond as Spring Weather Continues

Better than was expected, the Wildcat varsity baseball squad is rounding into shape. With the warm weather that is expected in a short time, the clubbers will be all set for their extensive schedule. Every day now, the candidates work out in back of the campus stadium.

At the present time, the most important problem which faces Coach Jacobs is that of the infield. There are eight infielders who are all able to get around in no slouchy fashion. The logical thing to do is to shift these adroit players into the outfield according to the horsehide mentor. Sheffic has already been placed in the outer garden and is taking hold of things in great style. He will develop into a dependable ball hawk without much trouble and his hitting is good.

Garbark Catches

The receiving end of the team will be handled by Garbark without a doubt. This broad shouldered catcher is unquestionably the number one man for that post. Garbark will receive help from Vigilante and McNally after the basketball season is over. Garbark has been hitting the white pellet hard and long and is sure to be one of the powerhouses of the club.

There is the question of whether Stoviak will take care of the reception corner or grace the blades of grass in the outfield. If Bond shows that he can hit, he will take care of the initial sack, while Stoviak will go to the outer garden. However, from Bob Bond's last year showing as a freshman and with additional experience, he should batter the ball into the right section of the field with much gusto. He fields first base with finesse and grace.

McLaughlin, Desmond, and Escott compose the mainstay of the pitching staff. Coach Jacobs is still looking for another starting hurler. He should have no trouble finding a starter in Castles, Schelle, or Kane. So far these three have battled on even terms and more time is needed to see who develops into the type of curver "Doc" Jacobs desires.

Schelle looks better this year at this time than he did last year. The baseball mentor has changed his style of delivery. Formerly, Schelle was twirling his curve ball from an overarm delivery and his fast one from a sidearm motion. Now he is strictly pitching overhand and as a result is getting more speed and smart hitters cannot detect what is coming up from Schelle's windup.

SALA TO DEFEND CROWN

Fights in Intercollegiates at Syracuse this Week-end

While the event is not being held on the Villanova campus, boxing will hold the spotlight this week-end when Tony Sala and Jack Jarosik travel to Syracuse to participate in the Intercollegiate boxing championship to be held there.

Sala, as all Wildcat ring followers know, is defending his 175-pound title. Should Tony be successful, it will be the third successive year he has held the light heavy crown. In his Sophomore year, he tookit from Bernie Kaplan, of Western Maryland, and since then has not relinquished it. Tony will be one of the first to keep the title three successive years if he returns with the diadem.

Jarosik will be facing his first foe in championship eliminations when he travels to the bouts. Last year he showed sufficient class to enable him to participate, but Freshmen are ineligible.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

Spring weather is here, and "Doc" Jacobs' ball players are out cavorting on the greensward in their daily practice. So much early sunny weather bodes evil for the later part of Spring, and it is our rather pessimistic prediction that when the baseball season comes around, the weather, with its usual perversity, will probably be rainy and cold. It never fails to happen.

At risk of incurring the ire of the editorial board, we will digress from sports long enough to tell of the fire that drew a goodly portion of the student body of Villanova from its bed at about one-thirty Thursday morning. When the boys and the fire department arrived, the barn was blazing merrily, and the B. M. fire department proceeded to strew the street with hose. One of the lads was so anxious to get to the blaze the when he found he couldn't run fast enough to suit himself, he took off his slippers and dashed the rest of the way in his bare feet.

Brown Prep Beaten

Brown Prep, one of the two teams to defeat the Freshmen quintet was recently beaten for the first time in 37 starts by St. Benedict's Prep of Newark (our Alma Mater, incidentally). It seems to us that of the Freshmen basketball schedule could contain more teams of such calibre as Benedict's, Brown, Peddie, and others, a better idea of the quality of the yearlings showed that they had something. They did well in holding in check Ben Goldfaden and Captain Hal Kiesel, who have been big gunners for George Washington all season.

But in concentrating on these stars, who rate with the best in collegiate ranks, the boys allowed the other Washingtonians to slip through for the all important field goals.

The game was the final of a rather queer season for the Wildcats. The boys were in-and-outers all year. During the course of the campaign the Main Liners met up with the best teams in the east and gained victories over the best of them.

Highlighting the season were the conquests of Duquesne, C. C. N. Y., and St. John's of Brooklyn. The most notable was the defeat of the Lavender of C. C. N. Y. When Nat Holman's charges came to town to engage the 'Cats at the Arena, they were at the crest of a victory wave. But they fell before the deadly sniping of the Wildcats.

FROSH NINE AWAITS CALL FOR PRACTICE

Freshmen Ready to Start Drills; Galazin Probable Frosh Mentor

With the arrival of Spring weather on the campus, freshman baseball candidates are anxiously awaiting the call for the season's initial practice. However, they will probably not see action until after the Easter vacations. In the meantime, "Doc" Jacobs, varsity baseball coach, will have appointed a mentor for the Frosh.

"Bunny" Galazin, senior in the education school, is the leading candidate for the position. Although "Bunny" did not play baseball at Villanova, because of its confliction with Spring practice, he has has much experience, having played in prep school and on teams in his local district.

Several promising candidates are among the Freshmen waiting to report. Andy Sisco, all-state pitcher from New Jersey last year, is one of the strong hopes for the mound. Al Murray, another Jersey flash, will see plenty of action from the pitcher's box. Bob Pash, basketball player, is a utility infielder. Mickey Vernon will probably grab down the first base position.

"Mizz" Howlett, former North Catholic star, is among the outstanding hitters and candidates for the outfield. "Duke" Duzminski, another basketball player, will also try out for the outfield. There are many other experienced freshmen, and "Bunny" should present a formidable team.

Besides scrimmages with the Varsity nine, and games with local pick-up teams, several games with other college freshman teams have been arranged, including games with Penn State Frosh, Ursinus, and others. A game with the University of Pennsylvania Frosh is pending.

performance in the 200 yard freestyle was the best piece of individual work all night, was the only first place for the Resies. George Bourus, the California Comet, grabbed himself third in the dive. The other Mendel point was earned by the relay quintet which placed third.

So many entries appeared in the 50 and 100 yard sprints that the officials decided to run them in heats and decide the winners by the best times. "Fitz" Fitzmaurice, swimming in the third heat of the fifty, made the best time (28.8) and won first place. Paul Kerrigan and Covert Duffy made the second and third positions. In the 199 yard free style Jim Butler went to town with a time of 1:5.7 closely followed by George Bourus of Mendel and Kerrigan of Austin in third place.

Kerrigan Wins Backstroke

Kerrigan took first place in the 150 yard backstroke with a time of 2:46.8 while Quinn of Austin and Silewicz of Alumni wallowed in his wake.

The 150 yard breaststroke was taken by Fitzmaurice (time 3:40.1) with Besch of Austin coming in second. Mendel's entry, Clem Lavin, was incapacitated during the course of the event and had to be withdrawn.

In the 200 yard swim, Harry Burns, of the Mendel Residents, splashed through the water to place first in the splendid time of 3:05.4. Paul Fitzmaurice and "Whitey" Bradshaw of the Alumnians finished second and third respectively. Burns' performance, which was probably the highlight of the evening's aquafest, was executed very nicely, and he came ten seconds ahead of Fitzmaurice, his nearest rival.

Austin Hall's foursome composed of Tanzola, Chappie, Butler and Holland, reached the end of the pool first in the 100 yard relay and were promptly accorded first place. Time: 58 seconds.

"Peanuts" McAndrews, the C & F. Day-Hops' bid for fame, won the diving event by twenty-three points. Alumni's Hanlon received second place with Lavin of Mendel coming in third.

Individual honors for the night went to Harry J. Burns, who capably represented the Yellow and Black of Mendel Hall.

Nat. League Team Slated to Engage 'Cats on April 12

Game With Phillies to Take Place on Norristown Diamond

Rev. Charles J. Melchior, O. S. A., moderator of athletics at Villanova, announced today that the Philadelphia Phillies have been scheduled to meet the Wildcat baseball team at Roosevelt Field in Norristown on April 12. This marks the belated resumption of big-league hostilities for the Blue and White tossers, the 1 ast such opposition having been furnished by Connie Mack's Athletcs back in 1924.

When work on the new diamond is completed, all contests of this kind will be played on the campus, Father Melchior made known in his statement. The field has been leveled, but it has to undergo a settling process, and is yet to be sodded. It will be ready for use in 1938, and will be one of the finest college plants in the East, in keeping with the calibre of the teams turned out annually by Coach Jacobs.

Interest in the coming fray is high as the hot stove league pictures players like Chuck Klein, Dolf Camnilli, Johnny Moore and Jimmy Wilson who will be against the Wildcat mound corps; and the sight of college batters facing major leageu pitching is one that is unusual, to say the least. The big question seems to be just how will the old college team make out against the well known cash egort—a question that can only be settled, as far as Villanova is concerned, on April 12.

ly pass work. Several good ball slingers are looked for among the Frosh, and these will most likely be incorporated into a Freshman backfield which will work as a unit and not split up into its individual backs.

To Use Three Fields

Three fields will see the scampering cleats as the gridders tear into Austin field. "Clipper" intends to set a precedent by inaugurating Saturday scrimmage, blackboard instruction with his lectures and slow motion pictures.

Scrimmages have been arranged with Columbia, Lafayette and two with Navy for the middle of April. Several teams are expected to augment this list, but no tentative schedule has been drawn up yet.

was a killer, stood away as far as possible from his foe. However, the Villanova knockout artist overtook the dancing Walker on several occasions to land many effective blows that gave him the match easily on points.

The ultimate losers gained their second victory of the meet in the heavyweight class. Joe Oclcair took Villanova's Mike Rutecky over the hurdles in a dull, listless match. The rangling victor jabbed the shorter Rutecky with his longer reach. Mike got in and under several times to land telling blows, but the officials ruled against him.

115-Pound Class—Sam Grimsy, Western Maryland., won on forfeit.

125-Pound Class—George Shull, Villanova defeated Paige Musselman, Western Maryland. (Technical knock out). 1.15, third round.

135-Pound Class—Eddie Kirk, Villanova, won on forfeit.

145-Pound Class — Bob Mentzinger, Villanova, knocked out William Bender, Western Maryland. 1.10, second round.

165-Pound Class—Jack Jarosick, Villanova, defeated Clinton Walker, Western Maryland (decision).

175-Pound Class—Tony Sala, Villanova, defeated Tony Ortenzi, Western Maryland (decision).

NATATORS TO FACE WESTCHESTER FOE

Mermen Hope to Win Fourth Straight Victory at Teachers' Expense

This afternoon the Mermen will engage the embryo teachers from West Chester in an attempt to increase their winning streak of successive victories to four.

The boys won the first meet of the season against St. Joseph's; then St. Francis of Brooklyn swimming team visited the campus and handed the Villanova swimmers their one and only defeat of the current season. Rebounding from this setback the Wildcats overwhelmed three opponents in a row, Lafayette, Swarthmore and Temple. Incidentally, the victory registered over Temple University by the mermen has been the only one that Villanova has been able to hang up over the Owls this year.

Today's meet will be the only encounter of the two teams this year and the Teachers will be anxious to avenge the two disastrous meetings of last season. However, it doesn't seem as though they stand much of a chance because Villanova has back again this year virtually the same men who participated in last year's victorious season.

Although the Freshmen have not been allowed to swim in some of the meets because of the Freshmen elegibility rule enforced by certain schools, they have not been idle. E. Leahy, brother of the famous Bill, has been encouraging his competitive spirit by swimming for Big Brothers, the leading swimming club in this section.

Discusses the Recent Western Maryland Boxing Match

With an outstanding victory over a game, hard-fighting Western Maryland boxing team, the Villanova ring squad went one step further on its quest for an undefeated season, and at the same time gained ample revenge for the defeat administered to them by the Green Terrors for their only loss last year. Despite the fact that the Marylanders have been beaten by Army and Penn State, two of the East's best fistic combinations, they are a hard hitting group of fighters, and a decision over them is no mean accomplishment. Although I expected to win, the score exceeded my expectations.

Sala's Bout Highlight

The highlight of the evening's activities was the brilliant exhibition put on by Captan Sala in defeating Tony Ortenzi, Western Maryland's very durable light heavyweight. Ortenzi, as any follower of collegiate boxing can tell, is right up in there when it comes to talking of undefeated ringmen. Sala, due to a long layoff from competition, did not look himself against Bucknell's 170pounder the week preceding, but came back to championship form noon at the Penn A. C. Shull, Kirk, Mentzinger, Duffy, and Rutecky will represent Villanova. Immediately after this, Sala, Jarosik, and myself will entrain for Syracuse where Sala will attempt to retain his Intercollegiate light-heavyweight title. It might be too much to expect Jarosik to bring back the 165-pound crown, but don't sell him short, as he may spring a surprise. In regards to his chances, I would say they depend almost entirely upon his mental attitude.

L. K. D. VANQUISHED

Saturday afternoon in the Alumni Hall Gymnasium the Lambda Kappa Delta, the science fraternity, faced a strong quintet representing the North Jersey Club. The North Jersey lads were just too much for the embryo medicos and the Science men went down to defeat to the tune of 46 to 23.

EDWARD J. DONOVAN ELECTED PRESIDENT

Massachusetts Group Also Chooses Burke, Sweeney and McKenna

Rev. Bernard M. Albers, O. S. A., vice president of Villanova College, recently issued a charter to the Massachusetts Club; a new club that owes its existence to the tireless efforts of Robert Daniello and other student representatives of the state of Massachusetts.

There are at present a total of thirty-four members enrolled in its organization. Particularly Edward Donovan, who has shown intense interest in the outcome of the club.

Several meetings have been held at which such business as the election of officers and the selection of a moderator was completed with the speed and alacrity essential to an efficient and enthusiastic organization. Rev. Stephen Lanen, O. S. A., was appointed as moderator of the club. The other officers, according the official list, are as follows: president, Edward Donovan; vice president, John Burke; secretary, Frank Sweeney; treasurer, John McKenna.

Social Program Planned

Primary among the purposes of this club is the promotion of an interesting social program. Already plans and preparations are in motion for an informal dance to be held about the middle of April. It is expected that the informal quality of this affair will foster a closer and stronger friendship among the participants. Equally as important is the alumni character assumed by the club. It is not the intention of the members that the enrollment should be strictly limited to undergraduates but should include all alumni of the club.

and that we as college men who have been given the advantage of higher education, should strive to know more about our religion, God, and the nature of the church and not bury our talents.

The speaker for this evening will be Rev. John A. Sparrow, O.S.A., whose topic has not been announced.

three times a week in the Day Students Room in Mendel Hall. He stated that he is very interested by their enthusiasm and tireless efforts. He also added that the boys are progressing rapidly and he is confident that they will give an excellent performance.

"Journey's End" was written by R. C. Sheriff and it has been very successful and popular ever since it first appeared in 1927. The story concerns military life in the trenches during the last war. All the actors are soldiers, and the play deals with their reactions to the scheduled big drive in which they all know they are going to their doom. The reason for selecting such a play is because of its appropriateness at this time when the talk of war is everywhere. This play depicts war from the viewpoint of the combatants with all its horrors which are not fully appreciated.

Press Changes Situation

Father Lozano alleged that the American press, in its forceful campaigning against Fascism and Nazism, is prone to change the situation in Spain from a molested group fighting for rights of life, to Fascism fighting against a loyal government. He added that the people of Spain do not want Fascism and would not be willing to submit to this form of government.

In concluding his address, Father Lozano declared that the Nationalist, or rebels, as they are commonly called, are attempting to dispose of Communism, which is controlling the actual government of Valencia. Nationalists of Spain want to save its civilization, its traditions, its glorious history, against the most dangerous menace of our actual civilization—Communism.

Chairman Collins, in his report on the activities of the Dinner-Dance Committee, included the fact that special favors are to be presented to the ladies present at that dance.

As yet no orchestra has been chosen for this affair.

ROLE OF LIEUT. HIBBERT FILLED BY JAMES LYONS

Poster Contest Instituted by Those in Charge of That Committee

Edward J. Donovan, senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, has been appointed stage manager for the Belle Masque production, "Journey's End."

Lyons Also Selected

This notification was made yesterday by Anthony J. Frayne, director of the play, who also announced that James H. Lyons, also of the Business School, has been selected to fill the important role of Lieutenant Hibbert.

The other member of the cast to be chosen during the past week is Joseph M. McNamara, Freshman Arts student, who will portray Lieutenant Trotter. Other roles will be filled within the next week.

Donavan will be assisted by three engineers in the technical department of the production. Hugh Ferguson, Edward Conneen, and Frank Carroll, have been named to aid in this undertaking. Because of the sound and lighting effects produced on the stage it is considered one of the most important phases of the presentation of the play. Perfect coordination in this department adds tremendously to the success of the play.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY HEARS ADDRESS BY PHILIP J. REILEY

Assistant District Attorney of West Chester County Speaks at Breakfast

'MEMBERS ARE LEADERS'

"Keep in mind that the leaders of most communities are members of the Holy Name Society," said Mr. Philip J. Reiley, in his address to the members of the Holy Name Society at their regular monthly Communion breakfast, Sunday.

Asst. District Attorney

Mr. Reiley is a graduate of the Pennsylvania Military College, and for the past eight years has been the Assistant District Attorney of West Chester County. At the present time he is the prosecuting attorney in the Moyer case.

Opening his talk Mr. Reiley praised both Vince McNally and "Clipper" Smith for the work that they are doing. He then proceeded to tell the members that it has been his experience to find that highest officers in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania are all good Holy Name members and urged them to be good and consistent members as they will be the future leaders.

History of Jury System

Mr. Reiley then gave a brief history of the jury system in use in this State, explaining the various methods of trial used in past years. His explanation of the fact that there are twelve members on the present-day jury was that Our Lord had twelve disciples. He described the present system very comprehensively.

There was no appreciable improvement in the attendance and president Pio Goggi asked the faithful members to make a special effort to get those lax members out for the next breakfast.

COMMITTEE MEETS

There will be a meeting of the Junior Class Dinner Dance Committee tomorrow, Wednesday, March 17, in Room 210, Mendel Hall at 1 o'clock.

CLASS TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the Senior Class on Wednesday, March 17, in Room 214, Mendel Hall, at 1 o'clock. All are urged to attend.

STUDENTS VIE FOR ORATORICAL HONORS

Annual Contest for Gold Medal Starts in April; All Invited to Compete

Villanova students will vie for individual honors in elocution upon the occasion of the annual Oratorical Contest, the finals of which will be held in the college gymnasium on April 14.

Constitution Is Topic

The topic of the oratorical deliveries will concern any phase of the Constitution of the United States. This subject is highly appropriate as the Sesqui-Centennial celebration of the Constitution will be held in Philadelphia this year.

The preliminary eliminations will begin in the second week of April, culminating with the finals on April 14. It is anticipated by Anthony J. Frayne, who is in charge of the contest, that the services of the Glee Club will be available for the occasion. It has also been revealed that the newly acquired acoustical arrangements in the gymnasium will be used for the contest finals.

Contest Open To All

Any student desirous of entering the competition, is eligible for the Oratorical Contest. Entries may be submitted to Charles Bruno, Senior Arts student, or to the bookstore. Applications for entrance are to be made on index cards with the name of the student, his class,

BETA GAMMA GROUP HAS THREE DEBATES

Opposes Haverford, Rutgers, St. John's This Week; Trip Is Successful

Beta Gamma, the Villanova College debating society, will oppose Haverford College, Rutgers University and St. John's College during the coming week on the popular "hour and wage" question.

Uphold Affirmative

In the opening engagement against Haverford, on March 17, the locals will uphold the affirmative side of the topic and will be represented by Thomas Delate and Joseph Alessandroni. Taking the negative aspect of the same question, Joseph Carroll and Anthony Differ will debate for Villanova against Rutgers University on March 19.

Frederick Waters and Joseph Alessandroni will uphold the affirmative side against St. John's College, on March 19, in the evening. The last encounter finds the debaters in East Orange, opposing Upsala College, and Joseph Carroll and Anthony Differ will uphold the affirmative side for the forensic group.

Defeat Misericordia

Beta Gamma performed admirably in the debates in the past weeks. Against College Misericordia, on March 6, Frederick Waters, Joseph Carroll, and Anthony Differ received the decision for Villanova. Geneva College debated here on March 10, and Thomas De-

SENIOR PROMENADE FEATURES MUSIC OF "KING OF TROMBONE"

Accounting System Devised By Murray For Campus Groups

All College Societies to Use Plan For Financial Reports

A standard system of accounting has been devised by Philip R. Murray, Jr., senior in the School of Commerce and Finance, to be adopted by the various campus organizations in submitting annual financial reports to the administration, it was announced today by Mario J. Menocal, Student Council chairman.

Previous to this time no definite form has been used by the organization, and it is highly probably that this system will prevent a great deal of error and many complications in this regard. The system is to be presented to the Student Council today at the meeting of that body in room 210, Mendel Hall, at 1 o'clock.

In Effect Next Year

This newly-devised system is to go into effect formally next year. However, copies of the form will be distributed to the executives of the various clubs, and societies on the campus, in the near future, in order that all may be familiar with their use.

Murray is to be highly complimented on his interest in this regard. Although not a member of the Student Council, he has proven himself of great aid to that body.

"Music in the Morgan Manner! Clever interpretations of "swing music," and the ever-popular and equally efficient smooth syncopations in waltz-time, will be presented at Villanova College by the Class of '37, upon the advent of Russ Morgan and his Orchestra to the Villanova campus for the Belle Air Ball on the Spring evening of April 9.

Highlighted throughout the dance-world from coast-to-coast by his melodious rhythms, his amazing trombone renditions, and his myriads of unique novelty arrangements, Russ Morgan needs no introduction to lovers of dance and melody.

The spotlight of public acclaim has been directed upon the activities of this popular dance orchestra for quite a number of years. Recently his genius has been realized, and with almost phenomenal rapidity, Russ Morgan has risen to the crest of danceland stardom.

Featured in the Crystal Ballroom of the prominent and exclusive Hotel Biltmore in New York City, Morgan startled "tin-pan-alley" with his ability, and it was not long before all Broadway became cognizant of his popularity. Motion picture enthusiasts have been favored time and time again with the music

VILLANOVA ALUMNI ACTIVE IN FORMING DISTRICT BRANCHES

Groups From Lawrence, New Haven, Springfield Establish Graduate Organizations

FOUR OTHERS IN MAKING

Various branches of the Villanova Alumni Association have been organized during the past few weeks, according to an announcement by Paetrus F. Banmiller, Alumni secretary.

The Villanova Alumni Club of New Haven, Conn., was organized on March 4, also. Though no officers have been chosen as yet, a committee on permanent organization has been selected. This committee includes John J. Hughes, '34, who was instrumental in organizing the group; Frank Hackett, Thomas Coyne, and John Higgins. The officers will be elected at the next meeting, which will be held sometime before Easter, the exact date pending.

Springfield Group Meets

The other club to be organized in the Villanova Alumni Club of Springfield, Mass., which came into existance consists of Jerome F. Hurley, '27, chairman; Thomas Malcolm, '35; Joseph Malcolm, '36; Charles McClernan, '23; A. J. Lewis, '34, and Paul F. Manning, '28.

At the present time there are ten active regional units which are functioning. Definite arrangements are under way to organize similar clubs in Atlantic City, Harrisburg, Washington and Waterbury.

C. EMERSON BROWN TO LECTURE HERE

Director of Philadelphia Zoological Gardens Will Address Students Thursday

Rev. Joseph M. Dougherty, O. S. A., dean of the School of Science, announced recently that C. Emerson Brown, director of the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens, will give an illustrated lecture in the auditorium of the Commerce and Finance Building this Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock.

Topic "Animal Friends"

For his topic, Mr. Brown has chosen to speak on "Our Animal Friends." Moving pictures and slides will greatly enhance this interesting subject. Of particular interest will be the motion picture shots of a conflict between the Indian mongoose and the man-killing cobra.

No other lecturer could be more capable of understanding his subject than Mr. Brown. He has been director of the Philadelphia Zoo for the past eighteen years. Aside from the excellent opportunity to study animals offered by his position, the lecturer has made many trips in order to study animal life in its natural environment.

Has Fine Reputation

Very few zoo directors have enjoyed the excellent reputation which has been Mr. Brown's. His zoo is one of the most modern and most natural in the world, and enjoys the unusual reputation of having very few deaths from illness among the animals.

FOREIGN LOANS

IN refusing the French Government permission to float a 454 million dollar defense loan in this country, even though an American bank was to assume the responsibility of its agent and make all interest payments, Secretary Morgenthau has definitely forestalled an action which might have implicated us in a particularly undesirable kind of "foreign entanglement." Whether the Secretary's decision was based upon the provisions of the Johnson act, which forbids the borrowing of money in the United States by debtor nations, or not, it is one which from the present signs in Europe will definitely limit the possibility of another European war being financed by American funds.

Whether the United States finally decides to cancel the war debts or to permit them to continue uncolletable upon its books, the essential thing to be borne in mind is that public officials, mindful of them, should make every effort to protect the American people from being victimized in the future as they have been in the past.

America entered the last war ostensibly to make the world safe for democracy, but all it managed to accomplish was the placing of Europe in a condition whereby the places of one group of tyrants could be usurped by those of another. Dictators and communists have taken over where kings and emperors have left off; and seem determined to continue the vicious cycle of a few years for preparing and then war. Since this country proved such a gullible victim in the past they see no reason why it should not be further imposed upon.

It would certainly be to the economic advantage of the world if a stabilized monetary system and a favorable balance of trade were enjoyed by all the countries in it, and United States should feel no hesitancy in seeking to promote such a condition even though it did involve foreign loans; but where a country seeks to borrow money only in order to build a bigger and more deadly war machine that must ultimately be put to the destruction of all that society has worked for during the past 18 years, it is little short of insanity to further such a cause.

WAR

WRITING eight hundred years ago, St. Bernard of Clairvaux cried: "But now I appeal to your holy watchfulness to dissemble no more, but to labor for the things which make for peace according to the wisdom given you by God."

Since these lines were written, wars have not only been more frequent, but they have systematically become more bloody.

Man, according to philosophy, is defined as a rational animal. When one considers man's history with regard to man's wars, one is almost led to believe that man is an irrational animal, for certainly the dreadful wars which have for so long drenched Europe with a flood of human blood would seem to have been irrational.

Consider the facts:

The French Parliament has just voted, for "national defense," 19,000,000,000 francs.

Poland has just voted one billion zlotys for defensive purposes.

Berlin has just expended, during the past year, a cool 12,600,000,000 marks for military purposes.

Moscow, the land of "peace," has just announced a budget for the year which includes an expenditure of $12,000,000,000 to make "Russia safe from capitalist attack."

England plans to spend $7,500,000,000 over a period of five years.

And now, to cap the climax, Italy has entered the picture, appropriating the largest sum ever expended by that country for military defense.

Writing in a recent book, a certain German Priest cried out: "It is quite certain that in hoping to banish war by making preparations for war, they (the Nations of the World) deceive themselves sadly."

Let us not forget that the last war cost a mere $337,846,189,657 in materials and money. It cost the lives of 10,000,000 men, not even mentioning the terrific moral havoc and mental dislocation.

Is it any wonder that the present Pope has termed modern warfare "insanity"?

As things now stand, Europe is headed straight for war. It might be two years; it might be five years. But as things now are, War is inevitable in Europe.

It is up to students, and to youth to ponder this problem, for youth pays the price of every war.

JAPAN'S OFFERING

RECENTLY appointed Foreign Minister Naotake Sato, of Japan, in his recent conciliatory address to the Japanese House of Peers frankly admitted the failure of the militarist's position in China. By doing this he indicated the purposes of his government more precisely than is customary in such official pronouncements of good intentions. Sato's speech made it apparent that the Military High Command is mostly in favor of adopting a less forceful attitude toward the nations on the Asiatic continent.

Sato's frank admission of the mistakes of the past and his promise to adopt new policies toward China and the other Powers interested in Chinese affairs cannot be taken too easily. His remarks are like those made by Japanese ministers for more than a generation. They are not, however, the outgrowth of the Japanese liberal ideas but rather the effect of the increasing unity in China and the rapid rise of the fighting power of other nations in the Western Pacific. It does not seem to be Japan's good will toward China that has forced her recent decision but rather the increasing hazard which must be overcome if she is to once more dominate the land of the Rising Sun.

College Chatter

By Frank Bonetti

WITH GREAT interest, an even greater feeling of futility, and just a very slight snicker, we read an observation made by the "Bucknellian." According to reports: "At the University of Florida the dean receives only $341.67 per month, while the state checker of whiskey and beer sales gets $400. The president of the university is paid $654." If those figures are correct, the dean (at Florida) ought to go on a sit-down strike.

They finished the drinks and went out, telling the bartender that their friend would pay. The bartender tried to collect from the cadaver, and when he got no answer, he struck it with a bung starter so that it rolled to the floor. At this point the students re-entered and rushed to the body on the floor. One of them placed his ear to its heart while the other felt the pulse. In a moment they raised their heads. "Good heavens, mm," they said, "you've killed him."

Clashes in the Collegiate Press Dep't.

For many a day now we have been watching the growing feud between Georgian Court and Georgetown on the subject of dancing, —er, Terpsichorean ability. The former quite naturally avers that girls are better than boys. A G't'n scribe very seriously undertook to refute the Court's contention. That started everything. To date, with Alaska and Minnesota still unreported, 537 feminine writers have taken blasts at the unlucky "G-man." To us, this seems to be a particularly childish argument. After all, if the fair denizens of Lakewood don't care to dance with nice young men, there's no law compelling them to do so. We could, if requested, name several schools which might meet with the Jerseyites' approval. HOW about Bryn Mawr?

As We See It . . . "Mercy Deaths"

By HARRY PARKIN

THE most merciful judgment that we can pass upon "mercy deaths" is that they are devilishly unmerciful. Essentially, because its exponents have such a cocksure certainty about everything concerned with the theory except the fallacy of their reasoning, that they go about recommending cruelty under the delusion that they are being merciful. Precisely how any death that is a compound of murder and suicide can be called merciful escapes us; although there is no difficulty in imagining that some similar opinions must have been the motives that prompted the early savages to put to death all the members of the tribe as they reached an age that incapacitated them for further work in the tribe. It is not surprising to find that the most fervid adherents of these theories are mostly people of little scientific or moral knowledge. That they should set themselves up as arbiters in a matter of scientific and moral complications is one of the many peculiar customs that prevails in modern society—where those who are least informed labour and speak with the greatest convictions. The little learning which is commonly accounted a dangerous thing, proves in this instance a decidedly fatal one, especially for those who are the victims of such acts of mercy.

Aside from the abhorrence with which we view this movement, we object, and heartily, to the designation of a thing that is in the nature of a mass execution by the name of mercy deaths. The name of course is merely an effort to tack respectability upon a procedure that has respect for neither persons nor society. It is, however, of a piece with the modern tendency to dress villainy in the habiliments of virtue and virtue in those of folly and then embrace them on their face value. This sophistry of terminology, which is as much a part of current culture as the desire to solve the ills of society without first determining what they are, is excellently revealed in its application to that widely endorsed abuse called birth-control — that recommends license more strenuously than it does control. Although there are some who actually believe that a system of control can have its inception in almost anything but self-control.

This theory like many we are constantly encountering has a plausibility about it that engenders distrust. It is so efficacious in its simplicity that people upon hearing of it are surprised that such a thing had not been suggested before. It is a most satisfying solution for what has heretofore been a decidedly unsatisfactory problem. For what other system of philosophy or morality can reconcile the irreconcilable; can permit people to avoid the obligation of tending their invalid relations in such a conscience-consoling manner.

What at first appearance makes the doctrine seem the most effective nostrum that has yet been discovered in medicine — the perfect cure for all the incurable diseases in existence—is one of the strongest arguments against it. Not that we should expect to witness an immediate decline in medical research because a method has been found for permanently relieving all suffering, but there does seem some reason for assuming that wanting the present incentive, students of research will be more inclined to devote their energies elsewhere.

There is an ethical side to this question which cannot be expected to carry any too much weight with those who have already decided in favor of it. But like all universal truths that depend for their existence upon their inherent merit rather than the popular acceptance or rejection of them, it cannot be ignored if we are to exhibit any semblance of justification for the holding of our opinions. Yet the advocates of the doctrine of "mercy deaths" ignore it in spite of its obviousness, when they fail to show a proper appreciation of man's purpose upon earth. If the essential reason for living is to "eat, drink, and be merry," then there is no purpose in putting off death when such a course is no longer possible, but if we live to accomplish the will of the Creator and thereby attain to eternal salvation, then we are obliged to live until that Will be done. Since a cursory examination of the tenets of Christianity will confirm one's intuitive promptings that man lives for God, one is right in concluding that among Christian people the most unmerciful thing that could be advocated is "mercy deaths."

College Dramatic Society Seeks Patrons for Play 'Journey's End'

A new policy regarding programs will be inaugurated by the Belle Masque Society in their production of "Journey's End," according to an announcement made by Anthony J. Frayne, moderator.

To Solicit Patrons

Contrary to other policies of intensive commercial advertising in the various programs, Belle Masque will solicit patrons only. This will eliminate the less presentable forms of advertising and will be of advantage to the production's success.

The nominal fee to be charged to those patrons subscribing is $5.00 which entitles them to two tickets in the reserved section of the auditorium, which consists of the first five rows. Of this $5.00, the student securing the patron will receive a commission of $1.00 to compensate for his work in obtaining the patron.

Chairmen Selected

Vincent La Brasca and Charles O'Connor, both of the Commerce and Finance Department, have been appointed chairmen of the ticket and program committees, respectively.

Each class and each campus club has signified its intention of supporting the production. They intend to do this by raffling two tickets to the play. Inasmuch as there is a commission to the student obtaining a patron, the student body should commence seeking prospective patrons.

SALA RECEIVES REWARD

Because of his excellent showing and fine spirt in winning the intercollegiate light-heavy championship Tony Sala will receive an excellent reward from Coldanato, the Villanova College Tailor. The tailor has promised to clean and press the Champ's entire wardrobe.

TYPY DP — ANSTL

Enter the Contest Today and Win $100

Because we want this New Men's Shop to be Your Shop, with YOUR type of clothes, we feel that you should name it.

The Contest continues until Saturday, March 20th. Entry blanks which contain full details of the contest may be obtained in Gimbels New Young Men's Shop on the Second Floor.

As a fine men's store with many generations of clothing experience, it has been our observation that the young man, in so far as his clothing is concerned, has been "the forgotten man." His individual and personal touches of style have been neglected. Sometimes his actual size specifications have been overlooked. He was "fitted" into a man's model or big boy's size instead of having clothes cut to his requirements incorporating his own ideas. Gimbels New Young Men's Shop is surrounded by real men's environment, where you'll find fabrics and styles you fellows desire. We contacted prominent undergraduates from the well-known local universities for their suggestions. Here you'll see what the fraternity man will wear around the campus, at sporting events and on dates. Come in, get acquainted with the new shop. We expect this to be the headquarters for the college and high school man and every young man who wants his clothing to reflect the latest ideas dictated by the campus and good taste.

Here's a hint of the kind of clothes Gimbels New Young Men's Shop offers you . . .

COLLEGIANA IS playing no little part of the radio game at the present time. Sponsors, it seems, are keen on spending thousands of dollars to hook up a program consisting of college talent on a coast-to-coast network for the entertainment of the public. Many big-time directors feature college organizations as an added attraction on their already star-studded shows.

The most popular of these programs is doubtlessly "Jack Oakie's College" heard on Tuesday nights. Jack is doing a fine job and his radio career promises to supercede his cinema efforts. Then we have "The Varsity Show" which has its setting on a different campus each week. John Held, Jr., arranges a program from the talent available in the schools and he acts as master of ceremonies. To date broadcasts have originated from the Universities of Michigan, Chicago, Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Columbia and Dartmouth College.

Up at Hanover, N. H., Mr. Held received this telegram: "Your program from Dartmouth was great stop you did the best show of the college series stop." Strangely, the wire was delivered ten minutes before the program went on the air.

Lucien Cailliet, famed orchestrator, broke into the spotlight of a Philadelphia Sunday newspaper recently. "He likes to make big pieces out of little pieces," were the words used to describe his work. In the capacity of official orchestrator for the Philadelphia Orchestra, Mr. Cailliet has produced a number of first-rate arrangements, the latest of which is "a Passacaglia" by Dietrich Buxtehude, a Danish organist.

Cailliet is of interest to us because his son Rene is one of our number, a sophomore in the School of Science. Rene is an advocate of the medical profession rather than the musical. Some day he aspires to make little weaklings into big, strong athletes by virtue of medical science. You're a chip off the old block, Rene!

J. BONGIOVANNI TALKS TO GROUP

Freshman Arts Student Speaks on Strikes to Study Club

Addressing the Villanova College Study Group last Wednesday evening, Joseph Bongiovanni, Freshman Arts student, discussed the morality of the strike with special reference to the sit-down strike.

Bongiovanni pointed out that the strike, if prosecuted without violence or without attacking property rights, was legitimate and hence recognized by Catholics. But it was indicated that technically the sit-down strike is immoral, for it is a negative confiscation of private property.

An interesting discussion following the talk showed clearly that the members of the Study Group are vitally interested in current affairs. Attending the meeting were eleven students of the college, as well as Fathers Lunney and Vrana.

of Russ Morgan and his Orchestra through the cinema production of many "shorts". The Philip Morris program presents Morgan to the radio-public every Tuesday and Saturday evening at 8:30 through the facilities of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Has Excellent Interpretations

It is because of his excellent interpretations and his novelty presentation of a harmonious combination of five trombone pieces, that Morgan is considered "tops" for Prom entertainment among New New England colleges. Morgan's ability to blend the soft and dulcet strains of string instruments into his modern syncopation provides the variety that is instrumental in all orchestral success today. It is said by some that Russ Morgan can make a trombone parallel a trumpet, without detracting from the laurels of the former instrument. Morgan is considered "King of the Trombone."

In order to provide for the innumerable novelty acts that Morgan will offer during his visit to the Villanova campus, the Decoration Committee, under the chairmanship of Pio P. Goggi, will provide ample facilities for their successful presentation. Effective lighting arrangements will be the outstanding feature of the ballroom decorations. Multi - colored spotlights, unique and intriguing, will be focused from all angles upon the orchestra and the couples on the dance floor. Chairman Goggi also has prepared something unusual in the way of a decorative surprise for the gala occasion.

Ticket Sale Limited

It has been recently disclosed by senior class officials that the price of tickets for the Belle Air Ball has been definitely set at $4.50. Belle Air Ball Chairman Edward J. McDevitt, also announced that the sale of tickets will be limited to 500; no admissions will be granted after this limit has been reached. This measure has been adopted in order to prevent over-crowded conditions on the occasion of the gala formal. It has been stressed that all who wish to be assured of admission secure their tickets before the sale is stopped. The sale of tickets for the Ball will begin this week-end and will continue until after the Easter holidays, until the supply is exhausted. It is imperative, therefore, that tickets be obtained as soon as possible.

AND still champion" — with these words Tony Sala repeated for the second straight year and became the fourth man in the history of the Intercollegiate conference to hold his title for the third time. Sala first won the light heavyweight championship in 1935 when he defeated Bernie Kaplan, of Western Maryland, at Penn State, to clinch the title. Sala, a senior this year, will retire as undefeated champion in his class.

—V—

Tony fought three tough men in Sol Maksik from the University of Pennsylvania, George Regan representing Syracuse, and Nestor Kociubinsky from Penn State. Showing fine sportsmanship both Maksik and Regan offered to second Sala in his final bout, after they had been beaten.

—V—

The fact that Jack Jarosik was not allowed to participate in the bouts was a tough blow, as he had a very good chance to come through. Walker, of Western Maryland, gave Ord Fink, of Syracuse, one of the toughest battles of his career. Jarosik beat Walker with ease at Westminster last year and also at Villanova this season.

—V—

For the first time in the history of intro-mural sports at Villanova, an all-star basketball team was chosen last week by the athletic moguls. Among the basketeers who made the first team were Dan O'Connor, "Bud" O'Connell, Jim Dwyer, Joe Bochetto, Joe Beitenmiller. A second team was also chosen and also many names were given honorable mention. In all, at least two men from each team on the campus was named on either the first or second team.

—V—

Saturday afternoon the Villanova pool resounded to the starter's gun as the third annual Villanova College Catholic Interscholastic swimming tourney got under way. Saint Francis Prep's star performers enabled this school to clinch the championship. Its varsity performers won the New York private school championships in the Columbia University interscholastics in the morning, and then flew to Philadelphia in time to garner two firsts in the 150 medley and the 200-yard free style relays. The second team representing Saint Francis arrived by train and piled up quite a score in the early events. Saint Francis' victory ended the two-year reign of West Catholic.

—V—

George "Doc" Jacobs will have his hands full during the coming baseball season. In addition to coaching the Varsity nine, "Doc" will also take over the managerial duties of the Eastern Maryland club in the Eastern Shore League. A tough schedule faces the 'Cat batsmen and the season this year will be no bed of roses according to the best prognosticators.

—V—

Temple's mittmen won their first conference victory, when they defeated the boxers from Washington and Jefferson, 4½-3½. By the virtue of two forfeits this was made possible when the Presidents were unable to put representatives in the 125 and heavyweight classes. Temple forfeited the 165 pound battle by the same means. We still think that Temple is lucky.

—V—

Now that basketball is over as serious varsity competition the varsity footballers will steal the limelight until after the Easter vacation anyway. At this time, the gridmen will start on an intensive spring training course. Lafayette will be met in the initial contest of the current football practice session. The game will be played on Saturday at 3 o'clock. Many other games have been scheduled for this season and new innovations in the teaching of football will be inaugurated by Coach "Clipper" Smith.

By RAY GADSBY

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 13.—Hats off to Tony Sala, one of the greatest Collegiate boxers who ever drew on a pair of gloves. In conquering Nestor Kociubinsky, Penn State's previously unbeaten light-heavyweight star, Tony fought the finest bout of his successful career on Saturday night in the championship final, thereby retaining his 175 pound Eastern Intercollegiate Championship for the second straight year. Tony first won the title at Penn State.

Strange to relate, Tony's victory over Kaplan, of Western Maryland, in that year, gave Penn State the team championship, while his decisive defeat of Kociubinsky on Saturday knocked Penn State out of the running and Syracuse edged through with the championship, winning 26 to 25.

Maksik Outboxed

There is much joy in Syracuse today because of Tony's victory. As usual, he won it the hard way. On Friday night he met and defeated in commendable fashion the U. of P. heavyweight star, Sol Maksik, who had won all his bouts this year by the Kayo route. However, beating Sala was another story. Tony took him in his stride as he easily outboxed Maksik and at times drove home terrific body blows that made his opponent grimace and wince with pain. That was a sweet victor, and was doubly satisfying because of events

ALL STAR QUINTET CHOSEN BY MURAL ATHLETICS BOARD

Officials and Coaches Name Ten Outstanding Basketeers on Campus

For the first time since the inception of the Intra-mural basketball league, all-star selections have been made. Two teams have been chosen as representatives of the cream of the Mural talent. The final selections came about as a result of a poll of the coaches and officials of the league. Each voter picked a first and second team, after which the final tabulations were made.

It is interesting to note that every team which participated had at least two of their men selected among the ten outstanding basketeers on the campus. The boys were chosen mainly for their basketball ability, but their attitude on the floor and the amount of "scrap" they displayed also played a part in the selections. Let us now look at each of the positions and the individuals chosen to play these positions.

The Forwards

Joe Beitenmiller of the Mendel Day-Hops and Jim Dwyer of the Austin Hall quintet were chosen for the first team forward berths. Beitenmiller was the high scorer in the league, while Dwyer finished well up in front.

Beitenmiller, a tireless, cutting, dribbling type of player was a constant menace to every team the Day-Hops met. Seemingly bottled up, the diminutive ace would cut loose time and again to make almost impossible shots from underneath the basket. Joe dogged his Basketball is over for the season, but arguments concerning the recent campaign are still to be settled. In case you have ideas on our late and usually lamented opponents, check them with these bits furnished by the Wildcat varsity. Their choices for an all-star, all-opponent outfit, based solely on the man's performance against the Blue and White, are herein listed.

On the first team we find Ken Gunning of Indiana University teaming up with Ben Goldfadden of George Washington University at forward. Irv Terjesson of New York University clinched the center slot by his whirlwind play in the game at New York in which the University Heights boys kept intact their winning streak at home. Howie Black of Temple and Ben Carnivale of New York University were voted the outstanding guards faced by the Severance crew this season. Also placed in the "tops" class were Schneidmann and Fliegel of City College of New York, Kiesel of G. W., Juenger of Temple and Hurley of Geneva. Little Milt Schonfeld, the agile atom of the G. W. VARSITY GRIDDERS HOLD DAILY DRILLS FOR SPRING GAMES

Lafayette Team Meets Footballers March 20 in Initial Contest

Swinging into shape with a snap, Spring football practice bloossomed out in full bloom last Tuesday afternoon as sixty-one blue, green and red jersied gridsters gamboled over and churned up the green with the greatest of ease.

They applied themselves with great vigor to the bucking machine and gave "Clipper" and Vince the best sleigh ride ever enjoyed on this piece of apparatus. However, they didn't stick too closely to pushing their mentors around, but went right into their plays. Enough men reported for practice to make five teams and the men in the last two teams will be advanced to the first two teams if and when their proficiency and football ability increases.

Changes Planned

"Clipper" intends to shift Harvey Buck from left to right halfback and probably to advance Bob Buckley from halfback to end. The problem on the Freshman team is to develop a couple of quarterbacks to bolster that position upon the graduation of Francis Nye and to be assured of dependable material in that post on the 1938 squad. A tentative scrimmage was scheduled for yesterday and also several during the week. Almost every day there will be one form of scrimmage or another to put the boys into shape for the Lafayette meeting on March 20 at 3 o'clock.

Lafayette has been out since the middle of February and is con-

MITTMEN EXHIBIT WARES AT PENN A. C.

Four Leather Pushers Face P. M. C. Boxers in No-Decision Contests

Four of the Wildcat mittmen put on a boxing exhibition with Frank McCracken's leather pushers from P. M. C. last Thursday at a business men's luncheon held at the Penn Athletic Club.

The Villanova boxers fought the last four bouts of a seven bout schedule. It was P. M. C's first taste of inter-collegiate competition, and all the fights were no decision affairs.

Kirk Takes It Easy

Eddie Kirk met B. Geammi of P. M. C. in the opener in the 135 pound class. Kirk took it very easy and landed only a few solid blows during the entire fight, but had everything entirely under control throughout.

Hard - hitting Bob Mentzinger fought Surplus in the 145 pound division. Metzinger gave a fine exhibition of boxing and kept the plucky cadet off balance with straight left jabs. Bob did not throw a right all afternoon. Both Kirk and Mentzinger showed great sportsmanship in carrying their op-

RINGMEN TO ENGAGE BADGER FIGHTERS

Face Strong Foe in Final Meet of Successful Season

This week the Wildcat ring squad will take themselves on a jaunt across half the United States to engage the University of Wisconsin's boxers. Coach Gadsby's boys meet the Badgers at Madison, Wisconsin, on Friday. With this match the Villanova mittmen will wind up a highly successful campaign.

Badgers Tough Team

However, the season's finale will be no easy touch and the 'Cats' victory string will be very seriously threatened. The Badgers are a perennially strong aggregation and fight a tough intersectional schedule, which includes this year Penn State, an Eastern top-notcher, Duke in the South, Louisiana State in the Southwest, West Virginia, another Eastern club, and Washington State College on the Pacific Coast. Villanova has to rate highly to get on the Badgers' schedule.

Although the Midwesterners have faced tough opponents this year, they have the manpower to get through in commendable fashion. Six veterans from last season's very successful squad form the nucleus of the 1937 edition.

Stupar Leads Wisconsin

Leading the Badgers to the wars is Captain George Stupar, scrappy 135 pounder. George last year held Frank Goodman, Eastern Intercollegiate champ to a draw in the Badgers meet with the Nittany Lions of Penn State.

Verne Woodward, the heavyweight, is another big gun on the Wisconsin team. He holds a decision over Penn State's Izzy Richter, also an Intercollegiate titleholder and recognized as one of the best amateur heavies in the country. The remaining veterans on the team are Art Walsh, 115 pounder, Sid Hurwitz in the 145 pound division, Gordon Harman, who fights at 155 pounds and Vito Schiro, the 165 pound scrapper.

In the four years boxing has been taken up by the University of Wisconsin, it has lost but two meets, one of them being a 5-3 licking handed them by Penn State at State College just a few weeks ago. In spite of this defeat the Badgers rate with the very best in the country, and the Villanova boxers will have to be keyed up to the highest pitch to down the rugged Big Tenners.

'38 SWIM DATE SET

Villanova's annual National Interscholastic Catholic Swimming championships will be held on George Washington's birthday in 1938 and in the following years.

Varsity Gridders Hold Daily Drill

sequently in a little better shape. The 'Cats intend to let the visitors take the offensive and to play a purely defensive game throughout. On April 3 Navy is scheduled to play here although the details have not been formally arranged yet. In any event there will be a scrimmage here that day, if not with Navy, then a repeater with Lafayette. Columbia, the other remaining definite scrimmage is due to be met in New York on April 10 and 17. The Lions, because of Saturday classes, would be unable to play here. Dates with Rutgers and Franklin and Marshall have not been set although they have been approached on this matter of Spring scrimmage.

New innovation in the way of music with football practice has been discussed and it is very probable that it will be introduced. It is hoped that this will help to put rhythm into the formations. Imagine the boys running through a play to the tune of "The Organ Grinder's Swing."

A strong attempt at organizing a Frosh football schedule is being made and one game has already been signed between the Villanova and Temple '41's. Offers for future games have also been made to Dickinson Prep, Allentown Prep, F. & M Frosh, Pennington Prep and Hill School. However, no definite games are booked except that with Temple for October 31, at the Temple Stadium.

ponents through the three rounds.

Mike Rutecky met "Si" Sobeck in the heavyweight class. Sobeck, an experienced fighter, was a second Max Baer, with his slugging and gallery play. Rutecky slugged and boxed Sobeck to hold his own, despite the cadet's long reach.

In the final bout, Jack Jarosik moved up a class to meet P. M. C.'s light-heavyweight, E. Spear. "Sparkie" was his usual self and the fact that there would be no decision made little difference to him. In the first half minute he cornered the quick moving Spear and pounded him until McCracken made them break. At the end of the round, Jarosik knocked Spear through the ropes as the bell rang.

Jack held off slightly in the second round and used his left with much effectiveness. He came back in the third round, knocking the cadet down again and had him in a bad way when the final bell sounded.

After the bouts, the boys were taken down to the main dining room of the Club and treated to luncheon. Trophies will be given to all contestants.

Sala Still Champ As Syracuse Wins

which occurred previous to Friday night's encounter.

Sala Carries Regan

In the semi-final round, Tony met and easily defeated George Regan, who represented Syracuse. Regan was an elusive southpaw who knew all the tricks. Regan could not evade Sala's terrific right crosses and took quite a battering in the first and second rounds. By another fine showing of sportsmanship Sala carried his opponent in the last round. For this fine gesture, he received a tremendous ovation from the large crowd which packed the historic Archibald gymnasium.

Immediately after this bout the Ortenzi-Kociubinsky affair started and the winner was to meet Sala in the final round of the tourney. Kociubinsky surprised quite a few by scoring a technical K. O. over his rugged rival when one of his sharp right-hand punches opened a jagged wound over Ortenzi's left eye.

Tony Wins First Round

In the first round of the final bout, Tony boxed as only a Tunney could, scoring repeatedly with an accurate left jab mixed with a right cross. At the same time he very cleverly evaded all of his opponent's wild and desperate advances. However, Tony didn't care to win by boxing so he went out and traded punches with his rival in a wild second round that had the spectators standing on their chairs and left their voices as harsh as foghorns.

Although Tony hurt his man and scored heavily by his headlong aggressive style he, too, took one or two on the chin that didn't do him any good. The round was very close and the outcome of the bout hinged on the result of the third round. However, Tony came through in amazing fashion in the final canto as he smashed and crashed heavy left hooks and right crosses to the jaw and body of his courageous foe.

Three-Time Champ

At the finish the announcer's—"The winner and still champion, Mr. Anthony Sala, Villanova," was only a mere formality, but nevertheless thrilling to all concerned. Three times Intercollegiate champion! It will be a long time before another such record appears in the annals of inter-collegiate boxing.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

WHAT WITH the Temple sports editor's decrying Villanova's opinion of the Wildcat-Owl boxing affair, and Nort Paden's offering, in the name of the boxing squad and coach, to hold the meet over again, things are hotting up nicely for that gala sports day we mentioned a couple of weeks ago. With the feeling between the two institutions running high, such an affair consisting, as we said before, of a boxing meet, swimming meet, basketball game, and dance, would be a sellout.

Boxing is certainly here to stay, and the added attraction of the two other contests would serve to draw a capacity crowd. Another incentive to support would be the designation of the day as Homecoming Day. This would be somewhat of a departure from the usual collegiate custom of having football games for that occasion, but we think it would draw the alumni of this noble institution. It's a sure-fire thing, and well worth the serious consideration of the college athletic authorities.

Not many orchids have been given by this column, but one is sent hereby to Willie Durkin, the demon diver. What he lacks in finesse, he makes up for in gameness and persistence.

Fame

They say that one of the inmates of 225 Fedigan had nineteen admirers seeking his autograph as a result of having had his picture in the Evening Ledger recently. Such is fame.

Last week we told of how athletics made the Metropolitan Museum of Art in the Big Town. This week baseball makes the stage in "The Eternal Road," a biblical affair. For the proper carrying on of this dramatic success, many noises of crowds are needed for background to the action. For this a record was ordered from a sound-effect studio, and has been used for the play for quite some time. Nobody knows where the record was made, but there is a slight suspicion that it was recorded at the Polo Grounds for that is the only explanation for the shrill Bronx voice—possibly that of "Dutch" Stahmann or Joe Hopkins, that rises above the general noise of the crowd, just after the scene in which has smashe the tablets: "Geez, he hit a homer!"

A columnist in one of the Metropolitan papers states that a recent survey conducted at fair Harvard indicates that among the athletes at that institution the baseball players rank highest in scholastic standing, while the footballers are a close second. Tennis players were a bit lower on the dean's rating.

Another item comes to our notice. It concerns the feats of an eight letter man of the nineties. Said marvel attended Columbia and was named Gustavus Town Kirby. His awards included three for track, three for fencing, and last, but not least, two for bicycle riding.

Villanova's publicity department has a new head in "Chuck" Voorhis, Main Line Daily Times sports editor. Here's wishing him a large portion of good luck.

"Nails" Cartrambone, former sports editor of this weekly, is doing very well for himself in the semi-pro basketball game. He performs with the St. Joseph's Polish A. A., in Camden. Just goes to show one what an apprenticeship on the VILLANOVAN will do for a person.

second-team, but not quite in the class with those on the first quintet, so it is hereby announced that he receives an in-between honorable mention.

City was judged to be the best ball-handling team met by the locals; Nat Holman's charges were also named the smartest and fastest of the enemy. Indiana, with the giant Hoffman leading the attack, was voted the best shooting squad, as their remarkably fast break netted them 43 points. Springfield was listed as the most methodical foe, having a play for every occasion, as well as the ability to use them.

'CAT BASEBALLERS IMPROVE STEADILY

Daily Drills Feature Intense Activity Among Squad Members

With weather conditions changing from the mildness of Spring to the blustry winds of Winter, "Doc" Jacobs has an intricate problem in keeping his boys in shape. However, the baseballers are co-operating very well with their mentor in their enthusiasm and willingness to work.

Batting practice is held as often as the weather permits, and during these sessions the stadium wall and the left field fence are peppered with baseballs.

The problem of the infield positions is still a wide open affair. Nothing definite can be said at this early date as further time is needed for more development. Ray Stovink is being shifted between left field and first base to determine which position would be more suitable for him. Wherever he goes, his power at the bat and his ability to field will be surely felt by the opposition.

Crawley Changed

Crawley is also being alternated from second to left in an effort to improve the infield situation. He comes up with some mighty flashy plays at the second pillar. One fellow who has not attracted much attention heretofore is Del'Uomo. During the past week, this spark plug of zest has shown plenty of stuff, and McKenna can expect a lot of fight from him for the job of holding down that hot corner.

Out of the pitchers, Castles has shown plenty of promise in the daily work-outs and provided he keeps up his good showing, he will receive much consideration when it comes time for the selection of the pitching staff. Another pitcher who is getting into the swing of things is the former outfielder, Escott. He is coming along in great style and the baseball mentor counts on him for some victories from the mound.

"Doc" Jacobs has started a series of skull practices, which consist of meetings thrice times weekly. The main purpose of these meetings is to instruct the players in the theory of baseball play and to develop an aptitude for the rules and intricate plays among the bat-bearers.

Credit must be passed to Jacobs for his careful handling of the boys in such tricky weather as this. A slight over-enthusiasm causing a snap throw in cold climate might develop an injury which would make trouble for an infielder's arm. As soon as the weather warms up, the Main Liners will put much work on base running and the art of sliding. The fade-away and hook slides will be accented strongly.

KITTEN TOSSERS MEET

Despite unseasonable weather, Coach "Bunny" Galazin called the first Froah baseball meeting of the year in room 10s, Mendel, last Thursday, in order to size up the possibilities of the 193 season.

"Bunny," who, under the supervision of "Doc" Jacobs, varsity mentor, is in charge of the yearlings, was well satisfied with the tournout of about twenty-five aspirants. As soon as Spring football practice is over, the squad will be augmented by several gridsters. Coach Galazin emphasized the fact that since all the positions were wide open, the best man will get the call with no partiality shown.

At present, Galazin is busy working out a schedule which due to the shortness of the season will be limited to about seven games. A great deal of time will be spent in "scrub" games with the Varsity furnishing the opposition.

Intramural Board Names All Stars

opponents relentlessly with the result that time and time again he stole the ball away from them and converted valuable baskets for the Day-Hops.

Meanwhile Jim Dwyer's play was the antithesis of Reitenmiller's. Dwyer, always calm and collected, was a "sure shot" once he set himself on any part of the court and most of his markers were scored from outside the foul circle. Dwyer directed Austin's attack all through the season and did a fine job of it, too. His was a steadying influence that brought Austin the limited success it did have.

Choosing the outstanding center of the league presented the board of selectors with their easiest problem. In their opinion Joe Bochetto of the Mendel Residents was far and away the best pivot man in the league, and as a result he polled a perfect vote. The second team berth was awarded to James Carroll, the Fedigan centerman, who played a fine brand of ball all year 'round, but was not quite in Bochetto's class.

The Guards

Dan O'Connor and "Bud" O'Connell of the Mendel Day-Hops and Fedigan teams, respectively, close out the first team at the guard positions. O'Connor, who, along with Bochetto, was the only other player to receive a perfect vote, was perhaps the best all-around performer in the league. He played any position at any time and turned in a good performance wherever he played. He has been placed at guard because it was felt that his "digging" traits would help him most at this position. Dan was a good ball handler, a good scorer, and was always in the thick of any scramble for a loose ball. He was a veritable ball hawk who did not know the meaning of the word "quit." It can honestly be said that O'Connor was the sparkplug of the Day-Hop quintet.

"Bud" O'Connell was another hard worker who clearly deserved his position. Bud was the backbone of the Fedigan team, and it became an accepted fact that "as O'Connell went, so went Fedigan." Although O'Connell directed Fedigan's play, he did more than his share in contributing to the Fedigan scoring. His determined style of play did much to enable his team to reach third place in the final league standings.

Howie Connors of Alumni and Andy Cente of Austin were the second team choices, and they, too, were capable performers. Both of them were among the league's scoring leaders and both specialized in long distance shooting. With these two boys participating on the same team, opponents would be exceedingly hard-pressed to halt their long range marksmanship.

Honorable mention was given to Barr and Murphy of the Day-Hops, Donahue and Waad of the Mendel Residents, Bradshaw of Alumni, and Sheftic of Austin. In all fairness to Gene Barr, however, it must be mentioned that he received more votes than any other player who was awarded honorable mention, but he did not have quite enough support to be chosen for the second team.

SEVEN RECORDS BROKEN

Seven pool records were set and one equalled last week in the Villanova tank as the Wildcat mermen beat West "Chester State Teachers 58-20 and bowed to Rider College, 50-34.

In the West Chester meet on Tuesday Bill Leahy set marks for both the 220 and 440. These standards were short-lived, however, for when Rider College visited Villanova on Thursday, Captain Dave Rowan lowered both marks. Rowan also swam the third leg in the 400-yard relay race and aided his team in chalking up a new standard for this event.

Bill Leahy forced Ed Gisburne of Rider to set another pool record in the close 50-yard free-style. In their second encounter of the day in the 100-yard free-style race Leahy finished behind by less than the depth of the scum on the edge of the pool. Gisburne was forced to equal the pool mark in winning this event.

The wash left by these record-breakers did not entirely upset the Villanovans for their 300-yard medley relay team, consisting of Ed. Leahy, Toby Greco and Charles Barrett established a new standard for this event.

late and Joseph Alessandroni argued for the society.

A recent trip was undertaken by the Beta Gamma which resulted in debates with Newark Law School, and Manhattan College. In both encounters, Villanova upheld the affirmative of the question.

SPANISH SOCIETY PRACTICES SONGS

Special Meetings Being Held In Preparation For Coming Musicale

Villanova's Spanish Club, under the direction of Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, O. S. A., is planning an extensive program to be given April 23 in the college gymnasium.

In preparation for this affair, which is to be given on the feast of Ciervates, the club is having special meetings Wednesday nights. The purpose of these meetings is to rehearse Spanish songs and readings which will be part of the program.

There is also the possibility of the Villanova club cooperating with a society of the same nature at Rosemont College to have a social affair. However, no definite arrangements have been made as yet.

The local Spanish club is affiliated with the Spanish Society of Columbia University. As a result of this it will receive a Spanish periodical every week and also a medal for the student who has done outstanding work in the club.

Lives of Composers, Appreciation Of Music, Found In Library Texts

From man's earliest existence to the end of time, music is his one and only universal language. The language of the Engineer is in terms of his slide rule, the Scientist his microscope, the Chemist his test tube, the Business Man his stocks. But every one can understand and enjoy music, for it echoes the heart-throbs of all men and all nations.

To Know Is To Understand

Understanding, however, implies knowledge—knowledge which can be obtained by reading about great composers and their compositions. The understanding of music may be acquired through the study club. Knowledge may be obtained by reading books treating of music and its masters. The following are a few of the books in the "M" section, where books about music and musicians are located in our library.

Among the books on art and appreciation of music may be mentioned Oscar Thompson's work, "How to Understand Music." Here is a guide to the pleasures of music. This book is written for the musically unlettered persons. It is for those who wish to listen to music with understanding but who do not have the opportunity to study its rudiments.

Sound and the Next Generation

"Music, a Science and Art," by John Redfield is a novel approach to this subject. Within these 330 pages music is considered from the scientific and artistic angles. The author writes with the conviction that sound is the great laboratory subject of the coming generation as electricity was of the past generation.

Arthur Elson's work "The Book of Musical Knowledge" treats of the history, technique and appreciation of music.

A variety of collected works includes, "The Standard Opera Glass" by Charles Annesly. These 865 pages contain a quick informative summary of over 300 operas. Even the operas presented during the current season are included here.

Drama of the Opera

A fine summary of the immortal composers is found in "Stories of Great Operas" by Ernest Newman. Its purpose is that the ordinary lover of music may the better understand and enjoy the drama and music of the great operas.

Gilbert and Sullivan's complete plays are compiled in a volume of 711 pages. This contains complete and authorized text of 14 operas. Copies of the orignal illustrations by Gilbert are also included.

The biographies of individual composers are well represented, being printed on good paper. Individual biographies are classified in the "ML" section of the library. Here one finds the autobiography of Rimsky-Korsakoff with the title "My Musical Life," 390 pages. In touching manner the author refers to his lack of verbal felicity. However, this book embraces practically the whole history of Russian art—music, since it covers the period 1844-1906. To read this work is to share the joy of creating lovely music.

Biography of Mendelssohn

Schima Kaufman, a member of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, has written a life of Mendelssohn; "A Second Elijah," 368 pages. This work competently covers the background of the period when Romanticism replaced Classicism. Mendelssohn is important as he lived during the time of many other great composers. He was 18 when Beethoven died, yet he lived to see the rising stars, Schumann and Wagner.

"Franz Schubert, the Man and His Circle," 369 pages, is written by the distinguished authority on music, Walter Flower. Here's a fascinating and beautifully modulated account of the many — often remote — aspects of the composer's life. In reading this one is carried to Vienna of a century ago, where Schubert lived his humble life and dreamed his magic music.

"Beethoven is the Man Who Freed Music," this is the title and thesis of a work by Schauffler. After examining facts concerning Beethoven's methods the author argues that most of his compositions were based on a specific "source-theme." Here is an interesting and expert musical analysis of Beethoven's most important compositions. This book should prove valuable to lovers of good music.

CROWD EXPECTED AT CARD PARTY

Advance Sale of Tickets Presages Success of Annual Guild Affair

Anticipation of the largest attendance since its inception four years ago, the annual card party and dance, under the auspices of the Augustinian Seminary Guild, is expected to reach its greatest heights in the gymnasium tonight.

"Villanovans" Featured

The "Villanovans," college dance orchestra, have been secured to furnish the melodious harmonies for the dancers. The band has improved considerably since its earlier appearances and will present music of first-class calibre.

The optimism of Rev. Charles P. Brown, O.S.A., chaplain, is attributed to the early returns which have far surpassed those of previous years.

This annual affair, growing in popularity each year, will reach its climax this year because of the efforts of relatives and friends of the Augustinian Fathers, who have labored to make this year's event a huge success. The women on the committees have labored industriously, and more so this year because of a late start, but their efforts are being rewarded if the early returns can be accepted as a criterion.

Working under many handicaps and hardships for the past six weeks, the members of the various committees, as well as the Augustinian Fathers, are eagerly looking forward to having their labor repaid tonight.

Arrangements Made

Special arrangements have been made with the various transportation companies in order to facilitate those in attendance. By means of the railroad, Philadelphia and Western trains, and private cars, the attending persons will be

SENIOR CLASS MEETS

An important meeting of the entire Senior Class will be held tomorrow at 1 o'clock in Room 214. President Gerald Kunz desires that all class members attend.

Maestro Russ Morgan Just Another Case of "Local Boy Makes Good"

By ROBERT G. HOWE

There's a tremendous difference between the immaculate white tie and tails of an orchestra leader at the Biltmore in New York City, and the black-dusty denim, miner's cap, and grimy face of a Scranton, Pa., coal digger. It's a far cry from the latter to the former, yet Russ Morgan and his "slide music" have traveled the entire distance.

Father a Drummer

Morgan's father, a mine foreman, was a drummer with local bands in the Scranton area. His mother was a former pianist who, with his father, had played vaudeville before the male partner had entered the mines. Both were interested in a musical career for their son, and started his musical education when he was seven years old.

When he was old enough, Morgan got a job in the mines. But he determined that he would make music, not mines, his career. His first musical dollar was earned as pianist in a Scranton theatre. This, and the subsequent dollars earned in the same way, bought Russ his first trombone. . . "a good one," he avers.

Russ finally left Scranton for Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania "big town" for opportunity. Two incidents of importance befell him there . . . he joined Paul Specht's orchestra—and got married.

Becomes Arranger

Morgan went west to Detroit a short time later and got a position as arranger in the State Theatre there. He had been there only a short time when the musical director walked out twenty minutes before curtain time. Russ walked right into the job and held it for more than a year.

"Music in the Morgan Manner" obtained its first public appreciation over the Detroit airwaves. He was made musical director at station WXYZ in Detroit, and in addition was making records with Joe Venuti.

The Morgan-Venuti association was one of long standing. Both musicians were in Jean Goldkette's band in the days when modern "swing" was known as "jazz." Venuti played a hot fiddle, and Morgan the trombone and piano.

Morgan organized his own band for radio broadcasts with the N. B. C. network in New York, and took to the road to find rank among the foremost radio dance band attractions. This, then, is the story of the evolution of Russ Morgan, miner, to Russ Morgan, suave director of one of America's smartest orchestras, and of the origin of that popular "Music in the Morgan Manner."

This colorful collegiate formal has given every indication of unprecedented success. COLLEGE DRAMATICS

THE coming presentation of the war time drama "Journey's End" by the Belle Masque, College dramatic society, recalls to mind the distinct advantage that accrues to the individual who participates in dramatics. Too few people study to acquire the dignity of bearing, poise and gracefulness of movement, and clarity and straight-forwardness of speech that distinguishes the person who has lived "outside himself." The ordinary person is usually so much "himself" that he soon loses the faculty of considering his actions from an objective viewpoint, so that frequently he practices the most socially irritating faults without the slighest realization of their existence.

Play acting not only broadens one's culture by making him live a portion of some of the finest things that have ever been written and by affording him a personal insight into the character of humanity, but it also develops in him a high regard for the intellectual pursuits that are the basis of all civilization Moods and emotions play an important part in the life of many people, and the more familiar we are with the peculiar manner of their expression the more certain we are of properly understanding people.

We cannot recommend too heartily the participation of every member of the student body in the activities of the Belle Masque. To the lower classman it offers a means for improving himself in a capacity that modern society tends to ignore, and to the upper classman a means of furthering an institution that reflects the utmost credit upon those associated with it.

NATIONALISM

AT the root of the troubles gnawing out the vitals of Western civilization is this modern heresy of exaggerated nationalism. The nations of Europe, having cast aside God, have set up in His place a new brazen image: the deified State. In every part of Europe, men bow down in worship before the totalitarian state: fascistic, nazi-istic, or communistic. The form varies, but the essence is everywhere the same: man now worships the State. The God of the Christians has been cast aside.

What can we think of so-called Christian nations which tear at each other's throats? What can we say of nations which exalt themselves over all other nations? Have they so far strayed from the teachings of the Good Shepherd that they no longer believe, with Christ, that "We are all one in Christ?"

We seek to avert war. We attempt to bring about disarmament. How futile! How ghastly stupid! For there can never be any peace in Europe . . . or anywhere . . . unless all men recognize that they are all Brothers in Christ. What we need today, above all things, in not a peace movement alone, not a good neutrality legislative act . . . these are only parts of the plan. The need of Western Civilization is to cast off this insane, exaggerated nationalism. Unity cannot be superimposed on disunity by mere fiat.

The only force that can unify Europe today is the Roman Catholic Church. She, alone, is supranational. She, alone, can dissolve national differences in the Sacred Body and Blood of the Christ. She, alone, can give us true peace.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS

THE success that has recently attended the efforts of a prominent Philadelphia newspaper to bring about the enactment of a bill that will establish a more equitable relation between the pawnbroker and his client—too often in the past his victim—excellently demonstrates the power of the press to bring about changes in the body politic that are advantageous to the public. Until the abominable conditions that prevailed in this branch of money lending was brought forcefully and consistently to the attention of the Legislature, it was permitted to flourish unhindered, but once the searchlight of publicity, an uncensored and uncontrolled publicity, was turned upon it the Lawmakers hastened to amend it. Rates of interest as high as 72 percent or more a year were the common rather than exceptional charges that borrowers had to play in order to obtain money, which in many instances made the ultimate redemption of their pledges almost impossible.

Obviously there has been a lack of right thinking and understanding on the part of numerous legislatures that such usurious conditions should be permitted to exist for the length of time they have. Political indifference to many of the evils that affect society are too well known to merit any condemnation here. The point to be emphasized, however, is the power inherent in the American press to remedy these conditions, once it has seriously set about the task.

The unqualified success that has resulted from this campaign to relieve the most needy borrowers of Pennsylvania from the yoke of legalized usury is a task well worthy of emulation in other respects. If the newspapers of this country could forego the politicial alliances that too often prompt them to ignore social and economic evils that are seriously in need of adjustment, they would rapidly become the most dominating forces in the country for the spread of honourable, efficient, and economical government. The American Press has sacrificed in no small measure the confidence of the people in its reliability as a source for information and guidance, neverthless there is no reason for assuming that this confidence cannot be speedily regained if it reveals, as has been done in this instance, a disposition to serve all the people of the country rather than a few of its more influential members.

ODDS and ENDS

JUNIORS and seniors will be interested in hearing that "Link" Lenzi, catcher of the 1935 baseballers, was back on the campus for a short visit last week. While here, the diminutive red-head was one of the most popular and well-known figures on the campus. At present he is on his way to Elmira to play ball in the N. Y. P. League.

We see that the seniors, under the able leadership of Pio Goggi, have already undertaken the decoration of the gym for the big affair to be held Friday evening when Russ and his boys go to town for them. Tired of seeing the old, flat, false ceiling, the '37 lads have made a few alterations which will greatly enhance the decorative beauty of our improvised ball room. It is about time something like this was done, and Pio and his assistants are to be congratulated. An agreeable surprise awaits those of you who will be in attendance at the affair.

While pinch-hitting for Dooley of the morning Record, Laird dedicated his column of March 20 to a discussion of Penn's attitude concerning local colleges. He decried the fact that the university has dropped all local colleges from its athletic schedules in favor of outside teams. He also mentioned how Saint Joe's and Notre Dame were the only Penn opponents to pack the Palestra this year.

All this is only opening up the old argument that a Penn-Temple or a Penn-Villanova game in any sport would pack any stadium or hall in town. Maybe Laird will cause Penn to sit up and think of the advantages to be gained by games with local institutions. Penn Students and Penn Alumni are willing and ready to send their teams against local stalwarts, but their officials refuse to compete with any but the "ivy colleges."

Speaking of the Palestra, it might be interesting to Catholic students to note that the Palestra has only been filled to capacity six times this year and on all six occasions, Catholic teams have been represented.

From THE RAM comes this sad story of the wrong ideal. While we know nothing like that goes on around here, we feel it our duty to print this poem just in case "that urge" creeps upon you:

"I put my trust and faith in you

And so I copied you,

The St. Joe's Hawk and The Scholastic give two fine examples of logical reasoning. There must be a fallacy present, yet we would like to believe there wasn't in the case of this one:

All the things in the world are passing

Therefore, I am passing.
(Oh, if only we could believe it!)
And the other one:

But our instructors are our faculties,
Therefore we go to college to improve our instructors.

As We See It.... "Pacifism"

By HARRY PARKIN

WE were, the other day, by a peculiar turn of circumstances a spectator to a rather interesting discussion on pacificism. The disputants, for the conversation became quite heated as it progressed, were quite distraught over the "stupidity of men" in permitting themselves to be the tools of greed or the desire for glorification. To remedy such a condition they proposed a variety of ideas for the propagation of peace in America as well as means for it to maintain a strict neutrality in the event of foreign hostilities, which ranged from the extravagant notion that laws should be passed to prevent the Government from entering war without a referendum, to the naive proposal that everyone should refuse to bear arms under any circumstances. Though the ones who proposed these ideas were rather young and confident in their efficacy, the ideas which they advanced were quite old. In fact, all our sources admit of any reliability, they were the same ideas with which the people of 1912 and '13 beguiled themselves, on the eve of the greatest cataclysm that ever shook the world, into the belief that future wars were impossible.

Ideas in themselves are excellent things and have a definite advantage to the individual who evolves them even though they never become more than the products of his mental workings. But to have any usefulness they must not only admit of living but actually be lived; and it is here, in the application, that most ideas encounter the difficulties that prevent their departure from the realm of theory. Yet the distinction between the idea as such and its transportation into the world of conduct is seldom considered by those who devise or echo them. Hence, their failure to understand why society does not embrace them. And this condition seems to prevail more among the advocates of world peace than any other body of equally militant individuals.

Essentially, pacificists (we use the word in its original meaning and not the disreputable one that its careless application has come to connote) fall into two groups; those who advocate peace at any cost for the United States without regard for the rest of the world, and those who would have their doctrine accepted universally. They both agree in the opinion that all militaristic activities and publicity should cease, and that the doctrines of peace should obtain in the settlement of all international disputes.

To the first group it is certainly obvious that the United States must be adequately armed so long as the rest of the world is, or it would become an easy prey to the hungry eyes that are constantly being turned on its natural and industrial wealth. Further, we need only look to the nationalistic arrogance and hatreds of the various groups that go to people this country, and their failure to even attempt to settle difficulties with their neighbor amicably, to understand its impossibility among people who are raised to distrust and dislike each other.

To the second group it is similarly apparent that so long as nationalizing and unifying forms of government continue to exist, each jealous and distrustful of the other and quite willing to resort to violence if there is any opportunity of increasing their economic wealth thereby, that it is practically impossible for world peace to be secured.

Hence the most cursory examination reveals a disparagement between the ideas of peace and their likelihood of application.

We do not feel, however, that war is an essential part of our existence. That it is from "eternity and shall not fail" to destroy in a year or two the labored building of centuries. Nor do we feel that some social, political, and economic adjustment of an international kind would not minimize its possibility. But we do recognize the task as gigantic and one that will not be accomplished by a lot of isolated groups working individually along entirely different lines.

If peace is ever to guide the actions of all men it seems as though it can only be accomplished under the existence of two very general conditions. The first is that a similar form of government will exist in every country, which, in all likelihood, will resemble ours more than any other that is now in existence; for it must be wholly chosen by the people and alterable at their disposition. It must govern and not rule. It must be limited in its regulation of the individual's freedom to that extent which will perpetuate the order of justice. And it must not be so centralized as to be easy of seizure. The second condition is one which will maintain the first for it will be the standard by which the individual properly understands his obligations and rights under all social regulations. This is Christian morality. It must be Christian rather than any other, because there is no other that so definitely fixes the moral relations of men.

Peace as a permanent institution will only be possible when every man is a self-acknowledged subject of the One Supreme Creator of the Universe, and understands the true nature of his subjection, for only then can he acquire a proper understanding of his relation to his fellow man.

Many Classics First Published As Periodicals, Investigation Proves

Periodicals are one of the most important items in any field of knowledge where there is constant advancement. New advancements in various fields first appear in periodicals and latter are assimilated into books. Frequently, during the course of history, real advancements have been published in periodicals, but were forgotten and then hit on again after a score or more years. The world wide acceptance of Mendel's laws is a good example of the value, importance and necessity of periodicals.

Mendel's Laws Revealed

Mendel on discovering the laws of heredity published them in a periodical, but they were soon forgotten. About 25 years later another botanist came forth with laws of heredity. It was then that Mendel's were discovered in the old periodicals. They were brought forth and adopted by the entire universe. If there had been no periodicals during Mendel's time today we would not know that he discovered laws.

The following is a selected list of the bound scientific periodicals in the library.

Engineering periodicals are apt means for keeping informed of man's control of the elements and the laws of nature. They are also valuable for the history of various inventions. Here one reads the discussions on the various inventions and sees the evolution of different machines and apparatus. Some time when you are in the library go to the "T" section of the library you will enjoy looking over the following bound periodicals.

Classics in Magazines

Many works now considered classics in the field of literature were first published in magazines. In these periodicals one not only has the original works but he also has the first illustrations which add much color to the stories. The following is a partial list of the bound periodicals in Literature, Philosophy and Religion.

The following periodicals, bound and filed with their respective classification, are to be found on the shelves of Villanova College Library:

PROFESSOR DIES

MYRON B. DEILY

MOURN DEATH OF FACULTY MEMBER

Myron B. Deily, A. M., Ph. D., instructor of modern languages at Villanova College, died of a heart attack on Holy Thursday, March 25, at Bryn Mawr, Pa. He was 42 years old.

Funeral services were held at his home in Nanticoke, Pa. Those attending these services from Villanova included the Rev. Daniel Falvey, O. S. A., Anthony Shedlosky, and Stanley Galazin. The latter two are students at the college.

Held Many Posts

This was Dr. Deily's fist year at the local institution. Dr. Deily taught Spanish, Italian, and Art, at the University of St. Louis before he came to Villanova. He was Principal of Aguadilla High School in Puerto Rico in 1927, Instructor of Modern Languages at Cornell University from 1928 until 1931, Department Head at New Mexico Normal University, and Assistant Professor of Modern Languages at St. Louis University, before he came to Villanova College.

The Administration and faculty of this college express their heartfelt sympathies with the demise of this brilliant man; his loss will be greatly felt by Villanova College.

ENGINEERING GROUP HOLDS ELECTIONS

John Courtain Chosen President of Electrical Engineering Society

At the last regular meeting of the Villanova Chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, held on March 22, elections were held and the following men were elected to hold office for the scholastic year, 1937-1938: President, John Courtain; vice-president, Thomas Furey; secretary, Robert Strong; and treasurer, William Burns.

Subsequent to the elections an illustrated lecture on "Mercury Arc Rectifiers" was presented by Paul Williams, '37. This lecture concluded the series of talks planned for the past year.

Plans were also discussed for the annual convention of the student chapters to be held this year at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland, on April 19.

It was definitely decided that inspection trips independent of the convention trips would be made by the delegates from the Villanova Chapter. Several such trips were suggested. The most popular being a visit to the Conowingo Dam of the Philadelphia Electric Company, and a trip to the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland. It was further suggested that several points of interest in Washington, D. C., be incorporated in the schedule of inspection trips.

DIAL-LOG

FOR the last few issues of the Villanovan, a guest columnist has been taking over my duties. More than likely, he will assume this duty after my time has elapsed. I'm sure he will carry on the tradition of this column by saying nothing and taking up a lot of space. However, the editor-in-chief appreciates it . . . so that's that.

Inasmuch as the Senior Prom is just around the corner I may as well do some talking about Russ Morgan in general. Russ you know, is one of the most versatile musicians we have today, not only being a master at the trombone, but also an accomplished pianist, trumpeter, drummer, and smooth interpretations on vibraphones and celestes. Tommy Dorsey and his trombone may be said to be the closest thing to what Morgan can do on the slide instrument. Many heated arguments have taken place but it still goes back to that old Latin saying, "de gustibus non disputandum est." In other words, taste is not to be disputed.

A week ago Tuesday, I was fortunate enough in witnessing a rehearsal of the Russ Morgan program for Phillip Morris. It is indeed educational and interesting to watch this work noting how crudely the program is first arranged and how eventually it is smoothed out to perfection. The rehearsal lasted for about two hours and ended with a dress rehearsal. Time is a very important element in the staging of a radio show and these arrangers certainly know their stuff when they can time a program to begin and end in a specified time.

Alexander Woollcott began his "Town Crier" series on CBS with only a bell to ring as a signal of the opening and closing of his program. Later on he took to using a harp. Last week he effected his latest idea by employing a mechanical nightingale to punctuate Paul Douglas' remarks. Now he is going to add a drummer to lend "punch" to the closing announcements.

performance without the discomfort of an over-capacity crowd."

Reservations Available

Tickets for the play will be on sale at the College Bookstore in Mendel Hall starting today. As Mr. Frayne stressed, there is only room for 400 persons at one performance, and because of this fact, he has made arrangements whereby students may reserve their tickets until Friday, April 23, at which time the tickets must be definitely purchased.

It is expected that the day students will be most instrumental in the outside promotion of the play and in the sale of tickets.

Members of the Belle Masque have been rehearsing so intensively and progressively that it is quite probable for rehearsals to start in the gymnasium this week.

Set Has Arrived

All material is now at hand for the production of "Journey's End" in that all stage necessities and the complete set have been delivered. It is interesting to note that the set to be used in this presentation of the play is one made by a painter, now deceased, but who, in his time, was quite well-known in theatrical circles.

From all appearances, the presentation of "Journey's End" by the Belle Masque will be a performance far superior to any yet given by the organization, and past performances have been of the best caliber.

FORENSIC SOCIETY DEBATES ON WAGES TWICE THIS WEEK

Oppose Teams From Haverford and St. Joseph's; Defend Negative Side

ENGAGE PENN OVER AIR

Forensic representatives from the Beta Gamma, Literary Debating Society of Villanova College, will encounter two opponents during the ensuing week. This announcement was made by Anthony Differ, Senior member of the School of Arts and Philosophy and president of the Society.

Argue Wage Question

In each of the forthcoming debates, the point of discussion will be the Pi Kappa Delta question, namely: Resolved: That the Congress shall have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry. Also, in each of the debates during the following week, representatives of Beta Gamma will defend the negative of the question.

On the evening of April 6, Villanova will encounter Haverford College at Haverford. The former team will be composed of the following: Thomas Delate and Frederick Waters. On the afternoon of April 11, the Beta Gamma representatives, Joseph Carroll and Anthony Differ, will oppose debaters from St. Joseph's College, the debate taking place at Ursulines Academy, Wilmington, Del.

Have Three Debates

Recent debates in which Beta Gamma participated have been three in number. On the afternoon of March 27, representatives from the University of Pennsylvania were entertained on the negative of the question: Resolved: That sit-down strikes should be legalized. In the debate, which was broadcast through Station WCAU in Philadelphia, Villanova was represented by Anthony Differ and Joseph Carroll. On March 31, Loyola, of Baltimore, was opposed by Beta Gamma on the Pi Kappa Delta question, the Villanova debaters upholding the affirmative. The debate with Albright College on the same question occurred on April 3, the presentation being broadcast through Station WEEV in Reading, Pa. The Beta Gamma Chapter was represented again by Anthony Differ and Joseph Carroll.

RADIO RECITAL GIVEN BY COLLEGE GLEE CLUB

WCAU Again Host to Villanova Group; Quartet Featured

Villanova College Glee Club presented a radio recital over station WCAU last Saturday under the direction of Paul Teel. The choristers were accompanied by Robert Whalen at the piano.

The program opened with the humming of the "Alma Mater" and the entire glee club followed this with "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp," from Naughty Marietta, with Frank Cullina as baritone soloist.

The quartet, composed of John Chapelle, Joseph Tanzola, Frank Cullina, and Richard Foote, sang "Talk About Jerusalem Mornin'," and "Drums." The choristers then rendered "Deep River" and "Old Man Noah," and concluded the recital with the singing of the "Alma Mater."

and height of the stage and hanging by the usual method. It will project itself back half the breadth of the stage. It is believed that the use of this curtain will prova very successful and at the same time it is hoped, it will be a permanent fixture.

The Committee on Arrangements has announced that an additional program has been prepared to provide greater interest for the audience. The Glee Club will render several numbers as an added highlight to the evening's activities.

The contest was won last year by Joseph Caroll, senior in the School of Arts. He will also participate this year.

Enthusiasm Rises For Belle Air Ball

ment was made in last week's VILLANOVAN disclosing that Russ Morgan and his orchestra had been chosen for the Ball. Russ Morgan has achieved great renown for his success at collegiate functions and his popularity on the Villanova campus is unquestioned.

Russ Morgan, whose "Music in the Morgan Manner" has thrilled countless radio fans throughout the nation, is himself a four star performer. Not only does he handle the baton with polished skill, but he has a great tenor voice, is an ace trombonist, and an excellent pianist.

Many times, Russ forsakes the baton to turn out a few smart choruses at the piano. When Russ returns to the baton, the piano section is handled ably and smartly by Joe Krekiow—a real artist who was last heard with Jolly Coburn. Also in the rhythm section are some fine artistry: Barney Podin's solid bass; Heil Marshall's brush cymbal swing, and Larry Hall's fine handling of the guitar. Paul Capricatta plays trumpet and swings his solos. It is also believed that Russ Morgan will bring a female harmony team with him on his visit to the Villanova campus.

Formerly An Arranger

Before organizing his own band, Russ Morgan had made quite a name for himself as a musical arranger for John Phillip Sousa, Victor Herbert, and Jean Goldkette. He was also with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and led baton at the Detroit Capitol Theatre. After that, Morgan became musical director for radio station WXYZ and finally New York for recordings, radio renditions, and motion picture assignments.

Russ Morgan brings all his orchestra talents with him to Villanova, and his ability will be indicated by his presentations of melody at the Belle Air Ball.

The Decorations Committee, under the Chairmanship of Pio P. Goggi, have almost completed the preparations in the college gymnasium for Friday's affair. This committee has been working arduously for the past week and seek the co-operation of students who wish to render them aid. The decorations are unique, and strikingly different from those of former years. The ceiling is of blue and white, the colors of the L. K. D., but has been prepared in a totally different manner.

Over 300 tickets were issued to senior class members last week, and the returns at this date are very assuring. Chairman McDevitt feels confident that the Ball will be a success in every way. The necessity and importance of securing tickets for the Belle Air Ball as early as possible can not be expressed too emphatically. General co-operation in this regard will be fully appreciated by all interested in the outcome of the dance.

Flowers, corsages, and boutonnieres for the Belle Air Ball are being offered to Villanova students at special rates, by Peter C. Mackin, Sophomore Commerce and Finance student. Direct contact with him may be made by calling at Room 217, Fedigan Hall.

It was stated by the poster contest committee, which is primarily interested in the student publicity of Belle Masque production, "Journey's End," that there have been a number of posters submitted by students, all work of excellent quality.

Chance for Prize

This contest has as a secondary aim—the desire to give students with artistic ability a chance to express it, and as a reward for their efforts a prize of $5 is being offered to the neophyte artist whose poster is judged to be the best.

Pete J. McManus, junior in the School of Commerce and Finance, and William Bailey, sophomore in the same school, constitute the poster contest committee.

Philip Merivale says:

"My throat's grateful for Luckies —a light smoke"

"In one of the first important parts I did in America, the play called for a long and very trying individual performance. In every scene for five full acts I was on stage talking almost continuously. The strain made it imperative that I safeguard my throat and voice. After trying different brands of cigarettes, I came across Luckies. They stood the test and for many years now I've enjoyed them. I like the taste of Luckies and my throat is grateful for a light smoke."

Philip Merivale

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Merivale verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

THE first issue after the vacation . . . Spring is in the air . . . through the open window comes the resounding smack of a ball in a catcher's mitt . . . Does anybody want to write a column . . . we don't . . . Spring fever will get you if you don't watch out . . . Ho Hum . . . better get this pillar started.

Was it overconfidence that caused the baseballers' downfall at Princeton last Saturday? Was it first game nervousness? Were the Tigers finally awakened from their lethargy? These are a few of the questions that are being booted around the campus in reference to the 7-2 defeat that Villanova suffered at the hands of Princeton in their initial contest.

—V—

From the spectators' standpoint it looked as though the team was suffering from a chronic case of vibrating knees when they took the field. The game which was slow and lifeless, turned into a "Comedy of Errors." It couldn't have been overconfidence that caused the boners that eventually lost the ball game. A succession of wild pitches, prep school fielding and gross misjudgment of plays brought about the defeat.

—V—

Enough of the panning. Although their play was ragged, the team showed a promise of becoming a representative organization. With a few pep talks by the inimitable "Doc" Jacobs and a slight rearrangement in the infield "Doc" should have another one of his swell ball clubs.

—V—

Austin Hall broke open the intramural baseball season Sunday by coasting to an easy victory. Playing Fedigan Hall in the morning the Austinites braved the cold snap and came out on the long end of the score. Mendel Hall won from Alumni in the afternoon. The softball league will open hostilities with the advent of daylight saving time. The games will be played in the evening immediately after chapel. Day Hop games will be scheduled at a different time probably in the afternoon.

—V—

The linksmen will open their season on April 16 when they encounter our traditional rival, Temple University in an away meet. The club-swingers will take to the fairways in the near future and the annual elimination tournament will be held before the varsity matches are played. Eight matches have been scheduled so far and more teams have been contacted. Villanova's golf team is a well-known organization among the "ball chasers" in the locality and consistently put a fine team on the field. Under the managership of Jack Geraghty the team has put their best foot forward in the past season and much is expected from them in the next two months.

—V—

Now that our thoughts have turned to Temple we see, by the papers, that they made a fine showing against a powerful Dartmouth nine last Saturday. Journeying into Philly, after a triumphal tour of the South in which the Indians won five out of six matches, the Hanover lads were taken into camp 8-7 by a fighting Owl aggregation. The blow-up came when the Temple batsters pounded out five runs in the third canto. The Broadstreeters clinched the game in the seventh inning when Bill Docherty and Kovacevics each accounted for a run. Villanova will meet the Owls in a two-game home and home series later in the season.

—V—

As soon as fair weather definitely sets in work will be begun on the tennis courts and competition will run high as the racquet men endeavor to clinch their positions. The gymnasium will be the scene of practice for the first few days and then the "pat ball' artists will demonstrate their wares on the clay courts.

HALL TEAMS OPEN BASEBALL SEASON

Softball Follows Advent of Daylight Saving; Twilight Games Featured

Now that the Intramural basketball season has been successfully terminated, the attention of the Villanova undergraduates is being focused on the coming baseball season. At the present time, every student dormitory is rounding up its ball tossers with the intent of capturing the coveted gonfalon.

The managers of the various halls have been appointed, and they are burning the midnight oil in an effort to select a satisfactory starting line-up. As usual, Father McKee is handling the destinies of the Austin nine. Gene Ertle and Clem Lavin will direct Alumni and Mendel, respectively, in an attempt to guide the yearlings to the top of the heap. Art Vigilante will once again lead the Fedigan Gigolos.

Day-Hops Not Competing

Unfortunately the Intramural Baseball League will have to function without the presence of both the Mendel and C. and F. Day-Hops, who will not be able to find time to compete.

Two games will be played every Sunday, with the first contest being held at 10 o'clock, while the second game will start promptly at 1 o'clock. Each team will meet the remaining league teams at least twice with the first two contests already safely tucked away. The imbroglios will be seven innings in duration, unless, of course, a tie necessitates the playing of extra innings.

Softball Later

Another popular Intramural sport, softball, will have its inception with the advent of Daylight Saving Time. As these games will be played twice weekly, immediately following the chapel services,

TRACKMEN PREPARE FOR BUSY SEASON

Train for Penn Relays, Temple, Albright and F. and M. Meets

Flashing around the cinder-cushioned curves of the Villanova track, the Wildcat harriers are steadily improving their already proficient skill at the art of running. Every day the track squad can be seen wending their speedy way around the cinder path and scaling the hurdles. The track has just been rolled recently and is in excellent shape for the spiked toes of the runners.

Tom Cook, veteran broad jumper, will participate in the Penn Relays in his specialty and will be assisted by a freshman relay team. The captain for the 1937 team will in all probability be selected at the first meet, which is the Penn Relays on April 23 and 24.

Four Meets

To date only four meets have been arranged, although proposals have been made to several other colleges for the open dates between the scheduled contests.

The only official meets besides the Penn Relays are Temple on May 1, Albright on May 5, and Franklin and Marshall on May 22. Incidentally, all track meets this year will be held away.

The total enrollment of the track team is twenty-one members, in-

Sure Signs of Spring

When the resounding crack of the bat and cheers of spectators float through the dormitory windows, it is a sure sign that spring is here. The intra-mural baseballers are as consistent as the robins in their arrival.

Montgomery, High Scorer as Basket-Ball Season Figures Are Compiled

After a successful court season, Villanova statisticians bored into the past of the basketeers and the results they garnered were very interesting. The Wildcats won 15 of their 23 games played in an off and on manner, and lanky Jim Montgomery won top scoring honors with a grand total of 145 tallies.

Although playing only a portion of a majority of games, Montgomery was instrumental in many victories with his trick shots. He usually started the action and after Villanova assumed a commanding lead in the early moments of the various contests, he would be given a rest. Despite this fact, he was able to rack up 64 baskets and 15 fouls for his grand total.

McNally Close Second

Harry McNally, scintillating guard, was second best in notching markers. Besides guarding his men, Harry was able to slip away 41 times to score field goals. He was exceptionally good in getting fouled and converting, despite the general team weakness in this department. He led his mates at the charity line, as 54 of his free throws dropped through the hoops; six of these coming in C. C. N. Y. affair, which the Felines won on Hank's last conversion. His 16 and 14 points respectively, in the Western Maryland and Providence games were also high for one night's work.

Lou Dubino, Johnny Krutulis and Don Brennan were the only other varsitiers who hit the century mark. Dubino bonged the nets for 53 goals and 19 fouls for a sum of 125. Fourteen of these came in wild Western Maryland imbroglio.

Krutulis alternated with Art Vigilante in most of the contests, but he was able to come through with 104 points on 41 twin-pointers and 22 charity tallies. Bandy was the money-maker of the outfit. Usually the spearhead of the passing attack, he would come through with points when they were needed most. His 11 markers helped to upset the strong Duquesne five. He also started a reactionary drive against Temple, but he was forced out of the contest on personals after he, personally, had succeeded in knotting the count.

HARVEY BUEK PERFORMS IN TWO SPRING SPORTS

Star Halfback, and Former I. M. Sprinter, Seeks Positions on Football, Track Teams

Harvey Buek, star halfback on the Wildcat eleven, is holding down a two-man job this Spring. The former Lower Merion star is out for Spring football practice in football and is also hopeful of landing a berth on the track team. Specializing in the sprints, Buek will be given his first opportunity to demonstrate his talents this season. Although a pretty good idea of his ability as a runner was gotten by the football fans last fall as they watched him tear down the field for a tally still he was hindered by the weight of his equipment.

Handicapped by an injured knee suffered in football practice, Buek was not able to compete in last year's matches and as yet his ability is still of an unknown quantity. Earning his reputation as a sprint man in the suburban high school, Buek was rated by many as one of the fastest sprint men in the suburban conference.

FORMER VILLANOVANS JOIN ELMIRA TEAM

Skaff, Vaughn, Geraghty, and Lenzi, to Gain Experience in N. Y. P. League

Four Villanova alumni will demonstrate their wares in the N. Y.-P. League during the coming baseball season. Frank Skaff, Ben Geraghty, Ed Vaughn and Link Lenzi hung up their togs in new lockers and donned Elmira baseball suits yesterday. Shipped out to the Elmira team to gain valuable experience, the ex-Wildcats are still the property of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Ed Vaughn and Frank Skaff recently returned to the scene of their college successes as they watched the baseball team go through their paces on the field behind the gymnasium.

Link Lenzi, fiery headed catcher, graduated in '35 and will be well remembered as the little man behind the big mask. Ben Geraghty handled the shortstop position the same year. Frank Skaff held down the sack in the hot corner, and Eddie Vaughn made faces at the batters from the mound.

BELL SHOWS FORM IN HOLDING 'CATS TO FIVE BINGLES

Bond and Sheftic Garner Two Blows Each in Dull and Listless Game

CHUBET IS NASSAU STAR

Tigers Jump Into Early Lead on Shortstop's Long Triple

Princeton, N. J., Sat., April 3—Overconfidence added another victim to its ever-increasing list today.

Humiliated by St. John's and C. C. N. Y. in the first two games, Princeton showed a reversal of form as Villanova's diamond representatives were upset, 7-2, behind Dick Bell's superlative five-hit flinging in a dull and listless game on University Field.

After Bell had retired the Wildcats in the opening frame, the Tigers worked away for a two run lead. Ray Jabara and Ken Sandbach, of football fame, both flied out, but Mark Hill was given a passout check by Bill McLaughlin. "Ruby" Sheftic made a desperate try for Eddie Givens' line drive, but the ball got by him.

Chubet Scores Two

Mark Hill advanced to third on the play. Johnny Chubet then poled a long triple that scored both runners. Eddie Novak ended the scoring spree for the moment by batting out.

Thus the Felines found themselves with their backs to the wall. Try as they might they could not catch the fleeing Princetonions. Bobby Bond was the first Wildcat to dent Bell for a safety. Bob connected for a screeching line drive

PUNTING STRESSED IN GRID PRACTICE

Nowak and Kuber Star at Blocking Kicks as Varsity Resumes Drills

Villanova's footballers resumed their Spring training routine last Thursday, the first day after the holidays, with an extensive punting drill. There is a game scheduled with Columbia University next Saturday in New York, and the Clipper is pushing the boys in order to get them in prime shape for this first test scrimmage.

Smith sent his charges through an extensive offensive and defensive drill on Thursday. Punting and runs from punt formation were stressed. Although no kind of a regular team has been selected as yet, an eleven composed entirely of last year's performers worked out and looked good against tough opposition offered by the rest of the squad.

Veterans Return

The veterans lined up with John "Bonecrusher" Wysocki and Alex Bell at the ends, John Mellus and Jordan Olivar, regulars for the past two years, in the tackle positions, Joe Missar and Val Rizzo, guards, and Johnny McKenna at the pivot post. In the backfield were Franny Nye, calling signals, Andy Stopper at his familiar left half position, [illegible] now

GOLFERS SCHEDULE EIGHT CONTESTS

Temple University Is Initial Foe of Linksmen April 16th

Another sign of Spring is the return of the golf season. Villanova will again be represented on the links. This year's team should give a good account of itself. There are several seasoned campaigners who are counted upon to bolster the hopes for a successful season.

Manager Jack Geraghty has arranged a fine schedule for the coming campaign. Although it is not as extensive as in past seasons, it includes eight matches to date. Five will be waged on the home links at the Main Line Country Club, and three will be held on foreign soil.

Temple First Rival

The first assignment on the roster will have our golfers teeing off against their arch rivals, the Temple Owls, on April 16, away. The following day the Wildcats will play host to Fordham in the only six man match carded for the season. The Hawks of St. Joseph's will provide the opposition on the afternoon on Wednesday, April 21, at the Main Line course.

The first of a home series with Rider will take place Friday, April 23, the match will be held on the Main Line. The second match will be contested in Trenton on Wednesday, May 5. On Wednesday, April 28, Villanova will travel to Lancaster to meet F. & M. F. & M. will come to the Main Line on Wednesday, May 12, to help ring down the curtain on the golfing schedule. The matches are finally rounded out with a second meeting with Temple on Monday, May 3, at home.

P.K.B. BOWLERS NEAR TOURNAMENT FINAL

Six Engineers Reach Quarter Finals in Annual Contest

Pre-eminent in the athletic department of Fraternal activities is the bowling tournament that has been conducted by the Phi Kappa Pi during the past three weeks on the Villanova alleys.

An opportunity to compete against one another in a friendly manner has been afforded to all members of the Engineer Fraternity in this tourney.

Thirty-two participants have engaged in this elimination tournament which has been marked by strong opposition, keen rivalry and a few upsets.

Corrigan, considered the favorite at the outset, was defeated by Norkin when the latter put on the pressure in the third game of the match, bowling a 193 score to his opponent's 163.

As a result of this impressive showing, Narkin was looked upon as the dark horse and sure winner of the award. However, Heck upset Narkin's apple cart in the second round by winning out in a closely fought three-game match.

Jerry Agnes, defeated in the second round by T. Carlin, pulled one out of the fire in the first round by nosing out Bill Durkin by one pin in an interesting three-game match.

Surviving first and second round matches and thereby advancing to the quarter-finals are Heck, Barrett, T. Carlin, F. Carroll, Cook and W. Thorn. Scelnus and Burns, Hennessy and Dinon have yet to play their second round matches and will bowl against each other in the order mentioned.

According to W. Thorn, capably conducting the tournament and also a threat for award, the finals will be played on or before the 20th of this month.

A new champion will be hailed this year inasmuch as William Rodgers, winner of last year's tournament, graduated last June. Narkin although defeated in the second round of tournament play still holds the highest score of match play so far.

JOURDET HONORED

Lon Jourdet, coach of Penn's championship basketball team was honored by the Varsity Club at a testimonial luncheon at the Racquet Club Saturday. Representatives of all 13 of the teams Jourdet has coached were represented as well as sport greats of many years past.

Bell Shows Form In Holding 'Cats

in the third, but he was caught in a double killing, and Villanova's hopes went astray.

The second Wildcat drive was abruptly halted by another double play in the fifth inning. Mike Garbark flied out to open the inning. Lou Wannemacher, who incidentally played a bang-up game, received one of the two walks issued by Bell. Leo Schoppmeyer then sent a hard grounder between short and third that had the earmarks of a hit, but Chubet made a brilliant play in stopping the ball and cutting Wannemacher off via Sandbach, who then whipped the pellet to Bill Fallon to retire the side.

Princeton added another marker in the third. Jabara singled and Sandbach did likewise. Mark Hill and Givens were put out, but Chubet batted in his third run with a one-bagger. Dean Hill ended the chukker by batting out.

Cats Tally in Fifth

They made it 4-0 in the fifth. Chubet got on base by virtue of Lennie Merullo's error. He advanced to third on a wild throw and he came over the plate on Novak's sacrifice.

Returning to their old form, the Wildcats pushed across two markers. Bond, the first man up, singled sharply to deep center. "Itch" McKenna was passed for Bell. McLaughlin reached first on a fielders choice, but Bond was forced out on third.

Sheftic singled McKenna home and advanced McLaughlin to third. Merullo's sacrifice scored the burly pitcher. Ray Stoviak popped to finish the spurt.

Desmond in Relief Role

After Given's two-bagger had sent Mark Hill across the platter in the seventh, Coach Joe Jacobs sent in the sparkling sophomore, Joe Desmond, to relieve the tiring McLaughlin on the mound. Joe retired the side, but ran into hot water in the eighth. Fallon, Jabara, and Mark Hill punched singles, and Givens and Bell added sacrifices to net two more tallies.

The ultimate losers' last threat came in the eighth. Desmond singled to center, and Sheftic collaborated with another. Frank Escott then batted for Merullo, but to no avail. Stoviak popped weakly to end it all.

Tigers Hit Often

Princeton collected ten hits off the combined efforts of McLaughlin and Desmond. Jabara, Chubet, Fallon and Mark Hill each connected for a brace of safeties. Besides their hitting prowess, the Tigers committed only one error afield. This came in the ninth inning, when Chubet booted Wannemacher's roller. Bell was the master throughout the entire contest. He had a very good change of pace and was very effective in the pinches. Only 33 Feline batters faced him during the course of the afternoon.

Villanova had the better team on paper, but as the results show, Princeton was far superior on the field. As it was their first start of the year, the team, composed almost entirely of sophomores and juniors, had some reason for their somewhat dismal display. Bond and Sheftie gathered two hits apiece, while Desmond garnered the remaining single.

NATATORS WIND UP SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Temple, St. Joseph's, Defeated in Final Swim Meets

Temple's jinx on Villanova's sporting representatives for the 1936-37 season failed for the second time this year against the mermen, who showed their superiority by an overwhelming score, a few days before the Spring holiday.

This victory was followed up a couple of days later by another win that sent St. Joseph's College to the depths under a lopsided count and also completed Villanova's most successful swimming season.

The Wildcats swept all the first places in both meets except diving due to the absence of Charlie Timmins who was suffering from sinus trouble.

Three Win Consistently

Toby Greco, Wilmer Booth, Jack Hosey and "Burke" Cousart completed a winning season by taking honors in both meets. Captain Joseph Duffy also distinguished himself in these concluding meets as well as in the stiff competition that he was forced to face throughout the season.

In the current campaign, Bill Leahy met no one capable of outracing him in his specialties, the 220 and 440 year freestyle events. He also led the team in the greatest number of points scored by an individual. His freshman brother, Edward, also displayed the family competitive talent by turning in consistently good performances in the 150 yard backstroke.

Since Captain Duffy will be the only loss to the team through graduation, Coach Mathieu expects his club to rise to even greater heights next year.

Coach "Jumbo" Elliott looks for a successful season and with the material on hand, there is no reason why his hopes shouldn't be realized.

VARSITY QUINTET IN SPRING DRILLS

Freshmen Show Form in First Varsity Practice Session

The basketeers are back hard at work again. After a brief respite, the hoopsters are plunged in the middle of a strenuous Spring training period. It is the belief of Coach Al Severance that the layoff from one basketball season to the beginning of another is too long, hence the period of pre-season training.

The courtmen convene every afternoon in the Alumni Hall Gymnasium and the boys are put through their paces. Two members of last season's team will be lost this year via the graduation route and Coach Severance is keeping a weather eye out for likely replacements.

Outstanding Freshmen

Three members of last season's Freshman squad are standing out as likely material for the varsity team next year. Rice, Duzmensky, and Paulkner are the lads who look good to the athletic moguls and in all probability will be seen in the Varsity games next year.

Along with the fact that the basketeers are practicing daily comes an unofficial announcement that a tentative schedule has already been arranged for next year, including about 24 games. Ten of these games have been definitely set and some of the toughest teams in the circuit will be met.

off after the season's finale, Spring practice was called and the hoopsters convene every afternoon in the Alumni Gym for practice sessions. According to an unofficial report, about twenty or twenty-five games will be carded for the basketballers next season and at the present time about ten of these matches have been definitely settled. With only two members of the varsity five lost via graduation, and with the material coming up from the freshmen team, coach Al Severance has all the possibilities of a great team.

MANUSH COMES BACK

Heinie Manush, who was set adrift from the American League, staged a comeback yesterday, the veteran outfielder blasting out a brace of home runs and a single to drive in three tallies as the Brooklyn Dodgers scored a 9 to 7 victory over the Newark Bears at Clearwater, Fla.

VILLANOVA BOXERS LOSE TO BADGERS

Sala and Mentzinger Only Wildcats to Win Bouts As Team Loses 6-2

Ray Gadsby's leather pushers dropped their first and only match of the season when they went down to defeat at the hands of the strong Wisconsin boxing team in the latter's Field House before a crowd of 8500 fans.

Captain Tony Sala wound up his inter-collegiate career by keeping his slate clean when he won handily over Truman Torgenson, Wisconsin's light-heavyweight. Tony had the bout from start to finish and again showed his great sportsmanship by carrying the Badger through the three rounds.

Shull Drops Close One

The 'Cats started the evening off with two strikes against them as they forfeited the 118 pound class and the heavyweight bout. Georgie Shull commenced the evening with a very close bout against Jim Walsh in the 125 pound division. George put up a great fight and had he shown a little more aggressiveness would have won easily.

Eddie Kirk fought Captain George Stupar of Wisconsin in the 135 pound class. Like the preceding bout this fight was very close. It might also have been called either way. Kirk carried the first round easily, but tired out towards the finish. Unknown to anyone, Kirk has been fighting throughout the entire season suffering from poisoned tonsils. He intends to have them removed now that the season is over and should really go to town next season.

Mentzinger Wins

Bob Mentzinger garnered the first point for Villanova as he won over George Dilie, captain of the Wisconsin swimming team. Infighting is considered good boxing in the middle west and Bob had a great evening. Although Dille, a very rugged boy, put up a great fight, there was no question about the decision.

Another questionable decision cropped up at the end of the Duffy-Harman bout. Harman, a big six foot one lad, outweighed Duffy by about nine pounds. Bill, a legitimate welter-weight, has been fighting over his weight all year, but still made the fight close enough to merit either a win or a draw.

Coach Gadsby's big disappointment came in the 165 pound class. Vito Schire, a left-hander, ended Jack Jarosik's string of seven straight victories. It was the first southpaw that "Sparkie" has fought, and he didn't seem to know what to do about it. Instead of following instructions, he waited too much and depended on counter-punching. The bout was close, but like Shull, if Jack had taken the lead he would easily have won.

According to an editorial in the Wisconsin school paper, the bouts which were called in favor of the Badgers could easily have been called drawa or victories for the Wildcats, had the match taken place in the East. Villanova lost no prestige in dropping their bouts to Wisconsin who last year defeated Penn State, Eastern Inter-collegiate Champions. The 'Cats made a great impression out there and will probably continue relations with Wisconsin next year.

WILDCATS VICTIMS GAIN BOXING TITLE

Marty Quick, former Northeast High athlete boxing for Bucknell, scored a three round decision over Bill Davidson, of Temple, in the 175 pound division of the Eastern College Conference boxing championships Saturday and the victory gave the Bisons the team championship. Temple needed that victory to tie the meet and Bucknell needed it to win.

Bucknell was beaten earlier in the season by Villanova's scrappers, Quick losing to Tony Sala.

Discusses the Recent Wisconsin Trip and Eastern Conference Championships

ALTHOUGH we lost to Wisconsin, in the final meet of the season, the boys need not hang their heads in shame, for the Badgers have yet to lose on their home grounds. Every bout was close and Villanova adherents can rest assured that they were well represented in the ring out in the Middle West.

Out at Wisconsin, boxing is a major sport, comparable to baseball and basketball in the East, and possibly ranking very close to football in popularity. I was informed that the Badgers' participation in this sport netted the athletic coffers a cool $10,000, which shows most convincingly that collegiate boxing is a paying sport, especially in the regions covered by the W. U. mittmen. The bouts are held in a field-house capable of seating 14,000 fans. Due to the fact that we brought only six men, the attendance was about 8500, by far the largest crowd that our lads ever had to watch them perform.

Ceremonies before Matches

In contrast to the method of handling bouts in the East, boxing is conducted on a much higher plane out West, if the ceremonies before the matches furnish any criteria. The refree came to the dressing rooms of each team and gave the instructions to the fighters before they go out to the ring, thus eliminating the conference between official and contestants before each bout. After the referee left, the teams each marched single file from their respective dressing rooms, and as we came out the home band sounded out the Villanova Alma Mater, a very hospitable and heartening gesture on the part of the hosts.

Following the completion of the Alma Mater, both teams, with the coaches, entered the ring and faced each other. The visiting coach, yours truly in this instance, was then introduced, and the members of both teams marched across the ring and shook hands. All persons other than the referee and the two participants of the opening bout then left the ring and the boys came out fighting.

Rules Differ

As to the actual fighting itself, there is also a difference between Eastern and Western interpretations of the fight game, and as a result the rules were different. This put our boys in a somewhat disadvantageous position. Out there in-fighting is looked upon as a good maneuver in boxing, and we are used to the long-range fighting prevalent in our section of the country. This is not to detract from the Wisconsin boys' victory, but merely to show the difference in the game in different parts of the land. The fights were by far the closest of the year's battles.

Meet Old Friends

When we arrived at the railroad station, we found two of our old friends awaiting our coming. I refer to none other than Harry Stuhldreher and Bob Reagan, recently of Villanova. With them was the Wisconsin boxing coach, Walsh, a very fine gentleman, at present studying law, in addition to turning out an excellent boxing team. These three Westerners entertained us during our three day stay, and among other things, introduced us to Philip La Follette, eminent politician, who can count on yours truly for a vote any time. He's a swell fellow.

Our friend Stuhlie is the fair-haired boy out there. Students, Alumni, and townspeople all rate him very highly, and his popularity knows no bounds. He is certainly making a hit out West. Both he and the boxing coach promised to do all in their power to arrange a match getween Wisconsin and Villanova next year, so our hopes for such an occurrance are high. After seeing what boxing is out there, and the enthusiasm with which is is received, I am confident that there is a very bright future for the sport here at Villanova and in the East.

Penn A. C. Bouts

Last week-end the Penn Athletic Club was the scene of the Eastern Conference Championships, and after seeing Bucknell walk away with the bouts, I am very much disappointed that we were not invited to participate in the matches. The Bisons took the 135 title, with Bill Androski winning; the 165 crown, with John Valentine defeating his rival; and the 175 diadem through the efforts of Marty Quick. As you will all remember, these three lads were defeated by a trio of Wildcat mittmen. Eddie Kirk eoundly trounced Androski, "Sparky" Jarosik pummeled Valentine, and Tony Sala cracked three of Quick's ribs in defeating him the time the Bison invaded the Wildcat lair.

In order to insure the continued success of boxing at Villanova, I am of the opinion that it is imperative that the athletic authorities of this institution should look seriously into the advantages of joining a boxing association such as the Eastern Association or the Eastern Conference. Joining one of these two groups would assure us a place on the boxing map of this section of the country, because we have, without the shadow of a doubt, boys capable of holding their own in any company furnished by the members of these associations.

Sala Invited to Coast

Recognition of Sala's achievements in the Eastern collegiate fight circles was gained when Tony received an invitation to participate in the National Intercollegiate Championships at Sacramento, California. Much to his disapointment, Tony found it impossible to accept. This invitation was a well deserved honor for a fine fighter and a gentleman, and I also regret greatly the fact that he was not able to climax a stellar collegiate ring career by taking the National Intercollegiate 175-lb title with him when he graduates next June. Villanova will lose a fine athlete, and a gentleman.

court; however, he weaved in and out frequently to sink set shots from all parts of the floor. His eagle eye netted him 43 baskets and he added 14 foul shots to bring his total to an even 100.

Vigilante, the other member of the super-six (six men alternated in starting and playing), crashed through with 45 tallies on 19 shots from the floor and 7 from the foul line. Every man out for the squad scored at least once.

Villanova started the year off with a flash by winning four in a row, until stopped by a highly-touted Springfield five. The highest streak of the year came after a miserable Dickinson upset. Bucknell was subdued easily to start the 'Cats on their way to a six game winning pace.

This row of wins was abruptly halted by a fast N. Y. U. quintet, 37-23. The Felines upset the dope four times during the season. A highly-favored Duquesne outfit was battered, 32-20. Westminster fell hard, 27-10, while the 'Cats had to be contented with a 33-32 victory over C. C. N. Y. In the major win of the year, St. John's was decapitated, 31-25.

BROWN PREP AGAIN

Brown Prep, one of the two teams to defeat the Kitten quintet this year, retained its hold on the Eastern States scholastic championship by defeating three rival teams at the Glens Falls tourney. The Prep also placed four men on the Glens Falls Tourney All-Star five.

SANDBACH LAUGHS

Every time a Villanova ball player made an error last Saturday, Ken Sandbach, Tiger infielder laughingly inquired, "Did they teach you that at Villanova with mirrors?"

THE PHILLIES ARE COMING

Philadelphia's Phillies, scheduled to play the Wildcat diamond stars in Norristown next Monday, turned up by defeating the Boston Bees in some recent exhibition games.

Here and There

By WILLIAM J. BOWKER

Spring is definitely here, and the seasonal sports of baseball, tennis and track are making their annual bids for the sport spotlight. The first casualty to come to our notice is the injury suffered by Lou "Buster" Biester, 150-pounder and trackster extraordinary. He is afflicted with a boil on his proboscis, which became infected, so they say, from a cinder which flew there from the flying feet of Vince LaBrasca during a recent practice whirl around the track.

As everybody knows by now, the Varsity baseballers are to face the Phillies next Monday. Although the Major Leaguers are not usually to be found in the first division at the end of the season's grind, they are no mean opposition, and a victory over Jimmy Wilson's boys is not a small accomplishment.

One-fifties Practice

Among the sights to be seen on the Villanova campus will be the appearance of the lightweight gridders in Spring drills. It is hoped that these vernal sessions will aid in the molding of a successful team for next year's campaign. Some of the members of the squad are wondering what the frosh baseball candidates are going to do for a practice field, as the one-fifties will in all probability use the terrain in back of Mendel Hall, and the Varsity gridders cover Austin field pretty thoroughly.

It was brought to our attention the other day that the swimming team has just completed a very successful season, being the only athletic representatives of this institution to defeat Temple this year. Two victories over the Owl mermen constituted the record for the Temple-Villanova rivalry. Losses to Rider and St. Francis, of Brooklyn were the only two blots on an otherwise spotless record. Congratulations are due to Coach Mathieu and his charges for the fine showing they made.

Road Work

Jersey James Braddock, heavyweight ring titleholder, got in some fancy roadwork for his next fight in dodging the process servers of various courts until he was tracked down in the verdant regions of North Jersey. This item in the heavyweight picture just adds to the general mess which has resulted from the attempt to match the champ with Joe Louis, said affair to take place in Chicago. Financial matters seem to be in a state of uncertainty, what with Max Schmeling offering a tidy sum to meet Jim over in Naziland, and the Illinois Senate passing a bill to the effect that a ten dollar bill is the highest legal price for boxing ducats in that state. This last event has perturbed the promoters no end and has considerably dampened their naive enthusiasm for the proposed tussle. Money does strange things to men.

Aviation Club note: Moe Dimon, secretary of the Villanova flying organization, started out in a cloud of dust for Washington to go to the conclave of air enthusiasts, only to end up in the world's liveliest city, Philadelphia.

Our somewhat gloomy prediction that most of the home baseball games would be rained out has partly come true, much to our disappointment and disgust, in the cancelling of the Cornell game of last Friday. Indirectly, the weather was to blame, for although the day was clear and warm, the Ithacans found it necessary to cancel their initial trip due to lack of practice caused by inclement weather.

We wonder if the Villanova campus will see any soccer this Spring. Last year some of the lads were out in back of Mendel Hall booting the ball around and generally getting in the way of the softball players. To date nothing has been seen or heard concerning the booters.

"Red" Lenzi, dynamic catcher of two years ago, has been floating around the campus the past few days, chatting of his travels in professional ball, among other interesting topics.

For any of you vitally interested in the doings of the Brooklyn Dodgers, we hereby announce that tickets for the opening game of the season went on sale yesterday.

STUDENTS ATTEND CLUB CONFERENCE

Wheeler and Carbine Represent Villanova at Intercollegiate Flying Meet

During the recent Easter vacation, President James Wheeler and Thomas J. Carbine, two very enthusiastic members of the Villanova Flying Club, attended a conference held by the National Intercollegiate Flying Club. The conference was held in the Lafayette Hotel, in Washington, D. C.

While in attendance, Wheeler was appointed to the Publicity Committee. One hundred delegates representing twenty-eight states were present at the opening of the conference.

The delegates assembled at the headquarters of the National Aeronautical Association where they were entertained at a smoker. The National Intercollegiate Flying Club is affiliated with the National Aeronautical Association.

Definite plans were laid for a meet to be held in June. This meet, to be held at the Long Island Country Club, is expected to surpass all the former meets of this national organization; also, an international meet was scheduled with the flying clubs of England. This meet will be held some time in July.

The following day, the delegates witnessed an exhibition of formation flying given for their benefit by the members of two squadrons of Marine Corps, after which they inspected many of the leading type airplanes. These included the new rotable wingless autogiro and the army transport used by the army officers.

The conference was brought to a close at a dinner and dance given at the Shoreham Hotel.

MUSIC LOVERS HEAR POPULAR SYMPHONY

Schubert's 'Unfinished' Proves Feature of Music Club Meeting

The grand movements of Shubert's "Unfinished Symphony" thrilled the members of the Villanova College Music Group last Thursday evening, April 1. Meeting in the Day Students' Room, a large number of college students, under the leadership of Moderator Rev. John Vrana, O. S. A., listened to Victor high-fidelity recordings, the playing of records being interspersed with explanation of the meaning of the music made by the moderator.

Crooks Heard

Richard Crooks, singing the aria Le Reve, from the French opera Manon, commenced the concert. Then followed the Symphony No. 8 in B Minor, by Schubert—the unforgettable "Unfinished." The sweet, piercing, ethereal melody of the Symphony gave the boys an insight into the soul of Shubert; a man possessed of purity and nobility of soul which he so well knew how to express in and through his music.

The Sextette from Lucia Di Lammermoor, Chi Mi Frena, was then played, this sextette being sung by Galli-Curci, Homer, Gigli, de Luca, Pinza, and Bada. The gorgeous harmonies and the soaring climax of the melody fairly lifted the students from their seats. Finally, there followed the Mad Scene from the same opera, sung by Toti Dal Monti.

Although played twice before, the students insisted that the song of Figaro, from the Barber of Seville, be played again. The laughing "figaro, figaro, figaro. . ." provoked considerable mirth.

COLLEGE ADVISORY COUNCIL DISCUSSES TEACHER TRAINING

Initial Meeting of Group Held on Tuesday; Stanley Smith Presides

FATHER STANFORD TALKS ON EDUCATION PROBLEM

Topic Subject to Round Table Discussion Following Report by President

With the presentation of a report on the dual teacher training situation in Pennsylvania by the Very Rev. Edward V. Stanford, O. S. A., president of the college, the General Advisory Council of Villanova College held its initial meeting at a dinner held in Mendel Hall last Tuesday evening.

After Very Rev. Mortimer A. Sullivan, O. S. A., president of the board of trustees, had explained that the purpose of the Council is to give the board of trustees, which is limited to seven members by the charter, the benefit of their advice and counsel, he introduced J. Stanley Smith, who acted as temporary chairman of the meeting.

Father Stanford then delivered his report with special emphasis being placed on the contributions of Villanova in regards to the teacher situation. He dwelt specifically on the role played by Villanova since 1918 in preparing teachers for the Catholic primary and secondary schools of the state.

Fr. Stanford pointed out that the Catholic primary and secondary schools of the state are well organized in six dioceses under six diocesan superintendents of schools, effecting a yearly saving to the taxpayers of approximately $40,000,000, not including capital investment. After the reading of the report it was subject to a round-table discussion.

The Council is composed of prominent men outside the educational

GUILD CARD PARTY CROWDED TO LIMIT AS RECORD IS SET

Twelve Hundred Enthusiasts Gather at Fourth Annual Social, Dance

Surpassing all previous attendance records, the Augustinian Seminary Guild played host to 1200 participants at its fourth annual card party held in the Villanova Gymnasium, Tuesday night, April 6.

Tuesday's affair was representative of the success that can be attained by excellent business management and active enthusiasm. As yet all returns are not in but Rev. Charles P. Brown, O.S.A., local director, expressed the belief that they will be in within the next week.

Attendance Large

Foremost in attendance were the residents of the Main Line, Philadelphia and its suburbs, and New Jersey. Also conspicuous by its voluminous extent was the list of patrons whose support was indispensible for success. Beginning promptly at 8:30 o'clock, the party continued with sustained and intense interest. The card and bingo games were under the able directorship of Rev. Joseph B. Dougherty, O.S.A., and Rev. Bernard M.

Student representatives from nine local colleges will visit Villanova College on April 19 as the guests of the local chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers to attend the Annual Convention of undergraduate chapters of the parent society.

Prizes Offered

Besides the featured addresses of parent society members will be the addresses given by seniors from every college represented in competition for prizes of twenty dollars and memberships in the parent society (Villanova, as host, not competing). With an expected attendance of 125, this year's convention will in all probability be more interesting and active than those of previous years.

Although several inspection tours to the many points of civil engineering interest have been arranged, Mario J. Menocal, president of the local chapter, has preferred to withhold the firms' names to be visited.

MUSIC CLUB HEARS BEETHOVEN'S WORK

Immortal Fifth Symphony, Valse Triste Rendered for Group at Meeting

Last Thursday evening, at 7:30 o'clock in the Day Students' Room, many of the students of Villanova College were spiritually stimulated by the immortal strain of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, the Symphony in C Minor.

A powerful theme thundered forth as the first four notes of the Fifth Symphony filled the room. Stated and re-stated throughout the four movements of the symphony, this classic symphony filled those listening to it with a tremendous appreciation, an awe-full conception of the grandeur of Beethoven's soul. Indeed, the Catholicism of Beethoven seemed to dance through the symphony.

Fate Is Theme

The theme of the symphony is Fate. One seems to see the struggle of the will of man against the evils of the world. Summoned into being by the opening theme, one proceeds through the symphony with a vision of the conflict between good and evil. In the Third Movement the evil seems to win, for it crashes to a terrifying extent. But, serenely,

— Ball A Success —

Top hat, white tie, and tails struck a fashionable tone in masculine attire at the traditional Belle Air Ball, Friday evening in the Villanova College Gymnasium. More than 400 couples, constituting members of the graduating Class of '37 and their guests, were musically entertained by Russ Morgan and his Orchestra at this outstanding senior formal.

Outstanding Success

Acclaimed as one of the most successful of senior class presentations at Villanova, the Belle Air Ball exceeded the most optimistic predictions. In the ballroom, majestically decorated in soft and delicate tones, the peal of laughter rose and mingled with the vibrant music of that versatile maestro and his "Music in the Morgan Manner."

A sparkling globe, studded with mirrored facets, reflected, from its suspended position in the center of the ballroom, the hues of numerous spotlights in dancing colors on the polished dance floor. The strikingly different arrangement of the ceiling, and the serene adaptation of the stage in presenting a unique "Blue Room," are factors for which Chairman Pio P. Goggi and the Decorations Committee are to be highly commended.

Unique programs, bound in transparent plastic covers, were presented as novelty souvenirs to the ladies at the affair. These programs, new and unusual in design, were devised by the Publicity Committee under the Chairmanship of Anthony L. Differ.

Sing Alma Mater

The most outstanding event of the evening was the "March of the Wildcats." After the evening was well under way, the ordinary strains of modern melody was interrupted, and gave way to the tunes of "Hail Villanova." Filing down from the stage, which sheltered the "Blue Room," came the senior class members and their charming partners. The "March"

URSULINE ACADEMY HOST TO DEBATERS

Villanova's Beta Gamma Gains Decision Over Saint Joseph's Group at Wilmington

Representatives from the debating team of St. Joseph's College acted in the capacity of guests of the forensic representatives of the Beta Gamma Literary Debating Society on Sunday, April 11, at 1.30 o'clock. The announcement of the debate was made by Anthony Differ, president of the Society.

Hours and wages constituted the point of discussion for the debate. The question, also known as the Pi Kappa question, is: Resolved: That the Congress shall have the power to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry.

Debate at Ursiline's

In the debate, which took place at Ursuline Academy, located at Wilmington, Del., Beta Gamma was represented by two outstanding exponents of forensic endeavors at Villanova, namely, Joseph Carroll and Anthony Differ. The latter defended the negative aspect of the question for debate.

It was also announced in rather vague terms that plans for a dinner are about to be formulated. Although it is a matter still under

PROPAGANDA

THIS is the day of propaganda: social, economic, political, religious, educational . . . all sorts of propaganda. Indeed, the very world itself is the battle ground of the propagandists. Soviet Russia broadcasts radio propaganda over Europe, and the various totalitarian states fight Communism by the same methods. Press, radio, screen, stage, every means is used to convey the message of the social reformer or the dictator.

One of the greatest set of propagandists ever to walk the stage of human life were the Twelve Apostles and their Divine Master. Twelve Men and a Leader, mind you, set in motion the greatest propaganda campaign ever initiated.

Only a few years ago, the Cinema was so rotten that a Legion of Decency was needed to clean it up. The press is still so poor that more and more Catholics are seeing the necessity for a Catholic daily newspaper, and large Catholic magazines. The radio, almost wholly, is secularistic, and un-Christian.

The press we are attempting to correct. The radio is slowly being brought to carry Catholic propaganda. But what about the screen? We must admit that the screen in America is almost wholly pagan, secularistic, and materialistic. We are neglecting a mightly agency of propaganda if we ignore the screen any longer.

There is no reason in the world why the Catholics of America cannot maintain and support a Catholic film propaganda. Not only would such a Catholic cinema propagandize the Church's message of Peace, Order, and Social Justice, but the many phases of Catholic life could most admirably be presented on the screen.

The Catholic Colleges are perhaps best fitted to take the lead in the development of the Catholic cinema, for their audience is a select Catholic audience. Such subjects as the Sacraments, Christian life and worship, interracial justice, social justice, and the Encyclicals of Leo XIII and Pius XI would offer a distinct challenge to the minds and talents of our Catholic Educators.

Propaganda must go on endlessly on every front. Here is a much-neglected technique, and a most powerful technique. Are we going to let the radicals alone use it? Or are we going to take the lead in developing for the American people a clean, sane, spiritualized Catholic cinema?

THE CHAIN STORE TAX

IT would require a naive citizen indeed who would conclude that the loud protest being raised by the chain stores against the pending Chain Store tax bill is merely out of consideration for the pocket book of the shopper. Had corporations in the past shown any inclination to prevent the passage of tax measures that could be easily shifted to the consumer, the present outcry could be attended with more confidence. As it is, the consumer knows that this tax is one which will have to be borne by the corporation and cannot be shifted, so he has little reason for becoming disturbed over its imposition.

The chain stores enjoy the vast volume of business they do because the housewife finds them more economical to deal with than many of the neighborhood grocers. If their prices are raised there will cease to be any incentive for going out of one's way to patronize them, and their business will suffer accordingly. So they must continue to undersell the individual dealer if they wish to remain in business. This, naturally, obviates any possibility of the tax being shifted.

Though the placing of a tax on chain stores is highly desirable for a number of reasons, setting it at $500 a store on all stores over 500 operated by one company, seems ill advised, if any credence can be given to the executive statement of one of the largest companies operating chain stores. If the tax is to be paid without seriously affecting the stores' continued operation, it must be taken from the net profit made by each; but we are informed, and the figures can easily be confirmed or disproved, that the annual net income of each store belonging to one company only totals $285. With some 1400 stores under this Company's control, it is obvious that a number of them must be closed if the tax is to be paid. This would seem to be carrying the taxing power of the State too far when it tends to impede the operation of legitimate business.

If it is intended to make the chain store tax a permananet source of revenue to the State, its present provisions must be definitely altered if it is ever to prove worth the collection. The sum to be collected on each store should be considerably reduced, while the number of stores exempted from the tax should be reduced to the minimum otherwise there is a serious likelihood that the tax will merely serve to legislate the stores out of existence.

THE KNIGHTS IN ACTION

THE Knights of Columbus of the United States have banded together to fight Communism and the evils of the sit-down strikes in our country. Acting under the orders of their Supreme Knight, Martin H. Carmody, the Catholic organization has come forth with the statement that "Ours is to be an endless crusade—until the war is over." In his address to four hundred delegates from many states the Supreme Knight spoke in the name of the Society and the Catholic church. He further pointed out that the Communistic situation in the United States is far more serious than is generally supposed.

By thus coming out with these public declarations the Knights of Columbus has joined the long list of Catholic and American organizations which have pledged themselves to fight the Red menace.

College Chatter

By Frank Bonetti

A MERCHANT was told he had a year to live. He called in a lawyer and said: "Fix it up so that my overdraft at the bank goes to my wife; she can explain it. My equity in my car goes to my son. He will then have to work to keep up the payments. Give my good will to the supply houses. They took some awful chances on me, and they are entitled to something. My equipment you can give to the junkman; he has had his eye on it for several years. And I want six of my creditors for pallbearers. They have carried me so long they might as well finish the job."

"People think," mourns Jean Harlow, screen actress, "that because I play uneducated roles in the movies I don't speak the King's English." That is nothing to get excited about since Parliament, Baldwin and the Church of England decided that the king himself said the wrong thing a couple of times.

B's—WITH APOLOGIES

I think that I shall never see
A grade as lovely as a "B"—
A "B" whose earning grade points rest
Where "D" or "RE" and even less
Have made us look to God all day
And lift our lonely arms to pray.
A "B" whose grades will let us rate
The marks we need to graduate
"F's" are made by fools, they say,
But only God can make an "A."

A Master of Science degree is worth one dollar and a half, my frans. A graduate of Stevens Institute of Technology tells us that he works for a well-known telephone company as consulting engineer, designing a new cable. He already had a Master of Engineering degree but remained at his studies until he got his M. S. Upon his completion of this feat, the company generously raised his salary a buck and a half.

ODDS and ENDS

By Joe Toland

NOW that the colorful Senior Ball is over all eyes are on the Juniors and their preparations for their big week. The various committees are working hard and everything should be a big success. As you probably already know the Seniors changed the old L. K. D. false ceiling and made a more attractive arrangement. Working steadily, it took them seven days to put it up and quite some time to take it down. The Juniors are going to use the same ceiling but, because of the presentation of "Journey's End," they will be unable to start decorations until Monday of Junior Week. If the Prom is to be a social success it is necessary that the decorations committee has the utmost co-operation of the entire class. Think it over Juniors.

Chief among structural improvements being made here on the campus is the new fence being erected between Austin and St. Rita's. At this time only the fence posts are in place, and it was quite comical to see them all topped with beer cans one day last week. Two prominent Seniors were seen lurking about the evening before.

We see that the Tower Theatre has again come across with special student rates. Remember how we told you that this would happen sooner or later? We would not be surprised if another local movie syndicate would soon adopt the same policy. If this works out, going to the movies will be about the cheapest thing a Villanova student can do. See if our "scoop" about this doesn't come true.

RAMBLIN'—We see that the Villanova police school is again holding sway out on Mendel Field . . . The State Troopers directing the jiu-jitsu class are two of the handsomest lads we have ever seen . . . Maybe it's the uniform, but we think that most any girl would deliberately go past traffic lights or roll along at more than 70 if she were sure of being stopped by such good-looking specimens of humanity . . . After seeing them toss each other around we are more definitely convinced that "crime does not pay."

DIAL-LOG

By BRUNO J. TALVACCHIA

RUSS MORGAN left nothing to be desired last Friday night. The Belle Aire Ball went smoothly from start to finish. The local "social lions" cavorted on the waxed floor in elegant fashion—much to the amusement of the fair young things accompanying them. Undoubtedly the most popular numbers of the evening were "Boo-hoo," "Linger a While," and "I'm a Fool Again." The "Morgan Trio" provided the harmonious vocalizing. The maestro's good nature manifested itself in the rendition of the extra medley after the clock struck two.

"Music in the Morgan Manner" will always be welcome at Villanova. Thanks, Russ. And you've added quite a few more listeners to your air spots. . . .

Nila Mack's veteran juvenile program, "Let's Pretend," is likely to have a foreign cousin. The CBS director has received from Mrs. D. J. H. Kleber, of Naarden-Bussum, Holland, a request for information about the program so she can organize a "Let's Pretend" for Dutch children. Mrs. Kleber was a devout listener to the Saturday morning fairy tale broadcasters during the five years she was in America, which she left a year ago.

No matter what else Americans going abroad for the coronation may take in their wardrobe, umbrellas are a "must," according to Columbia's "Travelogue" broadcaster, Malcolm La Prade. "The basic necessity," La Prade says, "is an early Spring wardrobe, definitely early prepared for nippy weather. A fur coat or topcoat won't be amiss, and raincoats and umbrellas are a 'must,' since England in Springtime while delightful, is also temperamental." La Prade adds that tails and white ties are worn in smart London restaurants and dinner jackets for less formal gatherings. But the degree of formality or informality of dress at the ceremonies would depend on the location of the visitor's seat, he says. The general style trend, he points out, is "toward simpler daytime formality."
